| Asparagus                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Adjantum 1.25@ 1.50                     |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Asparagus50.00@75.00                    |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                         |

BASSETT & WASHBURN

88 WABASH AVENUE.

CHICAGO

WHOLESALE DEALERS AND GROWERS OF_

CUT FLOWERS

GREENHOUSES: HINSDALE, ILL,

Always mention the .....

American Florist

when writing advertisers.

WE WILL HAVE THEM! 8,000 CUT Harrisii Liles for the Easter Trade ALSO ALL OTHER SEASONABLE FLOWERS PROMPT SERVICE. At the Right Prices. GOOD PACKING. Place your order now for Easter delivery. HOLTON & HUNKEL CO. Wholesale Florists and Florists' Supplies. 457 MILWAUKEE STREET, Wire Work. Phone Main 874. P. O. Box 103.

C. A. KUEHN, Wholesale Florist.

1122 PINE STREET.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

A complete line of Wire Designs.

MOUND CITY CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists.

C. W. WORSE ERRE ERRE ERRE WHOLESALE....

Headquarters for the South West .... ------

When writing mention American Florist

ST. LOUIS CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists

E. H. MICHEL

1620 Olive St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

ROSES, CARNATIONS, AND ALL KINDS OF SEASONABLE FLOWERS IN STOCK.

F. KASTING WHOLFSALE COMMISSION FLORIST...

495 Washington St., Buffalo, N. Y. Also Dealer in Florists' Supplies and Wire Designs

W. A. MCFADDEN.

NEAVE BUILDING. CINCINNATI.

Producers and Shippers of every description of High Class Floral Supplies.

CATTLEYAS and DENDROBIUM NOBILE.

Quotations issued weekly, forwarded on request.

CONSIGNMENTS CINCINNATI, O SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO SHIPPING ORDERS

THE "OLD RELIABLE" FOR

WHOLESALE

Go Everywhere

76 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

WHOLESALE CUT FLOWERS MIRE WORK ASPECIALLY, 88 WABASHAVE CHICAGO.

E. C. AMLING. WHOLESALE

51 WABASH AVENUE.

Consignments Solicited. CHICAGO. Prompt attention to shipping orders.

A. G. PRINCE & CO.

AND FLORISTS' SUPPLIES.

ROOTED GARNATION GUTTINGS

Albertini and Bridesmaid, $2.00 per 100; Daybrenk, $1.50 per 100; Lizzie McGowan, Ivory, Lizzie Gilbert, Fred Dorner and Rose Queen, $8.00 per 1000.

88 & 90 Wabash Avenue,

Telephone Main 3208.

CHICAGO.

S. B. WINTER,

(Successor to WINTER & CLOVER,)

21 Randolph St, Chicago.

HIGH GRADE LU

PACKED RIGHT.

so they will reach you in just as good condition as they reach us.

WIRE DESIGNS: A Full Line. Write us for our filustrated Catalogue.

| Vaughan,                                   |                                       | ellar &         | Winter                                | son     |
|--------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------|-----------------|---------------------------------------|---------|
| FLORISTS SUPPIFLORISTS SESPRING BU | IESEDS                            |                 | Flow                                  | erc     |
| All the leading varietietion Roote     | s in Curna-d Cuttings             | U ut     | 1 10 00                               |         |
| Fine well                                  | mixed Gladioli ld Gladioli Bulbs. | rose Rulbs, per | ts.1000. $ 7.5012,507.50 |         |
| Vaunhan Makallan S                         |                                       |                 | -49 Wabash Ave.,                      | Chicano |

Wholesale Flower Markets

|         | CHICAGO, April 8.                         |
|---------|-------------------------------------------|
| Roses.  | Beautiesper doz. 2.00@6.00                |
| 5.6     | Brides                                    |
|       | Meteors, Bridesmaids, Kalserin.5.00@10.00 |
|       | Perle. Gontlers 3.00@ 6.00                |
| 63.     | La France. Testont 6.00@10.00             |
| Carnat  | dons, common 2.00@ 5 00                   |
|       | fancy 5.00@ 7.00                          |
| Violeta | s #0@ 1.00                                |
| Narcts  | sns. Romans 3.00@ 4 00                    |
| Calias. | 8.00@10.00                                |
| Harris  | 1110 00@15.00                             |
| Lily of | ' the valley 2.00@ 3 00                   |
| Tultps  |                                           |
| Von S   | tons 3,00@ 4.00                           |
| Hyacu   | nths4.00@10.00                            |
| Adiani  | tum                                       |
| Smilaz  | t                                         |
| ASDAT   | agus50.00@75.00                           |

Consignments Solicited.

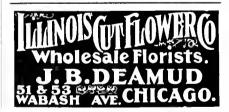

All Florists' Supplies.

19 & 21 RANDOLPH STREET. Fine Stock a Specialty. CHICAGO.

Wholesale Florist

Don't Forget that we are at 4 Washington St., Chicago.

Write for special quotations on large orders

N. Y. CUT FLOWER EXCHANGE

404-412 E. 34th St. Near Ferry Open for Cut Flower Sales at 6 o'clock Every Morning.....

DESIRABLE WALL SPACE TO RENT FOR ADVERTISING.

JOHN DONALDSON, Secretary.

₩₩Wholesale Florists

111 West 30th Street, NEW YORK.

Consignments Solicited. Telephone, 260 38th St.

Commission Dealer in

Cood Money for your Flowers. Cood Flowers for your Money. 49 WEST 29TH ST., NE TELEPHONE 1675 38th St. NEW YORK.

THE NEW YORK CUT FLOWER CO.

119 and 121 West 23d Street. 112 and 114 West 24th Street,

Telephone 733—18th.

NEW YORK.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED.

Special Attention Given to Shipping Orders.

ROGERS PARK FLORAL CO..

Wholesale Growers of

FLOWERS.

51 WABASH AVENUE,

-CHICAGO. HEADQUARTERS FOR AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

WHOLESALE GROWERS OF

FLOWERS...

600,000 feet of Glass. We can fill all orders on short notice with all leading varieties of Roses and Carnations. We are Headquarters for fine American Beauties. Give us a trial and convince yoursell. A A A

ROOTED ROSE CUTTINGS

Per 100 $1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50 ∦12.50 12.50 12.50 12.50 12.50 BRIDE BRIDESMAID PERLE METEOR AM BEAUTIES BELLE SIEBRECHT 12.50

ROSE PLANTS

ROOTED CARNATION CUTTINGS.

| JUBILEE          |        |           |
|------------------|--------|-----------|
| Wm. Scott        |        | 0 = 7.50  |
| Nancy Hanks      |        | 0 = 7.50  |
| Tidal Wave       |        | 0 = 7.50  |
|                  | 1.0    |           |
| Lizzie McGowan   |        | 0 = 7.50  |
| Goldfineli       | 1.0    | 0 = 7.50  |
| Mrs Thompson     |        | 0 = 7.50  |
|                  |        |           |
|                  | 1.6    |           |
|                  |        |           |
| Lizzie Gilbert   |        | 0 = 12.50 |
| Harrison's Whit. | 9 I fo | 6 - 12.50 |
|                  |        |           |
|                  |        |           |
|                  |        |           |

REINBERG BROS.. 51 WABASH AVENUE, CHICAGO.

M. A. HART. Commission Dealer Cut Flowers.

44 WEST 29TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

THE BEST MARKET IN NEW YORK. 'Phone 1307 38th $t.

TRAENDLY & SCHENCK. Wholesale Florists.

Control the stock of many celebrated growers and are prepared to quote prices on First Grade Cut Flowers. All varieties.

38 West 28th St., and Cut Flower Exchange, rel. 961 t8th Street. NEW YORK CITY.

FRED. EHRET.

No. 1403 Fairmount Avenue.

Telephona, Long Distance.

PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| NEW YORK, April 6.                                                                                                                 |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Roses Beantles 4 00@25 00                                                                                                          |
| Roses. Beauties                                                                                                                    |
| Brides, Bridesmaids 2.00@ 8 00                                                                                                     |
| " Morgans, Meteor                                                                                                                  |
| Carnations                                                                                                                         |
| Lilles                                                                                                                             |
| Lily of the valley 1 00@ 3.00                                                                                                      |
| Daffodils, Tulips                                                                                                                  |
| Violete 25@ 75                                                                                                                     |
| Violets                                                                                                                            |
| Smilax                                                                                                                             |
|                                                                                                                                    |
| BOSTON, April 6.                                                                                                                   |
| Roses Beauties 8.00@25.00                                                                                                          |
| prumers o.uu 40.00                                                                                                                 |
| Meleor, Khiseriii 100@ 5 00                                                                                                        |
|                                                                                                                                    |
| Carnations 2.00 $\overline{a}$ 6 00 Lity of the valley 1.00 $\overline{a}$ 3.00                                                |
| Lily of the valley 1.00@ 3.00                                                                                                      |
| Violets.         50@ 75           Longitorum lilles         10.00@12.00           Tulips. Daffodlis, Mignonette         2.00@ 3.00 |
| Longidorum lilles                                                                                                                  |
| Turiba, Danodila, Mignonette 2.00@ 5.00                                                                                            |
| Spiræs, Stocks 2 00 3 4.00                                                                                                         |
| PHILADELPHIA April 6.                                                                                                              |
| Roses, Beauties select, per dozen3.00                                                                                              |
| " medium 6.00@15.00                                                                                                                |
| " Brunners16 00@35.00                                                                                                              |
| " Teas 4.00@ 12 00                                                                                                                 |
| Carnations 1 00@ 2 00                                                                                                              |
| " fancy 2 00@ 3.00                                                                                                                 |
| Lily of the valley 3 00@ 4.00                                                                                                      |
| Violets                                                                                                                            |
| Narcissus 3.00@ 4.00                                                                                                               |
| Hyscinths                                                                                                                          |
| Harrisii                                                                                                                           |
| Sweet peas                                                                                                                         |
| Smilax 12.00@15.00                                                                                                                 |
|                                                                                                                                    |

John I. Raynor,

49 WEST 28th STREET.

NEW YORK.

SPECIAL EXTRA STOCK OF AM. BEAUTY, METEOR, BRIDESMAID, BRIDE.

Record Breaking Carnations ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

THOS. YOUNG, JR.

* * Wholesale Florist

43 West 28th Street. New York.

WALTER F. SHERIDAN. WHOLESALE

FLORIST.

39 West 28th Street, NEW YORK.

Roses shipped to all points. Price list on application.

os e Cirowers

Will find a good market and good returns for their stock at....

JULIUS LANG'S

53 W. 30th Street. - NEW YORK.

Edward C. Horan. 34 W. 29th Street, NEW YORK,

WHOLESALE • FLORIST.

Careful Shipping to all parts of the country.
Price list on application.

WM. C. SMITH, Wholesale Florist,

40 So. 16th St., PHILADELPHIA.

Consignments Solicited. Special attention given to shipping orders

Long Distance Telephone 5008 A.

CUT FLOWER MARKET 9 Chapman Place, 15 Province Street, BOSTON. MASS.

WELCH BROS., PROPRIETORS.

Consignments from regular growers assigned separate space in our market. We guarantee payment for all Flowers sold. Sales reported weekly; payments monthly, or oftener if required.

THE NEW ENGLAND HEADQUARTERS FOR THE BEST GRADE OF FLOWERS AT ALL SEASONS OF THE YEAR.

J. K. ALLEN, Wholesale Florist.

WHITE VIOLETS, finest quality. EXTRA ROSES and other desirable specialties.

57 West 28th Street.

Long Distance Telephone 382-38th St

NEW YORK.

GALVIN&CO. Wholesale Florists

AND DEALERS IN ALL

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES,

4 Ordway Place, BOSTON, MASS. Cut Flower Consignments Solicited. Best market.

GEORGE A. SUTHERLAND, Cut Flowers & Florists' Supplies WHOLESALE.

67 Bromfield St..

BRIDESMAIDS.

BOSTON, MASS.

Wholesale Florists

JOBBERS IN

FLORISTS' VASES.

Horticultural Auctioneers. LEY STREET, . BOSTON.

JOHN YOUNG, ROSES, CARNATIONS, VALLEY

and all other choice cut flower stock.

NEW YORK. 51 W. 28th Street. Price list on application.

FRANK MILLANG,

WHOLESALE COMMISSION.

408 E. 34th Street,

Cut Flower Exchange.

NEW YORK.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN. IBVING BOUSE, Pres: E. ALBERTSON Vice-Pres: GEORGE C. SEAGER, Bochester, N. V., See'y and Treas

Canada and the San Jose Scale.

The bill intended to prevent the introduction of the San Jose scale into Canada will apply to Australasia as well as to the United States, Japan and Hawaii. The plants excepted from the embargo are: (1) Bulbs and tubers, such as lilies, hyacinths, gladioli, etc.: (2) conifers of all kinds: (3) greenhouse plants, such as palms, ferns, begonias, arateas and eacti, thut not roses, these being shut out); (4) herbaceous, bedding plants, such as geraniums, pansies, verbenas, etc.; (5) herbaceous perennials, the tops of which are winter killed.

PHIENIX NURSERY COMPANY, BLOOM-INGTON, ILL., report a fair demand in a few items, but no improvement in the general nursery and greenhouse business as compared with last year, trade having fallen off and prices dropped, the production being greater than the demand.

HARDY

THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK IN AMERICA. PÆONIES, PHLOX, IRIS, DELPHINIUMS, ETC., ETC.

JACOB W. MANNING The Reading Nursery, READING, MASS. ESTABLISHED 1854.

Assorted in 25 Varieties.

se ection $50 per 1000. Descriptive entalogue and price lists for the trade.

SAMUEL C. MOON, Bucks Co., PA.

CLEMATIS

Large flower ng ( crie) es — Rhododendrous, Ampropsis Aziaca H. P. Roses, Tree Roses, etc. etc. 1, hos. Tuberoses, Begonius and Grovin as ellorticultural to, Boshoop, Holland. Rutherford, N. J.

Branch of

Jackson & Perkins Co.

Growers of Choice Specialties for Nurserymen and Florists....

NEWARK, NEW YORK.

ROSES, NOVELTIES, Strong, field-grown, dormant plants......

THREE NEW RAMBLERS, $1.75 per 10; $16 per 100.

| ψο po. τοι ψιο po.        | 100.                |
|---------------------------|---------------------|
| Yellow Rambler (Aglaia)   | Companion roses     |
| The only hardy yellow     | to Crimson Ram-     |
| climbing rose             | bler, similar habit |
| Pink Rambler (Euphrosyne) | of growth and       |
| Clear light red           | manner of bloom-    |
| White Rambier (Thalia)    | ing, very vigor-    |
| Pure white                | ous; hardy.         |
|                           |                     |

LORD PENZANCE'S HYBRID SWEET BRIARS

$1.75 per 10: $15.00 per 100. Extra strong field-grown, dormant plants.

Varieties:
Amy Robsart-lovely deep rose. Anne of Ceierstein-dark erlmson. Brenda-malden's blush or peach Flora Milvor-pure white, blushed rose. Lady Penzance—th beautiful, soft that of copper with a penular metallic lustre. Lord Penzance—th soft shade of fawn or cerue passing to a lovely emerald yellow. Meg Merrilees, corgeons erlmson. Rose Bradwardine-beautiful clear rose.

ROSES, COMMON SORTS.

Strong, field-grown, dormant plants, $10 per 100.

Mme. G. Bruant Mrs. John Laing Princess Adelaide, Moss Ulrich Brunner Mme. Plantier, $5 per 100.

TREE ROSES.

7 ft., extra fine. $3.50 per 10; $25 per 100. Crimson, Pink, Rose. Red, White, Yellow.

ORNAMENTAL SHRUBS. Per 100

| Deutzins, assorted, 3 to 4 ft., $7, WI              |
|------------------------------------------------------|
| Exochorda grandiflora, tree-shape, 3 to 4 ft,        |
| Exochorda grandiflora, 2 to 3 tt., fine              |
| Fringe, purple, 3 to 4 ft                            |
| Hydrangen Red Branched Hydrangea Thos. Hogg,         |
| strong, field-grown, dormant plants with good        |
| erowns                                               |
| Lilacs, new and old varieties, prices and sizes on   |
| application.                                         |
| Snowhall, common, 2 to 3 ft , fine                   |
| Snowball, Japan, 2 to 3 ft., tine                    |
| Snowball, Tomentosa (V. Tomentosum), 2 to 3 ft 15 00 |
| Tree Parony, Banksti, 2 yr . atrong30,00             |
| Xanthoceras Sorbifolia, a most rare and beautiful    |
| shrub is on                                          |

Complete list of unsold stock including additional Roses and Shrubs. Clematis, Ornamental Trees, Conders. Small-Fruit Plants and Fruit Trees sent upon application. A postal eard will bring it if you mention this paper.

JACKSON & PERKINS CO. NEWARK, NEW YORK.

Memorial Kose

Strong field-grown plants, $50, $75 and $100 per 1000

SAM'L C. MOON.

MORRISVILLE, Bucks Co., PA.

Evergreen, Hedging, RFFS AND Deciduous Vines, Bulbs, Tubers, Etc.

W 1898 CATALOGUE, 10 PAGES, FREEL The. Wm H. Moon Co., MORRISVILLE, PENNA.

Nursery Stock

10 000 Ampriopois Vettehn, strong fields recyclidants — be be and fe Cheap

Cheap

One Ampologies veitering mentage points from plants for Genni 7c across plants for Genni 7c across plants for Genni 7c across plants for Chinese Tver green Homey such left of Genni 7c across plants for Genni 7c across plant

Mention American Plorist

THE ELIZABETH NURSERY CO., ELIZARETH.

DREER'S OFFER

HERBACEOUS PLANTS.

| Anthericum Lillastrum (St. Bruno's Illy).  Lillago (St. Bernard's Illy).  Achilles, The Pearl Filipendula.  Adonts Vernails. Pyrenaica.  Anemone Japonica Alba, 24-inch pots. Elegans, 24-inch pots. Whirlwind, 24-inch pots. Pennsylvanica, 24-inch pots. Aquillegia Cœrulea 3-inch pots. Chrysantha, 3-inch pots. Canadeneis, 3-inch pots. Canadeneis, 3-inch pots. Californian hybrids, 3-inch pots. Asters (Michaelmas daistes) in 6 cnoice varieties Boitonia Asteroides. Latisquama Bocconia cordata. Calita Painstris (Marsh Marigoid).  Cassia Marilandica (American Senna). Campanula Alliarhefolia, strong clumps. Carpatibles, blue and white.                  | Per 100               |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------|
| Anthericum Liliastrum (St. Bruno's Illy)Liliago (St. Bernard's Illy)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | $5.00                |
| Achillea, The Pearl                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 5.00                  |
| Adonis Vernalts                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 12,00                 |
| Anemone Japonica Alba, 24-inch pots                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 5.00                  |
| " Elegans, 234-Inch pots Whirlwind, 244-Inch pots                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 5.00                  |
| Pennsylvanica, 24-inch pota                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 4.00                  |
| Chrysantha, 3-Inch pots                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 6.00                  |
| " Canadensis, 3-inch pots                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 5.00                  |
| Asters (Michaelmas dalaies) in 6 choice varietiesBoltonia Asteroides                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 5 00                  |
| Latisquama                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 6.00                  |
| Caltha Palustris (Marsh Marigold)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 6.00                  |
| Cassia Marilandica (American Senna)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 12.00                 |
| Campanula Alliariæfolla, strong clumps                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | . 6 00                |
| Cassia Maritandica (American Senna). Campanula Alliari-folla, strong clumps. Carpatblea, blue and white. Grosseckil, clumps. Persicifolia Alba. Pyramidalis. Coreopsis Lanceolata, strong clumps. Clematis Davidlana, strong clumps.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 6 00                  |
| fore pleno                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 12 00                 |
| " Pyramidalis Coreopsis Lanceolata, strong clumps                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | . 12.00               |
| Clematis Davidiana, strong clumps                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 8.00                  |
| Diantbus Pinmarius Stanislaus, 1 year clumps .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 5 (0)                 |
| Dictambus Fraxinella Alba, strong                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 12.00                 |
| Digitalis (Foxglove)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 6,00                  |
| Caucasicum.,,,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 12.00                 |
| Eupatorium Celestinum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 6.00                  |
| Pyramidalis. Coreopsis Lanceolata. strong clumps. Clemtis Davidiana, strong clumps. Delpilnium Formosum, i year old plants. Diantbus Pimmailus Stanislaus, i year clumps Dictamnus Fraxinella Alba, strong.  Rutra.  Bigitalis (Foxglove). Doronleum Exceisum. Euonymus Radicans Varlegata, i year old. Eupatorum Celestinum. Funkla Cerules, atrong.  Alba,  Varlegata Gysophila Paniculata, i year old. Gaillardia Grandiflora. 3-inch pots. Hellopsis Pitcherlanus, strong cimmps. Hellopsis Pitcherlanus, strong cimmps. Hellantbus Multiflorus, d. pl.  Maximilliana.  Molls.  Rigidus. Hemerocallis Dumortieri. Fulys.  Kwanso, flore pleno.  Auralmand Major (new). | . 4 00S 00        |
| " Varlegata "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | S 00                  |
| Gaillardia Grandiflora. 3 Inch pota                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 6 00                  |
| Heuchera Sangulnen 24-In. pots                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 8.00                  |
| Helianthua Multiflorus, fl, pl.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 10.00                 |
| " Maximilitana                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 6 00                  |
| " Rigidus.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 5.00                  |
| Fulva                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 4.00                  |
| " Kwanso, flore pleno                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 6,00                  |
| Helentum Grandicephalum Striatum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 20.00                 |
| Hyperleum Moserlanum, strong one year old                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                       |
| Falva.  Falva.  Falva.  Kwanso, flore pleno.  Aurantinen Major (new).  Helenlum Erandicephalum Striatum  Hollyhocks in separate colors. August seedlings Hyperleum Moserlanum, strong one year old.  trico orum, strong lyr. ol  Iris Germanica, 12 distinct varieties.  cholee mixture.  Kaempterl, 25 fine named sorts.  cholee mixture.  Orientalls.  Lychuls Semperfiorens Plenissiam.  Viscarla Alba Plena.  Spiendens.  Lobelta Fardinalis.  Lysnanchu Clethroides.  Lythrum Roseum Superbum, 3-in. pots.  Momarda Didyma.  Kosea  Enothera Frasori (Evening Primrose)  Spiendens.  Missantiposis.                                                                   | 6,00                  |
| " Kæmpterl, 25 flue named sorts.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 4,00                  |
| " choice mixture                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 6.00                  |
| Lychnis Semperflorens Plenissima                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | . 5 00                |
| " Splendens                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 5,00                  |
| Lobelta Pardinalla,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 6 00                  |
| Lythrum Roseum Superbum, 3-In. pots                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 8.00                  |
| Rosea                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 6 00                  |
| Spendens " " "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 6 00                  |
| " Missouriensis" " Pardantius Sinensis (Bluckberry Lliv)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 6,00                  |
| Pinks, Hardy Scotch, 5 varieties clumps                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 6 00                  |
| Canthera Fraseri (Evenling Primrose) Spendens Missourlensis Pardanthus Sinensis (Bluckberry Lily) Pinka, Hardy Scotch, 5 varieties champs 5 varieties 2-in pots. Platycodon Grandiffornin strong champs Mariesi, strong champs Paconias, Japanese tree varieties, 12 fine sorts Herbaccous, 12 distinct colors Herbaccous, in fine indature. Tenuitolia. Tenuitolia (in b) Outchinds (inoble whitu.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 6 00                  |
| Paronius, Jupinese tree varieties, 12 fine sorts.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 8,00                  |
| Herbiteeous, 12 distinct colors                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | . 15.00               |
| " Tenultolia. "Tenultolia d. ni                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 10 00                 |
| Tenuitollu fi. pl                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | . 20,00               |
| Pillot, "Savarfelles, 2-pin, pots.  Sabulah (Kosea  Sabulah (Kosea  Sabulah (Aba  Divarfenin (Lundensis, 2-pin, pots.)  Popples, tecland 2-pin, pots  Orientalis, 3-in, pots  Divarded (Medida                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 6.00                  |
| Subulata Alba .  Divarienta Canadensis, 29 pln. pots                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 6 00                  |
| Popples, technid 2 pln, pots Orientalis, 3-in mots                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 6,00                  |
| Physiostegla VirginiesPlandingo Larpenie strong chumpsDotenthias In ch. lee mixtue strongPrimula Vulsaris, English Primrose, clumpsRosea                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 5 00                  |
| Potentiling fach ice mixture, strong                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 5,00                  |
| Trimum Vuigniis, ringfish Primrose, clumps Rosen                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 5.005.00          |
| Solum Agra                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 1.190                 |
| Scabbos, Crucesslen Scabbos, Crucesslen Spilica: Ettipondula, il pl., clumps Anthony Waterer, strong l-year clumps Lobatin                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | . 6 00                |
| Splica Filipendula, il pl. clumps                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 10 00                 |
| Anthony Waterer, strong Lyear clumps                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | $00.8 \pm 00.00$      |
| " Dimaria Meadow Sweet:                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 10 00                 |
| obuth   Umarth Meadow Sweet    Runnrenlus Aconfilfolius Plenus     Rudhecka 'todden tilow 'strong     Sintlee Latitotia strong 3-inch nots                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | . 5 10                |
| " Armeth, Plumps                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 8 00                  |
| Armetla, clumpsSylpidum Periolinium strong clumpsTritona I varla Grandlilora, extra strong clump                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | ., S,ER7181-181 и |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                       |
| HENDY & DOCE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | n                     |

HENRY A. DREER

714 Chestnut St., PHILADELPHIA.

Rose Crimson Rambler.

Crimson Rambler is the greatest rose that has been introduced in modern times. It may not be hardy everywhere, though I have not heard of any place where it is not so. It is distinct in growth and in manner of blooming. The third year after planting it will make canes from eight to fifteen feet in length, and at the base will be nearly as thick as a broom handle. It blooms in clusters composed of large numbers of double flowers about the size of a double cherry blossom. It blooms only once a year, it is true, but it is a grand sight for three weeks or a month after it commences to flower. The flowers are a bright cheerful shade of crimson, and it has a very telling effect in the landscape, no matter whether the garden wherein it is planted is small or in the more pretentious pleasure grounds of the wealthy.

This grand rose has been referred to hefore as an Easter plant; this gives it additional value, though, personally, I would never have suspected that it would be considered useful for that purpose, but such it is, and in Philadelphia it will be used in large numbers this year. Messrs. Robert Craig & Son, Robert Scott & Son, and Wm. K. Harris saw a future for it and went into it heavily. There is nothing at all like it are appearanced in the source of the state of the s ing at all like it, or approaches it in effectiveness at this season of the year when well done. Some plants we saw at the Messrs. Craig's had been in bloomfor three weeks and they were still in excellent shape, showing how well adapted it is for such a purpose. No other rose that I know would remain salable so long. If I am not mistaken our good triend, Jackson Dawson, should receive the credit for showing the possibilities of this plant for use at Easter, and another good friend, Lawrence Cotter, is cutitled to the credit of taking advantage of the fact. Vellow Rambler and White Rambler are both disappointments as Easter plants.

Saginaw, Mich.

Mr. Chas. Frueh's private office and workroom have been cularged and remodeled since my last visit and things about the place in general show marks of improvement of one sort or another.

Mr. Frueli reports a good trade all along the line; it is his opinion that the Easter of '98 will pay and pay well.

Messrs. Wm. Rothke & Sons are likewise sanguine as to the outlook of the Easter and spring trade. Their general stock never looked better.

Grohman Bros. are no longer experimenting with palms, that is to say, they have long since passed the experimental stage and have now reached a certainty. They find that kentias, latanias and arecas, especially the former two, thrive in the Saginaw valley as well as anywhere else on the face of the globe, and hence will continue growing these varieties.

Mr. J. B. Goetz, as usual, extended to the scribe the freedom of the houses. What I saw can be described in four Номо. words, the roses are perfect.

Wyncote, Pa.

Whether it be in the soil or in the method of growing, the fact remains patent that Mr. Heacock's American Beautics are about as fine as any to be found on the continent. Just now they appear at their best and many an out of town florist, visiting thecity of brotherly love avails himself of the opportunity of seeing them. The sight is certainly and attractive one. Nor are his Areca lutescens less attractive. Clean, healthy and perfect plants is what one beholds when strolling through the houses.

Mr. Heacock reports increased sales, and though somewhat conservative in his predictions, is nevertheless inclined to the belief that things will and are assuming a brighter aspect.

Polo, Ill.-The new greenhouses of Maurice Miller are completed.

"Golden Glow" (HARDY)

Excellent for cut flower purposes in late summer. Strong plants, $6.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

IRIS KAEMPFERI strong clumps in ten to color. $1.00 per doz.; $6.00 per 100.

Edwin Lonsdale,

Money Order Office, Station H, Phila.

Florist. CHESTNUT HILL. PHILA, PA.

50,000 MARIE LOUISE RUNNERS

at $4.00 per 1000, 60c per 100. Cash with order.

Want to exchange above also for young American Beauties, Wootton and Meteor Roses, as well as all the newer Carnations.

HILLSDALE FLORAL PARK, Hillsdale, Mich.

BUY YOUR ASPARAGUS PLUMOSUS SEED DIRECT FROM THE GROWER......

J. W. LANDEVILLE, Florist, SAN DIECO, CAL 535 17th Street.

THIS IMPRINT ON AN ENGRAVING

CHICAGO

IS A CUARANTEE OF SATISFACTORY QUALITY....

Manz makes illustrations for this paper.

CHICAGO'S FAVORITE PASSENGER STATION

Reasonable success seems to have followed the efforts of the management of the Nickel Plate Road to make it popular as a passenger line for travel East. It is regarded as a favorite by many in making the journey from Chicago to eastern resists.

Patrons of that line will be gratified to learn that arrangements have been made, effective Sun-day, March 6th, for all-passenger trains of the Nickel Plate Road to arrive at and depart from the Van Buren Street Station in Chicago.

Van Buren Street Station in Chicago.

The many advantages afforded by this Great Union Depot, located in the heart of the business portion of Chicago, and the continued advantage afforded by lower rates than over other lines, having three express trains daily, with through sleeping cars, to New York and Boston, and the advantage of superior Duning Car Service, when all considered, should show increased travel over the Nickel Plate Road.—(8)

GEO. E. COLE & CO. Blank Book Makers, Stationers and Printers

86 and 88 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO.

Armstrong's Everblooming Tuberose & & A NEW departure in Tuberose growth. Flower bearing buds continue to form around the old flower stock indefinitely. Flowers greatly superior to those of all other single Tuberoses. Awarded Certificate of Merit by the S. A. F. at Providence last August, and the Shaw Gold Medal at St. Louis in November. For Prices and Particulars ... Address... LUTHER ARMSTRONG, 3720 Olive St., ST. LOUIS MO.

36 First Prizes out of 39 entries in 1896 and 1897. Peacock's Prize Winning Dahlias

Send for 1898 illustrated wholesale cata-ogue before placing orders elsewbere.

W. P. PEACOCK, - Atco, N. J.

VIOLET CLUMPS AND ROOTED RUNNERS

JNO. F. WALKER, Waldrop, Va.

... THE ... "Lyon=Horticole"

is an interesting review of French horticulture. Issued semi-monthly. 20 8-vo. pages illustrated. Subscriptions to the United States, 1 year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00. Address

DIRECTEUR LYON-HORTICOLE, Lyon-Villeurbanne, France.

FLORISTS' MUTUAL

INSURANCE ASS'N

Application Blanks and Prospectus Ready....
Write now. Delays are dangerous.

W. J. VESEY, Sec'y, - Ft. Wayne, Ind.

For Insurance against damage by hail, Address

JOHN G. ESLER. Sec'y, F. H. A., Saddle River, N. J.

THE NATIONAL Florists Board of Trade

C. S. LODER, Sec'y, 271 Broadway, New York

THE WABASH R. R. COMPANY

The Short and Quick Line between the The Short and Quick Line between the and Toledo with Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

The Wabash is the Only Line running sleeping cars and chair cars (free) between Buffalo and St. Louis and Kansas City.

Through sleeping cars between New York and Boston and St. Louis and Chicago run every day.

For further information apply to the nearest Railroad Ticket Agent, or to

H. B. McCLELLAN, G. E. A.,

387 Broadway, New York City,

J. D. McBEATH, N. E. P. A., 5 State Street, Boston, Mass.

C. S. CRANE, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., St. Louis, Mo.

THE SEED TRADE.

* MERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

JEROME B. RICE, Pres.; E. B. CLARK, 1st Vice-res.; S. F. Williard, Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y

BALTIMORE, MD .- The inventory of the estate of the late John Bolgiano, seed dealer, showed that the value of stocks in the personal estate was $114,712.

Paris.—The retail seed trade is now in the height of the season. To the satisfaction of employers and employes the orders, owing to the mild weather which we have experienced during the whole winter, came in very regularly and not in ups and downs or with too much of a rush as is usually the case when frost and snow alternate with days of fine weather. The plants growing in the fields for seed purposes seem to be in good condition. It is of course too early to predict how the roots will have behaved in the silos and it is only at planting time that we shall know the percentage of heated roots.

St. Paul.-L L. May & Co. report increased sales in all branches of their business. Store sales run from 30 to 50' cahead of last season. Some of this may be attributed to a change of location, but fully 60% of the increase is due to the improved condition of the country. Catalogue business shows an increase of 40% over last season. This trade started earlier than usual, and instead of "dropping off" has been increasing each day since February In the wholesale seed line the regular orders show about 20% increase over last season. Filling in orders are coming in very freely, while grass seed trade is opening up very good. B. F. Brown was recent caller, and reports his season's out-put of bag-filling machines as very satisfactory. The one in use here has filled nearly 3,000,000 packets since starting in November, and works to perfection.

Court Decision About Seeds.

When the seed warehouse of D. M. Ferry & Co. was destroyed by fire January 1, 1896, there were 996 packages of seeds in the stock upon which the firm had paid $2,350 duties. The seeds had not then been appraised, and the customs department subsequently refunded $450. The firm asked the secretary of the treasury to refund the remaining $1,900, claiming that as the seeds had not been appraised when destroyed, they were, constructively, in the possession of the custom house. The secretary denied the petition, and the firm brought suit in the United states court. Judge Swan held that the court had no jurisdiction—that the decision of the secretary was final. The firm took the matter to the court of appeals, and Judge Tatchas handed down decision sustaining the finding of Judge Saan

"Fortm Variety" Lily of the Valley.

This is a most distinct improvement on the ordinary variety, judging from a test of a few paps. The paps were sent to Mesors Bassett & Washburn from Lax ton Bros., Bedford, England, by mail, with a request that they test them. They were badly dried out in transit but the results were unusual. In size and number of bells, size of foliage and length and stiffness of stalk they simply dwarfed good specimens of the common variety

RAFFIA BEST QUALITY. LONG MADAGASCAR Having purchased on a very favorable market, and wishing to move the stock quickly, make the following stock quickly, make the following special low quotations for prompt ders. In bale lots (about 225 lbs.) at Sc for buying a supply of fine quality at a low rate should not be neglected. All commissions, large or small, will re-ceive the same careful attention.

Grafting Wax
Trowbridge's Celebrated Grafting
Wax, the genuine article, 1 lb. bars at 19e; ½ lb. bars at 20e; ¼ lb. bars at 21e per pound. Rebates: 10 lb. lots, 5 per cent; 25 lb. lots, 10 per cent; 50 lb. lots, 10 per cent; 50 lb. lots, 10 per cent; 50 per cent; 100 lb. lots, 20 per cent.

G. C. WATSON,

Juniper, below Walnut, - PHILADELPHIA.

NEW Price List for If you have not re-will mail you list illustrated descriptive Catalogue..... SPRING and SUMMER ceived, send Postal.

H. H. BERGER & CO., 223 Broadway, NEW YORK. ESTABLISHED 1878.

(Branch for Pacific Coast, San Francisco, Cal.) Horticultural Imports and Exports from Europe, China, Japan, Australia, Mexico etc.

BURPEE'S SEEDS PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Price List for Florists and Market Gardeners.

TRY DREER'S

Garden Seeds.

Plants, Bulbs & Requisites.
They are the best at the lowest prices. Trade List is sued quarterly, mailed free to the trade only.
HENRY A. DREER,

Philadelphia, Pa

Mention American Florist.

Large Field-Grown Roots in all the Leading Varieties $5.00 to $7.00 per 100.

30,000 DAHLIAS

Before ordering your Dahlla stock be sure and send for my catalogue of novelties and standards of the best punity and at the lowest prices. All stock guaranteed true to name.

W. W. WILMORE, Dahlia Specialist, Box 382, Denver, Colo.

Manufacturers and Deafers 'COTTON SEAMLESS, BURLAPS, ETC. SECOND HAND BAGS BOUGHT AND SOLD. CINCINNATI BAG CO. Second and Walnut Sts., CINCINNATI, 0.

THE ALBERT DICKINSON CO. GRASS SEEDS

Parks, Tennis Courts, Lawns, &c. In fancy 1 and 2 pound packages and bulk.
SPECIAL PRICES TO THE TRADE.

CHICAGO, ILL.

BEST OF ALL<sup>33</sup> TOMATO
"ENGLISH" MELONS
(FOR FORCING)

FLOWER SEEDS FOR FLORISTS
Catalogues on application.

EEBER & DON, Seed Merchants and Growers, 114 Chambers St., NEW YORK, N. Y.

August Rölker & Sons, Spring Bulbs. Florists' Supplies, J

IMPORT ORDERS booked now for forcing Burbs, Azaleas, Lily of the Valley, etc., for fall delivery; send for terms to

52 Dey Street,

NEW YORK.

NEW . GIANT . ESCHSCHOLTZIAS. "THE GOLDEN WEST."

New Giant Fancy Cosmos, six splendid varieties, separate, $1 oz.; Giant Cosmos, splendid mixed, 65c oz.; Calliopsis "California Sunbeams," $1 oz. Special rates given on Cosmos in quantity; Apple Geranium, fresh. $1 per 1000 seeds; New Large Flowering Zonale Geranium, $2.50 oz.; Ipomaca, "Heavenly Blue." $1 oz., $12 lb.; Laurustinus grandifforn, $1 oz.; Zinnias, "New Curled and Crested," 50c oz.; $5 lb.; Nasturtium Good Venture Mixture, 60c lb.; $8 per 15 lbs.; Seaforthia elegnus (Palm) 40c per 100 seeds, $3 per 1000 seeds. Send for trade list of Seeds, Plants, Bulbs and Cacti.

MRS. THEODOSIA B. SHEPHERO,
Ventura-by-the-Sea, Cal.

CLUCAS & BODDINGTON CO.

Importers and Exporters of

Seeds, Bulbs & Plants,

501 TO 503 W. 13TH ST., NEW YORK CITY
Send for quotations on all Florists' Bulb Stock.

Aster Seed

Semple's celebrated strain of Asters. Finest in the World. Mixed colors, pink, white and laven-der. Also a small quantity of pink separate.

JAMES SEMPLE,

BOX 2....

BELLEVUE, PA.

gatentetetetetetetetetetete Seed Stores and Flower Stores

Can profitably handle our Packages of Plant Food. Attractive, take little & & man part of the packages of Plant Food. Attractive, take little & & man part of the packages of Plant Food. Attractive, take little & & man part of the packages of Plant Food. Attractive, take little & & man part of the packages of Plant Food.

The WALKER FERTILIZER CO. Clifton Springs, N. Y.

Catalogues Received.

Siebrecht & Son, New Rochelle, N. Y., Siebrecht & Son, New Rochelle, N. Y., plants; J. F. Wilcox, Council Bluffs, Iowa, plants; E. Y. Teas, Irvington, Ind., trees, shrubs and plants; W. L. Swan, Oyster Bay, N. Y., seeds, bulbs and plants; Lothrop & Higgins, East Bridgewater, Mass., plants; L. L. May & Co., St. Paul, Alinn., plants; Thompson's Sons, Rio Vista, Va., fruits; Barr & Sons, London, England, seeds; Sutton & Sons, Reading England seeds Reading, England, seeds.

Do not order any ferns unless you are willing to pay this price as my stock is very limited and I bave hardly enough now to carry my old stand-by

L. B. BRAGUE, Hinsdale, Mass.

When writing mention the American Florist.

SMALL GREEN

For use with.... Stiff, wiry stems.

Are all the rage.

Box of 5000, $5.00. Less quantity at $1.25 per 1000.

HARLAN P. KELSEY.

150 Tremont Bidg., - BOSTON, MASS.

bouquet green, Moss (sphagnnm and green), Laurel Roping, Xinas Trees; everything in the green line always in stock at

H. E. HARTFORD'S, 18 Chapman Place, BOSTON.

H. BAYERSDORFER & CO.

Cycas Wreaths, Moss Wreaths, Ferneries and Jardinieres, Wheat Sheaves and Januaries, wheat Sneaves and Immortelles. New Catalogue of all FLORISTS' SUPPLIES on application. IF for the trade only.

H. BAYERSDORFER & CO.

50, 52, 54 and 56 N. 4th St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Have You Seen Our Agent? A Complete

Catalogue for Florists. Send for One.

ELLIS & POLLWORTH MILWAUKEE, WIS.

John Conley & Son,

NH 2 AND 4 DOMINICK STREET.

Jardinieres, Pots Pedestals

Florists' Use.

Artistic Shapes and Decorations.

WWWWWWWWW

Write us for Illustrations and Prices....

BURLEY & TYRRELL, 42-44 Lake St., CHICAGO.

Boston Florist Letter Co.

FLORISTS' LETTERS.

This wooden box nicety stained and varnished, 18x30x12 made in two sections, one for each size letter, given away with first order of 500 letters.

Block Letters, 1 % or 2-inch size, per 100, $5.00. Script Letters, $4. Fastener with each letter or word, Used by leading florists everywhere and for sale by all wholesale florists and supply dealers.

N. F. McCARTHY, Treas. and Manager, 84 Hawley St., BOSTON, MASS.

BRILLIANT GREEN AND BRONZE LEAVES. GALAX

For Decerating and all Florists' Designs. CHAS. H. RICKSECKER, Linville, Milchell Co., N. C.

REED & KELLER..... Florists' Supplies

122 W. 25th St., NEW YORK CITY.

Forcing Lilies.

John F. Kidwell & Bro., 3810 Wentworth avenue, Chicago, have succeeded in growing four crops of lilies a year in the same house, cold frames being used to place the bulbs in after potting and to store them for succession of crops. The 8th of last No-vember they commenced cutting C. Harrisii; by New Year's day the crop was all cut off, a large proportion of it just right for the Christmas holidays. January 3 the house was refilled with L. Longiflo-rum, which had up to this time been kept outside in cold frames. This house of lilies will be as near in perfect condition for Easter as it is possible to get them. March 26 very few flowers had opened, though on a large proportion of the plants the buds had turned white, and the most forward were being removed to a colder house. The plants will all be disposed of soon after Easter, and the house made ready for another lot of L. longiflorum that has been kept out in cold frames all winter, most of the time frozen, though they are now fine sturdy plants that can be flowered easily for Decoration Day. Between the time this crop is off and the time to bring Harrisii in (in the fall) for early flowering, a crop of summer lilies, L. album, L. rubrum and L. auratum are grown, making the fourth crop, and bringing in three out of the four on a holiday

This they have done for several years in succession, with only one partial failure, a year ago last Christmas, on account of the Harrisii being so badly diseased that they could not beforeed in for Christmas and got out of the way in time for the Easter crop. Other space was found for the Harrisii, and the L. longiflorum brought in about January 1, and the usual crop at Easter was produced.

J. T. A.

OSHKOSH, Wis.-A twenty acre summer park is being fitted up by the Citizens Traction Co.

Danbury, Conx.—A greenhouse belonging to Joseph H. Ives was destroyed by fire on the night of April 1. Cause, overheated furnace. Loss 8500.

TRENTON, N. J.—Died April 2, Mrs. Sarah Wainwright aged 71 wife of the veteran florist Geo. Wainwright, of Trenton, N. J. This estimable couple had trod together life's pathway nearly half a century, and brother Wainwright has the heartfelt sympathy of the large circle of triends and acquaintances gained in his solourn of over fifty years in New Jersey as a pioneer florist

BROCKTON, MASS. A new Brockton florist club has been organized, the former club having disbanded. An enthusiastic meeting was held on the evening of March 29 and others elected as follows President, I. K. French, vice president, John McFatland: secretary, W. E. Baker, Campello (reasurer, C. A. Leach; and an executive conmittee of five gentlemen. 1) was thought advisable to hold an exhibition is a fall, and a committee to make prebit wars arrangements was consti-

Greenhouse Building.

Bro Llyn N. A Dailledouze Bros three commercial houses, each 20 (200) A. Dennsy, one commercial house, 29 0,100

Salistairy, 'dd Win II Jackson, one chrysai themum house 11x175

Providence, R. L. North Burnal Ground one conservatory 30x100

VAN HEEMSTRA & 60. BULB GROWERS

SASSENHEIM, - HOLLAND.

BEFORE ordering Dutch Bulbs ask our quotations. Our stock enables us to make good offers. Address letters until May 15th to***

W. WARNAAR, Care KNAUTH, NACHOD & KUHNE,

13 William St., NEW YORK.

VAN ZONNEVELD BROS. & CO. SASSENHEIM. HOLLANO

HYACINTHS, TULIPS, CROCUS, DAFFODILS, AND OTHER BULBS. ALSO SHRUBS AND PLANTS.

THEY are strictly first-class and cheap. Special quotations for Wholesale Importers... Address all correspondence until May 15th 10.......

H. VAN ZONNEVELD

care J. W. Hampion Jr. & Co., 41 Broadway, New York

Whole roots, best assorted named varieties, $6.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

THE WM. H. MOON CO.,

Mention the American Florist

MORRISVILLE, PA.

OUALITY HOLLAND BULBS

LOWEST

Jac. WEZELENBURG

SASSENHEIM, HOLLAND.

Address up to May 1 in care of KNAUTH, NACHOD & KUHNE, 13 William St., NEW YORK,

N. Dames

*** Vanderhorst beebeek & Dames...

BULB GROWERS

Lisse and Heemstede, Holland,

is on his round trip through the United States. To spare time, we beg to send all letters and communications up to May 15, care of Knauth Nachod & Kuhne, 13 William St., New York.

Give us the list of your wants and we will send you our lowest quotations for real good stuff.

GLADIOLUS BULBS

Will's not grow your own. I can furnish a large number of balf meb bulbs, mixed colors, ery fine stock at $1.50 per 1000. Lach thousand $2$ contains over 600 varieties. Lots of 5000 or more sort by express prepaid. This stock runs so argety to whate and punk that some florists said it would almost pass for. White and Light.

M. CRAWFORD, Cuyahoga Falls, O.

IMPORTERS

JAPANESE PLANTS,

BULBS, ETC.

At lowest prices. Small orders filled from experimental garden Columbia Road Dorchester, Mass. Wholesale catalogue, 1838 Tree to the trade.

JAPANESE NURSERY,

Office: 272 Boylston St., -

IMPORTERS!

HAERENS BROS. From SAMERGAN near Ghent, Belgium

SPECIAL Growers and Exporters of Azabeas, Palms. Aramearias and other decorative plants, take plensure to inform von that their Ma. A to HALBERS is now on his animal visit through the United States. The stock he offers is immense, of lest quality and at most reasonable prices, their New Azoleas will be the lavorites of the luture. Write for price list and special ofter until May 10th.

AUGUST HAERENS CARE VANDERGRIET CO. 66 Benver St., New York City.

FORCING RILL Bermudas and Valley.

An American Firm, paying U.S. Taxes,

Paying U. S. Custom Duties on honest invoice valuations.

Financially and otherwise supporting the U. S. Florists and other public horticultural interests,

With sixteen years experience in caring for the needs of the American Florists.

With painstaking knowledge of the best and most reliable sources of supply in every line,

With ability to inspect and intention to send out only A No. 1 stock of every class, the opportunity of quoting prices on the FULL LIST of your wants in Imported Bulbs and Azaleas. May we hear from you now?

Per 100 Per 1000 $35.00 45,00 L. RUBRUM (Speciosum) Per 100 Per 1000 7-9 inch. 4.75 40.00 9-11 inch. 6.75 60.00 9-11 Inch.

LILIUM ALBUM (Speciosum) Per 100 Per 1000

6.50 55.00

TUBEROSES

True Excelsior Pearl. "Hallock strain" First size, per 100, $1.00; per 1000, $7.50.

GLOXINIAS

Per doz., 85c; per 100, $5.00

CALADIUMS..... Fancy leaved choice bulbs, per doz., $1.75; per 100, $12.00

Caladium Esculentum

Addium tsculentum ('ured and sound bulbs with hive center shoots. Doz. 100 5 to 7 in. in circ. $ .40 $2.50 7 to 9 ... .65 .4.50 9 to 12 ... .1 00 .6.50 50c per 100 less on 7-9 inch and 9-12 in, sizes if shipped from New York.

GLADIOLUS XXX Florists Mixture

GREENHOUSE STOCK.

Asparagus Sprengerii, strong, young plants, per 100, $5 00.

100, $5.00.

Ficus Elastica, true, large leaf variety, 6-inch pots, 20 tuches high $\alpha$ 50c each.

Crimson Rambler Roses, extra tine, bushy plants, in 4-inch pots, will soon bloom, per dozen, $2.00; per 100, $15.00.

$2.00; per 100, $45,00.

Cycas Revoluta, dormant stems, size from 3 to 10 lb. $\alpha$ 15c per lb.

Clothilde Soupert, the great pot rose, our stock is A No. 1, 2-in. $\alpha$ $3,00; $2\frac{1}{2}$-in. $\alpha$ $4,00; $3-in. $\alpha$ $6,00; $3\frac{1}{2}$-in. $\alpha$ $4,00; $3-in. $\alpha$ $6,00; $3\frac{1}{2}$-in. pot plants, in named varieties, per 100, $5,00.

Pelargoniums Mme. Thibaut, Mrs. Robt. Sandiford, Edward Perkins and Dorothy, strong 3-inch stock, per doz. $4,50; per 100, $12,00.

For Cannas. Carnations, Chrysanthemums, send us your list; we have all kinds.

H. P. Roses, dormant, 2-year, extra fine stock $\alpha$ $12,00 per 100.

Clematis, Ambeloosts Veitchi, Hollyhocks, P.co-

$12.00 per 100. Clematis, Ampelopsis Veitchi, Hollyhocks, P.co-nies, Hydrangeas P. G., etc. we have in large quantities; write us for prices.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

NEW YORK: 14 Barclay St. CHICAGO: 84-86 Randolph St.

St. Louis.

Owing to the bad weather recently prevailing here everything has been very quiet. Stock has about equaled demands with a little stiffer prices, owing to the closeness of Easter, and the expectation that stock will be held to some extent until the last moment. The wholesalers are endeavoring to impress shippers with the idea that nothing is to be gained by unduly holding stock, their success will appear later.

Easter prices have been issued by the St. Louis houses, they are about the same as last season, except lilies, which are quoted higher, being from 15 to 18 cents. Roses, small, $5 to $7, large $6 to $10. Carnations from 3 to 7 cents. Bulbstock is quoted comparatively low, Romans, treesias, narcissus and Von Sion from $2 to $4 per 100, and valley 3 to 4 cents.

Quite a nice lot of pot plants are on time; each grower having something in good shape; Andrew Meyer has a fine lot of mignonette, short bushy plants well flowered; these when worked into 7 and 8-inch pans make heautiful center pieces and sell readily.

Growers and dealers are still careless in small matters, one firm reports that out of six growers sending in plants only one had the pots cleaned; practices such as this should be stopped, and could readily he changed if the dealers called for clean pots when ordering plants. It is too early to form a correct idea of Easter trade, but the outlook, judging from preparations made is for a heavy increase in business. May it materalize.

R. F. T.

Indianapolis.

Business has been very good; cut flowers sold well, also pot plants, and the early spring stock, such as pansies, etc., were in great demand during the warm spring

The florists have all made great preparations for Easter. They will have a good supply of blooming plants. Cinerarias, azaleas and bulbons stock predominating. Unfortunately the lily disease has proved very troublesome, some of the local florists report a loss of 50%.

The Easter prices for cut flowers will be 25 to 30% higher than last year. Good violets will be scarce. The warm weather in March brought them out too early, consequently they are now off crup.

At the monthly meeting of the Florists' Club, held April 5, Mr. Hatfield read an interesting paper on "The Influence of Light on Plant Life," which contained many pointers for the practical grower. The paper read will appear in print in the annual report of the I. S. F. A.

The flower thick is again at work; the Florists' Club has offered a reward of $25 for the arrest of the guilty person. Thornton was elected a member of the club. After the meeting adjourned the members all had a jolly time singing the latest songs, with a cake walk and several ng dances.

The florists bowling club, lately formed, is flourishing.

OctASIC, N.J.: The Monmouth County Horncultural Society has made arrange. ments to distribute in May 2,500 diverse plants such as gerannums, fuchsias, beliotrope, coleus, etc. to the children under To years of age a the various schools in Monnowth county. The plants are to be grown for competition  $\sim$  N/B

Lutescens Areca

LARGE HEALTHY STOCK

| 3   | Plants | 6-in.  | Pot, | 24 to 32-in | . high, | very | bushy. | each | 1 | 1 00   |
|-----|--------|--------|------|-------------|---------|------|--------|------|---|--------|
|     |        |        |      |             |         |      |        |      |   |        |
| - 3 | 4.0    | 8-in.  | * 4  | 36 to 42    | 1.1     | 1.6  | 5.1    | 6.4  |   | 2.00 - |
| 3   |        | 8-in   | ••   | 42 to 48    |         | 1.0  |      |      |   | 2.50   |
| I   |        | 10-in. | .,   | 4 to 5-ft.  | high,   | ••   |      |    |   | 5.00   |

ALL MEASUREMENTS FROM TOP OF POT.

JOSEPH HEAGOGK. WYNCOTE,

t. SCHILLER 404 E. 34th St..

34th St.. NEW YORK CITY.
Please mention American Florist.

Crotons...

IN VARIETY

Rothschild, Hawkeri, Interruptom, Evansianum, Ruhra Lineata, Andreanum, Aurea Maculatum and others, suitable for hedding. Fine plants in 3-mch pots, $2.00 per doz. New and rare varieties, 50 cents each.

Aurea Maculatum, extra fine plants in 4-in. pots, $2.50 per doz.; $15 per 100; 3-inch pot plants, $2 per doz.; $45 per 100; 1bumb pots, $1 per doz.; $6 per 100.

Edwin Lonsdale,

Money Order Office, Station II, Phila.

CHESTNUT HILL, PHILA., PA.

ORCHIDS

Our Specialty. Correspondence Solicited.

LAGER & HURRELL, – Summit, N. J. Mention American Florint

The most shows semi-climber of recent introduction, strong 3 field plants now ready. Also Little Cem Collas, 2% inches. Logan Berries, Strawberry Raspberries, Mayberries, Write for list and prices.

The Conard & Jones Co. WEST GROVE.

ROBL CRAIG & SON ROBE, CRAIG & SON Roses, Palms

and Novelties in Decorative Plants.

Markel and 49th Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

MOST magnificent begung and described plant known. Equal to a palm in beauty and manner of growth; grows with the ease of the Ricinus and endures drought with impunity. Plan s from 4-in, pots set out June 1st attained a height of 10 feet and though not watered once, remained fresh and vigorous throughout the extreme drought. Also produces a delicious fruit; as easily grown as a tomato. Our plants are propagated from a tree which has produced this winter 192 lbs. of fruit, the largest weighing 12 lbs. Send for half-tone illustration from photo showing bed of these plants. Every florist needs it. Price $2.25 per 12 for 3-in, pots, ready May 1st. We are headquarters for tropical plants. Send for list.

Martin Benson, ILLINOIS. DONGOLA,

DECORATIVE PLANTS

JOHN H. LEY, Good Hope, D. C.

Solicits early orders for following fine stock:

| NEP#ROLEPIS, D. Furcans                                                            | Each.     | Doz.          |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|---------------|
| 3 t > 4 feet over, full, splendid plants50 or more fronds (in pans)            | $2.00    | $18 00       |
| NEPHROLEPIS, D. Furcans                                                            |           |               |
| Very large, full of fronds, 3 feet over(6-inch pots, fit for 8-inch)           |           | 9.00          |
| NEPHROLEPIS, Bostoniensis                                                          | 1.00      | 41 041        |
| Same sizes as aboveFine for hanging baskets, fronds                            | ,         | 9,00          |
| drooping 3 to 4 feet below Lomaria Gliba, 4 inch. very strong                      |           | 18,001,00 |
| Pandanus Utills, 5-Inch, very strong                                               |           | 4,00          |
| Nephrolepis Exaliata, 4-in., very strong.8Ferns from fists, fine little plants | 10 00 p   |               |
| 100 in 10 sorts mailed as sample for                                               | r $1.25. |               |

AMI. BEAUTY

I have a nice stock for early planting; 2½-in. pots. 80.00 per 100; a few 5 in., $13.00 per 100. California Violets, extra large clumps, $5.00 per 100, will divide up into 10 to 15 plants. Austria Cannas, strong plants of 2c.

W. W. COLES, Kokomo, Ind.

Hydrangeas

Fine plants with 10 to 30 blooms per plant. 40 cents per bloom...

JOHN SCOTT, Keap St. Greenhouses, BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Rose Hill Nurseries

L ARGLET Growers of Palms, Orchids, Stove and Greenhouse plants, Ferns, Arancarnes, Pandamis . . .

SIEBRECHT & SON, New Rochelle, N. Y. New York Office, 409 Fifth Ave.

RNATION

STRONG, HEALTHY ROOTED CUTTINGS Ready Feb. 1st and Later

Including Morello, Flora Hill, Daybreak, Wm. Scott, Lizzie McGowan, Ivory, Silver Spray, Emily Pierson, Goldfluch, Eldorado, and others. Send me a list of what you want and get prices before you buy. We also have a fine lot of Carnation and Violet blooms for sale. Write for prices. Address

CHAS. CHADWICK.

Lock Box II.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

lora

AND 25 OTHER VARIETIES, LOW TO CLOSE OUT.....

GRAFTED TEA ROSES, $15 per hundred.

H. F LITTLEFIELD, Worcester, Mass.

20.000 CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

2½-inch pots.

Major Boonaffon. $2.00 per 100 or $15.00 per 1000: President Smith, Eda Prass. $1.50 per 100 or $12.00 per 1000.

Ceranjums—the best mixed varieties for bedding, 3½-inch pots. showing buds. $2.50 per 100 or $18.00 per 1000; 2½-inch pots. $2.00 per 100 or $15.00 per 1000.

Cash with order or satisfactory reference.

PAXTON GREENHOUSES,

C. E. Taube, Prop.

Harrisburg, Pa.

eraniums..

We have several thousand good bedding varieties, comprising all the principal colors, mostly double, rooted cuttings, mixed, at $1.00 per 100.

Cash with Order.

H. B. WEAVER & BRO.,

WHEATLAND MILLS, Lanc. Co., Pa. Money order office, Lancaster, Pa.

ROSES, VERBENAS, VIOLETS

Finest Teas and Hybrid Teas, clean, bealthy, 10

Invariably at these prices.

Cash with Order. F. WALKER & CO.
Box 316, New Albany, Ind.

THE MODEL

QUEENS N. V. Feb. 16. '97.
MR. THERON PARKER,
Bronklyo, N. Y., Dear Sir:—
I have tested your latest model Carnation Support and am free to say that I consider it the best wire caroation support that thave ever seeo.
It is quickly and easily applied, and think will prove very durable, and you certainly deserve great credit for the lovention.

Very truly yours.

C. W. WARD.

FLATHUSH, BROOKLYN,
N. Y., Feb. 18, '97
MR THERON PARKER,
Dear Sir. - Your wire stake
ls certainly a gem Without hesitating we indorse it as ao up to-date carnation support. - Yours truly,
DAILLEDOUZE BROS.

W. HOBOKEN, N. J.,
Feb. 18, 97.
MR. THERON PARKER,
Brooklyn, N. Y., Dear Shriit gives me much pleasure to congratulate you upon your success in getting up carnation supports. I thiuk that those I bave had from you are about as perfect as anybody will be able to make them. They certainly fill my hill for an ideal carnation support, a thing I have been jooking for for a long time.
Wisbing you every success
in the sale of them, I am
Yours truly, E. ASMUS.

THERON PARKER, 22 Morton St. BROOKLYN. N. Y.

Say "saw your ad. in the Florist" when you write advertisers.

Chrysanthemum Mrs. A. F. Wienold

WE claim this to be one of the grandest early whites yet sent out. Originated with us 3 years ago and given a thorough test. It is earlier than Bergmann. Flowers 7 to 11 inches in diameter; is easy to grow; a splendid keeper and above all never shows its center. Except in color it looks like a well grown Golden Wedding. Select stock, 2½-in. pots, 20c each; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

CAL. YIOLETS. No disease. Strong runners. 50c per 100; $4 per 1000. McDONALD & STEELE, Crawfordsville, Ind.

Ghrysanthemum

Yellow Sport of JEROME JONES.

It received the highest points and a Certificate of Merit at the Clevelaud Chrysanthemum Show. It is in Yellow what Jerome Jones is amongst the White. The very best for late blooming.  $2\frac{1}{2}$ -in. pot plants, strong, \$2.50 per doz.; \$20.00 per 100. Stock ready April 15th.

E. J. PADDOCK, 295 Erie St., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

"BOSS" Chrysanthemums WM. H. CHADWICK—the graudest white novelty of the season. THE YELLOW FELLOW—Winner of $100 Stearas bicycle prize. MADELINE PRATT—"As pretty as her picture."

Distributed March 1st by leading firms and the grower...... Grove P. Rawson, Elmira, N. Y.

Price $1.50 per 12; $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Premium-5 Red Wave with every 100 Kathleen Pantlind.

HOPP & LEMKE,

Paul P. O., E. GRANO RAPIDS, MICH.

Is a much more substantial flower than Daybreak; color a shade or two darker and entirely rost proof. Can be seen at Vaughan, McKeller & Winterson's every Wednesday and Saturday.

Lo Make Room

The Morris Floral Co., MORRIS, ILL.

STRONG ROOTED CUTTINGS.

Scotts, McGowans, Rose Queen.

per 100, $1.00; per 1000, $8.00. Hydrangea Otaksa, per 100, $1.75.

Cash with order. D. Y. DANENHOWER 52nd and Woodland Ave., Philadelphia.

The Gardenia Carnation.

Plants Now Ready * $10,00 per 1000

JOHN BURTON,

Chestnut Hill,

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Please mention the American Florist

REDUCED PRICES

-Very Fine Rooted---

Taken from our "Prize" Stock.

McCOWAN ALASKA ALBERTINI HELEN KELLER ARMAZINDY DAYBREAK

$2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

SOUTH PARK FLORAL CO., New Castle, Ind.

New CARNATIONS.

WHITE CLOUD—White.
GOLD NUGGET—Yellow.
NEW YORK (Ward)—Bright cerise pink.
MRS. JAMES DEAN (Ward)—Clear silvery pink.
JOHN YOUNG (Ward)—White.
BON TON (Ward)—Scarlet.
Prices for above varieties: $2.00 per doz., $10.00
per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

will also have Cerise Queen (Breitmeyer), Argyle (Stollery), Jack Frost (Swayne), Em-press (Swayne), Evelina (Witterstaetter), Fire-fly (Hancock), Psyche (Hill), Panted Lady (Hill), and Mrs. S. A. Northway (Simmons).

All good 1897 novelties and other standard varieties at reasonable prices.

New Chrysanthemums.

MRS. C. H. PEIRCE—Vellow.

35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

SNOW QUEEN—White.

50c each, $5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100.

MERRY CHRISTMAS—Late White.

35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

Send for Descriptive Price List. Ready January, 1898.

F. DORNER & SONS CO. LAFAYETTE, IND.

NATHAN SMITH & SON

Wholesale Florists

Specialties & & & ADRIAN, MICH.

> CHRYSANTHEMUMS CARNATIONS & & & AND VIOLETS

· · · CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED · ·

SWELL YOUR BANK ACCOUNT

By growing Emily Pierson Carnations, the most profitable Red Carnation in cultivation. Clean healthy grower, large full flowers with line stem. Our house, 70x20 feet, from which we have been cutting since september, has 20,000 buds in sight to-day. We can supply line rooted cuttings at $1.00 per 100, $8.00 per 1000. Cash with order.

South Side Floral Co., Springfield, III.

Worcester, Mass.

Trade has continued fairly satisfactory taking all things into due consideration, and Lent has not caused such a slump in business as was anticipated.

All good things in the flower line are fully up to the demand, and bulbous stock m pots and pans is selling reasonably well. The department store known as the Boston Store has added a conservatory to its cut flower department, and advertises to keep a full line of flowering and decorative plants on hand, at cut prices, of course.

F. A. Fisher & Son are established in their new store and have a very attractive show of plants and flowers displayed; they have a much better opportunity to make a good showing than at their old stand. One of the most interesting places the writer has visited lately is the conservatory of Hon. Stephen Salisbury, in charge of Mr. John Aulsen in this city. This place has been entirely rebuilt recently, the old houses having been torn down and replaced by structures of the most modern type.

Mr. Aulsen's specialty is begonias, and he is probably one of the best posted men in the country in this line. Mr. Aulsen is preparing a work on begonias, the nomenclature of which is very mixed and uncertain, which will be a very valuable work, and will be very complete. A. H. L.

Sharon, Pa.

The demand for cut flowers and also for flowering plants continues fair.

Carnations have been very scarce, and though scarce have been retailed all winter cheap. Koses have been fair in quality and price; lilies scarce.

McConnell & Son will make improvements in their plant this season and add a new house.

M. 1. O'Brien contemplates building an extensive addition.

Frank Buhl will shortly erect a fine range of houses, consisting of palm, stove, rose, carnation, fern, and two plant houses, eight or perhaps nine in all, iron structures, and will be the largest private establishment west of Pittsburg in Fennsylvania. James Clelland will take charge as gardener.

PRICE LIST of rooted cuttings of New Carnation

GENESEE

| 1   | doz: | n or | up, prepaid | by ma  | il or ex | ress                                    | $ 135 |     |      |
|-----|------|------|-------------|--------|----------|-----------------------------------------|---------------|-----|------|
|     | 25 0 | r up | (to 100) "  |        |          |                                         | 10.00         | per | 100  |
|     | 100  | 4.4  | purchaser   | gaying | charges  | • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • | . 8 00        | rer | 101  |
| :   | 250  | FI   | 6.4         | +4     |          | *************************************** |               |     |      |
|     | 500  | 4.5  |           |      | 4.4      |  | . 675         | per | 100  |
| 1,0 | 000  | 4.6  | 11          | 4.4    |          | •••••                                   | 65.00         | per | 1000 |

Descriptive illustrated and priced circular free,

Sales Agent, DAN'L B. LONG, Buffalo, N. Y.

CARNATION

It sells because there is nothing in sight to at all equal it. It speaks for itself where-ever grown. It is fragrant. It is the largest bloom. It puts all others in the shade. Nothing past or present to equal it. We have four thousand plants exclusively for propagating from; don't allow them to bloom. Send a once and get the best stock ever offered $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Our trade list is issued. If you have not received one send for it.

E. G. HILL & CO., Richmond, Ind.

TRY A FEW OF A A THE NEW CARNATION

$2.00 per doz.....$10.00 per hundred......$75.00 per 1000.

PINGREE MAYOR

$5.00 per 100 4 4 $40.00 per 1000

JOHN BREITMEYER & SONS, Mt. Clemens, Mich.

Keep Your Promise!

You promised yourself that you would buy better varieties of CARNATIONS because you found that poor varieties did not pay you. Send for list and see for yourself

NEW CARNATION....

The largest, bright rich crimson yet introduced

Empress

Carnations Chrvsanthemums

NEW AND STANDARD VARIETIES

n brice the lead-1897 as well as the

H. WEBER & SONS, Oakland, Md.

M. M. T. T. T. CARNATION ARGY

A few left at the following price 4 4 $10.00 per 100; $75,00 per 4000 ....

STOLLERY BROS. CHICACO, ILL.

Experiences ... WITH ... CARNATIONS The next number ready March I, will be cultural as well as descriptive, and send free to all applicants, I. Guarantee all cultings sent out and offer a Special Guarantee to all buyers of Finra Hill and Triumph. ALBERT M. HERR, .... LANCASTER, PA.

.... LANCASTER, PA.  erene er THE BEST OF THE NEW PINK CARNATIONS

Mrs. Frances

A WINNER LYLRYWHERE

$2.00 per dozen. $10.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000. Cash with order.

C. BESOLD, Mineola, L. I., N. Y.

<sup>M</sup>recercececececececece

April Offer.

Coleus Asst. and Centaurea Gymnocarpa.... 2.00 Geraniums, 16 Var., 21/2-in. pots, $2.50; 3-in.. 3.75 Geraniums, 4-in. pots and Marguerites (Paris Daisy)..... 5.00 Pansy plants from cold frames and Smilax .... 1.00 CASH PLEASE.

JOS. H. CUNNINGHAM, Delaware, Ohio.

Special Certificate of Merit.

best selling, most floriferous and dwarfed Geraniums ever introduced ..

-FOR SALE BY

HENRY A. DREER, Philadelphia, Pa.
F. R. PIERSON CO., Tarrytown, N. Y.
J. C. VAUCHAN, Chicago, III.
COTTACE CARDENS, New York. ND THE INTRODUCER

HENRY EICHHOLZ, - Waynesboro, Pa.

FRANKLIN CO.

ROOTED CUTTINGS

COIED CUIINGS

Colens in ten best varieties including Golden Bedder, 75c per 100; Helbotropes, Feverfew, Petunias, Double Alyssum. Glant Parls Dalsles, Mammoth Verbenss, ten distinct varieties, 81:50 per 100; Chrysanthemums,
Queen of the Earlies, Barbara Forbes, Dallied uze,
Golden Tropby, Miss Johnson, M. Henderson, Modesto,
Indiana, Mrs. Perrin, Mrs. Murdock, Sunderbruch,
Lady Playfair, Maythower, &c. $2:00 per 100. Discount of 20 per cent, on orders of 500 or more at one time; all well rooted. Address

ROSEMONT GARDENS, Montgomery, Ala.

Alternanthera. ROOTED CUTTINGS.

Fine stock P. major and A. nana 90c per 100; $6.00 per 1000. Ready April 15.

HOFFMEYER, Box 31, Carnegie, Pa.

Rooted Cuttings Well Rooted ...

Searlet Verschaffeltii, Golden Verschaffeltii, Fire King, Fire Brand, Tam O'Shanter, S. P. Gem, Alhambra, Golden Crown, Midnight, Salvater, John Goode, Nigger, 15c ber doz.: 75c ber 100° 85 aonn Goode, Nigger, 15c per doz.; 75c per 100; $5 per 1000; express paid.

S. T. DANLEY, Macomb, III.

DO QUEENS. L. I - DO O Specialties in CARNATIONS, CHRYSANTHEMUMS. CHOORS. GERADIUMS, DAHLIAS. SEND FOR OUR PRICE LIST

PANSIES
THE JENNINGS STRAIN.

THEY ARE GRAND.
Fine stocky plants in bud and bloom, $10 and $15 per 100 by express; small plants, 750 by mail. Pansy seed, $1.00 per pkt. Aster seed, Semple's pink, $1 00 per oz. Cash with order.

E. B. JENNINGS,

Lock Box 254. SOUTHPORT, CONN.

Crower of the Finest Pansies.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST'S COLOR CHART

is now accepted as the standard in preparing color descriptions, by many fureign houses as well as in America.

PRICE IS CENTS POSTPAID. AMERICAN FLORIST CO., 322 Dearborn St., Chicag o

THE CHOICEST VARIETIES 100,000 VERBENAS. IN CULTIVATION.

Fine pot plants, $2.50 per 100; $20 per 1000. Rooted Cuttings, 75c per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $50 per 10000. NO RUST OR MILDEW.

PACKED LIGHT, AND SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. SEND FOR CIRCULAR. We are the Largest Growers of Verbenas in the country. Our plants cannot be surpassed.

J. L. DILLON, Bloomsburg, Pa.

wwVERBENAS.ww

The finest collection in America, 35 varieties, ne mess collection in America, 35 varieties, every one a gem—mammoth size, striking colors, green as grass. Strong rooted cuttings, 60c per hundred: $5.00 per thousand; five thousand, $20.00. New Yellow Marguerite finest variety, strong 2-in. pot plants, 3c; rooted cuttings, 2c.

STRICTLY CASH WITH ORDER. SOUTH SIDE FLORAL CO., Springfield, III.

West Islip Greenhouses

Rooted Runners, $4 per 1000. Cash with order.

E. B. SUTTON, Jr. P.O. Address.... BABYLON, N.Y.

MAMMOTH VERBENAS

Fine selected stock in separate colors. Rooted cuttings, per 100, 75c; per 1000, $6.00. Cash with order.

FRANK S. PAYNE, Barnard Crossing, N. Y.

PANSIES

Poefier's Prize Pansies; extra fine stock plants from cold frames, in bud and bloom; transplanted in September; plants measure from 2 to 4 inches in diameter; by express $1.50 per 100; $12.00 per 1000; medium size plants transplanted in October, 75c per 100; $5.00 per 1000. Cash with order; sample plants 6 ets.

PETER BROWN, Lancaster, Pa.

PANSIES WE grow over a million from the choicest seeds of Bugnot, Cassier, transplanted last November in cold frames: large plants now ready to bloom, 60c per 100; $4.00 per 1000; Donble Golden Dwarf Marguerite Cuttings.

WHITTON & SONS, Wholesale Florists, City and Creen Sts., UTICA, N. Y.

$1.00 per 100,

FAXON'S "WHITE PANSIES.

The best mixture in cultivation, flowers very rge, thick and velvety; of superb colors and arkings. The perfection of form and texture. large, thick

In Trade Packets at $1.00 each. M. B. FAXON,

Lock Box 1528, BOSTON, MASS Correspondence solicited.

ECIALTIE

IN BEST VARIETIES. ROSES, from 3-Inch pots.

CARNATIONS, for fail delivery

CHRYSANTHEMUMS. SMILAX. VIOLETS. Prices low. Send for list. WOOD BROTHERS, FISHKILL, N.Y.

If corresponding with an advertiser at any time, say "saw your ad. in the Ameri-CAN FLORIST."

CLEMATIS Jackmanni, Henryli doz. 100 and others......$3.00 $20.00 H. P. Roses Strong, 2 and 3 years own roots.

F. A. BALLER, Bloomington, III.

KLONDIKE

Cold Fields at Your Door.

COLEUS—All kinds, all grades and all prices. Verschaffeltil and Queen. 75c per 100: $6.00 per 1000; 29c-inch pots, $15.00 per 1000; $1.75 per 100. Coleus in variety, 55c per 100: $4.50 per 1000; $2.60 per 1000; $2.60 per 1000; $3.00 per 1000; $1.50 per 100. Agerstum dwarf blue. 63c per 100; $3.00 per 1000. Puchalsa, atandard sorts, $12.00 per 1000; $3.50 per 100. Anthemis Coronaria. Golden Marguerite, $1.50 per 100. Anthemis Coronaria. Golden Marguerite, $1.50 per 100. $12.00 per 1000; $1.50 per 100. $12.00 per 1000; $1.50 per 100; $12.00 per 1000; $1.50 per 100; $1.50

J. E. FELTHOUSEN, Schenectady, N. Y.

CARNATIONS AND COLEUS

ROOTED CUTTINGS

THE 1898 INTRODUCTIONS THE 1897 INTRODUCTIONS

DAYBREAK of special quality.
ROOTED COLEUS in variety.
Cood stock only. Price list free.

DAN'L B. LONG, Growers' Agent, BUFFALO.

5,000 SMILAX...

From flats, by mall, 50c ner 100 $4 00 per 1000 From 2-Inch pota, $2.25 per 100 $13 00 per 1000 Geraniums from 2-Inch pot., $2.25 per 100; $20,00 per 1000. Cash with the order. Send for samples. Fred Boerner, * APE MAY CITY, N. J.

Marie Louise Violet Runner*s*

Good plants, healthy stock, $5.00 per 1000.

A. WASHBURN & SON BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

LETTUCE AND OTHER ... VEGETABLE PLANTS

LETTFICE-Blg Boston, Boston Market, Tennts Bull, Grand Rapids and Reichner's Forcing. 15 cts. per 100; $1.00 per 100.

TOMATO, CABBAGE and CELERY-Small plants for transplanting now ready. Lacts, per 100; $1.00 per 1001. Pepper and Egg Plants—25 ets. per 100; $2.100 per 1000.

CAULIFLOWER. Snowball—35 cts per 100; $2.50 per 1000; If by mail add 10 cts. per 100 for small plants, and 50 cts, per 1000. Send for price list. Cash with order.

R. VINCENT, Jr. & SON, White Marsh, Md.

Rose Queries.

LEAFLESS AMERICAN BEAUTY CUTTINGS.

ED. AM. FLORIST:-What would you advise doing with American Beauty cuttings that have lost foliage in cutting bench from black spot? Some of them are J. E. C. rooted.

It would hardly pay to try to do anything at all with such cuttings, as in all probability it would mean just so much time and labor lost; occasionally such plants recover and do fairly well, but more often they are ruined irretrievably. ROBT. SIMPSON.

BONE MEAL AND HEN MANUREIN ROSESOIL.

ED. AM. FLORIST:-Please let us know through the American Florist how much bone meal to use in rose soil for benches of a house 20x100 feet, and when it should be mixed in the soil. State also quantity of hen manner another house of the same size.

G. Bros. quantity of hen manure required for

From 100 to 125 pounds of bone meal (pure) is a fair allowance for a house of the above dimensions. Some growers mix it through the compost heap when turning in the early spring, and if the bone is at all coarse this is the best method to adopt as more time is given for decomposition. When ground very fine it is almost as light as air-slaked lime and if used outdoors much might be carried away with the wind, on that account it is more convenient and probably equally effective if scattered over the soil on the benches and mixed through immediately before planting.

Have never mixed hen manure with soil for roses, though 1 have frequently used it in the form of liquid manure; have had a little experience with it in carnation soil and the results were very satisfactory. We used it at about the rate of two flour barrels to a house 20x100 feet, first running it through a three-quarter inch screen, then spread it over the surface of the benches and worked it in by hand. Would not advise a heavier dose for roses. ROBT. SIMPSON.

MARKECHAL MEL NOT BLOOMING.

ED. AM. FLORIST:-Would you kindly tell me through the columns of your paper the cause of the Marechal Niel rose not blooming, or what to do to make it bloom. It is a good thrifty bush, has good place in rose house, is five years old

FINE ROSE STOCK

In 2 and 3-inch Pots.

Write for preses of kinds I in want.

12 Be a Variety's of Carnations III 2-inch pots and top ant eat. Write for prices. Send 50c for any est. I are: 8 max in 2-inch pots.

GEO, A. KUHL, Pekin, III.

ROSES OWN ROOTS ADDRESS DORMANT AND FIELD GROWN

IN COLD STORAGE IN CHICAGO.

No. 1, 2 to 4 feet, cut back to 2 feet Yellow Rambler (Aglaia) Hybrid Perpetuals, Mosses, Hardy Climbers and Madam Plantier and has only once or twice produced a few buds. It was cut away back several times and made new growth again but failed to bloom. Nearly all the roots were cut away, but the plant grows just J. W. as fast.

 $\tau(\mathbf{d}) = r(\mathbf{b}) \cdot \mathbf{J}_r(\mathbf{c}) + d$

W. F. HEIKES, Manager,

1308-1310 Unity Bldg., - (INCAGO, ILLS.

One or more questions similar to the above have been answered quite recently in the columns of this paper, and I think very little can be added to those replies now that will be of special value in this particular case.

J. W. may not be aware of the fact that Marcehal Neil, like all other roses of its class must be treated entirely different from the ever-blooming tea section. Plant a Marechal Neil on a bench with tea roses, and give it the same liberal treatment, and you will be rewarded with fine growth and foliage, but like the barren fig tree there will be "nothing but leaves." In a general sense the culture recommended for the hybrid perpetual class will answer for this rose also with this difference, that while the former are pruned back hard once a year the latter reanires comparatively little pruningmerely taking the ends off the strong shoots and trimming away the small brushy wood. Maturing the growth and ripening the canes is the all important feature. If nature's plan can not be copied under glass, as would seem improbable in this case, we must use artificial means. When the plant stops growing in the summer commence by admitting all the air you can without injuring other plants in the house and withhold water at the root-give only enough to prevent shriveling for about six or seven weeks, then prime and start into growth.

ROBT. SIMPSON.

WEST CHICAGO, ILL.—Anthony Warnemont will commence building a new greenhouse early in April.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.—March 23 a steamer brought up nineteen boxes of rare plants from isolated portions of the Lower California peninsula, consigned to an eastern institution. They were gathered by C. A. Purpus, a botanist.

SCOTT'S ROSES!

AMERICAN BEAUTY

Now ready to ship. Plants from 21;-inch pots. .....$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

ULRICH BRUNNER. Strong plants of hard wooded cuttings, from 22g-inch pots, $1.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. This is gilt edged stock, and has a reputation of its own. Last year we could have sold 10,000 plants after our stock was sold. Sample for 10 cents.

BRIDE, BRIDESMAID, PERLE DES JARDINS, METEOR and CARNOT, from  $2^{4}e^{-in}$ , pots. Write for

NEW DWARF CANNA GLORIOSA, without exception the most useful and beautiful Canna yet in-troduced. Plants, from 3-in. pots, $2.00 per doz.; $12.50 per 100.

CANNA FLAMINGO, dormant roots, $8.00 per 100. CANNA PAUL MARQUANT, dormant roots, $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

CANNA CHAS. HENDERSON, dormant roots, $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

ORDER NOW

ROBT. SCOTT & SON,

19TH AND CATHERINE STS.,

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Roses! Roses! Roses!

Lytra fine selected stock of all the leading varietie

Bride, Bridesmaid, Catherine Mermet, Madame Hoste, Mrs. Pierpont Morgan, Perle des Jardins, Meteor, at $5.00 per 100. La France, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Mrs. W. C. Whitney, Souvenir de Wootton, Madame Caroline Testout and Pres. Carnot at $5.50 per 100. Clara Watson and American Beauty at $8.00 per 100. 4.4.4.4.4

WRITE FOR SPECIAL PRICES FOR LARCE QUANTITIES.

JOHN N. MAY,

Summit, New Jersey.

ROSES...

PERLES METEORS BRIDESMAID

- Pots = 100 - Pots = 100 - 21<sub>2</sub> - ₹2 50 - 3 - ₹3 50

Guaranteed first-class. Stock grown in low temperature.

THE E. HIPPARD CO., Youngstown, Ohio.

300,000 YOUNG ROSES 300,000

Ramblers, Climb. Malmaison, Climb. White Pet, Climb Wootton, Pres Carnot and 100 other leaders in Feas, II. Teas and Climbers. Moon Vines, $2.50 per 100.

Send for prices

The National Plant Company, Dayton, Ohio.

NEW FORCING ROSE MRS. ROBT. GARRETT

Hybrid tea, rich soft pink, buds very long, flower extra large delightfully fragrant, rivaling Bridesmaid in color, but larger and much more productive. A sturdy, vigorous grower, a money maker and a triumph of American skill. The best firms in the country are investing in it. It has won numerous prizes and has elicited the most favorable comment from critical judges. Price strong plants from Dy-inch pots, $25,00 per 100 in lots less than 1000; $255,00 per 1000. Orders booked now, delivery March 15, 1898, Correspondence solicited. Address

H. WEBER & SONS, Oakland, Md.

THE FINE NEW BEDDERS

PRESIDENT McKINLEY, PRESIDENT CLEVELAND, DEFENDER, TARRYTOWN.

At 60 cts. each; $5 00 per dozen; $40.00 per 100 from 4-inch pots.

MRS. FAIRMAN ROGERS ......4-inch Pots, $12.00 per 100. MLLE. BERAT......4-inch Pots, $15.00 per 100. ROBERT CHRISTIE......4-inch Pots, $20.00 per 100.

Also a Fine Stock of Strong Dormant Bulbs.

Queen Charlotte, Mme. Crozy, Florence Vaughan, Egandale, Ami Pichon,

At $2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

M. Mesnier, L. E. Bally, Midway, Admiral Avellan, Prest. Carnot, J. C. Vaughan,

$3.00 per 100.

ELDORADO, Alex. Billard, Burbank, Count de Bouchard, Souv. de Prest. Carnot,

$4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000.

Souv. d'Antoine Crozy, Papa, John White,

$5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

SPECIAL OFFER:

1000 Fine Bulbs in 10 named sorts, $15 00 Cash.

Strictly our selection of sorts.

THE COTTAGE GARDENS, Queens, N.Y.

NNAS NEW AMERICAN Finest in the World Our Novellies for 1898

DUKE OF MARLBORO, darkest crimson Per 100
DUCHESS OF MARLBORD, only pure pink. 30.00
DUCHESS OF MARLBORD, only pure pink. 30.00
DUCHESS OF MARLBORD, only pure pink. 30.00
LORRAINE, pink, edged white, fine. 30.00
MAIDENS BLUSH, delicate flesh color 55.00
GUDEN PEARL, yellow, nearly double 30.00
CUB4 finest and largest gilt edged. 40.00
CUB4 finest and largest gilt edged. 40.00
CUBA MPION, very dwarf, March delivery 12.50
PHILADELPHIA, glowing crimson 55.00 each
KLCNOIKE, only large pure orange $2.50
Send for complete list of 50 novelties and 200
standard varieties at lowest prices.

OUR CANNAS IN FRANCE.

OUR CANNAC

To Messra A. Blanc & Co.
Your new cannas of last year gave me much satisfaction. Please send me a complete set or your neweltles for 1838 as soon as ready. Also 12
Glant Crimson, etc. Signed CH MOLIN,
Lyon France, Jan. 3, 1838.

PARAGUS SPRENGERI

Fine plants in 6-loch pots, ready for 8-inch, $5 per 12.

AMARYLLIS....

Veitch's Hybrids, $4 per 12; Equestra, $4 per 100; Formosissima, $3 per 100.

LLAS
Spotted Leaf. $3; Black, $5; Yellow, $30;
all per 100. Golden, $2 each.

DAHLIAS

11 prizes out of 22 at the last Dabila exhibition. First prize Dabila, GILT EDGE, $15 per 100 Send for special list.

A. BLANC & CO., Philadelphia, Pa,

BS For FLORISTS...

VAN ZANTEN BROTHERS.

HILLEGOM, HOLLAND. m. C. Smith

WHOLESALE FLORIST

NO. 40 SOUTH 16TH STREET

PHILADELPHIA

Consignments Solicited.

Unsurpassed Shipping Facilities.

Long Distance Phone.

Please Mention The American Florist.

Milwaukee.

While trade has not been heavy during the week, it has had the effect of creating that impression from the fact that roses and carnations have been scarce; the indications are that all flowers will hold out the demand over Easter, excepting carnations and potted lilies.

There have been a few decorations here this week which have won considerable praise, the principal effects of which weer produced by large branches of Forsythia suspensa and Spiræa Van Houttei in full bloom, a few sprays of light colored asparagus vine and an undergrowth of bulb flowers, occasionally dentzia has been used, also lilac. Roses were "not in it.

There has been some animated gossip lately about wholesale dealers supplying direct to the retail trade.

Some of our florists have discovered that the best place to look for stock when they run out is to send to some of the fakirs; they most always have the stock below wholesale rates, so we are told.

W. A. Kennedy, of Lake Forest, Ill., has leased the Deuster greenhouses for a term of three years at $1000 per annum.

W. G. Schucht has left the Espenhein Dry Goods Co. and started a florist store on Ogden avenue near Franklin street.

Fred. Schmeling has secured the contracts for furnishing the plants required for the city parks.

A. Billings, of Cudahy, is the lily king this season. They are longiflorums. They will make his pocket book long also. C. B. W.

Los Angeles, Cal. - The California Fruit Growers' Convention will be held here April 11 and 12, and at Riverside April 14 and 15. It will be under the auspices of the State Board of Horticult-

Scollav

INDISPENSABLE

J. A Scollay, Maker, R Myrtle Ave. Brooklyn, N. Y.

STEMS DUST EXTRAGT

BOTTOM PRICES.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

Chicago. New York.

Kraft's Plant Toni

For Plants, Palms and Flowers

A Wonderful Preparation for the Promotion of Plant Life, Des-truction of Insects and Scale,......

84 & 86 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE.

14 BARCLAY STREET, NEW YORK.

HAS COME TO STAY ON ITS

HE SALEM COCOA NUT

FIBRE CO. ton, F. O. B. at Salem, Mass. at $9.00 per

W. S. WARD, Mgr., Office: Federal Street, - SAEEM, MASS.

Bring located at the head center of this country for White Pine Lumber we are able to buy our stock right and turnish our customers with goods of the best quality and at prices which will put them at your station lower than the lowest. Our factory is thoroughly equipped and turning out promptly the most uniform, smooth and best painted goods made in this country, put up in neat packages, guaranteed full count and nicely crated.

SEND FOR SAMPLES AND PRICES.

WOODEN GOODS COMPANY, 83 Western Ave., MINNEAPOLIS. MINN.

Everybody is more pleased if you say "saw your ad, in the American Florist" when writing.

Mention the American Florist when writing to advertisers on this page.

Cincinnati.

Trade conditions during the past week were after all much better than we anticipated at last report, and but little stuff went to waste.

The Sixth street flower market was well stocked last Saturday with choice plants of every description; flowering plants moved better than any of the previous weeks, but prices ruled rather low. Messrs. George and Allen brought in the first sweet peas last week which are excellent and find a ready sale.

April 4 we had the worst spell of weather of the season, the thermometer registered twenty above zero on the morning of the 5th with one inch of snow on the ground.

Early fruit all through this part of Ohio has been greatly injured.

Mr. Walter Gray, of College Hill, auctioned off his surplus stock of bulbs, flowering and foliage plants at the auction house of Ezekiel & Co. on Main street, April 6.
The regular

The regular monthly meeting and flower show of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held the third Saturday of this month April 16, instead of the second, as heretofore. A full attendance is H. SCHWARZ. expected.

Jute Fibre Flower

Pots...

The Finest Thing on Earth for Shipping Plants. & &

Very Strong, Light, Neat and Attractive

Send 5 cts. stamps for samples and low prices.

J. B. WOODIN, - Owosso, Mich.

Made by

Der Shipping.
Special Attention Given to
Mail Orders, and Special
Sizes Made to Order.

KELLER BROS.

NORRISTOWN, PA.

Price Lists Furnished on Application.

STANDARD ....FLOWER

We have 50,000 4-in. Pots that we will close out at $7.00 per 1000; 500 at same rate. Send for price list for other sizes. Address.

HILFINGER BROTHERS POTTERY FORT EDWARD, N. Y.

FLOWER POTS

ALL KINDS.

A SPECIALTY

List and SAMPLES FREE.

J. G. SWAHN'S SONS, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO. Flower Po

Bulb Pans, Hanging Baskets and Saucers

OUR FLOWER POTS are standard measure and all first-class and we assure you they will give good satisfaction. We call your attention to our new pots, 6, 7, 8 and 9-inch, called the "Foro Pot." They are more Porous than any pots, smoother inside and outside, perfect drainage, and are easily washed and cleaned, Give them a trial and you will not want any other. Remember these Pots are as cheap as any other Pot on the market. Write for price list.

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

Flower

OUR POTS ARE OF THE BEST QUALITY.

We ship all goods from Cincinnati, guaranteeing lowest treight rates and prompt delivery.

Write us before placing your orders elsewhere. . . . . . .

CAMBRIDGE TILE MFG. CO., Covington, Ky.

old reliable make of Elverson, Sherwood & Barker.

Write for price list. Address

PITTSBURG CLAY MFG. CO.,

FANDARD

BRANCH WAREHUUSES:

Kearney and Westside Aves., Jersey City, N. J. Jackson Av. & Pearson St., Long Island City, N. Y.

New Brighton, Pa.

FERN PANS and

AZALEA POTS...

■GEO. KELLER & SON. Flower Pots.

Before buying write for prices. 361-363 Herndon Street, near Wrightwood Ave.,

CHICAGO, ILL.

Mention American Florist

"STANDARDS"

FULL SIZE AND WIDE BOTTOMS. BULB PANS AND AZALEA POTS

DETROIT FLOWER POT M'F'Y,

HARRY BALSLEY,

DETROIT, MICH., 490 HOWARD ST.

Standard 34 34 FLOWER

If your greenhouses are within 500 miles of the Capitol, write us; we can save you money.

W. H. ERNEST,

Station M, N. E.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

of GLASS

SEND FOR IT.

John Lucas & Co.

PHILADELPIA.

St. Paul.

Trade is quite brisk and is growing better each day. All stock is in good demand, the greatest call being for carnations, roses and violets, in the order named. The supply is about equal to the demand, though several shipments from Chicago and Milwaukee were noted last week. Bulbous stock is somewhat scarce owing to the bulk of the stock being held for Easter trade. Funeral work which has been rather slack for a few weeks is again in good demand. Shipping orders are coming in rapidly and all stock is being disposed of to good advantage.

The outlook for Easter is exceptionally good. Inquiries are numerous and orders already booked are of good size. There is a fair supply of good stock. Lilies are is a fair supply of good stock. Thies are somewhat scarce, owing to the disease, good sales during the winter months, and a smaller number being planted. There is also a short supply of good azaleas. Growers should make a note of these items when laying in next season's supplies. There is plenty of bulbous stock, such as tulips, hyacinths, narcissus, etc., all of which come in handy for assorted boxes. Smilax is scarce; the wild southern article will most likely be used in church decorating more than formerly.

Retail prices for Easter are quoted as follows: Roses, $1.50 to $2.50 per dozen; carnations, 75 cents to $1; cut lilies, $3; valley, tulips, etc., 75 cents; violets, $2 to $3 per 100. In the plant line Harrisii are held at 20 to 25 cents per bloom. Azaleas twelve inch heads $1.50 and upwards. There is a good church plant in Spiraea compacta multiflora, and those who have not grown this beautiful plant should lay in a supply another season. Its first cost is small 8 to 10 cents at the outside in small quantities, while a well grown plant will sell readily at 75 cents We notice in our travels one lot of hydrangeas in 9 inch pcts that would be very hard to beat, They were imported plants last fall, strong heavy roots and showing large clusters of bloom. This is another most profitable plant, and if well grown, will sell as well as in years gone by. The plant and flower buying community are not clamoring for novelties as much as some of our friends would make us believe. What they do want and will buy is superior grown stock.

The drummers have been coming our way of late, the arrivals since my last report being H. C. Sim, of H. A. Dreer Co., B. F. Brown, of Fitchburg, Mass., F. Baggerly, of Hennecke & Co., Milwankee, the genial representative of A. H. Hews & Co. and Mr. Van Zanten, of Lisse, Holland.

The heaviest snow storm of the season came on Sunday last. Some glass was broken by the immense weight of snow. FLUIS.

New Haven, Conn.

One of the large department stores here spread itself this week during its Easter opening by the display of a large artificial latania in its window. The plant was entirely decorative, not being offered for sale, and as it was placed in close prox unity to the sidewalk, the deception was The firm a matter of public comment. sayed a portion of a dollar by the subter

In direct contradiction of methods must he noted the outlay made by several other local drygoods houses for flowers and plants during opening week. One house used one hundred palms to render attractive to patrons its place of business, while others spent large amounts on cut flowers which were presented to their customers.

Small flowering plants are much in vogue, and naturally take precedence over cut flowers in the matter of expense. Lilies are scarce here as everywhere. Azaleas are in plenty.

W. H. Long has moved from Church to Chapel street. Increase of trade made the change to more commodious quarters necessary, and now Mr. Long has one of the nicest flower stores in the city.

J. A. P.

For Greenhouses, Gardens and Lawns in liberal quantities, every hour of the year, whether the wind & blows or not & & & & &

Improved Rider Hot Air Pump Improved Ericsson Hot Air Pump

Can be run by any ignorant boy without danger. Explosion impossible. Prices greatly reduced. In use in every part of the world.

RIDER-ERICSSON ENGINE CO.

22 Cortlandt St., NEW YORK. 191-193 High St., BOSTON. 684 Craig St., MONTREAL, P. Q.

86 Lake St., CHICAGO. 29-31 N. 7th St., PHILADELPHIA. Send for catalogue "A 3."

Strength AND Durability

Send for Catalogue.

MACHINE. VENTILATING

NOTHING Flimsy OR Complicated about it.

HIPPARD, YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO,

GREENHOUSE MATERIAI

Cal. Red Cedar and Louisiana Cypress. BEST GRADES. PERFECT WORKMANSHIP.

A. DIETSCH & CO. SHEFFIELD AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

FIRST-CLASS GOODS and CORRECT PRICES

bave forced us to the front and today we are the largest manufact-orers of.

IRON RESERVOIR VASES

and Lawn Settees in America A (0-page catalogue for the asking

McDonald Bros. 108-114 Liberty St., COLUMBUS, O

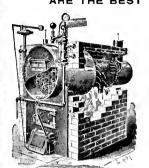

Mention American Florist.

You can not get a GOOD THING for nothing. But the price of this apparatus is next to nothing. Send for price and description to

D. CARMODY, Evansvilla, Ind.

VANGE BOILERS

Send to-day for Catalogue and Price

For Heating Greenhouses, Conservatories and Owellings

VANCE BOILER WORKS, Geneva, N.Y.

KROESCHELL BROS. CO.

Greenhouse * Boiler,

Boilers made of the hest of material shell, firebox sheets and heads of steel, water space all around (front, sides and back). Write for information. Mention American Florist.

Boilers

OF HIGH

For GREENHOUSES.

See our Catalogue.....

Giblin & Co., Utica, N. Y.

GREEN-HOUSE HEATING. MYERS & CO.

1518 & 1520 S. 91h St. PHILADELPHIA.

Send for catalogue and price list.

NEW & SECOND-HAND MATERIAL.

purchased from Sheriff, Receiver, and Assignee, sales at less than one-half prices. Pipe and Fittings Hose, Florists Wire, Hot Water Heaters, Greenhouse Bollors and Engines, Rope, Light Wrought Iron Pipe, Glass Sash, and thousands of other articles, for sa'c by

CHICAGO HOUSE WRECKING CO. Largest Mail Order Depot for New and Second-Hand Material in the World.

W. 35TH & IRON STS., CHICAGO. Write for our free illustrated catalogues.

FOR SALE CHEAP.
GLASS for Greenhouses, Conservatories, Hotheds, etc. Also Hothed Sashes and Mats, Paints, Oils, etc. THE REED GLASS & Mats, Paints, Oils, etc. THE RIPAINT CO., 456 W. Broadway, NEW GLASS &

Butted Glass.

Clipper Bar.

With this bar you can make a roof that is absolutely free from drip, and glass cannot be torn out by the wind. Butted glass makes a tight roof, a warm house and saves fnel. It lasts longer, looks betterand costs less than the old-fashioned roof. But do not think that this is the only bar we sell, for it is not; we furnish what people want and there is nothing in greenhouse material that you cannot get from us, and all of open-air-dried Cypress clear of bright sap, stained sap, knots and all other defects.

Lockland Lumber Co.

Write for Circulars or Estimates,

Lockland, Ohio.

Wheeler-Stenzel Co.

)}}}}|2|2|2|2|5|5|5|5|666

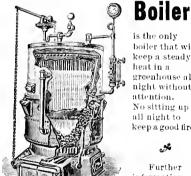

Make your contracts for next season now. We can deliver to any part of the country and Save You Money .....

393333333BBBBBB666

Greenhouse Glass

72 Sudbury St., BOSTON, MASS.

GORTON SIDE FEED

is the only boiler that will keep a steady heat in a greenhouse all night without attention. No sitting up all night to keep a good fire

×

Further information on application.

GORTON & LIDGERWOOD CO. 96 Liberty Street, NEW YORK.

EVANS' IMPROVED CHALLENGE VENTILATING

WAKER CITY MACHINE WORKS.

Surplus Stock

Can be disposed of by advertising. Try it.....

This Size "Ad." Costs Only $1.00.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO., CHICAGO.

IS MUCH MORE DURABLE THAN PINE. CYPRESS EET IN LENGTH OR LONGER. GREENHOUSE AND OTHER BUILDING MATERIAL.

Sond for our Illustrated Book "CYPRESS LUMBER AND TOUSES! Send for our Special Greenhouse Circular. THE A.T. STEATING Lumber Co., Neponsers Besten, Mass.

LOUISIANA Cypress Green House Material.

RED CEDAR

Write for Estimates.

TELEGRAPH CODE

AM. SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

$2.00, in either stiff or flexible cover. ADDRESS ORDERS TO

> AMERICAN FLORIST CO., CHICAGO,

WEATHERED'S

Improved Sectional Heater

SECTIONAL VIEW

Below will be found a few of the points claimed for this boiler:

Simplicity of Construction.
Sectional headers to correspond to each section of boiler,
Sectional ash pit to correspond to each section of boiler,
Maximum amount of vertical circulation of water,
Minimum amount of friction.

The heating surfaces in fire box are so arranged that the hot gases must strike every part before entering combustion chamber.

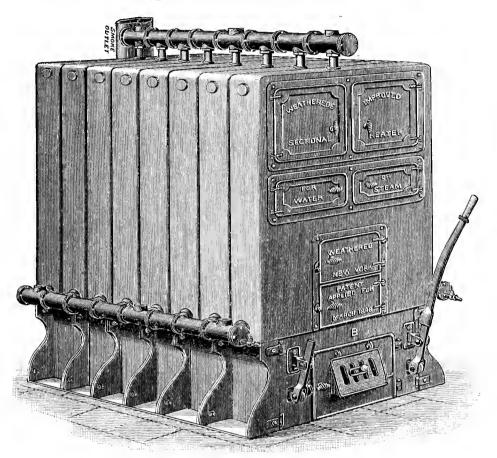

ount of vertical circulation of water.

Unit of friction.

Maximum amount of heating surface exposed to the direct action of the fire in a given space.

For Hot Water or Steam

PATENT APPLIED FOR MARCH 1898.

OUTSIDE VIEW

Sectional boilers are now an established feature in greenhouse heating but there are many on the market that are sectional in name only and when put together a section cannot be repaired or replaced without disturbing many other sections, or disconnecting the headers.

This boiler has been designed to make the taking out and replacing a section a very simple matter. As will be seen by the cuts it is only necessary to take out the bolts in flanges—the section can then be pulled out. The sections are constructed in one piece and there are no joints within the boiler.

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

THOS. W. WEATHERED'S SON,

141 Centre Street, NEW YORK.

Index to Advertisers.

Advertising Rates. 1975
Allen J.R. 1979
American RoseCo. 1888
Amilias E.C. 1978
Armstrong Luther. 1981
Baller F.A. 1989
Bartlett Geo. S. 1972
Bassett & Washborn Bassett & Washburn

Bayersdorfer H & Co ltes
Benson Martin. ... Ites
Berser H H & Co ... tes
Besold C ... tes
Blanc A & Co ... tes
Blanc A & Co ... tes
Blanc A & Co ... tes
Bobbink L C ... tes
Boerner Fred ... tes
Boston Letter Co ... tes
Brague L B ... tes
Brague L B ... tes
Brewn Brag Filling
Machine Co ... tes
Burles & Tyrreil ... tes
Burles & Tyrreil ... tes
Burton John ... tes
Cambridge Tile Mig
Co ... tes
Lore Cambridge The 10.66
Co. 10.66
Carmody J. D. 10.94
Chadwick Chas 10.87
Chicago House Wreck-Cincas & Boddington
Co...
Cole Geo E & Co.
Coles W W.
Conard & Jones Co
Conley John & Son.
Cottage Gardens 1859
Crafg Robt & Son.
Crawford M...
Cramingbam J H...
Dames N...

cuntingbam J H. 10-9
Dames N. 1184
Danley S T. 1184
Danley S T. 188
Detroit Flo w Pot MigigaDietsoh A & Co. 1034
Dillon J L. 1699
Uorner/Fred & Son - C (185,
Dreer H A 118-1182
Ebret F 1009
Elehholtz Henry 1880 Elichhoitz Henry 1889
Elizabeth Ninseries 1889
Ellizabeth Ninseries 1889
Elliott W H 1977
Ellis & Pollworth 1978
Feithousen J E 1889
Ford Bros. 1978
Galvin & Co 1979
Gibbins H W 1978
Giblin & Co 1979
Gibbins G Co 1979
Gibtons H W 1978
Gibtin & Co 1979
Gibti & Co 1979
Gibtin & Co 1979
Gibtin & Co 1979
Gibtin & Co 1979
Gib

Jackson A Perkins Colled Japanese Norsery 184 Jennings E B 185 Kasting W 1 167 Keller Bros 186 Kelsey Harlan P 186 Kennicott Bros Co 186 KrafUs Plant Tonle 187 KrafUs Plant Tonle 187 Kreek Plant Tonle 187 Kyehn (A 2 186 Ley John II | 100 | Littlefield H F | 1005 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100 | 100

CHICAGO,ILL.

Louisville Tobacco Ct 1822
Lucas J & Co. 1895
Lynob W E. 1875
Lynob W E. 1875
Lynob Horticole 1931
Manning Jacob W. 1880
May Jno N. 1880
McCenthy N F & Co. 1679
McDonaid & McManns
McDonaid & McManns

McDonald &ros. 1079
McDonald & Steele. 1857
McPonald & Steele. 1857
McPadden W A. 1677
McDonald & Steele. 1857
McPadden W A. 1677
Millang Frank. 1679
Monlager J C Co. 1658
Moon Sammel C. 1858
Moon Sammel C. 1858
Moon Wm H Co 1659 1854
Moon Wm H Co 1659 1854
Moor Florat Co. 1657
Mound City Flo Co. 1677
Myers & Co. 1658
National Flo Board of
Trade. 1658
National Flo Board of
Trade. 1658
National Flo Board of
Trade. 1658
National Flo Board of
Trade 1658
N Y Cht Flower Co. 1678
N Y Cht Flower Co. 1678
Ny
Rider, Ericeson Eng
Double Comment of the Comment o

South Fale Floral Co.

Stearns Lumber Co. 1035
Struck J N & Bro. 1036
Sunderbruch II L Co. 1037
Sutherland Geo A. 1039
Swabins Sons J G. 1036
Swabins For II L S. 1032
Van L S. 1035
Van L

Weathered's TW Son
Weaver H B & Bro.
Weber H & Sons lies
Weber A Don.
Welch Bros.
Wezelenburg Jac
Whesler Stenzel Co.
Whillidin Pot Co.
Whillidin Pot Co.
William Co.
William Co.
William Co.
William Co.
William Co.
William Co.
Wood Bros.
Wooden Co.
Wooden Co.
Wooden Co.
Voong Jno.
Young Jno.
Young Thos Jr 105.1 1065

DESCRIPTION.

CYPRESS GREENHOUSE

SEND FOR CATALOGUE.

Hitchings & Co.

HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS

GREENHOUSE HEATING AND VENTILATING APPARATUS.

THE HIGHEST AWARDS RECEIVED AT THE WORLD'S FAIR FOR HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTURE GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION AND HEATING APPARATUS.

Conservatories, Greenhouses, Palm Houses, etc., erected complete, with our patent Iron Frame Construction. Send four cents postage for illustrated catalogue.

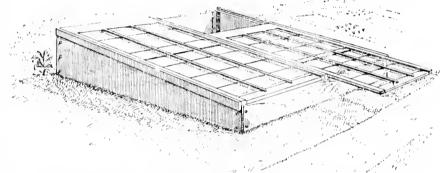

233 Mercer Street, NEW YORK.

LORD & BURNHAM CO.'S

CYPRESS HOT BED SASH and FRAMES

"The Best is the Cheapest."

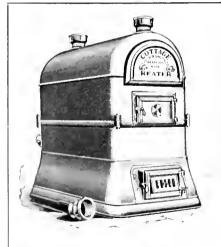

Superior in Every Respect.

FREICHT ALLOWANCE covers Freight to most points in Eastern and Middle States. Send to New York
Office for circular and price list. Send 4 cts. postage for cutalogue of Patent Iron Greenhouse Construction Estimates furnished for Cypress Greenhouse Material.
Send 5 cts. postage for Intested Catalogue of Creenhouse Heating and Ventilating.

New York Office: 160 FIFTH AVE., Cor. 21st St.

Ceneral Office and Works: IRVINCTON-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.

SALESROOMS:

133 Centre Street, - NEW YORK CITY. 510 Arch Street, - PHILADELPHIA.

COTTAGE BOILER

WESTERN BRASS MFG. CO. ST. LOUIS, MO.

HOLBROOK, MERRILL & STETSON SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

LUROPEAN AGENT AUG. EGGERS, BREMEN.

THE H. B. SMITH CO., Westfield, Mass.

DON'T SYRINGE WITH COLD WATER.

It howers the vitality of your stock, but write for particulars of my tempering Apparatus.

HENRY W. GIBBONS, 134 LIBERTY STREET, NEW YORK.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

America is "the Prow of the Vessel; there may be more comfort Amidships, but we are the first to touch Unknown Seas."

Vol. XIII.

CHICAGO AND NEW YORK, APRIL 16, 1898.

No. 515.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

Copyright 1898, by American Florist Company. Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY AMERIOAN FLORIST COMPANY, 324 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Eastern Office: 67 Bromfield St., Boston.

Subscription, $1.00 a year. To Europe, $2.00, Subscriptions accepted only from the trade.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

OKNAMENTAL HORITODIORISIS.

OFFICERS-WM. F. OUDE, Washington, D. C., president; A. DONAGHUE. Omaba, Neb., vice-president; W. J. STEWART, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass., secretary: H. B. BEATTY, Oll City, Pa., treasurer. The fourteenth annual meeting will be held at Omaba, Neb., August, 1888.

THE AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Annual Convention at Philadelphia, February, 1899. ALBERT M. HERR, Lancaster Pa., Secretary.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.
Annual meeting at Omaha, Neb., Angust, 1898.
ELMER D. SMITH, Adrian, Mich., secretary.

CONTENTS.

| •                                                                                 |       |      |      |     |     |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|------|------|-----|-----|
| Easter trade reports                                                              |       |      |      |     |     |
| The florist and the flower show                                                   |       |      |      |     |     |
| Azalea Carl Euke (illus.)                                                         |       |      |      |     |     |
| Primula vulgaris (illus.)                                                         |       |      |      |     |     |
| Rose notes                                                                        |       |      |      |     |     |
| Rose notesBulb growing in state of Washit                                     | igti  | ıπ   | (ill | lus | i.) |
|                                                                                   |       |      |      |     |     |
| Fred'k W. Tay'or's wedding                                                        |       |      |      |     |     |
| Exacum atline (illus.).  New York  Chrysanthemum notes                            |       |      |      |     |     |
| New York                                                                          |       | ٠.   |      |     |     |
| Chrysanthemon noles                                                               |       |      |      |     |     |
| Philadelphia                                                                      |       |      | : :  |     | Ċ   |
| Philadelphia                                                                      | Hus   |      | •    |     | ٠   |
| Poston                                                                            |       | .,   |      | •   | •   |
| BostonAsparagus Sprengerii                                                    |       | •    | • •  | •   | ٠   |
| Steam and hot water heating par                                                   | 0.31  | l (i | Hai  | . 1 |     |
| Objects                                                                           |       | ٠,   |      | ,   |     |
| Omanantal ladding part V (illa                                                    | 15.3  | ٠.   |      | ٠   | ٠   |
| Chicago.Ornamental bedding part V. (ill)Hints on prize lists for dahlia's | has   |      | •    | ٠   | •   |
| HIRES Off Differ Tists for standia s                                              | ,,,,, | 1 17 |      |     |     |
| Impatience of Job                                                                 |       |      | ٠.   | •   | ٠   |
| Plant food in jadoo nore and rid                                                  |       |      |      | •   | ٠   |
| Trans-Mississipi exposition note                                                  | ٠.    |      |      | ٠   | ٠   |
| Greenhouse building                                                               |       |      |      |     |     |
| Hybrid roses                                                                      |       |      |      |     |     |
| Cînciunati                                                                        |       |      |      |     | ٠   |
| Providence, R. L                                                                  |       |      |      |     |     |
| New Orleans                                                                       |       |      |      |     |     |
| Nursery trade                                                                     |       |      |      |     |     |
| A drummer's twaddle                                                               |       |      |      |     |     |
| New Bedford, Mass                                                                 |       |      |      |     |     |
| St. Paul                                                                          |       |      |      |     |     |
| St. Paul                                                                          |       |      |      |     |     |
| Worcester, Mass                                                                   |       |      |      |     |     |
| Syraeuse, N. Y                                                                    |       |      |      | Ċ   | Ċ   |
| Pittsburg.                                                                        |       |      |      | Ċ   | Ċ   |
| Pittsburg                                                                         |       |      |      |     |     |
|                                                                                   |       |      |      |     |     |

Sandusky, O.—The death is announced of Henry Matern, April 10, at the family home on W. Washington street, where he conducted a general greenhouse business. Mr. Matern was a native of Weilburg, Germany. He came to this country in 1849, was over seventy years of age, and leaves besides a wife, one son and six daughters to mourn his loss.

THE EASTER TRADE.

The reports from correspondents and florists in leading cities of the United States and Canada show an unusual uniformity with, of course, some variations in the smaller and more remote towns.

Reports vary as to the volume of trade, and many of our most careful and conservative correspondents fix the average increase at from 15% to 20%, while some report over 50%.

As to prices, the increase was not marked, but tabulated reports show approximately 5% to 10% advance, with less disposition on the part of purchasers to haggle about them.

In cut flowers carnations appeared to rule the day, reports almost invariably indicating a strong demand exceeding the supply. Next in importance to this flower follow lilies, violets and roses in the order named. Further, in a general way all good flowers sold well.

With regard to plants, lilies seemed to be called for everywhere, and most florists report that many more could have been sold. Azaleas sold well; hyacinths and palms were in good demand in many cities, and in a general way all flowering plants sold out close, with but moderate inquiry for palms, ferns and like stock.

On the whole, the Easter festival has but emphasized its importance as the florist's harvest.

We present herewith a portion of the reports:

ELMIRA, N. Y.—Easter trade, "simply splendid." Splendid stock; splendid weather; splendid sales, "'nuff said."—G. P. R.

Indianapolis, Ind.—An increase of 25% in total business; prices about the same except an increase incarnations; lilies sold well; hyacinths and tulips being less in demand; cut lilies sold poorly.—H. W. R.

TORONTO, CAN.—Sales nearly double those of last year. Price on best stock higher, on medium not so high. Cut flowers in good supply, also plants except liles. Lilacs and lily plants most in demand.—J. H. D.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Serveau Bros. report an increase in volume of sales of about 16%, with prices same as last year except in the case of roses, which were a little higher. Everything was plentiful except lilies in pots and azaleas. Dutch hyacinths went like hot eakes.

Baltimore, Md.—E. A. Seidewitz reports sales 20% greater, with prices better than last year, especially on roses and carnations. Good supply of plants, also flowers, excepting carnations and roses. In plants hyacinths and tulips were the least salable, azaleas most in demand. In cut flowers there was least call for tulips and bulbous stock, while the demand was greatest for carnations.

St. Matthews, Ky.—An increase of 20% in trade Bulbous stock equal to demand. Scarcity of azaleas. Cut flowers short. Lilies, roses and violets most in demand.

CLEVELAND, O.—F. R. W. reports 25% increase in trade, with prices normal. Plants in good supply and cut flowers short; cut roses and carnations selling well.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—Trade excellent, although varying but little from last season, with prices the same. Carnations were the only scarce item in cut flowers. Roses sold poorly, owing perhaps to the high prices. All plants sold well. Novelties in plants, such as lilacs, rhododendrons and Harrisii were in demand.—J. A. P.

Washington, D. C.—A. Gude & Brofind that sales show an increase of 10%. Prices no better than last year. Plants too numerous to be handled properly. Cut flowers in every respect equal to the demand, except violets and carnations. Spiraeas among plants were the least salable, with lilies and pans of hyacinths and tulips most in demand. In cut flowers least call was made for jonquils; violets, carnations and lilies going well. There was a greater call than ever for cheap plants and roses.

Stoux City, In.—The total sales were greater than last year, an increase of 20%. Prices about the same. The supply of plants fair. In cut flowers carnations were most in demand.—J. R. E.

LARAMIE, Wvo.—Trade and prices normal. Supply equal to the demand. Cut blooms of bulbous stock, lilies and roses sold well, but our people have not learned to appreciate azaleas.—Mrs. G. A. II.

Sharon, Pa.—An increase of about 40%, with retail prices much better. While the supply of plants was sufficient, more cut flowers could have been disposed of. Carnations had the call as a popular cut flower.—J. M.

New Orleans, La,—U. L. Virgin reports an increase in sales of about 25% with prices about the same as last year. Supply of plants and cut flowers equal to the demand. Harrisii, azaleas and roses sold well. Palms and bulbous stock least in demand.

Atchison, Kas.—R. J. Groves reports 50% increase in trade prices as usual, with sufficient supply of both plants and cut flowers. The plants most salable were Dutch hyacinths, cinerarias, Harrisii; roses and carnations were the best selling cut flowers.

Parkersburg, W. Va.—Gustav Obernayer reports that Easter trade was 25% better than last year. Everything in pots was sold except hyacinths and tulips. Hydrangeas in 6 and 8-inch pots sold well. In cut flowers, carnations and roses brought good prices.

Hamilton, Can. — Sales about 30% greater than last season; prices the same; plants in good supply, but in cut flowers good roses and carnations were short. In plants there was a good demand for lilies, but spirica did not sell well; good demand for all kind of cut flowers.—E.G.B.

Birmingham, Ala. — II. A. Lindsay states that sales were about the same as last year, with no increase in prices. Little or no inquiry for plants; but little bulbous stockcould be sold except Easter lilies, which were short. The general stock has been better than for several years.

Towa City, Ia.—The sales here, report James T. Aldous & Son, are about the same as last year, as were also the prices; plants plential, also cut flowers except carnations, of which tully one-third more could have been sold, while the demand for violets, lilies and other helbous stock was about equally divided.

OAKLAND, Mb --Sales greater than last year with an increase of 50%. Demand for cut flowers far in eyeess of supply. Greatest demand for roses, files and viclets; least for bulbous stock. Output of flowers greatly curtailed by cold weather, the thermometer on the 6th registering 8 above zero.- H. W. & Soss.

Lise ons, It is Messes W. A. Gullett & Sons state that sales show small increase, less than 7% over last year, prices about the same, cut flowers plentitul. Among plants, liles ran short and what there was of them were badly diseased. Harrisin liles, call as azaleas, jonquils, and hyaenths were most in demand. In cut flowers, roses and carnations sold best.

FALL FIVER, MV.—Amount of sales and prices were about the same as last year supply of plant—and out flowers both short across and lines sold well, while tulps and I vacinths in pots were slow; cut daffodils and tulips were not in demand, while pink roses, violets, lily of the valley and lilacs sold well.—C. W.

Tolepo, Ohio.—Total sales about 25', greater than last year, with prices about 20', lower; supply in all lines fully equal to the demand; in plants, lilies, cincrarias and hyacinths had the first call; among cut flowers pink carnations and violets led; cut hyacinths did not sell well; prices were badly cut, especially in plants.—E. S.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.—]. W. reports an increase of 15% over last year in total sales, with prices about the same; supply was equal to the demand, with carnations a little short and azaleas not selling well; among plants, lilies, and among cut flowers, hyaciuths, spiraea, carnations and roses were in greatest demand; trade very satisfactory.

Anderson, Ind.—Stuart & Haugh report 25% increase of trade. Fancy stock sold better. Plants in fair supply; cut flowers short. Lilies sold best, hyacinths next, spiræa moderately. Of cut flowers, carnations, roses and bulbous flowers were in demand in the order mentioned. The demand for buttonhole bouquets raged high; all classes were buyers.

Hartford, Conn.—D. A. S. reports Easter trade about one-third greater than last year, with prices about the same, except that carnations were higher; everything was in full supply except violets and carnations; azaleas and likes were most in demand with bulb stock slow; the call was for carnations, llarrisii and violets; results entirely satisfactory.

Kokomo, Ind.—Total sales show about 10% increase. Prices for retail stock about the same as last season, with an increase in wholesale prices. Flowering plants most in demand were cyclamens and primulas, also palms. Incut flowers roses, carnations and lilies were most salable. A hint for the future, grow better grades and get higher prices.—W. W. C.

St. Louis, Mo.—The St. Louis Cut Flower Co. reports sales as 15% greater, with prices about the same as last year. The supply of plants, except lilies, equal to demand. In cut flowers the supply of roses was short. Carnations plentiful. Too much bulbous stock. With plants everything blooming sold nicely. In cut flowers bulbous stock was unsalable, but roses, carnations and lilies sold well.

Padveau, Kv.—A decrease of about 10% with total sales less than last year. The supply of plants and cut flowers was about equal to the demand. An increase in the sale of flowering plants. In cut flowers hyacinths and libes were least called for, roses and carnations being most in demand. A better quality of stock was grown and better prices obtained.—C. L. B. & Co.

Cincinnyti, O --Total sales fairly correspond in volume of business done, but with the 25% decrease in money value, prices being rather lower and plants in the demand, except carnations. Excelent demand for roses, carnations and libes. Good demand was also noted for its deas as well as for ferns and small plans for pardimeres, -H. S.

Orrywy, ONT Prices about the same, (t) total sales about 25% greater than it was in blies in pots were short, other plants in full supply; roses, carnations, violets and good lilies were short; among plants, azaleas, lilies, spiraa, and lily of the valley were most popular; bulb stock, while not in such great demand, sold well; roses, carnations and violets were in the lead; the day was ideal and trade entirely satisfactory.—Graham Bros.

Portland, Ore.—An increase of 20% in sales, prices being better than those of last year. Supply of cut flowers was equal to the demand, but plants were short. There was little demand for bulbous plants except Harrisii lilies, preference running more for ferns and palms. Sales of cut roses lighter, carnations being the favorites. More general demand for good stock, with no opposition to paying better prices.

Providence, R. I.—Sales show an increase of about 50% over last year; prices ruling higher on carnations and lilies; supply of plants in most cases equal to the demand, and the same held good with regard to cut flowers, carnations excepted. Azaleas and lilies, among plants, were most in demand, and carnations in cut flowers took the lead. Both plant and cut flower stock was better than last year except in the case of Harrisii lilies.—W. E. C.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Prices and total sales about the same as last year; with the exception of carnations and good Beauties the supply of plants and cut flowers was equal to the demand; lilies and flowering shrubs sold readily; roses, carnations and violets sold best, although bulb stock, on account of low prices, went freely. Orders were smaller but more numerous than heretofore, and cash sales formed a much larger part of the transactions.—Willthall Floral Co.

BUTTE, MONT.—Sales 50% greater, though prices remained the same as last year; all plants in good supply except Harrisii lilies. The supply of cut flowers ran short; many shipments were received from Chicago and Denver Among plants there was most demand for Dutch hyacinths, cinerarias. Harrisii lilies and azaleas. In cut flowers lily of the valley, Roman hyacinths, Harrisii lilies, violets and carnations took the lead; demand for pot plants showed an increase of 100% over that of last season.—L. B. D.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Henry Smith writes: We note an increase in sales of about 25% with retail prices about the same. The supply of plants and cut flowers were about equal to the demand. The class of plants most salable were Harrisii, azaleas, hyacinths, cincrarias, roses and genistas. Those least in demand were tulips and bulbous stock. In cut flowers carnations, Harrisii, roses, violets and lily of the valley were most in demand. The sale of flowering plants was larger in proportion than that of cut flowers.

St. Johns, N. B.—Sales were slightly in excess of last year, with prices but little lower; supply of plants ample, and in some cases in excess of the demand; roses plentiful and first class; carnations very short; pots of bulb stock sold well; spirar slow; other plants in fair demand. Narciss, spirars and other miscellaneous flowers were in light demand; standard sorts sold well. Some of our enterprising citizens ordered a supply of Harrisii lilies direct from Bermuda, but unfortunately the steamer did not arrive until the 12th; now Harrisii lilies can be gotten very cheap.—H. S. (

The Florist and the Flower Show.

BY GEORGE C. WATSON.

[Read before the New York Florists' Club, April 11, 1898.]

It gives me much pleasure to appear before the members of the New York Florists' Club this evening and tell them what I think of the relations that should exist between the florist and the flower show. I believe I can interest you tor a few minutes on that subject without lugging in any of our Philadelphia wheezes about New York being such a sleepy Rip Yan Winkle old town. Our friend Lonsdale and some more of his kidney tell me they always like to come to New York when they want a good rest, you know, but I guess that is just their airy way of getting back at you fellows for some sweet things you have got off in days gone by about Philadelphia—the greatest city in the country—which I could easily prove to your satisfaction with facts and figures if necessary, only I know that you know it in your hearts.

One thing I will mention, however, and that is that Philadelphia has the finest home of horticulture of any city in this country if not in the world. Artistically the building is a dream of beauty, both externally and internally, and it represents an investment of over half a million dollars. That is something for a patriotic New Yorker to ponder over and is respectfully submitted to the fourth estate. It will be useful stuck up on the editorial desk when the temptation to be witty is strong. But that splendid monument to horticulture, completed but a few years since, took its birth away back many generations ago among the ardent commercial and amateur florists for which Philadelphia has always been noted. These men of old were keen exhibitors. At first they had no home to invite the public to, but had to hire a tent or hall; then they got a modest structure, then a more ambitious, and finally the present palatial edifice.

The question naturally arises, Does the florist of to-day reap any benefit from the exhibitions of his predecessor? I answer unhesitatingly, of course he does. Would the present generation be educated in horticulture to its present extent without the stepping stones laid for them by past generations? The commercial florist of to-day in Philadelphia and Boston and York and other cities is being benefited by the seeds that were sown long Not that his predecessors thought anything much about posterity. What they wanted and what he wants is the applause and the dollars of the living. The flower show was recognized then as a powerful factor in educating the people in this most beautiful art of gardening, and with education came business. It's the same to-day. Grow things well and get the people to come and see them. The business will grow in its turn, and thrive amazingly in this sunshine of publicity. Look at the chrysanthemum: How many were sold previous to the time you commenced to grow and show them well a dozen years ago, and now look at the myriads of them that are being distributed every year. Look at the carnation, the rose, the lily, the azalea and many other flowers. Exhibitions have done much for all of them and trade has been greatly stimulated and expanded.

All this seems to go without saying, but for all that, it is surprising to find many commercial florists of the present day who are lukewarm on the subject of exhibitions and who can only be induced to come forward and do their share when hired—that is either with hard cash in prize money or pieces of plate. It seems to me the feeling ought to be just the other way about; a commercial florist ought to be so eager to advertise himself by showing his products to an admiring public that he would willingly pay handmeet old customers and make new ones. It is advertising of the most effective kind. Business begets business, and to get business you must make a noise. There is no betterway of making yourself felt than through the public exhibition.

SPECIMEN AZALEA, CARL EUKE, EXHIBITED AT BOSTON BY ED. BUTLER, WELLESLEY, MASS.

somely for the space occupied and consider it a favor and a privilege to be allowed the opportunity. Another attitude of a great many commercial florists at the present time is, in my poor judgment, wrong. That is to say because the admissions do not pay all expenses including fat prize money, that the show is a failure. There is surely another criterion to judge a success by than the box office. A show may be very successful in every way and the public may crowd to see it and yet the expense of getting it up may be so great that the admissions do not cover it. But why should that be cause for despair and much talk about the show having been a failure and "flower shows don't pay anyway," and all that sort of thing

I think that attitude all bosh. I believe flower shows pay if not one cent is taken in at the box office. And the better they are the better they pay. They pay for the time being and for the future. There is no measuring when their effect stops. They are like a stone dropped in the water. The circles keep on widening and widening and the whole trade reaps the benefit. I believe every florists club ought to give frequent flower shows, three or four times a year at least. Don't say "I am too busy." It is a part of your business. It gives you a chance to Experience teaches this, history proves it and common sense clutches it.

If the commercial florists in a community find the presence of a horticultural society in their midst let them rejoice Instead of making a machine to educate their neighbors at great expense here is one ready to their hands and already doing the work. It does not take a house to fall on a man to make him see that and the potentiality of such an institution for the furtherance of the business interests of the florists' trade. A florists' club can organize a flower show, can run it successfully and achieve great and lasting good, but the individual members can do more with less effort by assisting their horticultural society. The horticultural society is closer to the general public who society is closer to the general public who do or may garden for pleasure, being in fact a part of it, and is therefore more powerful because no one can say "Oh, they have goods to sell." I want to dwell on that point. I think it important. Many will say, "A florists' club can run a flower show just as well, nay, better than a horticultural society." As to that, they may give a better display but that, than a horticultural society." As to that, they may give a better display but they will not have the same influence with the public. Take the American Carnation Society for instance. The devilish mali-ciousness of the individual who nicknamed it "The Rooted Cutting Society," is an example of what poison can be injected by a lie that is not all lie and therefore much more deadly than a downright notruth.

On the whole I think the florist can get the most good out of the flower show if he investigates it through the medium of an amateur organization, but I do not wish to minimize the power of a frank and candid trade show for advertising purposes. I hope for a great awakening to the possibilities of expanding the flower business in this country by the concentration of attention on the matter of extending the market, increasing the demand. The selling of our product is considerable of a science, as many of our bright growers have found to their sorrow. Many have made the mistake of thinking that anything when well done will sell itself. Don't you believe it. You must first have your public educated up to the point of knowing a good thing when it sees it.

And, gentlemen, in conclusion, that's the nigger in the woodpile. There onght to be a great deal more attention paid to preparing the ground of the public mind sowing the seed thereon, cultivating. weeding, training, watering it day in and day ont, keeping all the time at it and never letting up. If this thought could be thoroughly worked into the composition of the little army of 15,000 or 20,000 commercial florists in the United States, do you doubt for a moment the immense expansion of the business and the honor, glory and profit to all concerned. Idon't, for one, and that I take it is the interest the florist has in the flower show, and is the reason why I think all florists should support the same much more warmly than many of them now do. Exhibitions are good things. Ask for them. See that you get them. And in any event get rid of that insane idea that it is the number of dollars taken at the box office that makes a show successful.

Primula Vulgaris.

The genns to which the above belongs is rather prolific in species, from seventy to eighty being chronicled, a large number of them being very elegant and choice subjects for either the hardy herbaccous border or the rock-garden. They are also, as a rule very submissive to forcing, and therefore good subjects for the cool conservatory, the most popular being Primula Sinensis (Chinese primrose), conica, P. variabilis (or polyanthus), P. officinalis (cowslip), P. clatior (oxlip), l'. auricula, l'. cortusoides, l'. Japonica, and the one that heads this note, P. vulgaris, all of which are well adapted for pot culture, and will do equally well in cold frames, excepting the Chinese primrose, which must of course be treated as a greenhouse plant, P. obconica being 5 partial to greenhouse protection.

The chief distinctive feature that characterizes yulgaris from its immediate relatives othernalis and elatior, are that in the former the peduncle or primary flower stem common to the latter are suppressed To compensate for this short coming the pedicels or secondary flower stems are much longer than those of the bunchflower polyanthus, cuabling the flowers to appear well above the foliage of the Primula vulgaris seeds should be sown in early April in a cool greenhouse in order to get largeflowering plants by the middle of the following winter. Pricked off in hoves, or any other convenient receptacle in which they are to remain until well established, transferred to the open garden from the said receptacle in well-enriched soil, and in partial shade if procurable, they will make greater progress than if transferred to pots. ought to be lifted and potted in the latter part of October, if intended for conservaatory work, otherwise lifted and planted in cold frames for spring work. As they require but a few weeks to re-establish themselves in the pots, they are available for flowering any time thereafter, though the greater success is attained by deferring forcing until the near approach of spring, when their natural proclivities may be tickled by the florist with the assurance of success. They are gross feeders and require lots of water. K. F.

PRIMULA VULGARIS

Rose Notes.

Those of us who are expecting to plant a house or a number of houses specially for summer bloom will soon have to bestir ourselves; it is remarkable how swiftly the weeks pass, and the months too, and if we hope to cut good blooms with fairly long stems by July 1 it will not do to be setting out the plants around June 1; April 15 or close to that date is the proper time in my opinion to plant all summer houses. A house that is not as light, as well constructed or as well heated as is usually recommended for winter work will answer very well for summer roses, though the better the house the finer the product every time, other things being equal. To give good satisfaction all through the season, which includes the months from April to December, a house should have ample ventilation, ridge and side preferable, a tight roof and sufficient piping and boiler capacity to give enough heat all through those months, not of course anticipating any extremely cold weather.

I contend that fine blooms can hardly be expected if the plants are grown in the close, stifling air found in many rose houses during the hot months. Instead of a rose house being a "hothouse," it may be rendered actually cooler than outdoors by thorough ventilation. I know that many very good growers object to side ventilation for roses, and there are those who after having gone to the expense of putting it in, positively refuse to have the sash opened. Side ventilation causes a draft, and that means mildew, so to avoid the latter it is necessary to exclude the air at this point. All this does not agree with my experience with side ventilators. A carcless man will get drafts, and therefore mildew, without them more likely than a careful man would who should use them properly. If the roof is leaky, the cold fall rains will saturate the soil, and black spot will surely follow. It is not a very difficult job to make a leaky roof tight; white lead, whiting and linsecd oil mixed properly and applied with a putty bulb will serve the purpose well. If there are no heating pipes in the house the season would be so short that the undertaking could hardly be profitable, and when the plants are looking and blooming the best it is not nice to have them suddenly destroyed. If it were possible I should select a house having well-drained solid beds in preference to one with benches; they will require less water, the soil is not so apt to become superheated and the roots can get down to where it is always cool and moist; the result is stronger growth and heavier flowers, with a minimum of care and labor.

Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, as her name implies, is unquestionably queen among summer roses; when well grown (and it is easy to handle) there is no other variety, as seen from the florist's standpoint, that has so many points of excellence—fine foliage, splendid stiff, long stem, finelyformed and large-sized blooms, and with it all a delightful fragrance. Meteor has no rival as a bright red, and is almost always satisfactory. American Beauty is as much appreciated by the flower buying public, and is probably as profitable during the summer as in the winter months. Perle usually grows well, blooms profusely and opens its flowers perfectly in summer, and where there is any demand for yellow it is certainly the rose par excellence. The ideal pink rose for this purpose does not seem to have materialized as vet. La France is sometimes good, often no good and on the whole cannot be considered reliable. Testout is satisfactory in color, but has little substance and is not a very good keeper; but it is after all perhaps the best that we have. I believe that with solid beds and the very best attention, including a slight shading after May 15, the Bridesmaid will hold her own with the rest of her color, and probably surpass them.

There is not a fortune in summer roses for anyone; the demand is limited, and if every grower in the vicinity of our large cities should conclude to plant a few houses the result would be disastrous to all concerned. The man who has a retail trade or who furnishes flowers direct to the retailer, especially in the smaller towns, and from whom a small shipment is expected every day in the year, is the one above all others who should have a few roses, especially for the summer trade. The plants that have bloomed all through the winter and spring are almost invariably worn out by June 15, and the flowers cut from them after that date are small, mildewed, off-colored, measly things, a disgrace to the grower, a vexation to the dealer and a disappointment to the unrehaser.

It is a race these days trying to keep abreast with the work; we no sooner get round the young plants in pots, shifting, cleaning, etc., than we are compelled to start again. The old plants in the benches demand and should have as much attention as at any time during the season; the side growths seem to spring forth as by magic; the shoots will monopolize paths and every part of the house if not tied up frequently; red spider will flourish and spread his influence amazingly in the drier air and more congenial surroundings, and before we know it a house of roses may be practically ruined. It is not always the amount of syringing done or the pressure of water available that counts, but rather the manner in which it is done; one thorough syringing is better, so far as removing spider is concerned, than half a dozen indifferent ones. It is hard, hot and wet work, and a lazy man is very liable to slip it.

In fighting mildew remember the adage, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure": try to keep the foliage large, hard and shining by liberal treatment and plenty of air, then mildew will not make much trouble; exclude the air to avoid mildew and soft foliage is the result, and mildew after all. Keep up the liquid manure regularly once a week if possible, changing the ingredients each time. If a mulch has not yet been given, it should be put on at once. ROBT. SIMPSON.

Bulb Growing in the State of Washington.

The states of Washington and Oregon must not be overlooked by those interested in the production of American grown bulbs. The cool, even temperature of this regioncombines with suitable soil to provide conditions apparently very favorable for the growth of flowering bulbs. This seems to be not only true of gladioli which have been quite extensively tried, but from very reliable information, which the Florist has recently received, it would appear that San Juan county, Washington, furnishes ideal soil and climate for nearly all of those kinds commonly known as Dutch bulbs.

The picture accompanying this illustrates the culture of crocus and at the same times portrays the natural formation of the land as well as its original timber growth. There is undoubtedly an opportunity in this part of the west for experts in bulb growing to establish a permanent business.

Carnations.

Planting out time is here, and as this method of culture seems to give the best results, it is an important factor in carnation culture. Give them the best piece of ground you have on the place, for right here is where you can overcome the defects of poor stock much better than anywhere else during the life of the plant. As to manuring, that is a matter for every one to judge for themselves. Some soils will produce plants plenty large enough with very little manure added to them; others will require a quantity of it. object of open air culture is to get a plant of good size, and yet not too large, to handle easily in the fall. This thing of a small plant giving the best results is a mistakenidea; if you have plenty of wood produced by outdoor growth you will have plenty of flowers, and with proper indoor culture they will be just as fine, if not finer, than those from small plants that produce only a few flowers during the winter, and the bulk of them along at this time of the year.

Some growers use phosphates or bone to advantage, but for a beginner who is not familiar with his soil and the use of prepared fertilizers he had better fight shy of them. There is nothing quite so good as well rotted stable manure for outdoor culture, and especially where you can rotate your crops. It is not advisable to use the same plot of ground year after year for your carnations if you have enough of a place to rotate with something else. If, however, you are compelled to use the same plot year after year you will have to use some discretion in manuring it, so that the soil does not become too rich, as a superabundance of vegetable matter in the soil is quite as detrimental to good results as a lack of it. A very good plan to follow where you use the same plot is to manure heavily one year, use a little lime the following year, and then manure again, or occasionally drop both manure and lime for a year and use a good phosphate or bone.

Where you have plenty of ground the following is a good plan to adopt: Manure pretty heavily one year for the carnations, the following year use either lime or bone, whichever the soil needs most, and plant carnations again, then after they are planted in the houses sow the field to wheat, plow this down in the spring after it has made a good growth and sow the ground to either red clover or some quick-growing grass and plow this down either in the fall or the following spring, and your plot is ready for carnations again, with a light coat of stable manure. The following year fertilize with lime, and then wheat and grass again.

To properly prepare the soil it should be plowed at least ten inches deep, providing the subsoil will allow that depth; otherwise plow as deep as the subsoil, for it is not policy to turn it up for earnations; leave that for some other the weather, excepting of course when the soil is too wet.

No matter if the plants are in flats or in pots, water them heavily before taking them up and then again after they are taken up, the idea being to have the plant well soaked with water when it reaches the field, so that it will start without wilting. Do not take them to the field in the boxes or pots; have them all ready for dropping before they leave the honses and then let one man drop for two planters, so that the roots do not lay exposed to the sun and air any length of time before planting.

time before planting.

Planting should not be looked upon as a matter of how many plants one man can plant in a day, neither should it be a matter of a week to plant up five or six thousand plants. Where there are four men on the place a good plan is to prepare, say ten rows, then let one man drop and two follow planting, and the fourth follow and earefully tramp the soil around the plant; this last man can be dispensed with if the soil is wet or there is prospect of rain within a day or two. They should be planted if from pots just a little lower than the level of the pot, and if from flats just a little deeper than they had stronger-growing crop. Harrow it well and as deep as possible, and then throw up rows as far apart as the amount of room you have will allow; if you have plenty of room, two feet is a nice distance to have them apart. If you are crowded, fifteen inches is as close as they should be. The first distance will allow of working them with a horse and shovel harrow, and the latter with a hand harrow. The rows should be thrown up at least four inches above the level, so that when they are raked off for planting they will be about two inches above the level, which makes a good height, as in a wet season it will throw off the surplus water between the rows and in a dry one they are not perched up so high that they will suffer much from the drouth.

A CROCUS CROP AT ORCAS, SAN JUAN CO., WASHINGTON, MARCH 4, 1898.

Planting out will of course depend on the weather. April 15 to May 1 is a good time in this latitude. Where there is not over five to ten thousand it is best to wait until there is promise of a rain and then try and have them all out by the time the rain comes. Where the quantity to be planted will not allow of this it is better to plant right ahead regardless of been in the flat, unless they are leaved down to the soil, in which case they should not be planted any deeper than they were in the pots or flats. If the soil is dry take the trowel and elip the dry soil off the row, as no dry soil should be placed near the roots of the transplanted plant. If it is very dry, take a hoe and elip out a hole where you want to plant and fill this with water, having the planter follow so closely that the plants are in before the water is all soaked out of the hole. This latter is a bit expensive, but will pay.

Some of these things mentioned may seem minor matters, but they are all important factors in the life of the plant and in the profit you derive from them.

ALBERT M. HERR.

FREDERIC W. TAYLOR, the well known horticulturist and present superintendent of agriculture and horticulture at the Trans-Mississippi and International Exposition at Omaha, was married at Chicago, Tuesday, April 12, to Miss Marion Treat, of the musical department of the Nebraska State University at Lincoln Neb.

Exacum Affine.

This lovely gentianwort is one of a genus of twenty species, and a native of Socotra; though not so gorgeous as its near relative Exacum macranthum, which requires a stove temperature and has much larger indigo-blue flowers, vet the all-round charms and characteristics of the former will, in my opinion, outbalance the georgeousness of the other. One of the good points about E. affine is its natural compact habit, delicious fragrance, profuse flowering disposition, continuing in its floral garb for quite a length of time.

The color of the flowers varies according to treatment; if kept in bright sunny quarters they assume a bluish lilac color. in the shade, blue to deep blue. It is considered by some authorities an annual, but more properly it is a biennial, though I have kept it in the pink of health for nearly three years.

Seeds sown in August will produce plants, properly handled, suitable for seven-inch pots the next succeeding August. Seeds sown in March in a warm greenhouse, or greenhouse temperature, will produce plants suitable for five inch pots. The soil I find best adapted for its culture is good fibrous loam and leaf mound, the latter predominating with clean sharp sand in addition thereto in quantity.

The seeds are so small, so few and so far between in a seedsman's package of this plant, that the aid of a Lick observatory telescope is necessary to locate them, hence the extreme care that is required to deposit them on their seed bed, which ought to be smooth, and the materials thereof finely sifted. It will propagate, however, as readily as the proverbial weed. Greenhouse temperature is the most suitable for the subject of this note, which, of course, means any way from 55 to 60. Fah.

The plant must be kept in a cool, but not draughty greenhouse or frame in the summer time, and shaded from the tierce sunlight; it requires lots of water at all times, except in dull cloudy weather, or in a less congenial temperature than 55 degrees.

New York.

BLOOMING PLANTS WERE THE LAVORITES FOR TASTER TRADE.—VIOLIA'S TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER ROSES IN POPULAR ESTELM —GEORGE C. WATSON AT THE LORISTS' CLUB. MR. BUTTERBACH DIS PLAYS HIS PRIZE OF P.—PERSONAL.

The disagreeable weather that for a week or more had kept in suspense all those interested in the buying, selling or wearing of Easter flowers or Easter connects, vanished in due season and was followed by three rare spring days. No more beautiful day than Friday or Satin day could have been desired and Sunday practically followed suit, for the predicted rain storm did not arrive until 6 p. m.

The plant trade may be sately recorded sup to expectations. It had things its an way and another long step was taken in the evolution that has been 2 sing on for years, and promises to soon climitate the cut flower as a factor in Laster results. The retail dealers were evidently very well-content that it should be so and most of them devoted their energies mainly to this branch of their business, relegating the cut flower department to an obscurity in which their customers so medequally willing it should

EXACUM AFFINE.

Greeks, quick to note any tendencies offering an opening for their enterprise, took a hand in it and lines and groups of lilies, azaleas, hydrangeas and daisies marked the location of their stands. And the quality of these street venders' plants could not be called inferior; much of the stock was of fair size and showed evidence of judicious selection and it was accessible to the street buyers at figures considerably lower than quoted in the better class of stores, each customer, however, having to shoulder his own purchase and get it home as best he could, without the luxury of a plate glass wagon and liveried attendants to do it for him. A number of the cut flower wholesalers possibly feeling their way to a more active future participation in this particular department made a modest attempt to handle a few plants and one went so far as to secure a large vacant store, fill it with plants and give his attention to it in prefcrence to his cut flower business, with gratifying results. These movements on the part of the wholesalers did not meet the approval of their retail friends but as the retailers were doing little or nothing towards consuming the heavy stock of cut flowers on the wholesalers hands the obligation on the latter to refrain from a chance to make an Easter dollar could not be regarded as very strong.

Lilies and azaleas were the plants most in evidence. Lilies went rapidly and Saturday morning found the stock well depleted, short, stocky longiflorums, one two or three in a pot, having the prefer-Azaleas weie sold in enormous quantities but the supply seemed almost inexhaustible and there were some left at the end in all establishments most of these being, however, inferior goods. Rhododendrons were not offered in as Lage numbers as last year, neither were genistics. There was a fine supply of cucas, both pink and white and they sold well. Boroma heterophylla although seen in perfection did not seem to exerte any special enthusiasm, daisies, astilbe in two species, and accaems had a fair demand and blacs, hydrangens and bulb remain for the time being. Liven the our stock whether in pots or flats sold poorly. A prime favorite was Crimson Rambler rose; in fact, all good roses in pots were snapped up greedily. On violets and English primroses and even fily of the valley, in fancy hampers and flat trays there was a tremendous rush. One retailer remarked that if he had to go through with it again he would prepare several hundred more of these attractive arrangements, with a certainty of a ready sale. These baskets were made of willow in various natural or soft green tints sometimes decorated with straw braid trimming and in alleases were provided with tin receptucles for the plants. One difficulty with the popular violet arrangements is the necessity that they be filled only when wanted and with positively fresh plants as violets kept in the store twenty-four hours acquire a very tired fragrance. In one leading establishment willow hampers in various sizes were made a specialty. The larger ones were filled with cricas, azaleas, cinerarias or other bright flowering plants erowded closely down so as to show a mass of color under the half opened lid which was decorated with ribbon of appropriate tint. Simplicity of arrangement prevailed and very few promisenously mixed groups were seen. of ribbons, generally, as a finish to plant arrangements seemed to be popular but erepe paper was not used as much as heretofore, the better class of stores showing a disposition to discontinue it. As to novelties there were not many, a few cape jasautines and some cricas in beautiful, but as yet unfamiliar varieties being the only things noted.

The cut flower trade, from the standpoint of the wholesaler and the grower, sunnot be recorded as a brilliant success, The disposition of the retailers to avoid stocking up and to leave to the wholesalers the burden of earrying the goods until they should be needed was more pronounced than ever before. The only flower on which any scare developed was the carnation, and strange to relate, it was the Greek who got the bad end of the bargam Such carnations as came in previous to Saturday were held at very high prices. The stores refused to be stampeded, but the Greeks were nicely caught and Sunday morning saw the carnations still on their hands, the public having dropped the carnation with a "dull thud." The receipts of roses were enormous in the aggregate. Many of those that came in on Thursday and Friday showed unmistakable traces of familiarity with the storage cellars. Saturday's receipts would probably equal in quantity the entire receipts of the balance of the week. Express wagons were unloading on Twenth-eighth street until late into Saturday evening and the contents of these late arrivals showed that the bushes had been depleted to the last available bud. Sunday morning saw more shipments on top of the accumulated stock and when the tired wholesalers finally closed their doors on Sunday evening, notwithstanding the quantities they had been able to unload, the ice boxes were still well filled. The experience on big roses was especially discouraging. American Beauty in all grades was moved with difficulty owing partly to the heavy receipts of Jacqs of good quality which were sold freely at moderate figures. Surplus mixed teas had to be knocked down at very low prices in quantity to close out, and it being Sunday, the street Greeks, who must be depended upon always at the tail end of the game, did dot dare to make any move.

Violets, while not provided in as large quantities as promised, came in freely and sold freely, the public fancy and the public recognition of the moderate prices quoted serving to make this item in the business pleasant and satisfactory in every way, and the quality averaged excellent for the season. Bulbous stock was a bugbear. Tulips were unsalable and many of the Easter receipts are still sojourning in the wholesalers' cellars. Lily of the valley rallied on Saturday evening, but as an effort had been made to keep the surplus down by low offers, the depleted stock left little chance to realize on the advance. Daffodils made a fairly good showing considering the spring's previous record. Smilax was said to be scarce; so it was or seemed to be up to Friday. Nobody would accuse it of being scarce since then. It came in crates and barrels and baskets in hopeless mountains and asparagus and adiantums performed a similar caper. Much of it is still looking for a customer. As to lilies the story is that there was a large percentage of Harrisii blooms of exceedingly inferior quality and these could not be expected to realize much, but good tough petaled longiflorums sold well, although not at outside prices as quoted in advance, and with the exception of the late Saturday and Sunday shipments which were not in time to enjoy any part of the special demand.

The April meeting of the New York Florists' Club was not as fully attended as its predecessors of the present year, but the number present was all that could be expected after the Easter ordeal and it is safe to say, much larger than it would have been were it not for the announcement that the ever sprightly George C. Watson from Philadelphia was to appear on the platform. Mr. Watson's address will be found in another column but his will be found in another column but his personality is not transferable to cold type, therefore those who missed the pleasure of listening to him are decidedly the losers. A letter from the New York Gardeners' Society asking if the club would participate in a fall show was referred to the exhibition committee and incidentally furnished food for argument on the subject of Mr. Watson's paper, viz., flower exhibitions. How to get the public to support or even to attend flower shows, how to advertise these affairs economically yet effectively, how to subsidize the local newspaper talent, how to get exhibitors to participate without the incentive of large money premiums and many other essentials of success were discussed from the standpoint of the various interests represented in the meeting. The lack of a suitable hall of moderate size, the indifference of the great public of a city so wholly cosmopolitan as New York is and the unproductiveness of the cut flower growers' industry in this vicinity for the past three years were among the many causes advanced for the unfavorable showing in the exhibition line made by the great metropolis. Mr. Watson added to the impressiveness of the occasion by a pertinent allusion to New York's slowness as compared with Philadelphia in the matter of street cars as per his experience in coming from the R. R. station to the meeting in an oldfashioned slow horse car. The exhibits on the center table were few. A handsome begonia of the Rex type from W. A. Manda and a seedling violet, pale colored from Charles Carroll were specially noted.

At a meeting of the New York Gardeners' Society on Saturday evening, Mr. N. Butterbach appeared with the silver cup presented by the Monmouth Co. (N. J.) Horticultural Society at the Waldorf-Astoria exhibition last fall and which was won by Charles Knight for the best arranged group of decorative plants

The cup is a very artistic production.

Geo. T. N. Cottam has been appointed by Mayor Van Wyck a member of the committee to solicit contributions toward building a national monument to the victims of the Maine outrage, to represent the nurserymen

Mrs. Jacob Bebns died on Friday, April 8.

J. L. Schiller is scheduled to be married on June 1.

Chrysanthemum Notes.

Chrysanthemums to be grown for specimen plants are now ready for a shift into 6-inch pots. We begin with this potting to use a richer soil. In addition to the ordinary compost used for potting a variety of plants, we add a dusting of wood ashes and a little pulverized sheep manure; we are careful not to use a large proportion; we know what it is to make mistakes. Free drainage is essential. Charcoal is recommended to be used in the drainage of such varieties as are liable to burn. This probably might be deferred until the final shift, though charcoal is good at all times, especially when we have a heavy soil to handle. Chrysanthemums root freely in coal ashes, as we may notice when they are set on a bench of this material. Ashes used as drainage do quite as well as broken crocks. We pot firmly when the soil is light, and loosely when it is heavy.

In spite of all our resolutions to the contrary, we find ourselves, as usual, encumbered with a host of varieties we know only by report. This season the total exceeds the hundred mark. When in 6-inch pots the plants are carefully observed, their manner of growth noted, also tendency to break, and liability to disease. The good as well as the bad points are almost certain to appear during the month or five weeks leading up to the final shift. Only such as promise well are shifted into the larger size, probably not more than 60%, and some of these will go, later. Varieties with a good reputation, but whose behavior has not come up to the standard, will be planted in the open, in a nicely prepared piece of soil, and if there is anything good in them, they will have a fair chance to show it. Then again some of the very best have a habit of running to bloom prematurely. I used to throw them out without further trial, but since I have found when I must persevere, that a goodly majority of such will after this blooming period is past, grow into good specimens. I learned this by planting out the surplus plants.

Stopping, or pinching in, commenced when the plants are in the smaller sized pots, must be continued in this; in fact, the pinching should not be discontinued until well into July. The plants must be looked at every day or two. A plant looked at, every day or ...... well balanced now will keep so. T. D. H.

Philadelphia.

EASTER TRADE LITTLE BETTER THAN LAST SEASON.—DEPARTMENT STORES HANDLE LARGE QUANTITY OF STOCK. -ENOUGH AND TO SPARE OF LILIES.—CUT FLOWERS NOT IN AS BRISK DEMAND AS LAST YEAR. -PERSONAL.

Take it as a whole Easter probably was little better than last season. A short trip around the stores showed that a little more Easter would have been beneficial. A few Ramblers, some hydrangeas and quite a lot of lilies as well as azaleas gave the establishments a bright and cheerful look that was not reflected in the faces of the proprietors. To be able to order just enough to supply the demand seems to be almost impossible. That any Ramblers should be left over seemed strange, as this rose was the novelty of the season; the price, however, was held pretty high, the larger sizes having to be sold for from $6 to $8. All the medium sizes went quickly at from $3 to $4, retail Lilies sold in all the principal retail stores at 25 cents per flower and bud. The department stores stocked up quite heavily and advertised lilies at 15 cents per flower. They also had hydrangeas, azaleas and other Easter stock, but their places being kept so warm and rather poorly lighted was hard on the stock and much of it went to waste. It seems as if they do not care to realize any profits from plants, simply handling them to draw crowds. This is rather hard on the regular retail trade, as such low rates extensively advertised are bound to affect the legitimate channels. Perhaps it is just as well that the little Bermuda mite got his work in so well the past season; there was found eventually to be lilies enough and to spare. According to the best reports about half of the bulbs started were thrown out. If everything had grown and arrived at maturity for Easter the department stores would likely have been offering lilies at about 5 cents each.

Roses and other cut flowers did not seem to be in quite as good demand as previous seasons, although large quantities were sold. There were plenty of fine Brunners, Beauties and good Bridesmaids; Brides were a trifle scarce. Carnations were held quite high, from $3 to $8 for a very few select l'ingree, etc.; $4 was the price for the best average flowers. Lily of the valley, tulips and daffodils were plentiful at $3 to $4. The weather on Friday and Saturday was all right; since then it has grown much warmer. April 5 it was freezing all day, to-day, 13th, the thermometer stood at 70. Great weather this.

Messrs, Robert Craig, S. S. Pennock, David Rust, and Robert Kift, accompanied Mr. Benjamin Durfee of Washington to Joseph Heacock's place at Chelter Hills to see the new carnation Diana. variety originated with Mr. Heacock and was purchased by Mr. Durfee. It is a fine large white, as large as any of the new ones, with a splendid constitution and perfectly healthy. The flowers, pure are borne on long stiff stems; it looks like a good keeper and in every way a desirable variety to grow for Everything about Mr. Heacock's to grow for profit. appeared to be in the best of health and producing large crops of flowers; his palm houses looked particularly fine, the plants having a very vigorous appearance.

Wm. Penman is around with us again; his Nicholson's dictionary is just the thing for every man who desires to keep posted and find out in a minute the name of any plant that he is doubtful about. Mr. King, who represents him, has taken sixty orders in the past few weeks, and we venture to assert that no man will ever regret having purchased this valuable work.

Carl Jurgens, of Newport, paid this eity a flying visit last Tuesday. K.

Diseases of Variegated Plants.

Every grower of plants is fully impressed with the importance of sunlight as a factor in his craft. He has learned that the solar rays produce the green substance in plants, and after it is produced the sunlight is needed to maintain that color. Therefore two essentials at least for successful plant growth are: first, sufficient light and second an abundance of green substance. That the sunlight may be too strong at times goes without saying and shading needs to be resorted to, but as a rule there is none too much of the green in plants for their best good.

The seeming exception to this rule seen in the various variegated plants is no exception, for it is easily maintained that these are weaker than plants of the same species similarly situated that are not variegated. This green substance is lodged in the pulp cells of the leaf and it is in this green protoplasm that the crude substances are made over into the food of the plant. That is, the water from the roots and the carbonic dioxide of the air meet here, and under the influence of the solar energy are combined into substances like starch for the upbuilding of the plant. If a plant has no green substance it is unable to do this work, and must either feed upon the substances made by some other plant, and thereby become a parasite or die. Now, it is maintained that the ordinary variegated plants like the Dutilon, a specimen leaf of which is shown in the accompanying engraving, is lacking in this green and in so far as it is lacking the plant is enfecbled.

There is no question raised as to the beauty of these variegated plants, and with special care they may maintain on health for a long time, but at the same time such plants are more sunsect to successful attack of various enemies. Thus the tolage of the variegated abutions to quently blighted, sometimes so anch so that the added beauty of the plant due to variegation, is more than offset by the diseases that come in to destroy the foliage.

In the case in hand, the reader, may be take to see that the leaf is quite generally covered with senall oval or circular spots, each with an achy center, and a brown border. The presence of these dead spots is somewhat obscured by the coloration of the leaf, and if they were upon an ordinary green leaf the grower might be concerned as to the health of his plant.

The writer has studied over thirty genera of ornamental plants, having one or more species of variegated plants in each, and the conclusion stated above seems to rest upon solid ground; namely, that variegation is a source of weakness, and the reason for the same is not far to seek. The green substance is the material in which food is made and there is little reason to think that an ordinary plant as a rule has, when at its greenest condition, any excess of this working material.

DISEASED ABUTILON LEAF

This being the fact it is well for plant growers to be governed accordingly and realize that variegated plants have their added attraction of non-green foliage at the expense of their vigor. For this reason they will need special care and it is not to be overlooked that they are as they are by a process of forcing due to man, and if left to themselves, if they survive at all, will drift back to the green condition common to plants growing in a state of nature.

The last point in this connection that will be mentioned is a return to the susceptibility of variegated plants to discases. There seems to be no doubt of this and therefore such plants require more attention in the way of spraying than the common green forms of the same species. Variegated plants are in fact propagating places for diseases that when once thus well under way may spread to the standard sorts of plants without variegation.

The writer has seen the leaf spot start in a lot of Funkia undulata, variegata and spread to all other sorts of the day hly round about. In the same way the variegated sorts of pelargonium, are the starting points in greenhouses for a general blight upon its associates. Aspidistra, croton, begonia and hens are noted examples. Some propagators will not have a variegated hens in their houses, because of its breeding contagion.

Byros D. Halsted

Cylci (1861, Mo. - Perry Finn is putting in an unproved system of water supply.

WILLIAM, W. V. W. F. Zane, South Fenn street, is repairing the damage done to his greenhouses by the flood. He sustained a considerable loss, but hopes to have everything restored to proper condition for the spring trade.

Boston.

RETAILERS SATISFIED WITH EASTER RESULTS.—INCREASED PLANT SALES.—SHORTAGE IN AZALEAS.—INCUT FLOWERS VIOLETS LEADING.—CARNATIONS SUFFERING FROM PROHIBITIVE PRICES.—ROSES AND BULBOUS STOCK PROFITING THEREBY.—BREAK IN PRICES AT WIND-UP TOO LATE TO UNLOAD SURPLUS.—GOOD SALE FOR JACQS.—DEATH OF A. T. CEFREY.—VISITORS

Retail florists here have every reason to feel pleased with the Easter experience. There is a wide variation in the reports from individuals as to the special tend-ency of the demand, but all agree that it was a great Easter, and that the amount of plant sales was unprecedented. The weather cleared up nicely on Thursday morning, a trifle cold at first but otherwise the ideal weather for transporting flowering plants, and the two speceeding days were simply perfect. Azaleas sold out clean, and more could have been placed easily. Hydrangeas sold fairly well, recovering from the set-back of last year. Genistas were in light demand, but indispensible for brilliant effect in the show windows. Lilies were sold in enormous quantities. Those offered in this market were, as a rule, longiflorums, not tall, and with fine solid flowers. They were lower in price than ever before owing to the sharp competition of the department stores and others. The plant trade assumed unforescen proportions on Saturday, and as many of the florists had two stores to look after it kept them more than busy. The rush fell off suddenly Saturday afternoon and the goods then on hand remained there.

On cut flowers the rush did not get under way till late Saturday, and even then did not compare favorably with past years. Violets had a big sale, and were cleaned out completely. Cut lilies sold fairly well, but it was noticed that for church decorations where a large number of blooms were required there was a disposition to substitute callas for longiflorums on account of the heavy fragrance of the latter, which many susceptible people complain of. In some establishments the demand for roses tayored the high grade flowers; in others the medium grades sold freely and the better quality flowers were left. Double tulips sold well. Carnations were held at such high figures by growers that but few were bought by the retailers, it being evident that their customers would not stand the price.

The wholesalers had considerable stock left at the close. The carnation growers had gone daft on the possibilities in earnation prices and refused to entertain good round offers on Thursday or Friday, with the result that on Saturday earnations were dead stock, and the goods that might have sold quickly on Thursday at $5 per hundred was hunting for buyers at $3. All the wholesalers found business, shipping and local, satisfactory on Thursday and Friday, but were forced to refuse enruations to their enstomers and to depend upon tired roses for much of their business, which was unfortunate. Lilies sold fine until Saturday, when a big brenk in prices took place and those who had backbone and refused to participate in the cut got hadly left and have the goods still on hand. The peculiar condition of the carnation market helped, the bulbous stock wonderfully, all this class of goods selling une spectedly well, and the roses also profited by the situation, so that many hundred dollars that might have lined the pockets of carnation growers found its way to the strong box of the rose men, who, with no previous rosy prospects, were glad to take it. All colored roses sold well, Jacqs especially, but at the close on Saturday there were still enough on hand to supply a good many more customers had they appeared. Late Saturday there was a break all along the line, lilies, carnations and roses suffering most and violets being the exception, but it was then too late to unload. Violets made a grand finish, and lily of the valley surprised even its friends, but without any advance on prices. There was not a candidum lily in sight at any time.

A. T. Cefrey, an old-time Boston florist, noted a quarter of a century ago for his skill in the construction of the intricate and elaborate floral productions of the period, but who, in the later time of loosely-built work, gradually drifted into semi-obscurity as a florist, died of consumption at his home in Malden on April 6. For a number of years he has been engaged in the manufacture of florists' immortelle letters and inscriptions, a business for which his deft abilities in fine detail work fitted him, but a lack of broad business capacity prevented his making more than a weak competition against his rivals in this overdone specialty. Mr. Cefrey was a native of France. He leaves a wife, three daughters and a one son.

ms rivais in this overdone specialty. Mr. Cefrey was a native of France. He leaves a wife, three daughters and a one son. Visitors in Boston: R. W. Clucas, of Clucas & Boddington, New York; J. D. Thompson, Joliet, Ill.; Mr. Hartshorne, gardener to Mr. Higinbotham, Chicago, and a couple of score of Belgium and Holland artists in the bulb and azalea-line.

Asparagus Sprengerii.

An inquiry comes from Belgium as to the methods pursued in America in the culture of this comparatively new asparagus. It has not been in cultivation long enough to much more than indicate how it may most profitably be grown. It is yearly growing in favor, making friends among growers, retailers and the buyers of flowers and the accessories thereof.

It shows some inclination to climb, it is true, but up to the present time to encourage it to grow upward is not considered the best way to show the sprays off to the greatest advantage after being The plant is better grown in a suspended position and the sprays allowed to droop gracefully; in that way it comes shorter jointed and makes a more desirable spray of green than if grown in any other way that I know of. It could be grown to advantage, I think, on a narrow shelf of a back wall of a rose house or similar structure where a night tempera-ture is maintained at about 60°. It delights in the full sunlight, which means that it should be placed as close to the glass as practicable, and a shady position must be avoided if we would hope to succeed to the utmost with it.

Mr. Robert Craig has grown some fine specimen plants of this asparagus and has sold the product to advantage and profit. Mr. H. H. Battles was the first, we believe, to use it in quantity in Philadelphia, and the event was at a dinner given in honor of President McKinley by the Union League on one of the President's visits to this city recently. It was gracefully made use of in the dinner-table decoration, and cattleyas were the flowers employed on that occasion, creating a rich, dainty and beautiful effect.

Each observant and careful cultivator will find out for himself the technical requirements of this plant, if it needs any, and as above indicated it at present apparently will require to be grown in a different way to develop it to the fullest extent of its beauty and usefulness to that which is adapted to most other plauts. Any rich, porous soil with ample drainage seems to suit it.

The green sprays of this asparagus are likely to become in the near future an article of commerce in the marts where flowers most frequently change hands, so that it would be well to prepare for the demand.

Steam and Hot Water Heating.

PART II.

The hot water expansion tank should not be open to the atmosphere of the greenhouse. In hot water heating plants of any system, it is necessary to have what is known as an expansion tank or expansion pipe, This is a part of the pipe system, usually located at the highest point, with sufficient space in it above the cold water level to hold the additional bulk of the water after it has become heated, which is due to expansion. It makes no practical difference what the shape or style of these expansion tanks may be, so far as regards their special objects of providing space for the increased bulk of water on low pressure open systems. However, in many cast iron pipe systems for greenhouse heating, the expansion tank is used as a header for the ends of heating coils, as shown in the accompanying illustrations, figs. 1 and In perhaps two respects this is a good plan, as it provides a solid support for the end of a coil, and makes it easy to connect the lines of pipe in the coil to-gether, besides being the very best plan of delivering the hot water equally to the different pipes in the coil at the extreme end of the line from the boiler, where the tank is usually located. Many of these expansion tanks are provided with portable covers so that water can be poured into the tank direct from a pail when necessary to replenish or fill the pipes. Others are provided with automatic ball cocks and connected direct to the supply of cold water, which keep the pipe filled automatically. But all the various makes for cast iron piping are left open to the atmosphere of the greenhouse. This last point is a bad one and should be remedied.

FIGS I AND II.

For this class of greenhouse heating, the system must be open to the atmosphere for the reason that the pipes and many patterns of boilers would not stand heavy pressure, which would be quite apt to form in a closed system. But it is a bad practice to have these hot water heating systems open to the atmosphere of the greenhouse, as previously stated, and the special reason for this is, on account of the large amount of hydrogen gas which is constantly escaping from the open expansion tank. It must be remembered that the so-called air which escapes from the hot water heating pipes, and radiators of heating plants, is nearly pure hydrogen gas. This is very destructive to animal life, and is also extremely destructive to vegetable life. Let the system be open to the exterior atmosphere. It is a simple matter to attach a small piece of pipe to a closely fitted top of any expansion tank, and carry same out through the top or side of the greenhouse.

The capacity of the expansion tank is determined by the number of gallous of water contained in the entire heating apparatus, and as water expands about one-twenty-fourth its bulk, in a rise of temperature from 40° to 212°, one-twenty-fourth the water capacity must be provided in the expansion tank. This will allow the water to rise and fall in the tank as it heats and cools without a loss from overflowing; but there is a loss going on at all times, especially when the apparatus is being run at high temperature, partly from evaporation, but principally by the generating and escaping of hydrogen gas. This gas is so very light that when separated from the oxygen of the water by heat it rises quickly to the highest point in the system and escapes.

James J. Lawler.

Chicago.

BEST EASTER BUSINESS IN THE WHOLE HISTORY OF THE LOCAL TRADE MAKES EVERY FLORIST HAPPY.—PRICES WERE GOOD.—STOCK WELL CLEARED OUT.

The wholesale cut flower trade last week was over thirty per cent greater than that of any Easter week in its history. There was a much larger supply received than was anticipated, particularly of carnations and roses. The supply of lilies was fully up to that of any previous year, and stocks were all disposed of at prices ranging from $10.00 to $18.00 per hundred. This is a higher average price than lilies have brought for several years. Tulips were in good supply and sold at from: $2.00 to $5.00 per hundred, Couronne d'Or and Murillo bringing the top price.

bringing the top price.

Lilies of the valley brought from $2.00 to $4.00 per hundred. Roses were in great demand, both for shipping and city trade. American Beauty sold at from $1.00 to $6.00 per dozen. The principal demand for Beauty was for $2.00 to $3.00 grades. There was an unprecedented demand for carnations to fill out-of-town orders and prices were consequently relatively high, ranging from $3.00 to $8.00 for fancies. The prospect of rain on Saturday depressed prices in the early morning, but the market quickly recovered and was otherwise firm all the week. Wholesalers claim to have filled orders better than ever before and few complaints are heard.

Growers were sold out of blooming plants early in the week. Lilies were most in demand. Hybrid roses sold well, with but small supply. A few good hydrangeas were in the market and sold well at good prices.

Ed. Winterson started to sell some of his surplus stock at auction a few nights ; and made a success, until he laughingly offered an Easter hat with every purchase. That gave him the worst of the deal. Kennicott Brothers report that they could not get stock last week to they could not get stock last week to supply more than their regular trade. Bassett & Washburn, W. E. Lynch, George Piepgras, A. L. Randall, A. G. Prince & Co., Reinberg Bros., E. H. Hunt, E. C. Amling, Poehlman Bros., The Rogers Park Floral Company, and J. B. Deannud, all report trade to have been all that they could desire. Retailers been all that they could desire. Retailers report trade equal to last year, but complain that the price of carnations prohibited any profit on this favorite flower. l'otted plants sold more readily than ever before.

John Cook has rented the Saxon Place at Downer's Grove.

The many friends of F. F. Smith, formerly of Aurora and afterward proprictor of the Sixty-seventh street greenhouses, sympathize with him in the death of Mrs. Smith, who was buried at Oakwoods, on April 5. Mr. Smith now resides in Denver.

Otto Mailander, who left the city some two years ago under a cloud, is reported to be in Johannesburg, South Africa.

The executive committee meeting of the Horticultural Society failed of a quorum owing, doubtless, to the Easter rush, and adjourned subject to the call of the president.

John Pochlman, of Pochlman Bros., is ill with typhod fever.

Since Easter trade has been very dull, and an immense stock of flowers has accumulated, buyers are making their own prices.

Jas Hartshorne is going to build ten greenhouses, 20x200 feet near Joliet. He intends to grow carnations exclusively, and will commence to build about May 1.

The Florists' Club met Thursday evening. It was private gardeners' night, and Edgar Sanders read an interesting and appropriate paper on the old time gardener Visited Chicago: M. Koster.

Ornamental Bedding.

PART V.

To lay out a diamond (rhomb), we should know the length of the two diagoreals. It for instance, they are nine feet and six feet, then set two pegs a and b is the party of their you want the hed not feet goth with any desired radius draw on the real and back oth sides as draw on we first a and b to both sucked in the cted in Fig. 16, set pegs, at intersections, the superior of twine between these two pegs, and a piece between a and b, where the superior of a peg, c, and from this to each of demonstrate the short drag and in this case three of the short drag and in this case three feet, and set the pegs d and e. The pegs at the intersections and the twine can then be taken away and a-b-d-e mark the diamond, peg c willcome handy in laving out the design.

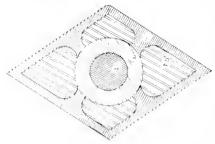

Fig. 17. - Adesign for the above diamond.

1, Alternanthera amogna spectabilis; 2, A. aurea nana; 3, Santolina incana; 4, Achyranthes Lindenii.

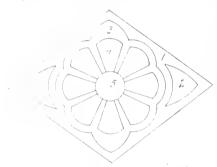

Fig. 18.—A design for a diamond ox12

1. Alternanthera amorna spectabilis; 2. Pilea nana; 3, Alternanthera aurea nana; 1, A.spatulata; 5, Coleus Golden Bedder.

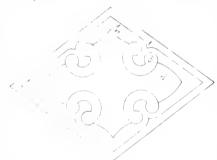

Fig. 19 .- 1 more complicate design for same dimensions.

1. Alternauthera paronychioides; 2, A. aurea nana; 3, Santolina incana; 4, Alternanthera paronychioides major.

Hints on Prize Lists for Dahlia Shows.

A prize schedule should contain sufficient classes with an ample mumber of good prizes in each class to call forth the hest competitors. In accounts of English dahlia shows I have found sixth, seventh and eighth prizes not uncommon. The mevitable result of so extended a list is to stimulate and encourage the widest competition, which in its turn reacts to arouse public interest in the exhibition.

The following schedule is offered as being sufficiently comprehensive for the Largest special dahlia show and as capable of adaptation by proper selection to the smallest county lair. No number of the smallest county fair. No number of alue of prizes is indicated us this must be determined by the special circumstances of each case.

The corresponding costs of the
B Show dahlias: 1, best collection; 2, best 25; 3, best 12, C Fancy dahlias: 1 best collection; 2, best 25; a best 25; 3, best 12.

D Pompon daldbas: 1, best collection: 2, best 25; 3, best 12.

E Cactus dabbias: 1, best collection: 2, best 25; 3, best 12.

F Decorative dabbias: 1, bost collection: 2, best 25;

25; 3, host 12.
G Single dahlias: 1, best collection; 2, best 25; 3, best 12.

In special shows where there is sufficient material from which to draw there should be added a class of fifty in each section perhaps a class of 100 in the show and pompon sections. To the above, which may be termed formal classes should be added in liberal variety prizes for design and decorative work, arrangement for effect, plants in pots, general display, etc.

Furthermore, in a special exhibition every encouragement should be extended to the display of practical appliances for the growth, transportation, preservation or exhibition of the flower in question. should be greatly pleased to see in the columns of the American Florist any suggestions bearing on this subject. Provision ought to be made whereby the judges can make special award for a feature which is novel or of special merit. Prizes for new varieties of merit are always in order. Judges should be at liberty to withhold prizes from undeserving exhibits, and this fact should be clearly stated in the schedule that the disappointed aspirant may have no ground for complaint.

Section A should appear on the premium list of every agricultural or horticultural society in the country which holds a show at the proper season. The next step towards extending the schedule should be to add class 1 or class 3 in each section or both. Any further extension of the schedule would naturally follow in the same line. In classes 1, 2 and 3 of sections D and G not less than three blooms of a kind should be required, as individuals of the pompon and single varieties fail to do theniselves justice when standing alone, especially in the presence of more brilliant company. If desired classes brilliant company. If desired classes could be added for the cactus and Tom Thumb varieties of singles, the dwarf growing show dahlias, etc. In all classes except A named varieties should be a requirement. Several very interesting classes could be formed from a given number of a specified color as six or twelve white, yellow, searlet, etc., and such classes would be particularly instructive by bringing similar varieties into direct comparison. 11. F. Burt. comparison.

A BUDS AND BLOSSOMS EXCURSION is the latest idea in San Jose, Cal.

ELIZABLEH CITY, VA.-Mr. Jacquer is erecting a greenhouse at Albemarle Park, Columnia, S. C., will celebrate its Spring Festival with a floral fair, April 21.

Altiaxer, O. The boiler room of the greenhouse belonging to J. F. Zimmerman find several feet of water in it during the recent floods.

Cimicorni, O.-The flood filled the furnace pit of Win McKellar's green-houses April 1. Serious loss of plants by chilling them was averted only by allowing the natural gas by which the houses were heated to burn on top of the water.

Wishson, Oxi. Mr. W. T. Maconn has been appointed horticulturist at the Central Lypernmental Farm. The executive committee of the Windsor, Sandwich and Walkerville Horticultural Society met last week to arrange for the season's distribution of plants and seeds.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

Subscription $1.00 a Year. To Europe, $2.00, Subscriptions accepted only from those in the trade.

Advertisements, 10 Cents a Line, Agate; $1.00 per inch. Cash with Order.

No Special Position Guaranteed.

Discounts, 6 times, 5 per cent; 13 times, 10 per cent; 26 times, 20 per cent; 52 times, 30 per cent.

The Advertising Department of the AMERICAN FLORIST is for Florists, Seedsmen, and dealers in wares pertaining to those lines ONLY.

Orders for less than one-half inch space not accepted. Advertisements must reach us by Wednesday to se-cure insertion in the issue for the following Saturday.

Address THE AMERICAN FLORIST CO., Chicago.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST has never been given to undignified or misleading editorial attacks. It may, however, with all modesty, invite comparison with any other paper in the trade as to those qualities which appeal to the intelligent reader. In the number and standing of its regular contributors, in the quality and quantity of its reading matter, in the mechanical excellence and pleasing ap-pearance, in the extent of its circulation and in bona fide and paid advertising, in fact, in everything which gives a paper value to its readers, it invites comparison. It stands ready at all times to satisfy any inquirer among its advertisers as to its circulation, which it has often printed and has reason to believe is greater than that of all other papers in this tradecombined.

The Impatience of Job.

Our modern Job seems to have lost some of the attributes of his ancient namesake. He actually appears to be out of patience lately, and all just because we, in the gentlest possible manner, applied a little caustic to his pet carbuncles.

Job says our statements are "ambigu-ons" and that we distribute "vague" information and that "we are another." Possibly our statements were a little vague, although Job seems to have caught our meaning quite well; but then, he may have had inside sources of information.

If Job will kindly call at our office any morning about 9 o'clock, we shall take pleasure in showing him a number of documents, etc., which will remove all ambiguity and vagueness, although we do not feel at all sure that some of them at least had not been in his hands before they reached ours.

By the way, Job should have examined our Easter number before he gave away all that cake-or was it dough, we forget.

The Plant-Food in Jadoo Fibre and Liquid.

At the present time considerable interest is being shown by florists in the use of materials known as jadoo fibre and jadoo liquid. Results of very diverse character are reported by those who have been using the materials. It may, therefore, be of special interest to learn the composition of these materials, so far as relates to the plant-food contained in them.

A chemical analysis in the laboratory of this station gives the following results:

|              |      | Per cent. of phos. acid. |      |
|--------------|------|--------------------------|------|
| Jadoo fibre  | 0,60 | 0.45                     | 0.13 |
| Jadoo liquid | 0.10 | t race                   | 0.33 |

The jadoo fibre shows about the same composition as the solid excrement of swine. Except in potash it compares favorably with good mixed stable manure. As to the availability of this plant food as compared with that of stable manure, we cannot speak definitely at present, but probably the latter is more readily utilized by plants.

The jadoo liquid apparently contains about the same amounts of plant food as does dilute liquid manure, such as florists commonly use.

I am not aware that any claim has been made to the effect that these materials are in any sense concentrated plant foods, and yet there is danger that this may be inferred. To any one disposed to use jadoo fibre and jadoo liquid as an economical source of plant food, the analysis given above will indicate the actual facts, so far as relates to the manurial composition L. L. VAN SLYKE.

New York Agricultural Experiment Station.

Trans-Mississippi Exposition Notes.

Practically all of the space in the horticultural building has been assigned to the various seed and horticultural societies. There will be a large and beautiful assortment of palms and other decorative plants which will be used in decorating this and other exposition buildings

The exhibits for the lawns will be furnished by a large number of the best firms in the United States, among whom may be mentioned the following: F. R. Pierson Co., a very large exhibit of cannas: W. Atlee Burpee & Co., roses and cannas; Henry A. Dreer, three basins of aquatics; C. Vaughan, pansies and cannas; A. Blanc, geraniums and cannas; Hess & Swoboda, verbenas; Sunset Seed & Plant Co., sweet peas; E. C. Erfling, geraniums.

These exhibits will assure such a setting forth of bedding as has not been excelled on any exposition grounds in the United States. The special features consisting of a number of "Fruit Days," promise to be one of the great attractions of the Exposition.

The horticultural building is promised to the exhibition department ready for installation by May 1. All other Exposition buildings except the fine arts are completed and will be turned over to the exhibition department within ten days.

Mr. R. Ulrich has the grounds almost completely arranged for opening. He has done an immense amount of planting of trees and shrubbery and no florist or horticulturist will be disappointed in this feature of the Exposition.

The following should be added to the above list of exhibitors: W.W. Wilmore, dahlias; J. T. Lovett Co.,; Cushman Gladiolus Co.; L. L. May & Co.; and

W. A. Manda.

F. W. TAYLOR.

Hampstead, N. H.—A greenhouse belonging to A. D. Emerson was burned on the morning of Saturday, March 26.

CONNEAUT, O .- Mr. Henry Krueger, of Meadville, Pa., who has bought the Conneaut Floral Co., Ehrgott establishment, is an all round, up-to-date florist. He is a son of Mr. A. Krueger, the extensive florist of Meadville, with whom he has been associated in business. He will add new houses of larger and more modern facilities at the old stand of the Conneaut Floral Co., Main street, near Mill.

Greenhouse Building.

Mitchell, S. D.-E C. Newbury, addition

Oneida, N. Y.-Florist Grems, one green-

Hybrid Roses.

Hybrid roses that have done duty this Easter and are wanted for forcing a second season should not be roughly handled after the blooms are all cut from them; they need to be encouraged to make new wood for next season, and must therefore be kept growing for a while. If the soil has been washed away from the surface and the roots are exposed, it will help greatly to give them a top dressing of good live soil with a good sprinkling of bone meal; this will give them something to work on during the summer, and also prevent the sun from parching the roots. As soon as the weather is favorable, they may be placed outside and watered occasionally as they require it; but this must not be overdone-just enough to prevent the wood from shriveling.

To hasten the ripening of those that are needed for early forcing, towards fall lay the pots or boxes on their sides; this will prevent their being watered by rains place them under better control. Should the weather prove very dry, however, it will be well to play the hose on them occasionally. The plants required for later work should on the approach of severe weather be laid down in frames or beds and covered with straw or leaves, so that they can be handled at the proper

When ready to start them into growth again, which should be about fifteen weeks in advance of the prospective flowering period-of course, the length of time it takes them to mature depends greatly on the kind of weather we get, but it is not wise to figure on any less than fifteen weeks—examine the drainage of the pots to see that it is in good condition and then rub a little of the soil from the surface and give them a mulch of well rotted manure. In pruning we find it best to cut them back to about three eyes, and when they have started rub all the shoots off except about four to the plant, sometimes less if the plant is weak, but it is a sure thing that the more flowers the plant has to carry the shorter the stems will be. When starting, give them a thorough watering, so that the soil is thoroughly wet through, and place them in a temperature of 45°, allowing them to start as slow as possible. When they have made some growth, gradually increase the heat till an even temperature of 56° to 58° at night during the flowering period is maintained.

The most important item in growing hybrid roses is to see that they never become dry at the roots, as they need lots of water, or short stems and buttons of flowers will be the result. All sudden changes in the temperature must be avoided, but they delight in an even temperature of about 70 on bright days, with a current of fresh air passing through the house, and on dull days a temperature of 60 is best for them. When in full growth, give liberal applications of liquid manure two or three times a week. In starting fresh stock it is best to pot or box them in the spring and grow them on through the summer; they will then be well rooted by the time they are needed, and able to stand feeding more, giving better results.

C. W. Johnson,

A PORTRAIT of J. J. Harrison, of The Storrs & Harrison Co., with an interesting sketch of his life, appears in the National Nurseryman for April. Mr. Harrison was born in Kent, England, in 1829. The capital stock of the company is $150,000 and the surplus $47,000

Cincinnati.

The last week of the Lenten season closed with a good demand for flowers, in fact our storemen and wholesale houses report having had a brisk demand for choice stock all week and a small increase. The same can not be said of the market trade. Easter Saturday opened up bright and clear and the flower market on Sixth street was well worth a visit. All of our florists were on hand, and their stands were well stocked with choice plants. Deutzia crenata (an ideal Easter plant) made a good showing, but strange to say, moved slowly. Lilies were scarce the first part of the week and wholesaled at far better prices than could be realized on Saturday at retail; 75 cents for good plants was the top notch. Roses, azaleas and ferns were in the lead this season, while tulips, hyacinths, cinerarias and spiraeas were a glut and had to be sold at regular market price. Hydrangeas were not up to former years, and those sold looked pale and soft. The boys at the market report a decrease in value of at least 35 ... Mostly all of the stands had a good display at 10 p. m. Saturday, something unusual for Easter. The following were the ruling Easter prices at the market. Carnations 35 cents to $1 per dozen. Roses, teas, $1; hybrids, $1.50. Narcissi. tulips, hyacinths and lilies of the valley, 50 cents per dozen, and lots of them were sold in the evening for less. There was evidently nothing new in the line of Eas-H. Schwarz. ter plants in market.

Providence, R. I.

Again we have passed the trying times of Easter week, and still live to tell the story. The weather was all that could be desired, up to Sunday morning when the April showers interfered somewhat with those who were not sold out on Saturday. On the whole trade was very satisfactory. Prices were all right and stock was fully up to former years in quality.

Carnations were a little shy as well as good violets. Roses were fairly plentiful. Bulb stock sold very well at former prices. As a rule the 25% advance caused by the tariff came out of the dealer. Bulbs in pots and pans were sold in place of bouquets, for cemetery use many preferred them to bouquets or cut flowers. General prices of carnations ran from 50 cents to $1 per dozen. Roses from $2 to $1 per dozen. Some fancy roses brought $5 per dozen

Geo. H. Tasker a well-known gardener here committed suicide by poison a few days since. Mr. Tasker was a very faithful conscientions man, but on account of il le 1th had been despondent for some time. He was about 60 years of age and leaves several children, his wife having died a boy years since

Some exil disposed person forced an entrance into the gecenhouse of Win. Appletor from the before Easter and abstracted therefrom a quantity of choice the ears to the amount of about $25.

The eaviathers made an appropriation of $2200 for an addition to their green house at the Yorth Burial Ground, it will e of a all a struction about 20×100. Miss I barner Willard, of the Hope Greenhouse he the contract this season to furnish pears for the beds at Roger tur general friend, Wm. Butcher has been confined to the house some weeks hat made a citery toget out Easter week to attend to the details of the week's COLITE RHOM.

New Orleans.

The ninth flower show of the New Orleans Horticultural Society has just closed at Odd Fellows Hall. As a floral exhibit it left nothing to be desired.

The grand collection of foliage plants and orchids belonging to Mrs. I. Richardson, and so ably handled by Mr. H. Papworth, was displayed in fine condition, together with a fine group of specimens from the Hernsheine estate. It made up probably the largest display of rare plants obtainable in the south.

The prizes were fairly divided between 11. Papworth, E. Valejo and Abel Bros. Special mention was given to J. St. Mard, J. Newsham and M. M. Lapouyade. C. W. Eichling won the first honor for floral design and for the best display of seeds and florists' supplies.

It is to be regretted that more of the commercial members of the association did not exhibit. Competition is admitedly the life of trade, and this applies no less in floral expositions, without it they will be dull and poorly attended. We cannot blame the public should they be indifferent, if among the florists themselves the same evident disposition exists.

Financially the show was not a success. The society will soon take action in regard to the November chrysanthemum show.

M. M. L.

SITUATIONS, WANTS, FOR SALE.

Advertisements under this head will be inserted at the rate of 10 cents a line (seven words) each insertion. Cash must accompany order. Plant advs. not admitted under this head.

Every paid subscriber to the AMERICAN FLORIST for the year 1888 is entitled to a five-line wantady, free to be used at any time during the year.

SITUATION WANTED BY No 1 grower of roses, carnathons, violets and general run of cut flowers; married, 27 years' experience. References.

P. R. care American Florist.

SITUATION WANTED—Single age 30; grower of process carnations, manns, vi lets paints terms, etc.; qualified to take responsible position commercial or private. FA 11. care American Florist.

SITUATION WANTED-By good, all round green-liouse man, age 27: 10 years' experience (Hol-larder) Best of references. Can come at once, Address H. KLEINTARINK, Station A. Louisville, Ky.

OTTLATION WANTED As working forenian; good or one grower, propagator and general stock. References. Only those wanting good man and can pay over $50 per month need apply. Address.

K.K. care American Florist.

SITUATION WANTED A m in 30 years of age, stagle, wants position in commercial place; good grower of roses, carnations, mains, pains and general stock. Best of references At theirty April 1 F 11 B, care American Florist.

STITUATION WANTED Private or commercial, by a tose grower (Beauty) cut flowers and general greenlouse stock. Can take full charge: strictly sober; nourfied, age ??—Eastern States. Address

BEAUTY, core American Florist

SCITLATION WANTED By practical florist, single: 5 10 years' experience, roses, carnathous violets; knowledge of floral work outdoor bedding etc.; competent in all greeninesse work. References Wages 8.0 per month. CAPABLE care American Florist

STILATION WANTED By a thoroughly practical gardener and flocist to take charge of private or commercial place. By t class rose grower and other floridated commercial and flot class private plages best of references, married Address. Prevence 12 Stock St. Bridgeport, Conn.

WANTED Afficient florist in commercial place; single 1, Corrie 622 4th Ave. Oak Park, III

WANT CD 2002 year old field grown Crimson Ram-blers, also yellow and white - Address tree A JOSLYS Omaha, Neb

WANTED. Two assistants in cut flower greenhouse establishment to do general work. Apply with references ability ofer storting salary expected. PORITY MANN HIGS. MOTOR Grove, III.

WANTED A good all around greenhouse man with experience in rose growing for cut flower market and first class references. Wite ANTE BROSE West Hoboken, N. J.

WANTLD Countlin grower only one thoroughly posted need apply, single man preferred, state waves and ref renews. MIDDLE STATES care American Florist

WANTED - AT ONCE-A florist, German and single; wages for the first two months $20, and after that $25, board and washing included. Steady work the year round.

A. SENFF, Menominee, Mich.

WANTED—At once, an all-around gardener for a summer respringerman preferred: single; wages $75 a month, board and lodging; references required, Address Hotel Schwartz, Elkhart Lake, Wis.

WANTED—To rent a small florist establishment of four or five houses near either Philadelphia er Bosten, with privilege of buying same, if satisfactory, Address A B C. Madison Eagle, Madison, N. J.

WANTED-Six or eight good men for potting and assisting in the greenhouses; fair wages and steady employment given. Do not write, but make immediate application at the greenhouses to Hinsdale. BASSETT & WASHBURN, Hinsdale. Ill.

FOR SALE-Greenhouses on principal street in the city For particulars apply to J. H. REBSTOCK, 584 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Two greenhouses with 21 acres of isnd in town of about 10,000, hetween two good markets, Buffalo and Rochester. Reason for selling, recent death of proprietor. Address

A. William, 27 Pearl St., Batavia, N. Y.

A. WILLIAM, 2. Fearl St., Batavia, N. Y.

FOR SAUE—The greenbouse establishment of Schiller & Kuske formerly Schiller & Mailander, is offered for sale at a great sacrifice; $2000 will buy 2.18-20 acres of valuable ground, 25 greenbouses, comprising 56 (00 equare feet of glass; wells, 2 nice dwelling houses, steds, etc., located in the village of Niles Center, about 12 niles from the heart of Chicago; 13-cm lies to deput Terms, $5500 cash, balance on time; investigate. Address correspondence to Poehlmann Brvs. Morton Grove Cook Co., 111., or Herman Schiller, $20 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A newly built but well established florist business of 10,000 feet of glass. Centrally located and well stocked. Sickness cause of wanting to sell. Address

BUSINESS, care American Florist.

FOR SALE

Six Greenhouses; about 14,000 feet of glass, well stocked; wholesale and retail; town of 4,000; no competition; less than one hundred miles of Chicago; two railroads. For particulars address

"A," care American Florist.

FOR SALE OR RENT

VERY CHEAP.

VERY CHEAP.

I offer for sale or rent my undivided halt interest of the real estate of the greenhouse property formerly known as Schiller & Mailander situated in the village of Niles Center, about 12 miles from business center of Chicago and 1½ miles from Morton Grove R. R. Depot. The property consists of 23 greenhouses; edwelling houses, barns, wells and necessary sheds on 2.920 acress of lard. Inv. sitiate. Price for inclivided built, $1.50; terms $1.000 rash, balance payable he seven yearly installments, secured by mortgars in the bearing 6 per cent interest. Or will rent or lease to some responsible party for a term of years at an annual rental of $1.500 m giving option to lease to buy my larest of above stated price, provided that said lease will make reports the first year to the extent of $1.000 Will acquire steed to property May 18. Address

MRS. B. KUSKE.

Care Paehlmann Bros., Morton Grove, Cook Co., III.

EXECUTOR'S SALE

Fine Specimen, Ornamental and Japanese Plants, Rare Orchids, Vases, etc., at the Hayes Estate "Oakmount,"

Lexington, Mass.

SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1898 AT 10 A. M.

All the plants on this large estate.

All the plants on this large estate. Azalens Rhodode holms: Pains. Bay Trees, Orange Trees, Rubbers. Each b. Holly. Hydrangens. Agaives, Dendrodanns. Coologyapes, etc., the Coologyapes of the Sussex collections of plants ever offered for jubble competition. Can be seen on and after April 26. Torius cash; deposit required. Trains leave Union Station. Roston, at 8-17, 19-17 and 10-17 x w.

Friday. April 29 no 10 y w. the furniture, paintings, chang, bare a brace see will be sold.

EDWARD HATCH, Auctioneer. 22 DEVONSHIRE ST., BOSTON.

Plants Under Benches.

ED. AM. FLORIST: Will you be good enough to inform us what is the best variety of ferns or other foliage plants to grow under benches for furnishing foliage?

I do not know of anything that could with confidence be recommended for the purpose as above indicated, for although ferns are natives of woods and shady nooks, they rebel against the treatment they would most likely receive beneath a table; besides they would be subject to the drip from the watering going on above which would carry down with it more or less dirt, giving the "green" a muddy appearance, thus rendering it anything but desirable to be used with flowers. The space beneath the tables may be used for storing lots of things which with judgment may be held in a semi-dormant state, but as a place to grow plants to furnish foliage to be used with flowers is hardly to be recommended. Has anyone tried Asparagus tenuissimus for that pur-pose? It is the only green that I know of that would be likely to thrive under the proposed conditions. If any reader can turnish the desired information for S. N. Co. it will be cheerfully published in these HAUPT'S Louisville (Ky.) Floral Bazaar made up an immense floral fish for the American restaurant last week. The design was eight feet long on a base of palms and blooming plants, and we regret that a photo of it proves too indistinct to reproduce.

Cut Flower Price Lists Received.

* Kennicott Bros. Company, Chicago; W. A. McFadden, Cincinnati; Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

ASHES CHEAP. ALSO PURE GROUND BONE.

Write for prices CEORCE STEVENS, Peterborough, Ont.

| BUFFALO, ADIII 14.                   |     |      |
|--------------------------------------|-----|------|
| Roses, Beauties                      | 40  | 00   |
| " Brides, Bridesmaids, Meteors 4 00@ | -8  | .00  |
| " Perles 3 00@                       | - 5 | 00   |
| " Niphetos 5.00@                     | 15  | .00  |
| " Kalserin                           | 8   | .00  |
| Carnations extra                     |     | 00   |
| ordinary 1.00@                       |     | 00   |
| Llly of the valley 3 00@             | 4.  | .00  |
| Violets                              | 1   | 25   |
| Hyacinths                            | 3   | .00  |
| Harrisli 8 00@                       | 10. | 00   |
| Callas 7 000                         | 10. | 00   |
| Tallps                               | 3   | .00  |
| Daffodils                            | 3   | 00   |
| Pansles                              |     | 50   |
| Smilax.                              | 15  | .00  |
| Adjantum1.09@                        | Ĩ.  | . 25 |
| Asparagus                            | 75  | .00  |
|                                      |     |      |

to meution the

OF SALE LORIS 19-21 E. RANDOLPH ST. CHICAGO

Strings 8 to 10 feet long,

50 CENTS.

W. H. ELLIOTT, Brighton, Mass.

HOLTON & HUNKEL CO.

SUCCESSORS TO

The Wisconsin Flower Exchange. Fresh Cut Flowers, Florists' Supplies Manufacturers of WIRE DESIGNS

Consignments solicited

457 Milwaukee St., MILWAUKEE.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| 0                              |               |
|--------------------------------|---------------|
| CINCINNATI, April 14.          | 4 00          |
| Roses, Brides                  | 4 00          |
| Bridesmaids                    | 4.00          |
| areteors                       | 5.00          |
| JIOIKAUS                       |               |
| Carnations                     | 1 50          |
| Datsles                        | 40            |
| ('attleyas                     | 50.00         |
| Dendrobium nobile              | 8,00          |
| Smtlax                         |               |
| Farleyense                     | 8.00          |
| Adlantum                       | 1.25          |
| Asparagus                      | 40.00         |
| C= T 0==0 1-11 14              |               |
| St. Louis, April 14.           | 3 00@35 00    |
|                                |               |
| Meteors                        | 3.00 a 10 00  |
| Brides, Bridesmaids            | 4.00@10.00    |
| renes                          | 5.00@ 6.00    |
| Kaiserin                       | 4.00@10.00    |
| Carnations                     | 1.00          |
| Violets, California            |               |
| Lily of the valley             | 2.60          |
| Harristi                       | 15.00         |
| Callas                         | 10 00         |
| Tulips                         | 3.0000 3.00   |
| Narcissus, Romans              | 1 (11/6) 2.00 |
| Smilax                         | 15,00@ 20.00  |
| Freesia                        | 2.00@ 2.50    |
| MILWAUKEE, April 15.           |               |
| Roses. Beantles                | 5.00/0.25.00  |
|                                | 6 00@ 10 00   |
| " Perle, Belle                 | 4 00@ 6.00    |
| " Meteors                      | 6 00@10 00    |
| Carnations                     |               |
| Violets                        | .75@ 1 00     |
| Romans                         | 3 00@ 4 00    |
| Lily of the valley             | 3,00@ 4.00    |
| Freeslas                       |               |
| Tullps. Hyacinths              | 3 00@ 4,00    |
| Von Sions, Jonquils            | 3.00@ 4.00    |
| Caltag Harright                |               |
| Calias, Harrisii               | 5.00@90.00    |
| Smilax                         | 0 000 20.00   |
| BUFFALO, April 14.             |               |
| Roses, Benuties                | 0.00@40 00    |
| " Brides, Bridesmaids, Meteors | 4 00@ 8.00    |
| " Perles                       | 3 00@ 5 00    |
| " Niphetos                     | 5.00@ 5.00    |
| " Kalserin                     | 4.00@ 8.00    |
| Carnations extra               | 2 00@ 3 00    |
| " ordinary                     | 1.00@ 2.00    |
| Llly of the valley             | 3 00@ 4.00    |
| Violets                        | .75@ 1 25     |
| Hyacinths                      | 3,00          |
| Harrisli                       | s 00@10.00    |
| Callas                         | 7 00(@10.00   |
| Tallps.                        | 2 00@ 3.00    |
| Daffodlis                      | 3 00          |
| Pansles                        | .40@ 50       |
| Smllax.                        | 15.00         |
| 4.3.                           | 1 00 0 1 05   |

It is good business policy

....AMERICAN FLORIST

when you write to an advertiser.

C. A. KUEHN. Wholesale Florist.

ST. LOUIS. MO.

A complete line of Wire Designs.

MOUND CITY CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED

Special attention given to shipping orders 1322 Pine St., ST. LOUIS, MO.

W. WORS ST. LOUIS, MO.

....WHOLESALE.... ....ROSES, and a full line

Headquarters for the South West.

When writing mention American Floriet

ST. LOUIS CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists

E. H. MICHEL

1620 Olive St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

ROSES, CARNATIONS, AND ALL KINDS OF SEASONABLE FLOWERS IN STOCK.

F. KASTING WHOLESALE COMMISSION FLORIST...

495 Washington St., Buffalo, N. Y. Also Dealer in Florists' Supplies and Wire Designs

W. A. MCFADDEN.

NEAVE BUILDING. CINCINNATI.

Producers and Shippers of every description of High Class Floral Supplies.

GOOD STRONG AMERICAN BEAUTY AND CYCLAMEN PLANTS

2-in. Pots Ready for Delivery.

4th and WALNUT Sts. CONSIGNMENTS CINCINNATI. O SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO SHIPPING ORDERS

THE "OLD RELIABLE" FOR

WHOLESALE

Hunt's Flowers Go Everywhere

76 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

WHOLESALE CUT FLOWERS AND FLORISTS SUPPLIES. WIRE WORK 88 WABASHAVE CHICAGO.

E. C. AMLING. WHOLESALE

CHICAGO. Consignments Solicited. Prompt attention to shipping orders.

A. G. PRINCE & CO. AND FLORISTS' SUPPLIES.

ROOTED GARNATION GUTTINGS

Albertini and Bridesmaid $2.00 per 100; Daybreak $4.50 per 100; Lizzie McGowan, Ivory, Lizzie Gilbert, Fred Dorner and Rose Queen, $5.00 per 1999.

88 & 90 Webesh Avenue.

Telephone Main 3208.

CHICAGO.

S. B. WINTER,

(Successor to WINTER & GLOVER.)

21 Randolph St., Chicago.

HIGH GRADE U

PACKED RIGHT,

reach son in just as good condition as they reach us

WIRE DESIGNS: A Full Line. Write us for our filustrated Catalogue.

Vaughan, McKellar & Winterson

WHOLESALE

FLORISTS SUPPLIES
FLORISTS SEEDS
SPRING BULBS

All the leading varieties in Carnation Rooted Cuttings

Best varieties of Young Roses in 24-in. Pots.
Fline well cured Pearl Tuberose Bulbs, per 1000. $7.50
Extra fine mixed Gladioli Bulbs. per 1000. 12.50
Fine mixed Gladioli Bulbs. per 1000. 7.50

SEND FOR CATALOGUE.

Vaughan, McKellar & Winterson, - 45-47-49 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| 0-1111                         |                 |
|--------------------------------|-----------------|
| CHICAGO, April 15.             |                 |
| Roses, Beauties per doz, 1.00@ | ù3.00           |
| " Brides                       | 2.00@ 4.00      |
| " Meteurs, Bridesmalds, Kalse  | erin 2 00@ 4 00 |
| " Gontlers                     |                 |
| " La France. Testout           |                 |
| Carnations, common             | 25/3 2 00       |
| Carnations, common             | 2 00 5 5 00     |
| " fancy                        |                 |
| Violets                        |                 |
| Narcissus. Romans              |                 |
| Harrisil. Callas               |                 |
| Lily of the valley             | 2,00@ 3.00      |
| Tullps                         | 1,50(a, 4,0)    |
| Von Slone                      | 2.00            |
| Hyncinthe                      | 3,00@,6.00      |
| Adlantum                       | 500 1 00        |
| Autantum                       | 19 00-5-15 00   |
| Smtlax                         | 10 00 0 T5 0    |
| Asparagus                      | 30.00@ 10.00    |
| Pansies                        |                 |

Bassett & Washburn

Wholesale Oealers and Growers of Gut Flowers

CREENHOUSES: HINSDALE, ILL.

Wholesale Florist

Don't Forget that we are at 4 Washington St., Chicago.

Write for special quotations on large orders.

N. Y. GUT FLOWER EXCHANGE

404-412 E. 34th St. Near Ferry. Open for Cut Flower Sales at 6 o'clock Every Morning.....

DESIRABLE WALL SPACE TO RENT FOR ADVERTISING.

JOHN DONALDSON, Secretary.

Wholesale Florists

111 West 30th Street. NEW YORK.

Telephone, 260 38th St. Consignments Solicited.

JAMES

Commission Dealer in

Cood Money for your Flowers. Cood Flowers for your Money 49 WEST 29TH ST NEW YORK. TELEPHONE 1675 38th St.

THE NEW YORK GUT FLOWER CO.

119 and 121 West 23d Street, 112 and 114 West 24th Street,

Telephone 733-18th.

NEW YORK.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED. Special Attention Given to Shipping Orders.

ROGERS PARK FLORAL CO..

Wholesale Growers of

51 WABASH AVENUE,

CHICAGO.

HEADQUARTERS FOR AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

WHOLESALE GROWERS OF

600,000 feet of Glass. We can lill all orders on short notice with all leading varieties of Roses and Carnations. We are Headquarters for the American Heautles. Give us a trial and convince yourself. & & & &

1 50 1 50 1 50 1 50 #12.50 12.50 BRIDESMAID PERLE METEOR AM BEAUTIES BELLE SIEBRECHT 12.50 12.50 20.00 12.50 1.50

ROSE PLANTS

ROOTED CARNATION CUTTINGS.

| JUBILEE          |  |  |   |  |     |    |   | 2 | . ( | 00   | 15.00  |
|------------------|--|--|---|--|-----|----|---|---|-----|------|--------|
| Wm Scott .       |  |  |   |  | . , |    |   |   | 1   | (10) | 7.50   |
| Nancy Harks.     |  |  |   |  |     |    |   |   | 1   | 00   | 7.50   |
| Tidal Wave .     |  |  | ÷ |  |     |    |   |   | -1  | 00   | 7.50   |
| Portla           |  |  |   |  |     |    |   |   |     | DO   | 7.50   |
| Lizzle McGownn   |  |  | , |  |     |    |   |   | 1   | .10  | 7.50   |
| Goldfinele.      |  |  |   |  |     |    |   |   |     | 10   | 7.50   |
| Mrs. Thompson    |  |  |   |  |     |    |   |   | -1  | 100  | 7.60   |
| 1 ta y breezk    |  |  |   |  |     | ,  |   |   | - 1 | DO.  | 12.30  |
| Emma Wocher      |  |  |   |  |     |    |   |   | -1  | .30  | 1.1.50 |
| Meteor.          |  |  |   |  |     |    |   |   | 1   | 60   | 12,50  |
| Lizzio Gilbert   |  |  |   |  |     |    |   |   |     | 50   | 12,50  |
| Harrison's White |  |  | i |  | ,   |    |   |   | l   | (M)  | 14,50  |
| Hrideemald       |  |  |   |  |     |    |   |   | 1   | 50   | 12.56  |
| Nivea            |  |  |   |  |     |    |   |   | -33 | DKL  |        |
| Flora HIII       |  |  |   |  |     | Ì, | ì |   | 1   | Dit  | Go. 00 |

REINBERG BROS., 51 WABASH AVENUE, CHICAGO.

M. A. HART. Commission Dealer Cut Flowers.

44 WEST 29TH STREET. NEW YORK CITY.

THE BEST MARKET IN NEW YORK. 'Phone 1307 38th St.

TRAENDLY & SCHENCK. Wholesale Florists.

Control the stock of many celebrated growers and are prepared to quote prices on Firsi Grade Cut Flowers. All varieties.

38 West 28th St., and Cut Flower Exchange, Tel. 961 18th Street. NEW YORK CITY.

FRED.

No. 1403 Fairmount Avenue.

Telephone, Long Distance.

PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| Roses Beautles. Hybrid 6 00@ 25 0             | X  |
|-----------------------------------------------|----|
| " Jacqs 4.00@ 8.0                             |    |
| " Brid, amaida, Testout, Carnot 2.00@ 6.0     | X  |
| " Morgans, Meteor 2.00@ 5 0                   |    |
| Carnationa 1 00@ 1 5                          |    |
| " fancy 1 50 a 3 0                            |    |
| Llly of the valley 2 (00 a, 3.0               | X  |
| Mignonette 2.00@ 4.0                          |    |
| Daffodlla, Tullps 1 50@ 2.0                   |    |
| Vloleta 50@ 1 0                               |    |
| Harrisil, Callas 4.00@ 5 0                    | ı  |
| Asparagus 40.00 & 50.0                        | I  |
| BOSTON, April 13                              |    |
| Roses Beautles                                | ĺ  |
| " Brunners 6.00@25.0                          |    |
| " Morgan, Meteor                              |    |
| " Brides, Bridesmalds, Carnot 2 00@ 8 (       | (  |
| Carnations                                    | K  |
| " fancy 2.00@ 4 0                             | ķ  |
| Lily of the valley, Daftodils Tulips 1,00@ 20 | Ħ  |
| Vloleta 50@ 7                                 | į  |
| Harrisil, Calla 2.000 6.0                     |    |
| Asparagus 50 0                                | K  |
| PHILADELPHIA April 13.                        |    |
| Roses, Beantles, select, per dozen3.00        |    |
| " medium 6.00@15.0                            | ı( |
| " Brunners 16 (0) a 35 (                      |    |
| " Teas + (00% 12 t)                           | ŧ  |
| Carnationa 1 00@ 2 0                          | H  |
| fancy                                         | K  |
| Lily of the valley, Narclasus 3 00@ 4.0       | H  |
| Vlolets                                       | 1  |
| Vlolets                                       | H  |
| Harrish S.00@10 0                             | €  |
| Sweet peaa 1 00@ 2 0                          | h  |
| Smllax 12.00@ 15 0                            | H  |

LUDLOW ST. PHILADELPHIA, PA

John I. Raynor,

49 WEST 28th STREET.

NEW YORK.

SPECIAL EXTRA STOCK OF

AM. BEAUTY, METEOR, BRIDESMAID, BRIDE.

Record Breaking Carnations ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

THOS. YOUNG, JR.

※ ※ Wholesale Florist

43 West 28th Street, New York.

WALTER F. SHERIDAN. WHOLESALE

ORIST.

39 West 28th Street, NEW YORK.

Roses shipped to all points. Price list on application.

ose Growers

Will find a good market and good returns for their stock at....

JULIUS LANG'S

53 W. 30th Street, - NEW YORK.

Edward C. Horan. 34 W. 29th Street, NEW YORK,

WHOLESALE • FLORIST.

Careful Shipping to all parts of the country Price list on application.

WM. C. SMITH. Wholesale Florist.

40 So. 16th St., PHILADELPHIA.

Consignmenta Solicited. Special attention given to ahipping ordera Long Distance Telephone 5008 A ned separate space in our market. We guarantee payment for all Flowers sold. Sales reported weekly; payments monthly, or oftener if required.

CUT FLOWER MARKET, 9 Chapman Place, 15 Province Street, BOSTON, MASS.

THE NEW ENGLAND HEADQUARTERS FOR THE BEST GRADE OF FLOWERS AT ALL SEASONS OF THE YEAR.

J. K. ALLEN, Wholesale Florist.

WHITE VIOLETS, finest quality. EXTRA ROSES and other desirable specialties.

57 West 28th Street,

Long Distance Telephone 382—38th St

NEW YORK.

GALVIN & CO. Wholesale Florists

AND DEALERS IN ALL.

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES,

4 Ordway Place, BOSTON, MASS. Cut Flower Consignments Solicited. Best market.

GEORGE A. SUTHERLAND, Cut Flowers? Florists' Supplies WHOLESALE.

67 Bromfield St.,

BOSTON, MASS.

JOBBERS IN Wholesale Florists

Horticultural Auctioneers. WLEY STREET, - BOSTON.

JOHN YOUNG, ROSES, CARNATIONS, VALLEY

and all other choice cut flower stock.

51 W. 28th Street. NEW YORK. Price list on application.

FRANK MILLANG, CUT FLOWERS.

WHOLESALE COMMISSION,

408 E. 34th Street,

NEW YORK. Cut Flower Exchange,

3,000 ROSA RUGOSA at.....$100 per 1000

8,000 DAHLIAS Whole roots at $40 per 1000. 50,000 CALIFORNIA PRIVET $20 to $40 per

100,000 SHRUBS Assorted, $50 to $125 per 1000, 50,000 SHRUBS Assorted, large sizes, $125 to $250 per 1000.

50,000 Sugar, Norway and Silver Maples 50,000 DECIDUOUS TREES Leading Varieties.

Satisfactory Prices. Correspondence Solicited. THE Wm. H. MOON CO., Morrisville, Pa.

HARDY

Herbaceous Perennials THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK IN AMERICA.

PÆONIES, PHLOX, IRIS, DELPHINIUMS, ETC., ETC.

JACOB W. MANNING The Reading Nursery, READING, MASS. ESTABLISHED 1854.

50 per 1000.

5.000 BERBERIS THUNBERGII

10,000 AMPELOPSIS VEITCHII

5,000 CLEMATIS PANICULATA

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN. TRVING ROUSE Pres. E. ALBERTSON VIce-Pres.: GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. V. Sec'y and Treas.

Floricultural Nomenclature.

The nomenclature committee of the Society of American Florists is desirous of laying before the society any cases of misnaming or double naming of plants handled by the American trade, which ought to be considered by the society. Any cases coming under the jurisdiction of this committee should be reported to the undersigned not later than the first of July, with full indication of the circumstances and the parties involved.

William Trelease, Chairman. Mo. Botanical Garden, St. Louis, April

1. 1 - 11 -

CLEMATIS

Large flowering varieties. Rhododendrons, Amperopsis Azalea H. P. Roses Tree Roses, etc., etc. Lulies, Tuberoses, Regonias and Branch of The Harticultural Co. L. C. BOBBINK, Boskoop, Holland.

Rutherford, N. J.

Memorial Kose

Strong field-grown plants, $50, $75 and $100 per 1000

SAM'L C. MOON. MORRISVILLE, Bucks Co., PA.

Assorted in 25 Varieties.

election $50 per 1000. Descriptive cutalogue and price lists for the trade.

SAMUEL C. MOON, Bucks Co., PA.

NURSERIES SPRINGFIELD, N. J.

New Fruits and rare Ornamentals. Shade Trees, Shruhbery, Priver, Specialties. 100,000 Peach at lowest prices. Catalogue free. Agents wanted.

EVERGREENS

FLORISTS A3 WELL AS NURSERYMEN HANDLE MY NURSERY-GROWN EVERGREENS AT A BIG PROFIT

Leaders for this season. 300,000 transplanted Hemlocks Over 1,000,000 of the beautiful Rocky Mountain Evergreens. 200,000 Red Cedar from northern seed and millions of the old standard sorts, such as Spruces, Pines, Belsoms and Arbor Vitæs. My trade list costs you nothing but a postal card.

Dundee, III. D. HILL, Evergreen Specialist,

Mention American Florist

Nursery Stock Cheap

appeloper Ampeloper Spown plant to be end for Spown plant to be end for Su 000 California Privet Transplanted, over a fine 1000 Slaubs, 10 varp thes for $4000 Chine of Evergreen Honeysnekh

$6 10 per 1000 of hards Theoretholps 10,000 the arts. He would be still a series with

THE ELIZABETH NURSERY CO.,

Mention American Plorist

DREER'S OFFER

HERBACEOUS

PLANTS.

| Anthericum Lillastrum (St. Bruno's Illy) $5.00  Achillea, The Pearl $5.00  Achillea, The Pearl $5.00  Adon's Verrails 12,00  Apprenaica $10  Anemone Japonica Alba, 2½-inch pots $5.00  Elegans, 2½-inch pots $5.00  Whirlwind 2½-inch pots $6.00  Aquilegia Cerulea 3-inch pots $6.00  Chrysantha, 3-inch pots $6.00  Canadenis 3-inch pots $6.00  Acters (Michaelmas daisles) in 6-choice varieties 8.00  Boitonia Asteroides $6.00  Latisquama $6.00  Becconla cordata $6.00  Cutta Palustris (Marsh Marlgold) $6.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Achillea, The Pearl                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Adonis Vernalis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Pyrenalca                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Elegans, 24-Inch pots 5 (8)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| " Pennsylvanica, 2 <sup>1</sup> 4-inch pots 4 (8)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Aquilegia Cerulea 3-inch pots                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| " Canadensis 3-inch pots                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Asters (Michaelmas daisles) in 6 choice varieties . 8 (0)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Boltonia Asteroides                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Becconla cordata. 5 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Casta Marilandica (Americ in Senna)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Cassia Marilandica (Americ in Senna)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Carpatblea, blue and white 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Cassa Mathanida (America Sedua)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Pyramidalls 12.00 Coreopsis Lanceolata, strong clumps 6.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Coreopsis Lanceolata, strong clamps                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Coreops's Lanceolata, strong clumps                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Dictamnus Fraxinella Alba, strong                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Rubra, "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| D rontcum Excelsum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Euonymus Radicans Varlegata, l year old 6 (0)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Eupater um Coelestinum 6.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Alba. 800                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Gyp ophila Paniculata. I year old                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Gaillardia Grandidora, 3-inch pots                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Henchera Sangulnea 21-In, pots                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Eupate rum Celestinum   6.00     Furkia Ceruliea str ng                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| " Maximimana 6 00" Mollis 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Rigidus. 5.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Fulva                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| " Aurantiaca Major (new)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Holly books in separate colors. August seedlings., 8.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Holly hocks in separate colors. August seedlings. S.00Hypericum Moss rlunnus, strong one year old 6.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Hollyhecks in separate colors. August seedlings. S.00Hypericum Most riunum, strong one year old 5.00trico orum, strong I yr. old. 20,00Iris Germanica, 12 distinct varieties 6.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Holly hocks in separate colors. August seedlings. S. 00 Hypericum Most riunum, strong one year old 5. 00 trico orum, strong i yr. old. 20, 00 Iris Germanica, 12 distinct varieties 6. 00 Cholce mixture 4. 00 Kæmpferl. 25 tine named sorts                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Hollyheeks in separate colors. August seedlings. S. 00 Hypericum Most riannm, strong one year old 5,00 trico orum, strong if yr. old,20,00 Iris Germanica, 12 distinct varieties. 6,00 choice mixture. 4,00 Kæmpferi, 25 dine named sorts. 10,00 choice mixture. 5,00 Orientalis. 8,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Holly hocks in separate colors. August seedlings. S. 00 Hypericum Most riannm, strong one year old 5,00 Tris Germanica, 12 distinct varieties 6,00 Cholce mixture 4,00 Kæmpferi, 25 tine named sorts                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Rights   5.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Hollyhoeks in separate colors. August seedlings. S. 09   Hypericum Most rinnin, strong one year old 5. 00   Irls Germanlea, 12 distinct varieties. 1 (2.0, 2.0, 2.0)   S. Colore Mixture 4. 10   Kæmpferl. 25 fine named sorts 11. 01   Orientalis 6. 00   Orientalis 6. 00   Viscaria Alba Plena 10. 08   Splendens 8. 08   Lobella Cardinalis 6. 00   Lyshnichis Clethriddes 6. 00   Lyshnichis Clethriddes 6. 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Hollyhocks in separate colors. August seedlings. S. 00 Prypericum Most rinnum, strong one year old. 6,00 Irls Germanica, 12 distinct varieties. 1 (6,00) S. Colores Mixure. 4,00 S. Kampferl, 25 fine named sorts. 11,00 Colores Mixure. 5,00 Colores Mixure. 5,00 S. Colores  |
| Spiencens S.B. Lobella Cardinals 6 00 Lyshmechis Cethroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum 3-ia, pots 8,00 Monarda Didyna 5,00 Monarda Bidyna 6,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Spiencens S.B. Lobella Cardinals 6 00 Lyshmechis Cethroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum 3-ia, pots 8,00 Monarda Didyna 5,00 Monarda Bidyna 6,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Spiencens S.B. Lobella Cardinals 6 00 Lyshmechis Cethroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum 3-ia, pots 8,00 Monarda Didyna 5,00 Monarda Bidyna 6,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Spiencens S.B. Lobella Cardinals 6 00 Lyshmechis Cethroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum 3-ia, pots 8,00 Monarda Didyna 5,00 Monarda Bidyna 6,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Spiencens S.B. Lobella Cardinals 6 00 Lyshmechis Cethroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum 3-ia, pots 8,00 Monarda Didyna 5,00 Monarda Bidyna 6,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Spiencens S.B. Lobella Cardinals 6 00 Lyshmechis Cethroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum 3-ia, pots 8,00 Monarda Didyna 5,00 Monarda Bidyna 6,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Spiencens S.B. Lobella Cardinals 6 00 Lyshmechis Cethroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum 3-ia, pots 8,00 Monarda Didyna 5,00 Monarda Bidyna 6,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Spiencens S.B. Lobella Cardinals 6 00 Lyshmechis Cethroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum 3-ia, pots 8,00 Monarda Didyna 5,00 Monarda Bidyna 6,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Spiencens S.B. Lobella Cardinals 6 00 Lyshmechis Cethroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum 3-ia, pots 8,00 Monarda Didyna 5,00 Monarda Bidyna 6,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Spiencens S.19 Lobella Cardinalls 6 00 Lyshmachia Ctehroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum 3-ia, pots 8 00 Monarda Didyna 5 00 Kasea 6 00 Chothera Frasert (Evening Primrose) 6 00 Spiencens 6 00 Missourients 6 00 Missourients 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties 2-in pots 3 00 Platycodou Grandiflorum strong clumps 6 00 Maricel, strong clumps 8 00 Liconias Japanese tree varieties 12 line sorts 50.00 Herbaceous, I'd distinct colors 5 00.00 Herbaceous, I'd distinct colors 5 00.00 Tenutiolia 6 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Phiox 25 varieties 2-in pots 30.00 Phiox 25 varieties 2-in pots 6 00 Phiox 25 varieties 3-in pots 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Spiencens S.19 Lobella Cardinalls 6 00 Lyshmachia Ctehroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum 3-ia, pots 8 00 Monarda Didyna 5 00 Kasea 6 00 Chothera Frasert (Evening Primrose) 6 00 Spiencens 6 00 Missourients 6 00 Missourients 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties 2-in pots 3 00 Platycodou Grandiflorum strong clumps 6 00 Maricel, strong clumps 8 00 Liconias Japanese tree varieties 12 line sorts 50.00 Herbaceous, I'd distinct colors 5 00.00 Herbaceous, I'd distinct colors 5 00.00 Tenutiolia 6 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Phiox 25 varieties 2-in pots 30.00 Phiox 25 varieties 2-in pots 6 00 Phiox 25 varieties 3-in pots 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Spiencens S.19 Lobella Cardinalls 6 00 Lyshmachia Ctehroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum 3-ia, pots 8 00 Monarda Didyna 5 00 Kasea 6 00 Chothera Frasert (Evening Primrose) 6 00 Spiencens 6 00 Missourients 6 00 Missourients 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties 2-in pots 3 00 Platycodou Grandiflorum strong clumps 6 00 Maricel, strong clumps 8 00 Liconias Japanese tree varieties 12 line sorts 50.00 Herbaceous, I'd distinct colors 5 00.00 Herbaceous, I'd distinct colors 5 00.00 Tenutiolia 6 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Phiox 25 varieties 2-in pots 30.00 Phiox 25 varieties 2-in pots 6 00 Phiox 25 varieties 3-in pots 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Spiencens S.B. Lobella Cardinalis 6 00 Lyshmechis Clethroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum, 3-in, pots 8,00 Monarda Didyna 5,00 Rosea 6,00 Chothera Frasert (Evenling Primrose) 6,00 Spiencens 6,00 Missourients 5,00 Missourients 6,00 Pardantinus Sinensis (Blackberry Lily) 3,00 Pinks, Hardy Scotch, 5 variettes clumps 6,00 Pinks, Hardy Scotch, 5 variettes clumps 6,00 Superbus 6,00 Platycodon Grandiflorum strong clumps 6,00 Marlesh, strong clumps 8,00 Lironins, Japanese tree variettes, 12 line sorts 5,0,00 Herbaccous, 12 distinct colors 5,00 Herbaccous, 10 floring 10,00 Tenuffolia 1, 10,00 Tenuffolia 1, 10,00 Tenuffolia 1, 10,00 Philox, 23 variettes, 24 in, pots 6,00 Submitta Kosea 1,00 Pupples, technd 24-in, pots 6,00 Pupples, technd 24-in, pots 6,00 Physician 4, 20, 10, 10, 10, 10, 10, 10, 10, 10, 10, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Spiencens S.19 Lobella Cardinalis 6 00 Lyshmachis Cethroides 6 00 Lythrum Roseum Superbum, 3-in, pots 8,00 Monarda Didyma 5,00 Rosea 6,00 Chothera Frasert (Evenling Primrose) 6,00 "Missourlemis" 6,00 "Missourlemis" 6,00 Pardanthus Sinensis (Blackberry Lily) 3,00 Pinks, Hardy Scotch, 5 varieties clumps 6,00 "Svarleties 2-in pots 35,00 Pinks, Hardy Scotch, 5 varieties 2-in pots 3,50 Piatycodon Grandiflorum strong clumps 6,00 Laconius Japanese tree varieties, 12 fine sorts, 50,00 Herbaceous, 12 distinct colors, 50,00 Tenufolia, 10,00 Tenufolia, 10,00 Submitta It sea 12,00 Submitta It sea 10,00 Submitta It sea 10,00 Submitta It sea 10,00 Pipies Icchand 21-in, pots 6,00 Pipiese Icchand 21-in, pots 6,00 Pinnspago Larpenta strong clumps 6,00 Pinnspago Larpenta strong clumps 6,00 Pinnspago Larpenta strong clumps 6,00 Piotenthus, 4-in pots 6,00 Pinnspago Larpenta strong clumps 6,00 Pinntphas, Inch ce mixture, strong 6,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Spiencens S.B. Lobella Cardinalls 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 5 00 Monarda Didyna 6 00 Rosea 6 00 Chothera Frasert (Evening Printrose) 6 00 Spiencens 6 00 Missourients 6 00 Plathroides 6 00 Plathius Sheneist (Eluckberry Lily) 3 00 Plathius Sheneist (Eluckberry Lily) 3 00 Plathius Sheneist (Eluckberry Lily) 3 00 Platycodou Grandiflorum strong clumps 6 00 Maricela strong clumps 8 00 Lirontas Japanese tree varieties 12 fine sorts 50 Herbaceous, I'd distinct colors 5 50 Herbaceous, I'd distinct colors 5 50 Herbaceous, I'd distinct colors 5 50 Tenuitolla 1 pl. 20 00 Othelanlis double white 20 00 Chiclanlis double white 5 00 Submitta I 6 sea 40 Submitta Losea 40 Playricata Canadensis, 24 in pots 60 Pupples, tecland 2 1 in pots 60 Othelanlis 4 10 Playricata Canadensis, 24 in pots 60 Physiosteph Virginica 60  |
| Spiencens S.B. Lobella Cardinalls 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 5 00 Monarda Didyna 6 00 Rosea 6 00 Chothera Frasert (Evening Printrose) 6 00 Spiencens 6 00 Missourients 6 00 Plathroides 6 00 Plathius Sheneist (Eluckberry Lily) 3 00 Plathius Sheneist (Eluckberry Lily) 3 00 Plathius Sheneist (Eluckberry Lily) 3 00 Platycodou Grandiflorum strong clumps 6 00 Maricela strong clumps 8 00 Lirontas Japanese tree varieties 12 fine sorts 50 Herbaceous, I'd distinct colors 5 50 Herbaceous, I'd distinct colors 5 50 Herbaceous, I'd distinct colors 5 50 Tenuitolla 1 pl. 20 00 Othelanlis double white 20 00 Chiclanlis double white 5 00 Submitta I 6 sea 40 Submitta Losea 40 Playricata Canadensis, 24 in pots 60 Pupples, tecland 2 1 in pots 60 Othelanlis 4 10 Playricata Canadensis, 24 in pots 60 Physiosteph Virginica 60  |
| Splendens S.19 Lobella Cardinalls 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 5 00 Monarda Didyna 5 00 Genothera Fraseri (Evening Primrose) 6 00 Spendens 6 00 Missourients 5 00 Pardantinus Sinensis (Blackberry Lily) 3 01 Pinks, Hardy Scotch, 5 varieties clomps 6 00 Pardantinus Sinensis (Blackberry Lily) 3 01 Pinks, Hardy Scotch, 5 varieties 2-in pots 3 50 Patycodou Grandiflorum strong clumps 6 00 Mariest, strong clumps 8 3 00 Laoulas, Japanese tree varieties, 2-in pots 3 50 Laoulas, Japanese tree varieties, 12 line sorts, 50,00 Herbaceous, 12 distinct colors, 5 15,00 Herbaceous, 18 fine mixture, 8 10 Tenuffolla 1, pl. 20,00 Chilory, 5 varieties, 2-i in pots 6 00 Subnitan Atlon 16 00 Subnitan Atlon 16 00 Popples, Iceland 2-i-in, pots 6 00 Physostech Virginica 6 00 Physostech Virginica 8 00 Primulsop Larpentine strong clumps 6 00 Primulsop Larpentine 8 00 Pentstemon Gentlanobles, 3-in pots 6 00 Sedum Acre 10                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Spiencens S.19 Lobella Cardinalis 6 00 Lyshmachia Cethroides 6 00 Lyshmachia Cethroides 6 00 Lyshmachia Cethroides 6 00 Lyshmachia Roseum Sperbum 3-ia, pots 8 00 Monarda Didyna 6 00 Rosea 6 00 Chothera Frasert (Evenling Primrose) 6 00 Spiencens 6 00 Missourienis 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties 2-in pots 3 50 Platycodou Grandiflorum strong clumps 6 00 Marlesh strong clumps 8 00 Herbaceous in fine mixture 8 00 Herbaceous Iz distinct colors 5 05,00 Herbaceous in fine mixture 8 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 6 00 Subminia Rosea 4 00 Subminia Rosea 6 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 6 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 6 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 7 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 8 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 8 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 8 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 9 00 Physics technol 2-j in po |
| Spiencens S.19 Lobella Cardinalis 6 00 Lyshmachia Cethroides 6 00 Lyshmachia Cethroides 6 00 Lyshmachia Cethroides 6 00 Lyshmachia Roseum Sperbum 3-ia, pots 8 00 Monarda Didyna 6 00 Rosea 6 00 Chothera Frasert (Evenling Primrose) 6 00 Spiencens 6 00 Missourienis 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties 2-in pots 3 50 Platycodou Grandiflorum strong clumps 6 00 Marlesh strong clumps 8 00 Herbaceous in fine mixture 8 00 Herbaceous Iz distinct colors 5 05,00 Herbaceous in fine mixture 8 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 6 00 Subminia Rosea 4 00 Subminia Rosea 6 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 6 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 6 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 7 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 8 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 8 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 8 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 9 00 Physics technol 2-j in po |
| Spiencens S.19 Lobella Cardinalis 6 00 Lyshmachia Cethroides 6 00 Lyshmachia Cethroides 6 00 Lyshmachia Cethroides 6 00 Lyshmachia Roseum Sperbum 3-ia, pots 8 00 Monarda Didyna 6 00 Rosea 6 00 Chothera Frasert (Evenling Primrose) 6 00 Spiencens 6 00 Missourienis 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties 2-in pots 3 50 Platycodou Grandiflorum strong clumps 6 00 Marlesh strong clumps 8 00 Herbaceous in fine mixture 8 00 Herbaceous Iz distinct colors 5 05,00 Herbaceous in fine mixture 8 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 6 00 Subminia Rosea 4 00 Subminia Rosea 6 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 6 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 6 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 7 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 8 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 8 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 8 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 9 00 Physics technol 2-j in po |
| Spiencens S.19 Lobella Cardinalis 6 00 Lyshmachia Cethroides 6 00 Lyshmachia Cethroides 6 00 Lyshmachia Cethroides 6 00 Lyshmachia Roseum Sperbum 3-ia, pots 8 00 Monarda Didyna 6 00 Rosea 6 00 Chothera Frasert (Evenling Primrose) 6 00 Spiencens 6 00 Missourienis 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties clumps 6 00 Plaks Hardy Scotch 5 varieties 2-in pots 3 50 Platycodou Grandiflorum strong clumps 6 00 Marlesh strong clumps 8 00 Herbaceous in fine mixture 8 00 Herbaceous Iz distinct colors 5 05,00 Herbaceous in fine mixture 8 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Tenutiolia 10 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 6 00 Subminia Rosea 4 00 Subminia Rosea 6 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 6 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 6 00 Playarieties 2-j in pots 7 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 8 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 8 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 8 00 Physics technol 2-j in pots 9 00 Physics technol 2-j in po |
| Splendens S.19 Lobella Cardinalls 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 6 00 Lyshnachis Clethroides 5 00 Monarda Didyna 5 00 Genothera Fraseri (Evening Primrose) 6 00 Spendens 6 00 Missourients 5 00 Pardantinus Sinensis (Blackberry Lily) 3 01 Pinks, Hardy Scotch, 5 varieties clomps 6 00 Pardantinus Sinensis (Blackberry Lily) 3 01 Pinks, Hardy Scotch, 5 varieties 2-in pots 3 50 Patycodou Grandiflorum strong clumps 6 00 Mariest, strong clumps 8 3 00 Laoulas, Japanese tree varieties, 2-in pots 3 50 Laoulas, Japanese tree varieties, 12 line sorts, 50,00 Herbaceous, 12 distinct colors, 5 15,00 Herbaceous, 18 fine mixture, 8 10 Tenuffolla 1, pl. 20,00 Chilory, 5 varieties, 2-i in pots 6 00 Subnitan Atlon 16 00 Subnitan Atlon 16 00 Popples, Iceland 2-i-in, pots 6 00 Physostech Virginica 6 00 Physostech Virginica 8 00 Primulsop Larpentine strong clumps 6 00 Primulsop Larpentine 8 00 Pentstemon Gentlanobles, 3-in pots 6 00 Sedum Acre 10                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |

HENRY A. DREER

714 Chestnut St., PHILADELPHIA,

A Drummer's Twaddle. It came, Easter, and while it is but freshly recorded on time's scroll of the past and before its flowers have scarcely withered we can write rejoicingly of propitious weather, thronged religious celebrations, artistic displays of hats and gowns and towering loads on loads of flowers. Religious ceremonies, fashion's display and the crowning work of the florists have been observed, enjoyed and in a season of most perfect weather, and taking a sordid view it was most prosperous for the florist. We belive the summing up will show no better Easter record than the one just The blizzard of the early part made. of the week made misgivings, but it was only the lion which went out as the lamb at the latter end, making happier and brighter scenes at the windup. Even rumors of "grim visaged war" did not break in on the observances of the season nor detract perceptibly from its glory, nor tighten the purse strings of the public. Everything in the shape of plants and flowers went with a rush at good prices. Lilies and carnations, especially the latter, being hardly obtainable at $4 to $5 per 100, with lilies ranging all the way from 6 to 8 cents for poor, to 12 and 13 cents for good, and would have brought more if asked on Friday and Saturday market days, and we hope your reports from all points will show similar healthfulness of the Easter market, and that the florists will have many "pretty pennies" to count, and will now sober up from the whirl of a busy week—nothing stronger implied—and be ready for the onslaught of the drummers who will literally spring from the ground and spread over the land with their accustomed energy. The trade will be enabled to study ethnological pecularities of this class, growing more and more cosmopolitan of late, so that now we have them from "Yurup, Arup, Irup, and Orup," all bent on squelching the simon pure, irrepressible and irreproachable United States drummer, who asks no intervention or protection, but only a chance to be heard for his cause. He will be here and can be found when customers want to exercise their American prerogative of kicking, and while he stands up against the wall-with eyes askant the dog kennel, mentally estimating the strength of Towser's almost too fragile chain, and meekly listens to complaints of this, that and the other, of things of which he is as irresponsible and guiltless as the far away manin the moon-oceans will divide you and the foreign fellow and there is no satisfaction in such long-distance kicking. As Falstaff said, "Give me a man who can face me," and for this consideration these pilgrims claim good will for him who is with you "in the warmth of summer and the coolth of winter," pushing home enterprises, and who is known the country over for his "chin" and commercial achievements.

New York. EDDY.

"Eastertide."

Under this title the Chicago Tribune delivers itself on Easter Sunday of an article from which we clip the following:

article from Which we clip the following:

The best Easter lily comes from New Jersey.

The bell is larger and more on one stem than the native lily of Illinois. The long journey which these flowers take requires careful packing. Each banch is wrapped separately and there are twenty-five blossoms in a bunch. The stems are wrapped in wet cotton, surrounded with oiled paper. Smilay, daffodils, and hyacinths are natives of the South. The jasunine is also a southern flower, but comes later in the season. Islaes, tulips and carnations are grown in the local nurseries. With the exception of that of California, it is said the Illinois carnation is the best in the world.

world.

Nearly 70 per cent of the retail flower dealers in the city are Greeks. There are some Italians, but not many. Formerly the Greek flower vender invested what little money he had left after his arrival in America in red and vellow roses, violets and carnations, selected a street corner, and straightway became a merchant. The business is a good one, and the profits so large that the dealer can rent a large store on the ground floor of a business block where rents are highest.

NEW BEDFORD MASS.—A boiler at Mr. Rennix's greenhouses on Union street blew out on April 3, flooding the pit and extinguishing the fire. The stock suffered much by exposure to cold during repairs.

Large Field-Grown Roots in ali the Leading Varieties $5.00 to $7.00 per 100.

30,000 DAHLIAS

Before ordering your Dahlla stock be sure and send for my catalogue of novelties and standards of the best quality and at the lowest prices. All stock guaranteed true to name.

W. W. WILMORE, Dahlia Spec Box 382, Denver, Colo. Dahlia Specialist,

''Golden Glow' (HARDY)

Excellent for cut flower purposes in late summer. Strong plants, $6.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

IRIS KAEMPFERI strong clumps in ten to color. $1.00 per doz.; $6.00 per 100.

Edwin Lonsdale,

Money Order Office. Station H. Phila.

CHESTNUT HILL. PHILA, PA.

50,000 MARIE LOUISE RUNNERS

at $4.00 per 1000, 60c per 100. Cash with order. Want to exchange above also for young American Beauties. Wootton and Meteor Roses, as

HILLSDALE FLORAL PARK, Hillsdale, Mich.

GEO. E. COLE & CO. Blank Book Makers. Stationers and Printers

Manz makes illustrations for this paper,

86 and 88 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO.

Armstrong's

Everblooming

Tuberose & &

A NEW departure in Tuberose growth.
Flower bearing buds continue to form around the old flower stock indefinitely.
Flowers greatly superior to those of all to other single Tuberoses. Awarded Certificate of Merit by the S. A. F. at Providence last August, and the Shaw Gold Medal at St. Louis in November.

For Prices and Particulars ...Address...

LUTHER ARMSTRONG,
3720 Olive St., ST. LOUIS MO.

n Reecececececececececec

Peacock's 36 First Prizes out of 39 entries in 1896 and 1897. Prize Winning Dahlias

Send for 1898 illustrated wholesale cata-ogue before placing orders elsewhere.

W. P. PEACOCK, - Atco, N. J.

IOLET CLUMPS

AND ROOTED RUNNERS

JNO. F. WALKER, Waldrop, Va.

... THE ...

"Lyon=Horticole"

is an interesting review of French horticulture. Issued semi-monthly. 20 8-vo. pages illustrated. Subscriptions to the United States. 1 year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00. Address

DIRECTEUR LYON-HORTICOLE, Lyon-Villeurbanne, France.

FLORISTS' MUTUAL

FIRE INSURANCE ASS'N

Application Blanks and Prospectus Ready....
Write now. Delays are dangerous.

W. J. VESEY, Sec'y, - Ft. Wayne, Ind. For Insurance against damage by hail, Address

JOHN G. ESLER. Sec'y, F. H. A., Saddle River, N. J. THE NATIONAL

Florists Board of Trade

C. S. LODER, Sec'y, 271 Broadway, New York.

THE WABASH R. R. COMPANY

The Short and Quick Line between the East and West connecting Buffalo. Detroit and Toledo with Chicago, St. Louis, Kahsas City and Omaha.

The Wabash is the Only Line running sleeping cars and chair cars (free) between Buffalo and St. Louis and Kausas City.

Through sleeping cars between New York and Boston and St. Louis and Chicago run every day.

For further information apply to the nearest Railroad Ticket Agent, or to

H. B. McCLELLAN, G. E. A.,

3B7 Broadway, New York City,

J. D. McBEATH, N. E. P. A., 5 State Street, Boston, Mass.

C. S. CRANE, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Aut., St. Louis, Mo.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

JEROME B. RICE, Pres.; E. B. CLARK, 1st Viceres., S. F. Willard, Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

THE seed trade reports poor business for the past ten days. The early season showed such an increase that very hopeful views were indulged in, later results show a material falling off for the middle LILIUM LONGIFLORUM is being grown more extensively in Japan doubtless owing to the American demand. As a result of this it is said that the planting of L. auratum has been reduced and prices on them will be higher.

A Model Seed Grower.

The late Thomas V. Maxon, who died this home. Adams, N. V., October 31, 1897, after a short illness, was widely known in the seed tradecircles of this and ather countries. He was born in Peter-orough N.A. March 24, 1823, and was caused on a farm. As a young man he taught school several terms. He married in 1842 and soon after moved to Adams, where he loonght a farm which in succeedegan the dismess of scedgrowing about 1855 in counce from with James M. Cleve and . The partnership continued only a cost time business alone until the time of his death. He was one of the best informed, but has need the same parted no effort or expense this time are eparted no effort or expense to have his good of the best quality given by repetation for the greatest are given in . The decomps both at home and a rood and for evange the principle that the local arrece is the cheapest and reacher a code of a ranging of the part of the local state. So effects and less thanks the Agriculture Society and 1855 mero mortion with James M. Cleve.

See Year State Agence terral Society and ned the poor to as disopern tendent of catthe specifical while is not a rively for over two its constant of the actions as president of the letters in the unit. Agent altural Society All are of pure the permitted from friend ship, and always ready by word or deed to help his friend or neighbor, he will be remembered by many in the seed trade as a model seed grower. W. H. Grenell.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—S. Y. Haines writes April 11: The outlook for the mail seed trade from our standpoint is a "dead duck in the pit." The blue jay and robin redbreast are now singing the funeral dirge of the season, which is a phenomenally short one. While February and March showed a good gain over last year, April now shows a larger proportion of loss against April of last season. To size up the situation, we do not believe the mail order houses will average as large a business as last year. Those who were in the field early may make a fair were in the held early may make a fair showing, but the boys who came into the fight late are very likely to come out minus a profit. Counter trade for the retail establishments should be good, for the market gardeners appear to be buying liberally this spring.

Ballston Spa, N. Y.—Olof Peterson recently employed by John Shafer, has purchased a greenhouse at Round Lake.

RAFFIA BEST QUALITY, LONG MADAGASCAR Having purchased on a very tavorable stock quickly, make the following special low quotations for prompt orders.

orders. - In bale lots (about 225 lbs.) at 8c

Grafting Wax

Trowbridge's Celebrated Grafting Wax, the genuine article, 1 lb, bars at 21c per pound. Relates: 10 lb, lots 5 per cent, 25 lb, lots, 10 per cent, 50 lb, lots, 15 per cent, 100 lb, lots, 10 per ce

G. C. WATSON,

Juniper, below Walnut, - PHILADELPHIA.

BURPEE'S SEEDS PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Price East for Florists and Market Gardeners -----

TRY DREER'S GARDEN SEEDS.

Plants, Bulbs & Requisites.
They are the best at the towest prices. Trade List is sued quarterly, mailed free to the trade only.
HENRY A. DREER,
Philadelphia, Paragram.

Mentlon American Florist.

SEEDS LAWN GRASS $12.00 per 100 lbs

Quality Ever Offered Retails of 30c lb J. CHAS. McCULLOUGH, SEEDSMAN, BECLEANER AND JOHER GRANN REEDS Second & Walnut Sts., Cincinnati, O.

Send for Illustrated Catalogues, s

THE ALBERT DICKINSON CO.

GRASS SEEDS

Parks, Tennis Courts, Lawns, &c. In fancy 1 and 2 pound packages and bulk SPECIAL PRICES TO THE TRADE. CHICAGO, ILL.

BEST OF ALL' TOMATO

"ENGLISH" MELONS

(FOR PORCING)

FLOWER SEEDS FOR FLORISTS
Catalogues on application.

WEEBER & DON, Seed Merchants and Growers, 114 Chambers St., NEW YORK, N. Y.

August Rölker & Sons, Spring Bulbs, Spring Bulbs, Florists' Supplies, SEE

ITPORT ORDERS booked now for forcing Binlis, Azaleas, Lily of the Valley, etc., for fall delivery; send for terms to

52 Dey Street, - NEW YORK.

NEW . GIANT . ESCHSCHOLTZIAS, "THE GOLDEN WEST."

New Giant Fancy Cosmos, six splendid varieties, separate, $1 oz.; Giant Cosmos, splendid varieties, separate, $1 oz.; Giant Cosmos, splendid unived, 65c oz.; Calliopsis "Califorma Sanbeams." $1 oz. Special rates given on Cosmos in quantity; Apple Geranium, fresh, $1 per 1000 seeds; New Large Plowering Zonale Geranium, $2.50 oz.; Ipomaa, "Heavenly Blue," $1 oz. $12 lb.; Laurustinus grandiffora, $1 oz.; Zinnas, "New Curled and Crested," 50c oz.; $5 lb.; Nasturtium Good Venture Mixture, 60c lb.; $8 per 15 lb.s.; Seaforthia eleganic (Palm) 40c per 100 seeds, $3 per 1000 seeds. Send for trade list of Seeds, Plants, Bulbs and Caetimas, Caetimas

MRS. THEODOSIA B. SHEPHERD.
Ventura-by-the-Sea, Cal

CLUCAS & BODDINGTON CO.

Importers and Exporters of

Seeds, Bulbs & Plants,

501 TO 503 W. 13TH ST., NEW YORK CITY.

Send for quotations on all Florists' Bulb Stock

Notice!

LAST Friday morning my office and books were destroyed by fire, also all orders I had on file, also morey orders which I had not eashed yet. Customers will please notify me how money was sent so it can be traced.

Seed Stores and Flower

Can prolitably handle our Packages of Plant Food. Attractive, take little 🚜 🚜 shell room. Valuable & booklet free. Good prolits.

The WALKER FERTILIZER CO. Elilton Springs, N. Y.

الإوجوجه وجوجوجوجود وحوجوها

St. Paul.

easter trade good.—sales 25% to 40%BETTER THAN LAST YEAR. - SUPPLY EQUAL TO DEMAND —CALL FOR COLORED FLOWERS. - SPECIAL DISPLAYS .- VISI-

Easter trade was good, better than for several years as reported by all we have several years as reported by an we have seen, and in the aggregate much better than ever. The money value of sales was anywhere from 25% to 40% larger than last year. Prices were about the same though good lilies sold at a higher figure. The weather was perfect, and conditions for delivering plants were just right. for delivering plants were just right.

There was enough good stock to go round, with but little left over. The only noticeable shortage was in violets and carnations. Cut flowers were in big demand.

Retail prices were as Iollows: Roses, $1.50 to $2.50 per dozen; Beauty, $4 to $9; carnations, 75 cents to $1; lilies, $3; valley, tulips, etc., 75 cents; violets, $2 to 83 per 100. Smilax was scarce, but an abundance of asparagus and some wild smilax and ferns helped to make up the deficiency. Several large consignments of roses and carnations were received from the east, all in good shape, and for once the grower did not pickle his stock to any great extent. In the plant line nearly everything sold well. Azaleas went well. Hydrangeas, well done and nicely colored were the freest sellers of any, though this stock was somewhat limited in quantity.

One very noticeable feature in this year's trade was the call for colored flowers, both in cut blooms and plants. Bulbous stock in general sold slowly. While cut blooms of tulips, daffodils, etc., are very handy in filling boxes of assorted flowers, their day of usefulness is drawing to a close, and in a few years more will be discarded entirely. If this prediction proves true, what will our Dutch friends use for a dumping ground?

Orders were for larger amounts than last season. Shipping trade was never better.

The church decorations here were not claborate. Lilies and palms constituted the bulk of the stock used in the wealthday schools gave small plants as souvenirs to the children, a very pretty custom, and one which will benefit the florist in many ways.

Aug. S. Swanson had a special Easter display in an elegant store on East Sixth street. L. L. May & Co. had an elegant display in their store and conservatory.

Chris. Hansen had his large store quite well filled with lilies, palms, etc. Holm & Olsen had their usual display of good things and an exceptionally fine trade. E. F. Lemke had a good stock of every-thing desirable and sold out early.

Dr. R. Schiffmann has returned from an extended Central American trip, where he went to look for orchids, his favorites. He secured some specimens of Lælia autumnalis and others of that family. The day of his return was signalized by his nomination for mayor on the Citizens Democratic ticket. We hope to record his election.

Mr. Waarnar, of Van Heemstra & Co., Holland, was a pleasant caller during Easter week, also Mr. Kuppers, repre-senting Wm. Hagemann, of Philadelphia. FELIX.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Post says Florist J. R. Freeman has been robbed by two employes, Richard Scrivener and Frank Hutton. They have been arrested and have confessed.

WAR PRICES!

Here's a chance for you to buy staple goods and get double value for your money. & We must make room for a big line of unmatchable novelties soon to arrive, so down go the prices on & & & & & & &

American Beauty Vases in many shapes. China Jardinieres and Ferneries Metal Work and Artificial Flowers Baskets in great variety.

WE are cleaning out balance of the season's stock as rapidly as possible.

JUST RECEIVED New Cape Flowers

Extra large and extra white. A limited stock only. Heavier invoices are on the way. Prices on application.

ITINERARY OF OUR MR. H. BAYERSDORFER WILL BE NOTED LATER.

🚜 SEND FOR LISTS 🥦

H. BAYERSDORFER & CO.

Importers and Manufacturers of Florists' Supplies,

50-52-54-56 N. Fourth St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

SMALL GREEN For use with.... VIOLETS

Work up beauutiflly. Stiff, wiry stems. Are all the rage.

Box of 5000, $5.00. Less quantity at $1.25 per 1000. ....ADDRESS....

HARLAN P. KELSEY, 1150 Tremont Bldg., - BOSTON, MASS.

Galay Leaves, Cut Palm Leaves, bouquet green, Moss (sphagnum and green), Laurel Roping, Ximas Trees; overything in the green line always in stock at

H. E. HARTFORD'S, 18 Chapman Place.

Rice & Co.

Exclusive Importers and Manufacturers of....

Florists' Supplies

25 N. 4th Street. PHILADELPHIA, PA.

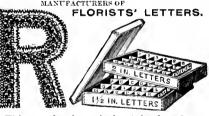

BRILLIANT GREEN AND BRONZE

GALAX LEAVES.

For Decorating and all Florists' Designs. CHAS. H. RICKSECKER, Linville, Mifchell Co., N. C.

If corresponding with an advertiser at any time, say "saw your ad. in the American Florist."

Boston Florist Letter Co.

This wooden box nicely stained and var-nished, 18x30x12 made in two sections, one for each size lefter, given away with first order of 500 letters.

Block Letters, 1 ½ or 2-inch size, per 100, $5.00. Script Letters, $4. Fastener with each letter or word. Used by leading thorists everywhere and for sale by all wholesale florists and supply dealers.

N. F. McCARTHY, Treas. and Manager, 84 Hawley St., BOSTON, MASS.

Have You Seen Our Agent? A Complete

Catalogue for Florists. Send lor One.

ELLIS & POLLWORTH MILWAUKEE, WIS.

John Conley & Son,

Manufacturers of

TIN FOIL

2 AND 4 DOMINICK STREET,

New York.

Northampton, Mass.

The third spring exhibition of the Northampton Horticultural Society opened under adverse circumstances, a howling wind and 6° of frost making the moving of plants anything but pleasant, but the big four managed to get up an exhibition which, though somewhat smaller than its predecessors, lacked nothing in quality and compared favorably with previous efforts. As usual, Mr. McGregor was the largest contributor and made a fine display of azaleas, cinerarias and bulbous stock; in carnations his seedlings excited considerable attention and two vases of Eldorado were superb. Clean healthy foliage, long stiff stems and blooms that measured three to three and one-half inches proved that this variety can be grown with good results. Mr. Canning, of the Botanic Garden, made a fine display consisting of marguerites, narcissi, hyacinths, etc. A nice plant of Tropæo-lum tricolorum occupied a conspicuous position; the narcissi and hyacinths were extra good. Mr. Alex. Parks filled four tables with a well-arranged assortment of azaleas, cytisus, calceolarias, spiræa, etc; he also showed some good blooms of Scott, Tidal Wave, Alaska and a pink sport from Scott, lighter in color, but larger and of better form. The N. L. Hospital made a display of spring flowering plants, including geranium Mars, which several florists pronounce an old variety renamed. On account of the inclemency of the weather, only three amateurs made exhibits of House partitions.

better luck next time.

G. W. THORNILEY. exhibits of house plants. Let us hope for ALLENTOWN, PA.-G. A. Ellsworth has moved his flower store from 726 to 522 Hamilton street.

Norwich, Conn.—Herman Appeldorn, of this city, on Tuesday, purchased the greenhouses, dwelling and barn on Sherman street. New London, heretofore occupied by William E. Pendleton, and will continue the business.

Beerhorst... & Van Leeuwen GROWERS SASSENHEIM, HOLLAND.

Dutch Bulbs

AND PLANTS FOR A TERICAN MARKET. Ask for Wholesule Prices.

We see a America until May 18th. Please address letters to

L. Van Leeuwen,

FARE COLONNADE HOTEL, 726 Broadway,

NEW YORK, N. Y.

VAN HEEMSTRA & GO. BULB GROWERS

SASSENHEIM, - HOLLAND.

BEFORE ordering Dutch Bulbs ask our quotations. Our stock enables us to make good offers. Address letters until May 15th to WARNAAR, Care KNAUTH, NACHOD & KUHNE, 13 William St., NEW YORK.

SASSENHEIM. VELD BROS. HOLLAND

OTHER BULBS. ALSO SHRUBS AND PLANTS.

THEY are strictly first-class and cheap. Special quotations for Wholesale Importers... Address all correspondence until May 15th to.......

H. VAN ZONNEVELD

care J. W. Hampton Jr. & Co , 41 Broadway, New York

N. Dames

EEEEEEE Vanderhorst

BULB GROWERS

Lisse and Heemstede, Holland,

is on his round trip through the United States. To spare time, we beg to send all letters and communications up to May 15, care of Knauth Nachod & Kuhne, 13 William St., New York.

Give us the list of your wants and we will send you our lowest quotations for real good stuff.

ULBS FOR FLORISTS... FOR SEEDSMEN.

VAN ZANTEN BROTHERS,

HILLEGOM.

HOLLAND.

IMPORTERS

JAPANESE PLANTS,

BULBS, ETC.

At lowest prices. Small orders filled from experimental garden Columbia Road Dorchester, Mass. Wholesale catalogue, 1878 free to the trade.

JAPANESE NURSERY.

Office: 272 Boylston St., BOSTON, MASS

IMPORTERS!

HAERENS BROS. From SAMERGAN near Ghent, Belgium

SPECIAL Growers and Exporters of Aza-leas, Palms, Araucarias and other SPECIAL Grawers and Exporters of Azaleas. Falms. Aranearias and other decorative plants, take pleasure to inform you that their Mr. Ara. HARRESS is now on his animal visit through the United States. The stock he offers is immense, of hest quality and at most reasonable prices. Their New Azaleas will be the favories of the luture. Write for price list and special offer until May 10th.

AUGUST HAERENS CARL OF .... VANDERGRIFT CO. 66 Beaver St., New York City.

BEST QUALITY

Holland Bulbs

LOWEST PRICES

JAC. WEZELENBURG

SASSENHEIM, HOLLAND.

Address up to May 1 in care of KNAUTH, NACHOD & KUHNE, 13 William St., NEW YORK. 🗻 🞿

Lilium Longiflorum

JAPAN GROWN

The stock of Japan Grown LILIUM LONGIFLORUM which we supplied last season has given excellent results as our many customers who grew them will testify, and we believe it will pay EVERY FLORIST who grows lilies for Easter and summer trade to plant at least one half of his crop with these Japan Longiflorum for the following reasons:

- I. They have shown comparative freedom from disease.
- II. Their good keeping qualities and strong substance of flower.
- III. They can be brought into bloom for Easter if planted in proper season.
- IV. Moderate cost.

We will be in position to make earliest possible delivery and can now quota advantageous prices.

Prices of L. Harrissi and all other Forcing Bulbs on application.

CHICAGO:

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

NEW YORK: 14 Barclay St.

HEADQUARTERS FOR

"FANCY" BULB STOCK AT REASONABLE PRICES.

THE LILY TO GROW FOR EASTER SALES

Are Asparagus Names Meaningless?

ED. AM. FLORIST: Will you kindly come to the relief of at least one florist who desires very much to know which is what? Lordered a few dozen plants of Asparagus plumosus nanus from one of the best companies and was much pleased with them when they came. But now I find a number of them want to get up to the glass, and seem to plead for a good twine to help them. I also sent to another good house for seed of A. plumosus nanus and behold an altogether different variety. In the first case I got what I should call A. plumosus, the climber; in the latter I got what I should call A. tennissimus, also a climber. In both cases I wanted the pot plant. Now, if nanus means anything it means dwarf, or the pot plant. I see A. plumosus nanus strings eight to ten feet long advertised, peculiar dwarf I was told by another company that they had ordered from six different houses and each time got mixed plants. I failed to take a good order because I could not assure the party that I had the nanus. Surely there is no excuse for this confusion, and dealers should be sure that what they send is exactly what is ordered. Please give us a little light on this subject. St. Cloud. Minn. E. V. CAMPBELL.

Worcester, Mass.

Good weather, plenty of plants and flowers and all the business we could handle, is the Easter story in a nutshell. It is encouraging to note that in spite of the general depression in business and in the face of an impending war, we can report a considerable increase in business compared with that of last year. Contrary to my anticipations, the supply of lilies was fully equal to the demand, the warm and sunny weather helping to get in some late batches that under ordinary circumstances would not have been available.

The biggest demand was for lilies in pots; the call for cut blies fell off considerably from that of last Easter, and though other flowers sold well, there is an increasing call for plants. Lilies, azaleas, tulips, lilac, both purple and white, filly of the valley, hyacinths and single and double narcissi in pots and pans were in most demand. In cut flowers, carnations, violets and roses, the same old trio, had the call. Everything was in adequate supply, with the exception of carnations and violets, and though we had a good supply of both there was not enough, there is no doubt of the popular opinion of these two favorites in this vicinity

The fine weather, no heavy wind, facilstated delivering greatly, and this is no small matter when you come to Harrisii lilies in pots, last year's heavy winds and rain being still a disagreeable memory. Lilies retailed at 25 cents per blossom in legitimate circles, the department stores and some of the unitators selling for 15 and to cents for buds, in other lines regular prices prevailed. One peculiar point in the trade this year was that it held off till the last minute. Friday's trade was very light, not at all in comparison to former years but we made up for it on Saturday and of course had to sweat for it doing theek's business in one day is no fun

In my notes of last week the name of the beginne speadist should have read A H L John Coulses SCIENCE FY J. J. Bullock was attested on J.c.h. 3 in a charge of embezziement from 6. P. Clark & Co.

Areca Lutescens

LARGE HEALTHY STOCK

| 3 | Plants. | 6-in. | Pot. | 24 to 32-in | . high. | very | bushy. | each |      |  | . $1.00 |
|---|---------|-------|------|-------------|---------|------|--------|------|------|------|--------------|
|   |         |       |      | 32 (o.36    |         |      |        |      |      |      |              |
| 3 | * *     | 8-in. |      | 36 to 42    | 4.4     | 4.1  |        |      |      |      |              |
| 3 |         | s-in  | 4 4  | 42 to 48    |         | 4.6  | * *    | * *  |  |  | 2 50     |
| 1 | 4.4     | m-in. | 4.5  | 4 to 5-ft   | . high. | ••   | * *    |      |  |  | 5 00     |

ALL MEASUREMENTS FROM TOP OF POL.

JOSEPH HEAGOGK, Phila., ra. WYNCOTE,

J. L. SCHILLER, 34th St., NEW YORK CITY. Please mention American Florist. 404 E. 34th St..

Crotons...

__IN VARIETY

Rothschild, Hawkeri, Interruptum, Evansianoun, Rubra Lineata, Andreanum, Aurea Mac-ulatum and others, suitable for hedding. Fine plants in 3-meh pots $2.00 per doz. New and rare varieties, 50 cents each.

rare varieties, so cents each.

Aurea Maculatum, extra fine plants in 4-in, pots $2.50 per doz.; $15 per 100; 3-inch pot plants $2 per doz.; $12 per 100; thumb pots, $1 per doz., $6 per 100.

Edwin Lonsdale,

Money Order Office, Station H. Phila

Horist, CHESINUT BILL. PHILA., PA.

Cycas, Palms and Agaves

ONLY was saxty leaves thirty-eight to forty four inches long, six feet diameter, two Latania Borbonica sax feet high ten feet diameter; four yeaves five feet high, seven foeight feet diameter. A plants healthy, in good tubs

Lock Box 49, WAPPINGERS FALLS, N. Y.

Just Arrived

IN TIME CONDITION. ODONTOGLOSSUM CRISPUM, MILTONIA ROEZLII, and CATTLEYA CHOCOENSIS.

ROBI. CRAIG & SON

and Novelties to Decorative Plants.

Market and 49th Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

ASPARAGUS SPRENGERII

For one week (before potting up) we offer small dormant 1-year roots  $\omega$  \$5.00 per 100. These bulbs will quickly make strong 2½-inch pot

plants

Ficus Elastica, true, large leaf variety, 6 inch pots, 20 me hes high @ 50c each.

Crimson Rambler Roses, extra fine, bushy plants, in 4-inch pots, will soon bloom, per dozen, $2.00, per 100, $15.00.

Cycas Revoluta, dormant stems, size from 3 to 10 lb. @ 15c per lb.

Clothide Soupert, the great pot rose, our stock is A No. 1, 2-in. @ $3.00; 21<sub>e</sub>-in. @ $4.00; 3-in. @ $6.00; 31<sub>e</sub>-in. pot plants, in named varieties, per 100, $5.00.

Pelargoriums Mme, Thibaut, Mrs. Robt, Sandiford.

Pelargoniums Mme. Thibaut, Mrs. Robt. Sandiford.
Edward Perkins and Dorothy. Strong 3-inch stock, per doz., $1.50; per 100, $12.00.
For Cannas, Carnations, Chrysanthemums, send its your list; we have all kinds.
H. P. Roses, dormant, 2-year, extra line stock @ $12.00 per 100.
Clematis, Ampelopsis Veitchi, Hollyhocks, Paonies, Hydrangeas P. G., etc. we have in large quantities; write us for prices.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

CHICAGO: Creenhouses: Western Springs, III. 84-86 Randolph St.

...FINE...

DECORATIVE PLANTS

JOHN H. LEY, Good Hope, D. C.

Solicits early orders for following line stock: NEPHROLEPIS, D. Furcans Hach. Doz. 31.44 feet over, full, splendid plants 50 or more fronds (in pans)......$2.00 $18.00 NEPHROLEP-S. O. Furcans Very large, full of fronds, 3 feet over (i-lnch pots, iff for 8-lnch)...... 1.00 9.00

Rose Hill

Store and Greenhouse plants, Fern At occasion Pandanus

SIEBRECHT & SON, New Rochelle, N. Y. New York Office, 409 Fifth Ave.

Syracuse, N. Y.

Our Easter plant trade this year by no means came up to our expectations, and was far from satisfactory to those who make a feature of growing high-grade flowering plants. Never was a finer lot of stock seen in the city, and what caused such an unprecedented poor demand is a mystery. The trade in them during Lent was excellent, far surpassing previous seasons. This naturally led to less stock being wholesaled at Easter, which added greatly to the glut. Azaleas received a severe black eye, and pots and pans of bulbous plants fared not much better; realize, after a trip through the large stores Saturday evening, that Easter was over, the vacancies on the tables being hardly perceptible.

The only plants that found a ready sale and were sold out clean, were Crimson Rambler and hybrid roses. Ramblers brought from $3 to $5 each. A limited quantity of hydrangeas and marguerites also went well. One of the most noticeable features of the trade this year was, that for other than the above named plants, the demand was for cinerarias, white hyacinths, and other small plants such as begonias, etc., that sold from 25c to 75c. Palms were out of the question, and whatever struck the demand for and whatever struck the definition ferneries this year is a commundrum. Last Easter one firm alone sold over one this year a solitary one. The hundred, this year a solitary one. The weather was all that could be desired, both for safe delivery and bringing out a crowd. So far no complaints have been heard of about damaged plants.

Although a decrease in plants, there was a marked increase in the sale of cut flowers, carnations leading, with roses and violets next in order. Lily of the valley and daffodils and other bulbous stock did not sell at all, and the enormous quantity that was grown was a dead loss, other than making a show. The supply of flowers was equal to the demand, and prices ruled about the same as last year. The quality of violets and roses was better than last year; carna-The quality of violets and tions about the same, although there was quite a lot of very inferior stock of the latter shipped in from the east. The report from nearly all sources is that the total sales in money value, were about equal to that of last year.

Visitors in town—Herman C. Bartman, Van Waveren, and H. Van Teylingen.

ALPHA.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.—San Jacinto day, April 21, will be celebrated by a "battle of flowers."

REDUCED PRICES

-Very Fine Rooled-

Taken from our "Prize" Stock.

McCOWAN ALASKA ALBERTINI HELEN KELLER ARMAZINDY
DAYBREAK
$2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

SOUTH PARK FLORAL CO., New Castle, Ind.

ROSES, VERBENAS, VIOLETS

Invariably at these prices.

Cash with Order. F. WALKER & CO.

Box 316. New Albany, Ind.

Chrysanthemum Mrs. A. F. Wienold

WE claim this to be one of the grandest early whites yet sent out. Originated with us 3 years ago and given a thorough test. It is earlier than Bergmann. Flowers 7 to 11 inches in diameter; is easy to grow; a splendid keeper and above all never shows its center. Except in color it looks like a well grown Golden Wedding. Select stock, 2\(\frac{1}{2}\)-in. pots, 20e each; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

CAL. VIOLETS. No disease. Strong runners. 50c per 100; $4 per 1000. MCDONALD & STEELE, Crawfordsville, Ind.

Ghrysanthemum PRESIDENT GRAHA

Yellow Sport of JEROME JONES.

It received the highest points and a Certificate of Merit at the Cleveland Chrysanthemum Show. It is in Yellow what Jerome Jones is amongst the White. The very best for late blooming. 2½-in. pot plants, strong, $2.50 per doz.; $20.00 per 100. Stock ready April 15th.

E. J. PADDOCK, 295 Erie St., CLEVELAND. OHIO.

CARNATIONS FROM

Cathlene Pantlind, $10 per 100. Flora Hill, $5 per 100. Beauties, 2 1-2 in., $6 per 100. Carnots, 2 1-2 in., $4 per 100.

HOPP & LEMKE, Paul P. O. E. Grand Rapids, Mich.

To Make Room

The Morris Floral Co., MORRIS. ILL.

Plants Now Ready * $10,00 per 100 60.00 per 1000

JOHN BURTON, PHILADELPHIA, PA. Chestnut Hill

Please mention the American Florist

lora Hill

AND 25 OTHER VARIETIES, LOW TO CLOSE OUT.....

GRAFTED TEA ROSES, $15 per hundred.

H. F LITTLEFIELD, Worcester, Mass.

20.000 CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Najor Bonnaffon. $2.60 per 100 or $15.00 per 1000; President Snith, Eda Prass. $1.50 per 100 or $15.00 per 100; President Snith, Eda Prass. $1.50 per 100 or $12.00 per 100.0 Ceraniums—the best mixed varieties for bedding, 34-theb pots, showing buds. $2.50 per 100 or $18.00 per 1000; 24-inch pots, $2.00 per 100 or $18.00 per 1000. Cash with order or satisfactory reference.

PAXTON GREENHOUSES,

C. E. Taube, Prop.

SWELL YOUR BANK ACCOUNT

By growing Emily Pierson Carnations, the most profitable Red Carnation in cultivation. Clean healthy grower, large full flowers with fine stem. Our house, 70x20 feet, from which we have been cutting since September, has 20,000 buds in sight to-day. We can supply fine rooted cuttings at $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per 1000. Cash with order.

South Side Floral Co., Springfield, III.

New CARNATIONS.

WHITE CLOUD—White.
GOLD NUGGET—Yellow.
NEW YORK (Ward)—Bright cerise pink.
MRS. JAMES DEAN (Ward)—Clear silvery pink.
JOHN YOUNG (Ward)—White.
BON TON (Ward)—Scarlet.
Prices for above varieties: $2.00 per doz., $10.00
per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

We will also have Cerise Queen (Breitmeyer),
Argyle (Stollery), Jack Frost (Swayne), Empress (Swayne), Evelina (Witterstaetter), Firefly (Hancock), Psyche (Hill), Painted Lady
(Hill), and Mrs. S. A. Northway (Simmons).

All good 1897 novelties and other standard varieties at reasonable prices.

New Chrysanthemums.

MRS. C. H. PEIRCE—Yellow.
35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.
SNOW QUEEN—White.
50c each, $5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100.
MERRY CHRISTMAS—Late White.
35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

Send for Descriptive Price List. Ready January, 1898.

F. DORNER & SONS CO. LAFAYETTE, IND.

NATHAN SMITH & SON

Wholesale Florists

Specialties & & JG ADRIAN, MICH.

> CHRYSANTHEMUMS CARNATIONS *** AND VIOLETS

· · · CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED · ·

CARNATIONS

STRONG, HEALTHY ROOTED CUTTINGS Ready Feb. 1st and Later

Including Morello, Flora Hill, Daybreak, Wm. Scott, Lizzie McGowan, Ivory, Silver Spray, Emily Pierson, Goldfinch, Eldorado, and others. Send me a list of what you want and get prices before you buy. We also have a line lot of Carnation and Violet blooms for sale. Write for prices.

CHAS. CHADWICK,

Lock Box II.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Pittsburg.

The florists of Pittsburg and Allegheny are extremely well pleased with the business transacted at Easter, all having done considerably more than last year or the year before, in fact many of them had all they could do, even with a greatly increased force of help to fill their orders, and fortunately the supply of flowers was abundantly large, consequently the consumer and dealer were alike satisfied. Prices were generally above the regular rates prevailing previously, but were not raised so high as to prevent the develop-ment of a very greatly increased demand. The call for palms and genistas was noticeably less than informer years; lilies and hyacinths in pots much larger; other plants about the usual demand. Since Easter trade has been fairly good, there is nothing to complain about.

In my notes published October 23, 1897, reference was made to a report received from Holland that Mr. P. Vos, of Sassen-heim, had failed in business. His many friends in this country will be greatly pleased to learn that such was not the case; a document from the recorder of the District Court of Justice at the Hague certifies that the firm of P. Vos & Co. had never been declared by said court to be in a state of bankruptcy. This is certainly indisputable evidence that the report received last fall was erroneous, and it affords me great satisfaction to have it corrected in a way that can leave no doubt about the standing of Messrs. P.

Vos & Co. E. C. Ludwig, Allegheny, reports business good, and especially so at Easter; he increased the number of hands for that time to more than quadruple the number usually employed, and then the entire staff had all they could do to finish everything complete. Chas. Camp, Mr. Ludwig's right-hand man, is confined to the house this week by sickness. Elliott & Ulam, Pittsburg, also have a good report of Easter business, it being the greatest in amount they have ever had, and they are correspondingly happy.

Gustave Ludwig, Allegheny, has been very busy for some time, and his Easter business was nearly double that of last year. In funeral work he had a very extra piece last week Lient, Jenkins, of the ill-fited warship Maine, was buried here (his birthplace) and Mr. Ludwig furnished a floral design of the ship. It was seven feet on the water part, the boat itself being over five fect in length; the base was made of ivy leaves and white roses, and the hull of pink carnations; the explosion was represented by red sprays, the fire and smoke by red carnations and black immortelles, the whole requiring the united work of eight persons for more than a night to complete it, and when done it was a most excellent representation of the Maine.

Mr. F. W. O. Schmitz, of Jersey City, N. J., was a visitor this week; he reports trade good.

PRICE LIST of rooted cuttings of New Carnation

GENESEE

| t  | dez | en or | up, prepaid | l by ma | il or expi | ess $ 1. | 35    |      |
|----|-----|-------|-------------|---------|------------|-----------|-------|------|
|    |     |       |             |         |            | 10.0      |       | t00  |
|    |     |       |             |         | charges    | 8.4       | 0 per | t0)  |
|    | 250 |       | .,          | 44      |            | 7.0       |       |      |
|    | 500 | 4.4   | 64          |       |            | 6         |       |      |
| ١, | 000 | 6.6   | 44          | 44      |          | 65.0      | o per | t000 |

Descriptive illustrated and priced circular free.

Sales Agent, Buffalo, N. Y. DAN'L B. LONG.

CARNATION

It sells because there is nothing in sight to at all equal it. It speaks for itself where-ever grown. It is fragrant. It is the largest bloom. It puts all others in the shade. Nothing past or present to equal it. We have four thousand plants exclusively for propagating from; don't allow them to bloom. Send at once and get the best stock ever offered. $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Our trade list is issued. If you have not received one send for it.

E. G. HILL & CO., Richmond, Ind.

RICH CRIMSON

Perfection in color; always in demand—Good stock now ready, $10,00 per 100; $75,00 per 1000; or $2,00 per 400. Strong plants from soil. All the leading varieties.

NEW CARNATION....

The largest, bright rich crimson yet introduced

ampress

Send for price list of above, New and Standard Sorts....

$300 CARNATION PRIZE See half page ad, in issue of March 26th. Send for our circular. AMERICAN ROSE COMPANY, 80x 422 WASHINGTON PARKS.

Carnations Chrysanthemums

NEW AND STANDARD VARIETIES

will embrace the lead-and 186 as well as the

H. WEHER & SONS.

Oakland, Md.

NIW were CARNATION ARGY

> A few left at the following price of of $10.00 per 100. 175,00 per 1000.

STOLLERY BROS.

CHICAGO, ILL.

Experiences

. . . with . . .

will be cultural as well as descrip-tive, and sent free to all applicants. I Guarantee all cuttings sent out and offer a Special Guarantee to all buyers of Flora Hill and Triumph.

ALBERT M. HERR,

.... LANCASTER, PA

THE BEST OF THE NEW PINK CARNATIONS

Mrs. Frances

A WINNER EXERYMENT DE

$2.00 per dozen $10.00 per 100 $75.00 per 1000 Cash with order.

C, BESOLD, Mineola, L. I., N. Y. ®KEEKEELEEEEEEEEEEEEEEE April Offer,

Per 100 Alternanthera A. Nana, $1.75; P. Major.....$2.00 Coleus Asst. and Centaurea Gymnocarpa.... 2.00 Geraniums, 16 Var., 21/2-in. pots, $2.50; 3-in., 3.75 Geraniums, 4-in. pots and Marguerites (Paris Daisy)..... 5.00 Pansy plants from cold frames and Smilax .... 1.00 CASH PLEASE.

JOS. H. CUNNINGHAM, Delaware, Ohio.

Special Certificate of Merit.

The best selling, most floriferous and dwarfed Geraniums ever introduced,.....

FOR SALE BY-

FOR SALE BI

HENRY A. DREER, Philadelphia, Pa.

F. R. PIERSON CO., Tarrytown, N. Y.

J. G. VAUGHAN, Chicago, III.

COTTACE CARDENS, New York. AND THE INTRODUCER

HENRY EICHHOLZ, - Waynesboro, Pa. FRANKLIN CO.

PANSIES WE grow over a million from the choicest seeds of Bugnot, Cassier, odier and Trimardeau, transplanted last November in cold frames; large plants now ready to bloom, 60c per 100; $4.00 per 1000; Mammoth Verbenas, 70c per 100; $5.50 per 1000; Joule Geraniums, in bud and bloom, such as S. A. Nutt, Gen'l Grant, La Favorite and many others equally as good, 4-inch, $6.00 per 100.

3-in., $4.00 per 100.

FUCHSIAS, very branchy, loaded with bloom, 4-inch, $10.00 per 100.

BELIOTROPE, 4-inch, $6.00 per 100.

VINCAS, extra heavy, 4-inch, $8.00 per 100.

All the above are very bushy and well branched.

All the above are very bushy and well branched.

WHITTON & SONS.

Wholesale Florists.

City and Green Sts.,

UTICA, N. Y.

COLEUS Rooted Cuttings Well Rooted ...

Scarlet Verschaffeltii, Golden Verschaffeltii. Fire King, Fire Brand, Tam O'Shanter, S. P. Gem, Alliambra, Golden Crown, Midnight, Salvator, John Goode, Nigger, 15c per doz.; 75c per 100; $5 per 1000; express paid.

S. T. DANLEY, Macomb, III.

Always mention the.....

American Florist

when writing advertisers.

PANSIES
THE JENNINGS STRAIN.
THEY ARE GRAND.
Fine-stocky plants in bud
and bloom, $10 and $15 per to by mail. Pansy seed, $1.00 per pkt. Aster seed, Semple's pink, $1.00 per oz. Cash with order.

E. B. JENNINGS.

Lock Box 254. SOUTHPORT, CONN. Crower of the Finest Pensies.

THE CHOICEST VARIETIES 100,000 VERBENAS. IN CULTIVATION.

Fine pot plants, $2.50 per 100; $20 per 1000. Rooted Cuttings, 75c per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $50 per 10000. NO RUST OR MILDEW.

PACKED LIGHT, AND SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. SEND FOR CIRCULAR.
We are the Largest Growers of Verbenas in the country. Our plants cannot be surpassed.

J. L. DILLON, Bloomsburg, Pa.

GERANIUMS

PINK, RED and WHITE Best Bedders. . . Thousands Ready.

.....WRITE....,

GEO. A. KUHL, = PEKIN, ILL.

West Islip Greenhouses

Rooted Runners, $4 per 1000. Casb with order.

E. B. SUTTON, Jr. P. O. Address... BABYLON, N. Y.

Hydrangeas

Fine plants with 10 to 30 blooms per plant. 10 cents per bloom...

JOHN SCOTT, Keap St. Greenhouses, BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Several Thousand

Arundo

Well rooted out propagating bed... Make us an offer for same....

Donax

A. C. OELSCHIG, jerrerererererererere ji

ASTER WHITE COME

Pure white. Trade pkt. 25c; oz., $2.00; fine mixed, oz., $1.75; tall Victoria, white, dark blue and pink, trade pkt., 25c; oz., $2.00; fine mixed, oz., $1.75. All the other seeds at market prices; trade list and sample on application.

H. BEAULIEU, Woodhaven, Q. B., New York.

FAXON'S "WHITE .. PANSIES.

The best mixture in cultivation, flowers very large, thick and velvety; of superb colors and markings. The perfection of form and texture.

In Trade Packets at $1.00 each.

M. B. FAXON,

Lock Box 1528.

528. BOSTON, MASS. Correspondence solicited.

IN BEST VARIETIES. ROSES, from 3-inch pots.

from 3-inen pots.
CARNATIONS, for fall delivery.
CHRYSANTHEMUMS.
SMILAX.

VIOLETS. Prices low. Send for list.

WOOD BROTHERS, FISHKILL, N.Y.

CLEMATIS Jackmanni, Henryll doz. 100 and others......$3.00 $20.00

DOWNING, best for general crop, special

prices,
PAEO*IES, fine ass't of colors and kinds $1.25 $8.00 $2.50 SMILAX, extra strong plants ....

F. A. BALLER, Bloomington, III.

KLONDIKE

Cold Fields at Your Door.

COLEUS—All kinds, all grades and all prices. Verschaffeltil and Queen. 75c per 100; $6.00 per 1000; 2½-inch pots. $15.00 per 1000; $1.75 per 100. Coleus in variety. 55c per 100; $1.00 per 1000; $2.00 per 1000; $1.50 per 100. $1.50

J. E. FELTHOUSEN, Schenectady, N. Y.

CARNATIONS AND COLEUS

ROOTED CUTTINGS

THE 1898 INTRODUCTIONS THE 1897 INTRODUCTIONS

DAYBREAK of special quality.
ROOTED COLEUS in variety.
Cood stock only. Price list free.

DAN'L B. LONG, Growers' Agent, BUFFALO.

5,000 SMILAX...

From flats, by mall, 50c per 100, $4.00 per 1000 From 2-1nch pots, $2.25 per 100, $13.00 per 1000 Gersaltums from 2-1nch pots, $2.25 per 100; $20,00 per 1000. Cash with the order. Send for samples. Fred Boerner, CAPE MAY CITY, N.J.

PRICES GREATLY REDUCED Cape Cod Pink Pond Lily

For price lists, Plants and Cut Flowers, address the original cultivators.....

CHIPMAN BROS.

SANDWICH, & (CAPE COD), & MASS.

LETTUCE AND OTHER... VEGETABLE PLANTS

LETTUCE-Big Boston, Boston Market, Tennis Bnll. Grand Rapids and Reichner's Forcing, 15 cts. per 100; $1.00 per 1000

TOMATO, CABBAGE and CELERY-Small plants for transplanting now ready. 15cts. per 100; $1.00 per 1000. Pepper and Egg Plants—25cts.per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

CAULFLOWER, Snowball—35 cts per 100; $2.50 per 1000; ff by mall add 10 cts. per 100 for small plants, and 50 cts. per 1000. Send for price list. Cash with order.

R. VINCENT, Jr. & SON, White Marsh, Md.

St. Louis.

SPLENDID INCREASE IN EASTER BUSINESS IS REPORTED.-ROSES SOLD WELL.-WHAT F. G. UDE, OF KIRKWOOD, IS DOING .- NEW THINGS FROM MISSOURL

Easter has come, and with its departure it has left many tired but happy florists; the reports from almost all persons interviewed are that business was of a very satisfactory nature, the increase reported being from one-quarter to one-half as much again as last season. The weather, to make up for its disagreeableness during the opening week of April, was perfect on Easter Sunday and the two days preceding.

Plants more than held their own in the competition with cut flowers as suitable presents, and the way in which they were cleaned up should encourage the growing of them more generally for this occasion. A very marked difference was noted in the demand for stock in the different sections of the city. The down town stores handled about the usual quantity of plants, but noted a heavy increase in the call for cut flowers, while the west end stores increased most heavily in the plant trade. Prices ruled about as usual, that is usual Easter prices, and no objections were heard to the amounts asked for goods, parties wishing to purchase apparently being able and willing to pay.

Stock was in fair supply, nothing having been left on hand except white carnations which were too abundant. Roses of all kinds cleaned up readily, likewise colored carnations, and Harrisü lilies, as reported, were in rather short supply; more could have been used had they been obtainable. Despite the warm weather bulbons stock was everywhere, and large quantities of it were moved, at a low figure, however; Beents for Von Sions, Beents for Romans, B and 4 cents for filly of the valley. Pickled stock als) was in evidence, not so much from the home growers as from out-of-town points. While not abundant there was enough of it to make the recipients very sore on the shippers. Prices had held up well preceding Easter and good returns would have been made had the stock been sent in when due; it is however getting to be the usual custom for prices to remain up preceding an occasion of this kind, and maybe in the future the disadvantages of discarding a good price with the chance of a better one or total loss a few days later will force itself upon growers Since Easter cool wet weather has again put in an appearance, and has had a tendency to quiet what little trade was doing. Weddings, however, are all the talk, and from the engagements announced they should keep the florists going until the school commencements.

T 6 I de, of Kirkwood, is cutting fine carnations, Daybreak, Jubilee, and others. he is convinced that there are two strains of Armazindy carnations on the market, is those of that variety he grows are distinct from it as seen elsewhere; the spinnin has been advanced that his variation, it we may call it so, is caused by the soil and cultivation cuttings, however, taker from plants foreign to his place, rooted and grown in the same manner and soil as his, still show a pronounced documbants in habit of growth and color of foliage, the companionship will be continued when planting time comes to see if the paration; permanent A novelty upon shall agood many jokes are made and trans which much is expected is a white sport translative translational, a little larger and a stronger grower than the latter Anyone kneeding Mr. Ude and his careful methods, and he sure that it is a white Daybreak and a change else. Stock is being worked up and quite a nice batch is expected to be ready for planting in the houses next fall. Upon some 2-inch plants of Victor recently received from the east more rust and disease were noted than upon the 8,000 home grown, Jubilee and Uncle John included. Herman Ude was busy putting a tank on a tower with the assistance of Theodore Richter, another carnationist. Herman pinned his faith to California violets last season, and as a result is putting up water works, and is to rebuild one of his old houses. When asked about the newer varieties of violets he said: "California is good enough for me." Quite a patch of sweet peas sown in the open ground last fall were an inch or two out of the soil. Our last freeze hurt them to some extent, but not more than they will outgrow. quhar was tried here some time ago, the first year of its introduction, and proved identical with Marie Louise. The seller must have had his stock badly mixed, or did the packer take stock from the wrong side of a label.

Charley I'de was also "init" with California last season, and is about to build a duplicate of the house erected last season for carnations and violets. Carnations here were showing up well, particularly Silver Spray and Portia. At present writing a light frost is predicted for to wighty should be the for to-night; should it be heavy, considerable damage will be inflicted upon fruit, which is well advanced.

The directors of the Exposition Association have accepted the terms proposed by the exhibition committee for the use of the Coliscum for the next flower show. This insures our having an ample opportunity to show what can be done in the way of having a properly arranged and managed exhibition. Owing, however, to the horse show management having the dates desired by the club it will be held one week later, from the 15th to the 19th. Being a week later than the general run of shows throughout the country, it is expected that outside parties will be much better represented than beretofore. The Lindell Flower Store, situated under the Lindell Hotel, has closed. R. F. T.

Nashville, Tenn.

The Easter trade was a surprise even to florists themselves in this city. The indications early promised an unusual volume of business, nor were they disappointing. I venture the assertion that more flowers were sold in the three days, including Easter Sunday, than were ever sold on any similar occasion in this city. The call was for cut flowers largely, with a good demand for potted plants. Easter lilies were in great demand, and the supply was exhausted long before night on Saturday.

There was fully 50% increase on sales over last year. The supply was abundant and of good quality. Homegrown stock was plentiful, and commanded fair prices, though there was no excessive price on anything. Roses, good stock, sold at $1.80 to $2 per dozen, American Beauty went from $4 to $6. Other prices were in proportion. Easter Other prices were in proportion. lilies were in good supply considering the very late date, and at first sales seemed doubtful, but everything was taken, and numbers of ealls could not be supplied at the last. There was a large lot of shipped stock sold here, the quality excellent and prices good.

Taken all in all, the Easter trade was very satisfactory, and florists were ready to shut up and go home by 2 p. m., at which time a heavy shower came on, but the dealer had already gotten in his work and sold out his stock.

M. C. Dorris.

OTTAWA, CAN.—Mr. James Hickey's conservatories, on Bank street, were unfortunately burned April 2. The loss on the building is perhaps $100, but the loss through destroyed plants will be very great.

Roses! Roses! Roses!

Atra fine selected stock of all the leading varie

Bride, Bridesmaid, Catherine Mermet, Madame Hoste, Mrs. Pierpont Morgan, Perle des Jardins, Meteor, at $5.00 per 100. La France, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Mrs. W. C. Whitney, Souvenir de Wootton, Madame Caroline Testout and Pres. Carnot at $5.50 per 100. Clara Watson and American Beauty at $8.00 per 100.4.4.4.4

WRITE FOR SPECIAL PRICES FOR LARCE QUANTITIES.

JOHN N. MAY,

Summit, New Jersey.

ROSES...

PERLES
METEORS
BRIDESMAID

21, 42, 50, 3, 30, 50
BRIDE

Cooranteed Brit-class Stock grown in low temperature,

THE E. HIPPARD CO., Youngstown, Ohio.

300,000 YOUNG ROSES 300,000

Ramblers, Climb. Malmaison, Climb. White Per, Climb, Wootton, Pres. Carnot and 100 other leaders in Teas, IL Teas and Climbers. Moon Vines, $2.50 per 100.

Sould for prices

The National Plant Company, Dayton, Ohio.

NEW FORCING ROSE MRS. ROBT. GARRETT

Hybrid tea, rich soft pink, buds very fong, flower extra large delightfully fragrant, rivaling Bridesmaid in color, but larger and much more productive. A stordy, vigorous grower, a money maker and a triumph of American skill. The best firms in the country are investing in it. It has won numerous prizes and has elicited the most favorable comment from critical judges. Price strong plants from Py-inch pots, $25,00 per 100 in lots less than 1000, $555,00 per 1000. Orders booked now, delivery March 15, 1898, Correspondence solicited. Address

H. WEBER & SONS, Oakland, Md.

New Haven, Conn.

The uncertain March weather which ushered in the beginning of the week preceding Easter boded ill to flowers and florists in this locality. But after a small-sized blizzard on Tuesday and a slight fall of snow on Wednesday, the elements took on a better temper, and the latter part of the week was all that could be desired. With the pleasant condition of the weather the florists' hopes arose, and the trade was fully up to the standard of last year.

Many merchants made special displays, S. H. Moore & Co., J. N. Champion & Co., Robt. Veitch & Sons, and F. S. Platt all had extra space, where displays were made. All report trade as good, despite drawbacks in the way of war gossip, etc.

Potted plants, as is usual at Easter, were in large demand. Novelties in this line were many and unique. Japanese fern balls attracted much attention and sold readily. Among the newest things were lilac plants of small, sturdy growth in full blossom, and the Palmer violet plants, sold by Champion & Co., both of which went quickly, and of which the supply was insufficient.

S. II. Moore & Co. had a very attractive window of Scotch heather plants of small size and stocky growth and sold many of them.

Carnations were high in price, going up from 35 cents to 75 cents and $1 a dozen. Even at this price, the highest these flowers have brought since last Easter, the demand exceeded the supply. The figure on violets remained without any increase, but sold in plenty at $1.50 per hundred. Roses were by no means short in supply. Jacqs. sold for $4 a dozen, Brides and Bridesmaids at $3. Beauties were scarce at $12. Among the potted plants, azaleas followed close upon the Easter lilies, and were exceptionally good. They brought from $1 to $4 each. The demand for tulips was good. Daffodils went more

MUST HAVE ROOM

CERANIUMS-10.000 S. A. Nutt. 2-luch. $15 (0 per 1000; $2.00 per 100. Rooted Cuttings from soil, $10 00 per 1000; $150 per 100 Mixed standard varieties same price. Mme. Brusnt. 2-luch $3 00 per 100. BECONIA Vernon, 2-luch $2 00 per 100 CARNATION Lizzie McCowan, soil or pots, $10.00 per 1000. Cash please.

CARL HAGENBURGER, West Mentor, Ohio.

Double Hollyhocks

Fine plants, one-year-old, grown from

Pansy Plants Large flowering kinds.

Verbenas, Carnations and other stock.

Send for Price List.

S. W. PIKE, St. Charles, III.

Violet Plants...

Marie Louise

Strong healthy rooted runners, ..... $ 6.00 per 1000 Sand struck cuttings. 10.00 per 1000 Grower of One Million Violets. Cash with order to be filled when purchaser

GEORGE SALTFORD, -Rhinebeck, N. Y.

Write for Prices

of Beauties, Meteors, Belle Siebrecht, Perles, Maids and Brides in 2-inch, same varieties and La France and V Kaiserm in 3-inch, Smilax in 2-inch. If samples are wanted send 50c in stamps.

GEO. A. KUHL, - PEKIN, ILL.

When corresponding with advertisers, mention the AMERICAN FLORIST.

Per 100 DOUBLE PETUNIA, Dreer's strain, strong......$2.50

RUSSELIA JUNCEA, 21/2-in., strong 3.00

AMPELOPSIS VEITCHII, 21/2-in..... 2.50 PALM Latania Borbonica, 21/2-inch,

3 to 4 leaves, per 1000, $40.00, 4.50

THOS. A. McBETH, Springfield, O.

EXTRA FINE ROOTED CUTTINGS BY MAIL.

CAINA FINE NUULEU GUIINGS BY MAIL.

Ageratum—Morton's Perfection Mexicanum. 75 cts. oer 100. Coleus—10 standard named varieties, mixed. 60 cts. per 100; 85.00 per 1000. Carnations—Eldorado and Mrs. Fisher, 81.00 per 100; 89.00 per 1000. Daissies—Marguerite, yellow and white, 81.00 per 100. Fuchsias—3 leading varieties, 75 cts. per 100. Ceraniums—10 standard bedders, 81.00 per 100. Fuchsias—3 leading varieties, 75 cts. per 100. Ceraniums—10 standard bedders, 81.00 per 100. Spopper 1000. Swainsona—Alba Perfects, 81.00 per 100. Spopper
MILLBROOK LEA GREEN HOUSES, WHITFORD, PA.

CRIMSON RAMBLER YELLOW RAMBLER (

dormant. field-grown plants 2 to 3 feet high.

Price $1.75 per 10: $15 per 100. Write for list of other stock. Roses, Shrubs, Currants, Fruit Trees, &c.

Jackson & Perkins Co. NEWARK, NEW YORK.

SURPLUS STOCK

3000 Red and Yeilow Alternanthera in 2½-in. pots and well-colored, fine plants, $1.00 per 100, or $8 per 1000,..... 75 Alocasia Odora, 4-inch pots, good strong plants, 10c each. Uash with order, Address....

J. F. BROWN, FLORIST, Care S. & S. Home. Lock Box 5. Knightslown, Ind.

HARDY PINKS

2½-in, pots; Sony, de Sale, $3.50 per 100; Her Majesty, Glen Valley, Laura Wilmer, Ger-trude, $3.00 per 100.

VIOLETS...

21<sub>2</sub>-in. pots; Admiral Avellon, Princess of Wales, $3.50 per 100; Luxonne, California, Campbell, Swanley White, $3.00 per 100.

*********

THE CONARD & JONES CO.. - West Grove, Pa.

Surplus Stock

Can be disposed of by advertising. Try it .....

......

This Size "Ad." Costs Only $1.00.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO., CHICAGO.

ROSES OWN ROOTS OF DORMANT

FIELD GROWN

IN COLD STORAGE IN CHICAGO.

No. 1, 2 to 4 feet, cut back to 2 feet
Yetlow Rambler (Aglaia)
Hybrid Perpetuals,
Mosses, Hardy Climbers
and Madam Plantier

These plants are very strong and well shaped. Prices on application. Address

W. F. HEIKES, Manager,

1308-1310 Unity Bldg., - CHICAGO, ILLS.

AM. BEAUTY

I have a nice stock for early stock for early planting; 3-in, pots, $6.00 per extra strong, $10.00 per 100; a few 5-in, $13.00 per 100. California Violets, extra large clumps, $5.00 per 100, will divide up into 10 to 15 plants. Austria Canmas, strong plants (a 2c.

CANNAS NEW AMERICAN Finest in the World Our Novelties for 1898

DUKE OF MARLBORO, darkest crimson Per 100
DUCHESS OF MARLBORO, only pure pink. 30.00
DUCHESS OF MARLBORO, only pure pink. 30.00
LORRAINE, pink, edged white, fine. 30.00
LORRAINE, pink, edged white, fine. 30.00
MAIOENS BLUSH, delicate flesh color. 15.00
CUBA, tinest and largest gilt edged. 40.00
CUBA, innest and largest gilt edged. 40.00
CUBA, lenst and largest gilt edged. 40.00
CHAMPION, largest, glowing crimson. 15.00
CHAMPION, largest, glowing scarlet. $5.00 each
KLONDIKE, only large pure orange. $2.50
Send for complete list of 50 novelties and 200
standard varieties at lowest prices.

OUR CANNAS IN FRANCE.

OUR CANNAS III.

To Messrs A. Blanc & Co.
Your new cannas of last year gave me much satisfaction. Please send me a complete set of your novelties for ISSR as soon as ready. Also 12 Glant Crimson, etc. Signed CH. MOLIN, Lyon, France, Jan. 3, ISS.

ASPARAGUS SPRENGERI

Fine plants in 6-inch pots, ready for 8-inch, $5 per 12.

AMARYLLIS.....

Velteb's Hybrids. $4 per 12; Equestra, $4 per 100; Formosissima, $3 per 100.

CALLAS

Spotted Leaf, $3; Black, $5; Yellow, $30; all per 100. Golden, $2 each,

DAHLIAS

11 prizes out of 22 at the last Dahlia exhibition. First prize Dahlia, GILT EDGE, $15 per 100. Send for special list.

A. BLANC & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

Cannas Best leading varieties including Burbank. Italia. Anstrian and Charlotte, $3.50 per 100.

Geraniums Single and double such as A. Ricard, Bruant, Faid herbe, Simmons, LaFavorite, Nutt, Mme, Chas. Teas, E. G. Hill, Madonna, Fages, Mrs. Blanc, Potevine and other good varieties, 2½-in. strong, $2.50 per 100. $15.00 per 1000; 4-in. pots in bud and bloom, $5.00 and $6.00 per 100.

Begonia Vernon, 24-inch pots. $2,50 per 100.

Salvias, Latanias, Double Petunias, Pileas, Vinca Taior and Harrisii; Fuchsias, single and double, 24-inch pots, $2.50 per 100.

Perennial Phlox in variety, including Miss Lingard; field-grown clumps per 100, $5.00; pot grown, $3.00 per 100; also Rudbeckia Golden Glow, Coreopsis Harvest Moon, pot grown, $5.00 per 100. Cash with order.

Wanted in Exchange...

200 each of Lady H. Campbell and Marie Lauise Violets; good young Roses. Pink La France, Kaiserin, Mmc. Cochet, Clothilde, Soupert, Hermosa, or others.

C. G. NANZ, _OWENSBORO, KY.

ROSES

From 3-inch Pots.

BRIDESMAID / $3.50 per 100; $30.00 per 1000 AMERICAN BEAUTIES......$6.00 per 100

Carnation Cuttings

Strong and healthy from flats.

Strong Healthy Stock. Cash with Order.

MAGNUSON & PEARSON, BOWMANVILLE, STATION X. CHICACO.

ROSES..

2-in. per 100 3-in. per 100 $5.00

4.50

4.50

Am. Beauties . . Perle . . . . . . . $2.75 Bridesmaid ... 2.75

MAPLEWOOD CUT FLOWER and PLANT CO. PLEASANT HILL, MO.

Catalogues Received.

Isaac Hicks & Son, Westbury Station. K. V., trees, shrubs, vines, flowers and fruits; Valentine Burgevin's Sons, Kingston, N. V., trees, plants, vines and shrubs; Kichard Vincent, Jr. & Son, White Marsh, Md., vegetables and plants; Peter Lambert, Trier (Sr. Marian) Common chember. bert, Trier (St. Marien), Germany, shrubs and plants; The Holland Bulb Co., Oegstgeest, Holland, bulbs, roots and plants; Elm City Nursery Co., Edgewood, New Haven, Conn., trees, shrubs, vines and fruits; V. Lemoine & Son, Nancy, France, plants; J. X. Kidd, St. Joseph, Mo., plants, seeds and bulbs; P. S. Peterson & Son, 164 La Salle St., Chicago, Ills., trees, shrubs, vines, plants and fruits; Horace Rimby, Collegeville, Pa., plants, seeds and bulbs; Vance Boiler Works, Geneva, N. V., heating apparatus.

EXTENSION THE MODEL CARNATION SUPPORT

OUTEENS N. Y., Feb. 16, '97, MR. THERON PARKER, Brooklyn, N. Y., Dear Sir! I have tested your latest model Carnation Support and am free to say that I consider it the best wire carnation support that I have ever seen. It is quickly and easily applied and I think will prove very durable, and you certainly deserve great credit for the invention.

Very truly yours.

(**W. WARD.**

FLATBUSH, BROOKLYN,
N. Y., Feb. 18, W.
MR THERON PARKER.
Dear Sir. - Your wire stake
ls certainly a gem. Without heshating we indorse it as an up to-date carnation
support. Yours truly,
DAILLEDOUZE BROS.

W HORKEN, N. J., Feb. 18, 97.

MR. THERON PARKER, Brooklyn, N. Y. Dear Shritt gives me much pleasure to congratulate you upon your success in getting up carnation supports. I think that those I have had from you are about as perfect as any-body will be able to make them. They certably fill my bill for an ideal carnation support, a thing I have been looking for for a long time. Wishing you every success in the sale of them. I am Yours truly, E. Assurs at discount on early orders

Write for price list and discount on early orders THERON PARKER, 22 Morton St. BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Scollay

Sprinkler....

INDUSTRISHABLE 1. A. Scollay, Maker,

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Gen'l Western Agents, 84 Randolph St., CHICACO.

STEMS DUST

BOTTOM PRICES.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE.

Chicago. New York.

··Horticultural Advertiser''

is the Brist Ir of Partie by the of were II for received a constitute tar ref pertura

EDITORS OF THE "H. A." Chilwell Nurnerien. - Notta, England.

Kraft's Plant Tonic

For Plants, Palms and Flowers

A Wonderful Preparation for the Promotion of Plant Life, Des-truction of Insects and Scale.......

The Tonic makes the foliage of the plant soft and pliable and a beautiful bright green. For sale at . . . . .

84 & 86 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE.

14 BARCLAY STREET, NEW YORK.

HAS COME TO STAY ON ITS ..... MERIIS.

HE SALEM COCOA NUT

W. S. WARD, Mgr., Office: Federal Street, - SALEM, MASS.

WOODEN LABELS for FLORISTS and NURSERYMEN

Being located at the head center of this country for White Pine Lumber we are able to buy our stock right and lurnish our customers with goods of the best quality and at prices which will put them at your station lower than the lowest. Our factory is thoroughly equipped and turning out promptly the most uniform, smooth and best painted goods made in this country, put up in neat packages, guaranteed full count and nicely crated. SEND FOR SAMPLES AND PRICES.

WOODEN GOODS COMPANY, 83 Western Ave., MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Everybody is more pleased if you say "saw your ad, in the American Florist when writing

Mention the American Florist when writing to advertisers on this page.

YOU CAN SAVE MONEY BY HAVING ME

BUILD AND HEAT YOUR GREENHOUSES HENRY W. GIBBONS 134-136-138 LIBERTY STREET,

EXPERT ADVICE AND PLANS FURNISHED.

ESTIMATES FREE.

THE Regan Printing House SELD LIORISTS

87-91 Plymouth Place, JAJA CHICAGOJAJA

DIED AT 103-CHEVREUL

We are his disciples in encouraging the use of harmonious combinations of the most durable and beautiful colors for house painting. Send for sample cards of LUCAS PAINTS.

PANA, ILL.—Geo. L. Inman, of Danville, closed a deal Saturday morning for the sale of the greenhouse which he recently pur-chased from Fred Cook, of Taylorville, to Frank Shaffer, of this city, the consideration being $1,000. Mr. Shaffer has taken ALLIANCE, O .- Joseph A. Urig has commenced erecting several additions to his already extensive greenhouses opposite the Alliance cemetery. The first new building, which will cover 15x86 feet of ground, will be used principally for the filling of vases and baskets. Immediately after the Decoration Day rush a new boiler room and a large palm and rose house will be constructed.

Made of Waterproof Cardboard, of nice terra cotta color.

Terme-Net cash with order. If ordered shipped by FREIGHT, ADD 50 CENTS CARTAGE.

| 21                    | Packed inCrates of | Gross        | Weight    | Por 10     | VA 120 T 1000 |  |  |  |  |
|-----------------------|------------------------|--------------|-----------|------------|---------------|--|--|--|--|
| Size                  | Crates of              | perio        | w pore    | 1.01.10    | W L 61 1000   |  |  |  |  |
| 2¼-Inch.              | 1000                   | abou         | t 20 lbs. |            | 25 $2 20     |  |  |  |  |
| 212                   | 1000                   |              | 23 "      |            | 30 2.40       |  |  |  |  |
| 3,52 :                | 1000                   | "            | 34 "      |            | 45 3.90       |  |  |  |  |
| 31/4 "                | 1000                   | "            | 45 "      |            | 60 5.15       |  |  |  |  |
| 4 "                   | 500                    | "            | 76 "      |            | 80 6.90       |  |  |  |  |
|                       | 500                    | 45           | 100       | 1 .        | 20 10.35      |  |  |  |  |
|                       | 500                    | 16           |           | 1.         | 65 14.55      |  |  |  |  |
| Standard Pot Measure. |                        |              |           |            |               |  |  |  |  |
| Les                   | e quantities           | than fu      | il crate  | a at 100 r | ates.         |  |  |  |  |
| Full s                | ample dozeni           | s of a el    | ze mail   | ed un rec  | elpt of       |  |  |  |  |
| 100                   | 190 150                | ງ 990 | 30c       | 45c        | 60e           |  |  |  |  |

for 2½-in. 2½-in. 3-in. 3½-in. 4-in. 5-in. 6-in. pots. F. W. BIRD & SON, Manufacturers. Address all orders to our General Agents,

August Rölker & Sons 52 DEY STREET, NEW YORK.

Our Eastern Agents are

R. & J. FARQUHAR & CO., Boston, Mass.

Jute Fibre Flower

Pots...

The Finest Thing on Earth for Shipping Plants. A A

Very Strong, Light, Neat and Attractive

Send 5 ets. stamps for samples and low prices.

J. B. WOODIN, – Owosso, Mich.

Made by

Good Railroad Facilities For shipping.
Special Attention Given to
Mail Orders, and Special
Sizes Made to Order.

KELLER BROS.

NORRISTOWN, PA.

Price Lists Furnished on Application.

STANDARD FLOWER POTS

Send for price list of Standard Flower Pots, Hanging Vases, Seed Pans and Cylinders for Cut Flowers Lawn Vases, 17x17-ln., $1 00; 19x20-ln., $1 50; Bases 12-ln. high 50c. Address

HILFINGER BROS. POTTERY,
FORT EDWARD, N. Y.

AUOUST ROLKER & SONS, AGTS., 52 DEY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

FLOWER POTS

ALL KINDS.

A SPECIALTY

List and SAMPLES FREE.

J. G. SWAHN'S SONS, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Bulb Pans, Hanging Baskets and Saucers

OUR FLOWER POTS are standard measure and all first-class and we assure you they will give good satisfaction. We call your attention to our new pots, 6, 7, 8 and 9-inch, called the "Poro Pot." They are more Porous than any pots, smoother inside and outside, perfect drainage, and are easily washed and cleaned, Give them a trial and you will not want any other. Remember these Pots are as cheap as any other Pot on the market. Write for price list.

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

rlower

OUR POTS ARE OF THE BEST QUALIT We ship all goods from Cincinnati, guaranteeing lowest freight rates and prompt delivery. Write us before placing your orders elsewhere.

CAMBRIDGE TILE MFG. CO., Covington, Ky.

FERN PANS and AZALEA POTS...

OLD RELIABLE MAKE OF Elverson, Sherwood & Barker.

Write for price list. Address

PITTSBURG CLAY MFG. CO.,

New Brighton, Pa.

THE BEST STANDARD FLOWER POTS

WE make the best flower pot for Florists and general use made in America, as many dealers in Mich., Ih., Wis. and Ind. can testify. We invite a trial order and will be pleased to send price list. Our business demanded a Western Office and we have recently established a Chicago office at 115 Dearborn St., MR. M. F. PAKRENIEAU, Agt. Give him a call.

ONIA POTTERY CO.,

Manufacturers of Standard Flower Pots.

THE IONIA POTTERY CO., Ionia, Mich.

Kearney and Westside Aves., Jersey City, N. J. Jackson Av. & Pearson SI, Long Island City, N. Y.

➡GEO. KELLER & SON. Flower Pots.

Before buying write for prices. 361-363 Herndon Sireel, near Wrightwood Ave.,

CHICACO. ILL.

Mention American Florist.

"STANDARDS"

FULL SIZE AND WIDE BOTTOMS. BULB PANS AND AZALEA POTS.

DETROIT FLOWER POT M'F'Y, HARRY BALSLEY, DETROIT, MICH., 490 HOWARD ST. Rep.

Standard 🥦 🧈 FLOWER

If your greenhouses are within 500 miles of the Capitol, write us; we can save you money.

W. H. ERNEST.

Station M. N. E.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Cleveland.

Easter week is over, and with satisfactory returns to nearly everybody. From general reports it appears to have been fully as good as usual, and with some florists an improvement over any previous Easter. The stores were all very busy, and on the markets no complaint is heard, so it is fair to presume that all are well satisfied.

There was a good call for flowering plants, lilies and azaleas leading as usual in the popular estimation. Of the latter plant there seems to have been enough to supply the demand, with possibly a slight surplus in large sizes, but not much. Lilies were in many cases not up to the best standard as pot plants. They were usually too tall, a very general trouble with Harrisii this year, and one apparently not necessarily the result of bad culture. There was also in some cases evidence of the omnipresent lily disease. The plants sold very well, however, and nobody complains much. Dutch bulbs sold about as usual, those who had been conservative in estimating their Easter needs selling out. Nobody appears to have had much stock left over, although there are some reports of slight surplus.

In cut flowers lilies of course were a prominent feature and sold well at from $2 to $3 per dozen, according to quality. Carnations were generally in short supply, although two report a sufficient number but nothing over. Some did not have half enough to supply the call for them. Violets also were generally short in supply. Roses were excellent in quality, and there seems to have been enough to fill orders for them. One great factor in the satisfactory result was undoubtedly the weather. It had been persistently cold, nasty, windy and generally disagreeable until Thursday, when it moderated and become very pleasant. Saturday was cloudy, with a very slight rainfall for a short time in the afternoon, but as there was absolutely no wind and the rain seemed to lay the dust that otherwise might have been troublesome, there is no good reason to object. A

You can not get a GOOD THING for nothing. But the price of this apparatus is next to nothing. Send for price and description to

J. D. CARMODY, Evansville, Ind.

FIRST-CLASS GOODS and CORRECT PRICES

ave furned in to the cont and today we are be fargest manufact reract

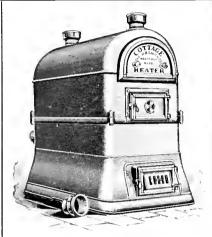

IRON RESERVOIR VASES

and Lawn Setteen in America — A to page atalogue for the seking

McDonald Bros. 108 114 Liberty St., COLUMBUS, O

Mantion American Florist

SALESROOMS:

133 Centre Street, - NEW YORK CITY. 510 Arch Street, - PHILADELPHIA.

COTTAGE BOILER

WESTERN BRASS MFG. CO. ST. LOUIS, MO.

PACIFIC COAST AGENTS: HOLBROOK, MERRILL & STETSON SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

> EUROPEAN AGENT: AUG. EGGERS, BREMEN.

THE H. B. SMITH CO., Westfield, Mass.

For Greenhouses, Gardens and Lawns in liberal quantities, every bour of the year, whether the wind & blows or not & & & & &

Improved Rider Hot Air Pump Improved Ericsson Kot Air Pump

Can be run by any ignorant boy without danger—Explosion impos-sible.—Prices greatly reduced.—In use in every part of the world.

RIDER-ERICSSON ENGINE CO.

22 Cortlandt St., NEW YORK. 191-193 High St., BOSTON. 684 Craig St., MONTREAL, P. Q.

86 Lake St., CHICAGO. 29-31 N. 7th St., PHILADELPHIA. Send for catalogue "A 3."

VENTILATING MACHINE. STANDARD

NONE EQUAL IT Strength

Durability Rend for Catalogue.

NOTHING Flimsy Complicated about it.

HIPPARD. YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO,

GREENHOUSE MATERIAL Cal. Red Cedar and Louisiana Cypress. BEST GRADES. PERFECT WORKMANSHIP.

A. DIETSCH & CO. SHEFFIELD AVE CHICAGO, ILL.

VANCE BOILERS

222222222222222222222

ARE THE BEST

For Heating Greenhouses, Conservatories and Dwellings.

Our boilers consume all gases from the fuel, therefore making it the most desirable boiler for greenhouse heating on the markel.....

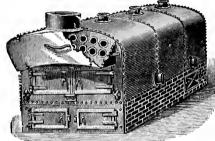

send to-day for Catalogue and Price List.

Vance Boiler Works,

399 LAKE AVE., GENEVA, N. Y.

KROESCHELL BROS. CO.

Greenhouse * Boiler,
29 to 59 Erie St., CHICAGO.

Bollers made of the best of material, shell, firebox sheets and heads of steel, water space all around (front, sides and hack). Write for information. Mention American Ftorist.

. . .

Boilers

OF HIGH

For GREENHOUSES.

See our Catalogue. . . . . .

Steam and Giblin & Co., Utica, N. Y.

NEW & SECOND-HAND MATERIAL.

purchased from Sheriff. Receiver, and Assignee, sales at less than one-half prices. Pipe and Fittings Hose, Florists' Wire, Hot Water Heaters. Greenhouse Bollors and Engines. Rope. Light Wrought Iron Pipe. Glass Sash, and thousands of other articles, for sa e by

CHICAGO HOUSE WRECKING CO. Largest Mail Order Depot for New and Second-Hand Material in the World.

W. 35TH & IRON STS., CHICACO. Write for our free lilustrated catalogues.

FOR SALE CHEAP.

GLASS for Greenhouses, Conservatories, Hotbeds, etc. Also Hotbed Sasbes and Mats. Paints, Oils, etc. THE REED GLASS & PAINT CO., 456 W. Broadway, NEW YORK.

The Right Cypress for Greenhouse Material.

Have you heard of Cypress Greenhouse Material that has not been satisfactory? If you have it does not follow that Cypress is not the best lumber to use. There is White Cypress, Yellow Cypress and Red Cypress; there is Cypress that grows on the high lands and Cypress that grows in the swamps.

All of these different kinds are not suitable for greenhouse purposes. Do you know which kind is best and do you know that kind when you see it? If not you would better buy from those that do know and will deliver exactly what they sell. We introduced Cypress for greenhouse construction and pushed it to the front. We know all about it. For fifteen years we have made a specialty of furnishing it, and during this time we have built up a reputation that we can not afford to jeopardize. We send out the best only.

Write for Circulars or Estimates.

Lockland Lumber Co.

LOCKLAND, OHIO.

Wheeler-Stenzel Co.

IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF.

**************

Make your contracts for next season now. We can deliver to any part of the country and Save You Money......

************

Greenhouse Glass

72 Sudbury St., BOSTON, MASS.

is the only boiler that will keep a steady heat in a greenhouse all night without attention. No sitting up all night to keep a good fire

Furtber information on application.

GORTON & LIDGERWOOD CO.
96 Liberty Street, NEW YORK.

CYPRESS
IS HUCH MORE DURABLE THAN PINE.

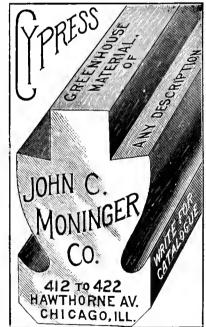

CYPRESS
SASH BARS.

UP TO 32 FEET IN LENGTH OR LONGER.

GREENHOUSE
AND OTHER BUILDING MATERIAL.

Send for our Flitustrated Book
"CYPRESS LUMBER AND ITS USES."
Send for our Special Greenhouse Circular.

THEAT, STEATIS LUMBER (C., Neponser, Besten, Mass.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST'S COLOR CHART

is now accepted as the stundard in preparing colo descriptions, by many foreign houses as well as in America.

PRICE 15 CENTS POSTPAID.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO., 322 Dearborn St., Chicago

Index to Advertisers.

| Advertising Rates 110.                    |
|-------------------------------------------|
| Auen J.K 1111-                            |
| Auen J.K                                  |
| Amiliar E.C                               |
| Armstrong Luther 111.                     |
| Batter F.A 112                            |
| Bartlett Geo S 113                        |
| Bassett & Washburn III:                   |
| Barers for 'er H & Co II I                |
| Beaulieu H 112                            |
| Beaulieu H 112Beerli itst a Van Leeu- |
| wen UliBesold C                       |
| Besold C                                  |
| Blane A & Co                              |
| Bobbink L C                               |
| Boerner Fred112                           |
| Hoston Letter Co 1117                     |
| Brown J. F                                |
| Brown J F 112Burpee W Atlee & Co 111  |
| Burton John                               |
| Cambridge Tile Mfg 113                    |
| Carmody J D 1125                          |
| Chadwick Chas 1121                        |
| Chicago House Wreck-                      |
| Ing Co 1125                               |
| Chipman Bros 112                          |
| Clucas & Reddington                       |
| Co1116                                    |
| Cole Geo E & Co .1115                     |
|                                           |

Heacock Jos Helkes W.F. Herendeen Mfk Co-Herr Albert M...... Hunnger Bros..... err Arbert M

diffinger Bros | 11

III D | 11

IIII D | 12

IIII D | 12

IIII D | 12

IIII D | 13

IIII D | 14

III D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

III D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

III D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

III D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

III D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

III D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

III D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

IIII D | 14

III

Attienen in r Jokasof Longto Zong It B Zong-har Edwir

LOUISVILLE KY

Madning Jacob W. 1114
Manz J & Co. 1115
Maplewood Cut Flo. and Plant Co. 1125
May Jno N. 1124
McBath Thos. 1125
McCarthy N F & Co.1113
McCullough J Chas 1146
McDonald 3708 1128
McDonald & McManus

McDonald & Steele... 1138
McDonald & Steele... 1121
McFadden W A ... 1141
Mthbrook Lea Green
honses...

Houses Lea Green
Houses 125 Green
Houses 126 Gro. 112
Millianx Frank 1115
Millianx Frank 1115
Moninger J C Co. 112
Monon Samuel C 1111
Nan/ C 1114
Norria Floral Co. 112
Nan/ C 115
National Flo Board of Trade 115
National Plant Co. 112
Parker Theorem Co. 112
Parker Theorem Co. 112
Parker Theorem Co. 112
Parker Theorem Co. 112
Pencock W P. 115

Young Jno.... Young Thou Jr

Hitchings

ESTABLISHED 50 YEARS.

GREENHOUSE HEATING AND VENTILATING APPARATUS.

THE HIGHEST AWARDS RECEIVED AT THE WORLD'S FAIR FOR HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTURE, GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION AND HEATING APPARATUS.

Conservatories, Greenhouses, Palm Houses, etc., erected complete, with our patent iron Frame Construction. Send four cents postage for illustrated catalogue.

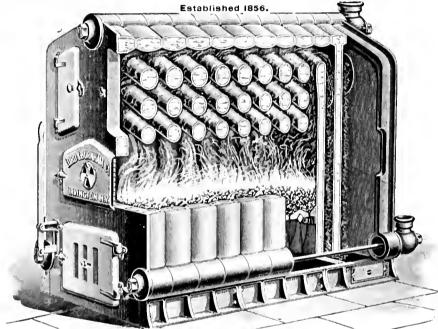

> 233 Mercer Street, NEW YORK.

CO., LORD & BURNHAM

HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS AND MANUFACTURERS OF HEATING

Plans and estimates furnished on application for heating and ventilating apparatus erected complete, or for material only. **Thighest awards at the World's Fair.

Send 4 cts postage for catalogue of Patent Iron Greenhouse Construction.

NEW SECTIONAL HOT WATER HEATER.

Specially adapted to large ranges. Will heat up to 16,500 ft. of glass. HICHEST ECONOMY.

MODERATE COST. Also Heaters for smaller work. IF Send 5 cts. postage to New York Office for intest extalogue of heating and ventilating apparaiss.

Estimates furnished for Cypress Creenhouse Material.

NEW YORK OFFICE. 160 FIFTH AVE., cor. 21st St. GENERAL OFFICE AND WORKS, IRVINGTON-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.

On Your Coal Bills

If your Houses are Heated by a Lurman Boiler.

Send for large Illustrated Catalogue, Florists' Edition. Let us make you an estimate FREE.

THE HERENDEEN MFG. CO.

sew pork 300 cortlandt St

20 Vine Street, GENEVA, N. Y. Ch. de phia 1019 Betz Building.

LOUISIANA Cypress J.H.STRUCK Green House & BRO Material.

RED CEDAR

Write for Estimates,

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

America is "the Prow of the Vessel; there may be more comfort Amidships, but we are the first to touch Unknown Seas."

Vol. XIII.

CHICAGO AND NEW YORK, APRIL 23, 1898.

No. 516.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

Copyright 1898, by American Florist Company. Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY. 324 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Eastern Office: 67 Bromfield St., Boston. Subscription, $1.00 a year. To Europe, $2.00. Subscriptions accepted only from the trade.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

OFFICER-WM. F. GUDE, Washington, D. C., president; A. DONAGHUE. Omaha, Neb., vice-president; W. J. STEWART, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass., secretary; H. B. BEATTY, Oil City, Pa., treasurer. The fourteenth annual meeting will be held at Omaha, Neb., August, 1898.

THE AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Annual Convention at Philadelphia, February, 1899. ALBERT M. HERR, Lancaster Pa., Secretary.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA. Annual meeting at Omaha, Neb., August, 1898. ELMER D. SMITH, Adrian, Mich., eccretary.

CONTENTS.

| Notes and comments                                                                            | 1131 |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Propagation of orchids                                                                        | 113: |
| Propagation of orchids                                                                        | 113: |
| Coloryne cristata (illus)                                                                     | 1133 |
| Calogyne cristata (illus.)Violets as bunched in France (illus.)                           | 113  |
| Paris                                                                                         |      |
| Paris                                                                                         | 113  |
| Called States battleship Vaine Glas                                                           | 113  |
| that the Maine decire                                                                         | 113  |
| Battleship Maine design                                                                       | 113  |
| Rose notesHow to grow genistasCytisus racemosus (illus.)Carnations                | 1136 |
| How to grow gemstas                                                                           | 113  |
| Cytisus racemosus (Illus.)                                                                    | 1136 |
| Carnations                                                                                    | 1137 |
| Easter trade                                                                                  | 1137 |
| Helpful reminders                                                                             | 1139 |
| Store of Alex, Parks (illus.)                                                                 | 1139 |
| New YorkPhiladelphia                                                                      | 1139 |
| Philadelphia                                                                                  | 1139 |
| Boston                                                                                        | 1139 |
| Chienga                                                                                       | 1140 |
| Greenhouse building                                                                           | 114  |
| RostonChicagoGreenhouse building.Steam and hot water heatingGrafted roses.    | 114  |
| Crafted rocas                                                                                 | 114  |
| Faster incident                                                                               | 1143 |
| Easter incident                                                                               | 114  |
| Nursery trade San Jose scale Milwaukee, Wis. Alleghen) Seed trade. Jersey City. Orange, N. J. | 1140 |
| San Josephania                                                                                | 114  |
| 31H JOSC SCHO                                                                                 | 114  |
| Minwaukee, wis                                                                                | 1144 |
| Allegheny                                                                                     | 111  |
| Seed trade                                                                                    | 114  |
| Jersey City.                                                                                  | 114  |
| Orange, N. J                                                                                  | 1113 |
| Los Augeles                                                                                   | 1149 |
| Los Augeles                                                                                   | 115  |
| St. Louis                                                                                     | 115  |
| Salt Lake City                                                                                | 1156 |
| Rochester, N. Y                                                                               | 1150 |
| St. LouisSalt Lake CityRochester, N. Y.New and rare plants                        | 115  |
| Cincinnati                                                                                    | 115  |
| Putty                                                                                         | 1159 |
| Shading                                                                                       | 116  |
|                                                                                               |      |

THE NEW DIRECTORY of florists, seedsmen and nurserymen of the United States and Canada will be ready for mailing soon. Twenty-five hundred new names. Postpaid for only $2.

Notes and Comments.

What a difference is noticeable in the horticultural news reported in the daily newspapers nowadays and that which we read fifteen or twenty years ago. At that time a flower show was dismissed with a few lines. Now persons specially adapted to that class of work, either by intuition or experience, are associated editorially on many of our leading dailies. When an error does creep in the florist is to blame nine times out of ten for giving wrong information.

One of our Philadelphia great dailies fell into an error about Easter time, when in giving an otherwise very readable and instructive article on what might be seen in the florists' stores, made the statement that "the white 'grape' hyacinth, Botryodes alba, was so new in fact that it is not yet in the 'Gardeners' Dictionary.'" Nicholson's is meant, of course. This was an unfortunate "break," beeause everybody who reads this realizes that muscari was meant. The statement would not have attracted so much attention had not Nicholson been taken to task for his accused omission. instance only goes to prove how easy it is to fall into error, and how lenient we should all be when a slip is made. Pope says:

Good nature and good sense must ever join: To err is human—to forgive divine.

seems strange that those who make blunders hate to be told about them or have attention drawn to them in any way, and the greater the blunder made the less the maker of the blunder likes to acknowledge it or in any way make reparation.

Some years ago one of our leading newspapers had a very convincing article, apparently, about Joaquin Miller's rose farm in California, to the effect that the "Poet of the Sierras" was shipping the product of said rose farm at regular intervals in refrigerator ears to New York City, that they were eagerly bought and the poet was doing a profitable business. The undersigned having spent some time in California, and knowing the class of roses produced outdoors there, knew that the Greeks even would not look at the buds produced there with the object in of buying them to sell again. I took the trouble to write to the newspaper correcting the glaring blunders made, but no notice whatever was taken of it, either by reference in its columns or by personal letter; and when referring to the matter complained about to a member of the editorial staff connected with another great daily, he said that his paper would not think of making corrections in a matter of that character. 1 wonder why? The last named newspaper claims to be correct in everything, and the appearances of truth are written on every page.

To return to Muscari botryoides album as an Easter novelty, the editor in charge of the horticultural department was advised of the mistake and an acknowledgment and correction was cheerfully made on this occasion; but the idea that the white variety was new as an Easter novelty was persistently adhered to. It is, however, wrong nevertheless, for Pennoek Bros. had it in fine shape for last Easter, grown by Albert Woltemate for his own retail trade, who divided his stock with the firm above referred to. This year Joseph Kift & Son secured quite as nice a lot. It is three or four years as face a lot. It is three of loth years since Mr. Woltemate first had this plant in bloom for Easter. Museari botryoides makes a very pretty Easter plant and it has the advantage of not being at all common.

Another of our Philadelphia dailies has an Easterflowerstory, which, I am afraid, is totally the outcome of a reporter's or correspondent's fertile imagination. The story is somewhat like this: On the Saturday morning before Easter the fair typewriter of one of the Chestnut street jewelry stores had an Easter lily presented to her. It was set on the floor beside the desk. During the young lady's absence at lunch the office boy decided to write a letter using red ink. Before he had finished his task the "boss" appeared, and in the boy's hurry to hide the writing materials he accidently upset the red ink bottle, some of the contents of which found its way to the fair white blossoms of the lily. The young manager of the establishment after a series of questionings and cross-questionings caused the boy to confess. The manager having a tendency towards joking saw a great opportunity for a hoax. The boy was immediately put to work, and before the typewriter returned every flower was a bril-The manager satisfied the liant pink. young lady by presenting her with another lily, and she, too, proceeded to enter into the full spirit of the joke. A placard, giving a history of the wonderful freak of nature, was neatly prepared and together with the pink lily was placed in the show window, and it is further recorded that all Saturday afternoon erowds gathered to view the wonderful plant, and the jokers were full of joy. "Before night" jokers were full of joy. "Before night" (here is the best part of all) "representatives from three seed houses had called, and after examining the plant pronounced it a genuine freak. These experts offered to pay a big price for the plant, but were all told that it was not for sale." To complete the story we ought to find out who were the representatives of the seed houses, and whose seed houses did they represent. The late Peter Henderson used to tell a story similar to the above, but I have forgotten the details. I have seen white Roman hyacinths and Niphetos roses operated upon in a similar way, but no practical man would be deceived by them.

It is to be hoped that the next spring show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society will be fixed upon a date not quite so near to Easter as it was on this occasion, because the growers could hardly be expected to make much of an exhibit so close to the greatest of all floral festivals. The cut flowers of carnations and roses were excellent, especially the American Beauties, but these are more amenable to exhibitions than are plants. But we must have plants. I do not remember to have seen any of the pelargoniums at the show, either zonale, tricolors or bicolors, faney or regal. These should be encouraged by offering generous premiums. So with the fuch-sias—not one to be seen. Yet there is nothing more effective than a group of well grown plants of any of the above mentioned soft-wooded plants. was a time when the veteran Wm. K. Harris exhibited plants of fuchsias at our spring shows from four to six feet high, well furnished from the pot up. When speaking of the fuchsia a short time ago, Mr. Harris made the remark that wellgrown fuchsias would sell well to-day and at good prices. I agree with him.

____

The Propagation of Orchids.

Among orchid growers there is a marked tendency to want to increase their stock by propagation, hence the question sometimes asked—"llow best may I increase the stock of any particular variety?" There are some kinds, such as Dendrobium nobile, that may be propagated in the strict sense of the word; the old pseudo bulbs after flowering may be cut off and placed in a close propagating ease or house on damp moss, and all of the nodes or joints of the stem that have not flowered will produce shoots, which may be allowed to grow until roots are seen and then potted in very small pots. nursing them along in a warm temperature until their season of growth is past, when they may be rested with the parent plant in a cooler house.

Dendrobiums sometimes make these growths on the bulb instead of producing flowers, and this is generally an indication. of wrong treatment at some time. Often it is the result of imperfect ripening and rest, and sometimes it is a sign of improper conditions at the root, in either case it is nature's way of profesting, and the cultivator will at once see what is wrong. These young plants raised in this way are very apt to make valuable specimens if grown on with the same care that is given the older plants, and certainly there is not the tendency to degenerate we sometimes find in larger piece, that do well for a year or two and then deteriorate.

tattlevas are only to be increased by division, and as mannormal growth there is only one bulb made in a year, it will be seen that it is a slow process to moreose our stock in this way, although it is possible to get up a more lot of plants in the course of time by carefully watching the apportunity to make an incision mather thizome that came its the bulbs at the tase on ding only a notch and not exerting it at his 1. It is best to leave at east to e bulls as the back of the last one made to give ample support to the next year's bulb, and back of these five, if there are any more (as often happens) that are doing nothing, they may be induced to "break back," that is, some dormant bud will surely start if they are prevented by the incision from having any other outlet for their stored up energy.

This method of inducing back breaks is only to be practiced with eaution. I well remember when a lad, reading in "Williams' Orchid Manual" for the first time of this method, and there being on the place a huge specimen of the old Cattleya crispa, were more of them, but they were even smaller. There was trouble over that plant, and the man in charge heard of it; but the experience was mine, and while it did not cost me anything, it was a lesson that has lasted, and the telling may not be without result to those who would increase their stock of cattleyas unduly. I have found it a safe thing to do if at least five bulbs are in front of a cut, and some of the back ones have leaves on.

Cypripediums are easily increased by division at almost any time of the year, but preferably in the early part of the

VASE OF CYPRIPEDIUMS AND ASPARAGUS

it dawned on me that this was a great apportunity to become distinguished, and next morning early, this plant was severed into many parts by earefully made cuts that were not visible to a easied observer, as they were not notched. I should have said that this particular plant had become historic for the number of times it had been sent to a local exhibition each year in August. That year it did not go, the growths were not strong enough to bloom, the next year there year before root growth starts. I have found it easier to keep cypripediums in good health when the plants were of medium size rather than when in large pots and of considerable bulk. I recently divided many that were in large pans and put them into small pots to begin over again; with the tessellated section this seems the best method to adopt when it is desired to have a quantity of plants and flowers, and not necessarily a lew individual specimens of greater size. C. insigne and its hybrids are easily cultivated in specimens, and difficult to divide when grown so; but I find that the South American kinds known as selenipediums are very subject to white scale insects, and these are difficult to eradicate when on large specimens, and the young growths get badly crippled in consequence. Back growths are easily produced on cypripediums by this system of cutting the rhizome between all the growths that have roots of their own, and it is easy to get up a stock quickly of any cypripedium as compared with cattleyas and lælias.

The foregoing methods of propagation are at best artificial, and a makeshift such as the cultivator is obliged to adopt in the absence of quicker ones. The more legitimate one is nature's own, by the regular process of impregnation and seed bearing; it is true that this method is slow, but then it is measurably sure, and if the grower at the same time chooses to cross two varieties, species, or genera, the result has an added charm and value which will grow on him, and the months will not seem so long if he has coming on a number of seedlings so that when one reaches the flowering stage there will be many more to follow.

Orchids are among the easiest flowers to hybridize by hand, and at the same time but very few of them have the power of self impregnation that is generally given other families; there must be aid given either by the hand of man or by insects. Bees in the orchid house make things lively, if they gain entrance in spring or fall when there are flowers open, as every flower visited will wither the next day. It is not necessary that the flower be impregnated, for the removal of the pollen is sufficient to make the flower wilt as has often been proved by removing the pollen for the work of hybridizing, so sensitive are the parts of reproduction in this family.

The older botanists looked with horror on hybrid orchids, and those of the present day have much trouble to keep them classified, or even to coin names for them. The hybridist has broken down the barriers set up by the authorities, and not only have new genera been created to meet the demands, but old ones have had to be abolished or merged with others, so that it is hard to lay down lines for the beginner to work upon, and he will have to judge for himself as to allied plants, or suitable varieties to start with. It used to be considered impossible to cross Mexican lælias with the cattleyas, but it is done now with ease, and the beautiful Cattleya citrina will cross with the large-flowering South American kinds; others have flowered them, and I have seedlings potted off. The epidendrums will also cross with the cattleyas and give startling progeny.

After the flower has been set for seed, a cattleya will take from six to twelve or even fifteen months to mature the capsule, and when the same is ripe, the sections will separate and, if not carefully cut, drop all the seed. There are, without exaggeration, millions of seeds in some of the capsules, a greater or less proportion of which are of good germinating quality, as may be determined with a good lens before planting. If the seed matures in the winter months, it is best to wait until April before sowing. I find on referring to the records, that more success is due to April sowing than to that of any other month in the year. Small though they are, the seeds may be kept in a box in a dry place out of the way of cold for a great length of time.

When sowing time comes it is best to choose a plant that has been recently repotted in good brown spongy fibre, and sow the seed on the surface; if the plant be of not great value as a variety, so much the better, for we have found that the pre-requisite for success in germinating orchid seeds is saturation; once sown they must never be allowed to become dry at any time, and it is possible that the great amount of water applied may be too much for the plant that is in the pot. When watering for the first few times, dip carefully so that the seeds will not float off, and I find that if the material be soaked before sowing, the seeds will adhere to the fibre so that it will not float off unless it be of poor quality; there is that wise provision of nature that enables them to stick to a wet surface, and if this be continually moist, germination is assured. The greatest trouble experienced is with the prothalli of ferns and the like that find a congenial place to germinate and choke out the young plants, and for this reason also we never use moss in the pot on which seed is sown; it will grow and smother the tiny plants rapidly

If the seed be good and all things favorable, germination of cattleya seed may be looked for in six weeks; I have potted off plants from seed sown no longer than this. Some sorts, such as C. Leopoldii, will take six months, but C. Leopoldii will ripen a pod in half the time others take. A good rule that I have found no exception to is, that the longer a pod takes to mature, the greater the probability of results and the quicker they will be forthcoming. It is most interesting to watch the tiny plants in their first stages of existence, not half the size of pin-heads, and then the leaf point shoots up and they look like peg-tops, and are taken up on a toothpick or some suitable implement, and transferred to small pots, several in each, until they make roots; later they are put singly in 1-inch pots for a year and then they will need larger

From this time on the progress will be rapid, and highly interesting to the operator, especially to trace the influence of the parents; if the latter be dissimilar it can readily be seen in the first leaf point. The reason the tiny plants are transferred in the thallus stage is for fear of vermin; a snail, slug, or woodlouse would in one night make a meal of a score or more, and for this reason all are kept isolated over saucers of water after being put in pots.

I am well aware that to the average florist there is not much inducement to begin raising orchid seedlings; life is too short, and there are many things of more financial interest; but there are some who will be sufficiently interested in the operation to experiment along these lines. If not undertaken as a labor of love, it will all be lost, for the constant watchfulness necessary to get results can only be born of an interest in the work. I have not treated on the cypripediums as there is practically no room for new operators in this field; if we have a good thing coming on, it is only to find that some other grower across the ocean has anticipated us by a year or so, and there is small remuneration and less glory to be won in this family.

Coelogyne Cristata.

The beautiful plant which we illustrate on this page was purchased from the De Witt Smith collection by Mr. Zenas Crane, of Dalton, Mass., its present owner, about ten years ago and was considered a pretty good specimen then. It now measures nearly twelve feet around the base when in bloom, and carried this year between 1,200 and 1,300 flowers.

The treatment of it by Mr. Dolby, the gardener in charge as well as that given other smaller specimens which are equally floriferous, consists in abundance of water at all times except just previous and during the time when in flower and a cool temperature with plenty of air and shade. After flowering some of the old pseudobulbs are cut out, if crowded, and sphagnum packed in around the pseudo-bulbs to raise up the center of the plants.

COELOGYNE CRISTATA.

Paris.

THE VIOLET INDUSTRY IN FRANCE.—METHODS OF CULTURE AND SHIPPING.—VARIETIES OLD AND NEW.—PRICES, ETC.

The flowers which in importance even supersede the minosa in southern France are the violet and the rose. Hyeres is the place where the violet is grown to the greatest perfection, and the area devoted to that flower there is not far from 400 acres. It is to the genial atmosphere during winter and the great care with which the growers guard against the summer drouth that is due the production, in the favored district under notice, of the immense quantity of violets which from October to March are sent to the northern countries.

The open air culture of the violet for winter export was started around Hyeres some twenty years ago, and as it can be effected under the olive trees which are no longer profitably grown, it is very remunerative. According to Mr. Nardy, two kinds of violets which are now in oblivion, were grown at the start; one named De la Valette was a vigorons, hardy, small-flowered, but profousely blooming and deliciously-seented, dark colored variety, which, unfortunately, was too short stalked; and the other called Wilson was very sweet and long stalked, but had also a great drawback in its poor color.

After the above two kinds came the large-flowering, deep colored Czar, which ten years ago had the palm of fame, and well deserved it. This once so popular variety has, in its turn, been superseded by the following still finer sorts: Luxonne, a vigorous, free blooming kind, with a somewhat smaller flower and shorter stalks than the Victoria, but of a fine deep colored hue and well scented; Victoria, a sturdy plant with vigorous large foliage, producing an abundance of large, well-shaped flowers of a splendid color. Several gardeners around Hyeres have through careful selection still improved on these kinds and produced better varieties, among which are: Prin-least equal if not excel the Princesse de Galles as regards size and color. It is long stalked, vigorous and very good for forcing.

The culture of the violet in southern France is very simple. The plants are usually grown on the flat in rows 112 feet apart and 10 to 12 inches asunder in the rows, which distance is necessary to prevent the flower pickers from treading on the plants. On low lying ground, where an excess of moisture during winter may be feared, the plants are grown 2 feet apart on a small slope running from east to west. The plantations usually last two years, rarely three. Experience has taught that with the best care and notwithstanding the removal of the runners which exhaust the plants, and high manuring in the autum, the planta-tions which are three years old seldom yield as many or as good flowers as those of two years. The fresh plantations are generally formed from December to March, in proportion as the lands become ready. It is a rule to plant two or three plants together, to get stronger clumps in the following fall. Only at planting time, and until they are well rooted and afterwards very late in the summer, are the violets given a good watering around Hyeres. The gardeners know by experience the great advantage of reducing to two or three, according to the land and its situation, the application of water during the summer. This small supply of moisture compels the plants to take a good rest in summer, instead of wearing themselves out in producing runners without necessity. They repay for that rest in producing the following winter, under the influence of moisture and the mild temperature, which at Hyeres is equal to spring in northern latitudes, a great abundance of fine sweet The plantations also receive in flowers. September or October manures which are active and readily available as plant food. The fertilizing materials are supplied in the form of high grade commercial compounds or of vegetable or animal favorable weather, the export of flowers in small bunches amounts daily to about 400 parcels, weighing a little over six pounds each, which represents more than a ton a day.

The photograph herewith reproduced shows the three sizes of bunches in which the violets are sold on our markets. No. 1, called "Toupillon," is composed of about 50 flowers of Czar violets, and towards the end of March was sold for 1 cent American money. Bunch No. 2, called "Boulot," is made of 100 flowers of the Luxonne violet and was worth 2 cents, and No. 3, called "Gros Boulot," is composed of 150 flowers of the Princess of Wales, and was worth 5 cents at the same date. The bunch of the latter variety seems to be twice as large as that of the Luxonne.

The violets are all grown in the open ground at Hyeres; though sharp and protracted frosts are, so to say, never experienced there, the growers, who generally have no glass frames at their dis-posal, know well how to keep off the cold winds by the use of screens made of heath or reeds. In this connection we may say that wind-breaks, shelter fences and screens play an important part in the floriculture of southern France. Glass structures, usually unheated but with a pipe lying flat on the ground to increase the temperature in case of an emergency, are becoming more and more frequent; but as they are very expensive, most of the florists growing bush roses, pinks, mignonette, etc., afford their plants the necessary shelter with low rows of glass frames, supported by a single central rail. These frames slope almost to the ground and the lower part of the sides are made tight with straw, heather or seaweed, thus affording an increase of about 5° centigrade in the temperature.

Shelter hedges are also very common, the best being made with Cupressus macrocarpa and C. fastigata, planted from 18 to 24 inches apart. The latter variety, owing to its tall growth and pyramidal close habit is particularly suited to form shelter fences from 2 to 2½ feet high. In a subsequent letter, we shall say a few words about the diseases affecting violets in southern France.

Parislan.

About Water-Bouquets.

These used to be common at flowershows, and they were occasionally used for public and private decorations. fashion, however, did not last very long. It was difficult to fix the bouquet in the right place, to choose material, to place the bell-glass over the bouquet, to fill with water, and to remove the bouquet from the water to the dry stand. Taking the last first, I had a rather serious accident some years since with a huge waterbouquet at a provincial show. This bellglass was some two feet in diameter, and over two feet high. Neither a pail nor a tub could be found, nor water sufficiently clear near the show-tent to flood, or rather suspend, the bouquet in water; hence, my resort, single handed, to a lake in the park some distance off. It was difficult to find a solid standing place. But the water was clear and deep; and after considerable difficulty in thating and submerging the bouquet, which looked lovely in the water, the huge bell glass or globe was placed over, and every bubble of air drowned out, and a china plate slipped under it before the crown of the bouquet reached the surface of the water. No sooner, however, did I attempt to lift the complete water-bouquet out of the water than it strove to drag me into cesse de Galles, which seems to be the largest and finest of all singles and has vigorous folinge and long stalks. Gorre d'Hyeres, a strong stuidy kind, remarkable for its apablity to withstand the frost, which up to date no other approaches at Hyeres. Another kind introduced lately through one of our Parising growers and called La France, appears to be the latest improvement, and will at manures selected with care to supply the needs of the various soils, all hoed under judiciously. Should it not rain within a few days from manuring, a good watering is given to start the decomposition of the tertilizing elements and render them serviceable to the roots.

VIOLETS AS BUNCHED IN FRANCE.

The packing, packing and shipment of the violets keep basy during the winter, at Hyeres, from 100 to 600 women. During the lake, and the weight of the flowers, the water, the china plate, and bell glass, and the pressure of the atmosphere on the glass globe were so great that they nearly succeeded. After a short sharp struggle, the glass gave way, the plate sank to the bottom of the lake, and the bouquet which had being weighted with lead to preserve its position, gracefully disappeared. It need hardly be added that this was the last of my monster water-bouquets made for exhibitions. Waterbouquets of medium or small size are the most beautiful as a rule. One of the chief points is this filling of the glass quite full of water, another is the choice of globes with a level bottom as well as a base, dish or plate with a smooth or even base. The object of this is to enable the glass and the plate to form an impenetrable barrier between the water and the air. Hence the glass, whether large or small, pressed down by the weight of the air clings to the base of the water-bouquet as the limpet to the rock, or the sucker of wet leather to the stone. Then no attempt must be made to remove the glass, or repair water-bouquets, without first plunging them overhead in a pail or tub of water. Astosteadying the bouquet in the water, it is a great mistake to use a lump of clay, as suggested by one of your correspondents, as this would soil the water, and prevent the flowers and leaves from being clearly seen. There is nothing to equal a bullet of lead, worked into the centre of the stem. The whole of the materials of water-bouquets must also be scrupulously clean. The bouquets should likewise be an artistic bunch of ferns, flower leaves, grasses, rather than a formal hand-dress or drooping bouquets of the usual forms. This change of front and form in water-bouquets gets rid of most of the difficulties of hiding unsightly stems or stalks. No mistake did more to lower or ruin the popularity of waterbouquets than overcrowding. Not a few seen by the writer conveyed the impression that the chief object of their makers was the crowding of as many leaves and flowers into their novel position as could be managed, no matter with what amount of crushing against the glass, whereas the primary object of every water-bouquet should be to display, in the most artistic manner, every leaf and flower used, and preserve their freshness and beauty as long as possible, and magnify both through their limpid setting. This making and placing of water-bou-quets needs cultured taste. The setting, like the last touches of the artist on his canvas, not seldom makes or ruins the effect. In both cases, courage, firm handling and skillful manipulation are needful at the finish. The water-bouquet must have its last touches under water. and the artists who fear to take off their coats and tuck up their shirt sleeves, will seldom succeed perfectly. A few touches of the leaves and flowers before the glass barrier separates us from them makes all the difference often between the highest art and the commonplace.—P. T. F in the Gardeners' Chronicle.

UNITED STATES BATTLESHIP MAINE, BY GUSTAV LUDWIG, ALLEGHENY, PA.

Battleship Maine Design.

This piece was made by Gustay Ludwig, of Allegheny, Pa., on the occasion of the funeral, two weeks ago, of the late

Lieut Jenkins, of the ill-fated warship. It was seven feet long on the water part, the boat itself being over five feet in length. The base was made of ivy leaves and white roses, and the hull of pink carnations. The explosion was represented by red sprays, the fire and smoke by red carnations and black immortelles. The earnations and black immortelles. The illustration shows the location of the explosion in black.

Rose Notes.

How shall I manage roses grafted on the Manetti from the small pot stage up to the time of planting out, and what soil seems to suit them best? These ques-tions have been asked by many readers of these pages during the last few weeks, so to shorten up my correspondence I will try here to answer all parties interested at one and the same time.

All growers who have had much experience know how important it is to keep young roses in pots in a thrifty growing condition and avoid the hardening up or stunting process which results from being pot-bound and the lack of sufficient nourishment. This applies with equal or greater force to grafted plants, and it is possible that many of the failures and partial failure of these plants might be traced directly to this particular period of their growth. I am quite satisfied that in order to have the best success we must allow no setbacks while in pots, whether from lack of root space, too much crowdthe foliage, excessive watering, or the rawages of insect pests, such as red spider and green fly. Once the roots are lost and the foliage blighted our season's prospects become anything but rosy. Unless handled with the greatest skill, it is not safe to count on keeping them longer than from four to five weeks in the same pot; so if not prepared to plant early it is best to shift them from a 24-inch pot in a 3-inch, and when another change is demanded put them into 5-inch, with about one inch of drainage, which can be shaken off at time of planting. If they are to be planted out during May, we can use a 34-inch pot in place of a 3-inch, and save handling a second time.

It has been found out by a writer in one of our trade papers that there is a tendency among tea roses, when worked on the Manetti stock, to die off when grown to a considerable size. It is true they do act in this peculiar manner sometimes. lack of affinity probably being the cause: Beauty, Perle and Morgan particularly I have noticed, Bride, Mermet and Bridesmaid fortunately less often. The loss from this cause is sometimes large, at other times infinitesimal. This tendency may be counteracted very largely by deep planting so that part of the rose is below the surface; in that case, should the root at any time fail to sustain the top, the rose will throw out in abundance roots of its own and become practically independent. In order to be able to plant deep we must graft low and pot deep. To prevent the rose splitting off while svringing it is necessary to stake and tie as soon as they are shifted from the small pots. A neat and handy stake for the purpose, and one that is reasonable in cost, is made from No. 12 galvanized wire, cut into lengths of fifteen inches.

If the plants make ordinary growth the size of pot will hardly correspond to the amount of foliage. Because the tips look well even when the plants are badly crowded, do not imagine they are all right any way; you are surely laying the foundation for all kinds of disease, and making a nest for numerous insect pests; light, air, sunshine, should surround every plant. As to soil, I have always considered that a rather heavy clay loam furnished the ideal compost for both the Manetti and canina, the latter I know grows luxuri-antly in its native wilds in strong clay, the stronger the better, and in all my experiments with grafted roses I have worked on this basis, and in the main have been fully satisfied. In conversation with a prominent western grower, a short time ago, however, I was surprised to hear him express the opinion (based on personal experience) that the Manetti was specially adapted to the light soil of that section soil not well suited to the requirements of Bride and Bridesmaid when grown on their own roots. I menpon this to show that, contrary to preonceived opinions, the Manetti is not dependent for its best growth upon any particular kind of soil.

ROBEL SIMPSON

How to Grow Genistas.

The genista, are sometimes called cyticus, but the foreact being the old Latin rar cand the one with which I have been the longe t finishar, I shall use it in this paper. Comsta is a large genus, over sive species have been described. They are natives of Europe, Asia, Africa and the Canary Islands many of them are hardy, and all are of shrubby character. Genista Canarien is, from the Canary Index, and Conaccussus supposed to be a variety of greenhouse origin, are the only two varieties usually grown for house decoration. G. racemosus, being the best in color and in habit, I grow the most of this variety.

The propagation of genistas may be done either in mid-winter or spring. I prefer the former, although they take much longer to root. But the difference in the size of plants pays for the extra time. For winter propagation take cuttings of good size (with a heel), say four to six inches long, when the plants are in a dormant condition and insert them in a propagating bed, box or pot, as best suits your convenience, with a temperature of about 55 or 60°. Wait two months or so and you will have a lot of well-rooted, stocky plants.

For spring propagation, take the ends of the young growths about two inches long. Put them in a propagating bed with the temperature of about 65° to 70°, they burst into beauty, soon to die of utter neglect in some palatial home.

The next plan is to plunge them in their pots, in some material which will retain moisture, outside in a frame. The last is to plant them in the field as early as it is safe; lift and pot them on the near approach of frost. Of these three, the first is my method of culture, and I will describe it, as I think it gives the best results, although more expensive than the others. But quality is my aim for the results of my labor. I always find it pays, and believing you want the best methods, I will pass over the latter two.

While growing, the genista loves plenty of moisture, and a good, rich compost, consisting of one-half loam, cow manure and sand in equal parts for the other half, with a little bone meal added. Shift the plants from one size of pot to the next larger as the pots become well filled with roots. If it is your wish to grow shapely and shade from sun. Put them in thumb pots, with care not to break their brittle roots, as many plants are lost from this cause in transferring them from the propagating beds to their first pots. After they get established in small pots, there will be no difficulty in shifting from one size of pot to another.

CYTISUS RACEMOSUS

There are three ways of growing genustas in summer and but one in winter for the best results. The first method for summer treatment is to keep them in greenhouses. That is to say, they have magreenhouse from the endly to the goare they are born there, they thrive there until at last, to give a generous reward for their land and incessant care, plants, they will require trimining five or six times during the summer and autumn. You may trim and train them into any desired shape

I seyour fancy. Consult not the plants; they will yield to your whims in response to liberal treatment. During the summer give all the air possible to keep the heat down to about 70°, until about the end of November. Then lower the temperature to about 40° and keep your house as near that as you can. By the first of February the plants will be pretty well rested, and during this period should be given but little water. Then you may have them in bloom any time you desire up to Laster by giving them a temperature to the state of the s ture of 50° for a week or so, then raising it to 60° and 65° and increasing supply of water.

Care must be taken in forcing during February, or you will grow them past their flowers. Cuttings rooted during the winter should make nice plants in 6 or 7-inch pots by the following year. If specimens are desired, these plants should be cut back as soon as they have finished flowering, and then treated precisely as young plants. This operation may be repeated year after year until the desired size is reached. WILLIAM K. HARRIS.

Carnations.

Topping carnations is a simple matter, and yet there is quite a diversity of opinion as to the proper method and the proper time. Some growers prefer pulling the top out of them very young, in fact almost as soon as they leave the cutting bench, and thus induce the branches to come out from the axils of the first leaves next the ground and make what they call a nice stocky plant. There is no question but what this does make a nice stocky plant; and so long as the plant is in a pot or boxed off it is all right, but when that plant gets out into the field and is subject to the weather it has to have very careful planting in order that the branches are not under ground at their base, and no matter how carefully it is planted the first heavy rain will wash a lot of soil into the axils of the lower leaves and among the branches, and it is ten to one that you are going to have stem rot in the field and pretty bad at that.

Take the same plant grown inside all summer you have the same trouble, and in fact more of it, for the branches close to the ground exclude the air and light from the base of the plant, and it is always subject to or ready for disease. There should be to every carnation plant at least one inch of stem between the top of the rootelump and the first pair of leaves, and by the time they are ready to house in the fall this should be increased to two inches if possible. This length of stem at the base of the plant can usually be obtained by allowing from five to seven plants and then pull the heart out between the fifth or seventh pair. In most cases this will cause the axillary buds in the four pair of leaves from the top down to develop into branches and thus give your plant a good working base.

plant a good working base.

Whether you pull the heart out between the fifth or seventh pair of leaves will depend on the growth of your plant and to some extent on the variety. If from the manner of growing your plants, or if it is a characteristic of the variety to produce considerable length of stem between the leaves, then in order that your plant does not get top heavy it is best to top when the fifth pair of leaves has developed. Where the length of stem between the leaves is very short it is better to wait until the seventh pair develops as these short, thick-set growers are more apt to branch out next the ground if topped the least bit low. The object is to have a plant that will stand erect and not topple over, for in the latter case the axillary buds will develop from the leaves turned up and those underneath would not come out thus giving you a one-sided plant that would be a nuisance all the way through, although even such a plant is better for indoor culture than one too thickly set below, as these can be tied up so that their base clears the ground.

Topping carnations should not be done

GALANTHUS CICILICUS. (See page 1157.)

at the same time that you are planting them out, for there is quite a close relationship between the leaves and the roots, and the taking away of a portion of the leaves effects a certain proportion of the roots as well. When you plant out the root action of the plants should be as near perfection as possible so that the young plant takes a speedy hold in the soil and gives the leaves a chance to make use of the rich nutrition in the outdoor air and rains. It is best when practicable to have your plants in such a shape that they will not need topping for ten days or two weeks after they are planted out. They will then be well enough started to quickly recover from the effects of the topping.

If the plants are topped a week previous to their being planted out you will get about the same results, and where there is an occasional one that needs topping as you are planting them out, better to do it than run chances of its tumbling over and making a malformed plant. There are some varieties that will branch out close to the ground in spite of all your efforts to the contrary, and for such as these it will be best to plant them on rows thrown up at least six inches above the level of the field and during the sum-mer keep the soil rigidly away from the base of the plant and you will thus get what little stem there is of them hardened to the sun and air, and by giving them the same treatment in the houses will get good results from them in spite of their growth. ALBERT M. HERR.

THE EASTER TRADE.

A large number of additional reports have been received from our correspondents since the publication of the issue of the 16th inst. These in general confirm the summary given last week, as may be gathered from the details of a small proportion of them, as follows:

NASHUA, N. H.—Prices and total sales about the same as last year, except on lilies, which were higher; supply ample in all lines; everything sold well.—A. G. & Co.

ALEXANDRIA, VA.—Trade shows an increase of 50%. Prices a little better than last year, except in case of Harrisii lilies, which brought a higher figure. Plentiful supply of both plants and flowers.—J.L.L.

Victoria, B. C.—Jno. McTavish reports a 20% increase in volume of trade with prices about the same as last year and plants and cut flowers in good supply; there was little call for plants, and in cut flowers bulbous stock, roses and carnations were most in demand; outlook for spring sales brighter.

San Francisco, Call—James Lynch reports total money value of sales about the same, with no increase of prices over last year. Plants and flowers nearly equal to the supply except Harrisii lilies, with very little demand for plants. In cut flowers, sweet peas, roses, violets and lilies were most in demand. Sweet peas scarce and a big figure offered for them.

St. Louis, Mo.—The Jordan Floral Company report trade generally normal, but with an active and increased demand for all blooming plants. The prevailing high prices had a tendency to reduce the volume of business done.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK.—The Oklahoma Floral Co. report sales 50% better, prices very good. Plants and cut flowers in good supply. Good demand for white and pink carnations. House and church decorations were quite a feature.

WINNIPEG, CAN. — Richard Alston reports sales 25% better; prices the same as last year. Good supply of plants and flowers, Harrisii lilies excepted. Cut flowers most in demand were roses, carnations and double tulips, principally white.

Washington, D. C.—A 10% to 20% increase in money value in sales, prices being about the same as last year; supply of plants in excess of demand, which was not great; violets and carnations were short; among plants, lilies were in good demand.—C. L. R.

Albuqt ergue, N. M.—Total sales were about the same as last year; prices ditto; there was no demand for plants, and the supply of cut flowers was ample; bulb stock among cut flowers did not sell well, the demand being mostly for roses and carnations.—B. H. I.

Overland, Cal.—Sales about 35% better; prices same as last year. Plants and cut flowers plentiful except Harrisii lilies. Call principally for calla lilies; among plants, both longiflorium and L. Harrisii were a poor crop. Churches elaborately decorated.—H. M. S.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Messrs, Currie Bros, state that sales show an increase of 25%, with prices ruling higher than last year. Plants and cut flowers in good supply. Lilies and hydrangeas most in demand. In cut flowers all good stock of every kind was salable. No kicks at high prices.

New Orleans, La.—Total value of sales about 10° greater with prices about the same, supply of plants and cut flowers tully equal to the demand, blooming plants did not sell well; the salable cut flowers were lilies, roses, carnations and sweet peas, the war seare has injured trade—M. C.

New Bedford, Mass. Money value of sales about the same as last year with lower prices, supply of plants was not equal to the demand. There was plenty of cut flowers except violets, among plants, liles and azaleas sold well with light call for bulb stock, prices ranged high in general. L. S. H.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAN CR. L. L. reports trade about one third larger than last year with piros about the same Plants, adout flowers were both ingood derivand with callas and bulb stock in pots a little slow. Harrish likes and carrations of in cut flowers, roses narcissisand datadalis being less called for Local virial, k.y., Cash sales were 25% better this year and everything brought good prices. There were no good plants of any lind in the market but in cut flowers there were plenty or every kind except lines, large plants of all kinds in demand, hoves or hymeinths, especially, all cut flower stock sold about alike, violets as usual being scarce. I. H.

New Lorence, Cook Prices were the some as used with trade somewhat poorer; cheap plants were short; wholesale prices were too high on cut flowers; carnations hard to get; lilies and bulb stock, among cut flowers, were chiefly called for; palms did not sell well; small pans of lily of the valley and hyacinths went like hot cakes.—J. S.

Brattleboro, Vt.—D. McGillivray reports a 20% increase of trade; no change in prices from last year; supply of lilies both in cut flowers and plants was short; carnations and other flowers plentiful; large demand for lilies and tulips in pots, and of cut flowers lilies, daffodils, carnations, violets and stocks were most frequently asked for.

NEWPORT, R. 1.—Prices and total sales about the same as last year; in plants, lilies, spiraea and Roman hyacinths were short; carnations, violets, Harrisii and longiflorum were short; in plants, lilies, Roman hyacinths and spiraea were most in demand with azaleas and narcissi least salable, in cut flowers, carnations, violets and lilies were most called for.—J. J. B.

OMAIIA, NEB.—Total sales show an increase of 10%, with prices about the same as last year; supply in all lines equal to the demand; palms, azaleas and cinerarias sold freely with Dutch hyacinths, evelamens and primroses going slow. There was little demand for cut bulb stock; other standard varieties of cut flowers selling well.—Hess & Swonona.

Grand Rapids.—J. A. Creelman reports an increase of 15% in sales, with prices 20% less than last year. Plants good, flowers equal to demand, with a surplus of lilies. Hyacinths, tulips and the like went fast. In cut flowers no one wanted roses, and carnation sales equaled all others combined. Violet plants lifted and potted sold at sight for 25 to 35 cents each.

Springfheld, Mo.—Trade materially increased, with prices 15% better. Plants and cut flowers in fair supply except cut lilies, which were short. Lilies in pots were most in demand. Azaleas are not vet popular with our people. But little demand for bulbous stock. The lily trade, in pot plants and cut blooms exceeded all other sales combined.—W. A. C.

Pittsburg and Allegheny, Pa.—Total sales were greater, probably 30%. Prices normal. Supply of plants and bulbs equal to the demand. Of plants, azaleas and hyncinths in pots and liftes were most salable. Palms and genistas little in demand. Of cut flowers, carnations, violets, and bulbons stock sold best. An increased demand was noted for lilies in pots. Recov.

Tacona, Wash Sales 25% greater than last year with no increase of prices except on toses and carnations, which were better in quality, among plants potted toses were scarce, and in cut flowers violets ran short; tulips in flats did not sell well while hyacinths in flats were in great demand, carnations, roses, violets and blues of the valley mostly called for, collas and tulips being the least salable in cut flowers. McCox

DESTY CITY, N. J.—Two leading florists report sales as 20% better, others reticent and stock left on hand. Prices not generally as good as last year. Plants were plentful and to spine. In cut flowers carnations were not equal to the demand and the call seemed to center on these with roses and violets. In plants hydran-geas were too plentiful, and lilies, of course, took the lead. Business seemed to be rather unevenly distributed.—J. N.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—D. B. Long writes, city sales may be estimated at from 15% to 20% increase. Thursday fair and cool, but Friday, Saturday and Sunday weather unusually favorable. Rather more liberality than usual was shown by flower buyers, and good prices were readily obtained for choice stock. In cut flowers, carnations and violets only could be called scarce. Roses were abundant and bulbous stock a trifle overdone. Of plants, those in flower were all sold ont. Palms and foliage plants were but little called for. Cut roses did not show as sharp a demand as at some other times. Violets were probably the most active. Medium priced, good quality stock and plants, go best. Dutch hyacinths planted in pans went well. Enterprise grows apace; four extra stores or annexes were occupied on Main street alone.

Helpful Reminders.

Asparagus vines are making growth now, and many find that the plumosus variety is producing stems very long and full of thorns, not leafing out until they reach the glass. Do not conclude that their house is not high enough for them. If the stem was given an opportunity to grow as tall as it could, it would produce but a single whorl of leaves, which curl around the long stiff stem in a spiral form. Break oil the stem two to three feet above the ground and they will break out, making beautiful large clusters of growth which may be trained singly or to form a thick rope. After you have it strung up, fork up the soil loosely and give the bed a good top dressing.

You will be receiving orders now for filling window boxes and vases for outside decorations. It is well to solicit orders early. Your customers like plants in place by Decoration Day, and it pays to fill orders at once in your greenhouse. Make room for them by moving out your left-over stock of azaleas, primroses and such shrubbery as was foreed for Easter. Many of your verbenas and geraniums ean go into cold frames. Von can fill hoxes and vases better at home and with less material, as they will have four weeks' growth before delivery. Many plants that are pot-bound can be used that will recover entirely before delivery. This gives you many pots to use for other This gives you many pots to use for other stock. Fill in the bottom with broken pieces of soil and fertilizer. Sheep manure and bone meal mixed is good. When you fill orders don't get all colors in the same box. Pink and white is good, or light blue may go in. Scarlet and white go well with yellow. If you put in a plant with a marradsony golor such as a plant with a quarrelsome color, such as a petunia, surround it with dusty miller and separate it from other colors. Use the same care as in making floral arrangements. When you deliver, present your customer with a paper bag of earth well tertilized, with written instructions placed in an envelope instructing them towaterfreely, keep allold flowers picked off and spread the contents of the bag over the surface of their box in six weeks, this will keep the plants growing and your enterprise will be highly appreciated.

There is a time in summer and fall when every florist who uses white earnations is worted because he cannot get them as wanted. This happens every year, but you can avoid it by arranging from fifty to two hundred plants of Soupert roses, now in 3 inch pots, and within two or three weeks, as soon as some bench room can be provided, plant them out. Give them rich soil and you will have quantities of flowers from July 1 to November 1. The fresh shoots are very delicate and a pretty pink, suitable for many purposes. When a day old they can be cut short for covering in design work, as they fade to a white so delicately tinted as to be quite desirable. There is a fresh crop every day during bright weather. You can easily keep this bench going until your early white chrysanthemums come in.

STORE OF ALEX. PARKS, NORTHAMPTON, MASS.

Azaleas are, of course, done blooming, and those unsold should be taken care of properly and immediate attention is necessary for proper care. They should be making good young growth now, on which next year's buds are formed very soon. If they do not develop properly now no amount of coaxing will revive them after a few weeks and if wilted badly at any time the result will be unsatisfactory. It is not a plant that dislikes sun, but it requires moisture and cool roots. While we have no good method of "sub-irrigation" for these plants we are obliged to give them shade, a roof of slats, a floor of ashes or gravel, with pots partly buried and water convenient. It is best to have a wall on two sides to prevent a direct circulation of air during the very hot and dry months of July and August.

Some of us have regretted that we did not have some good hybrid perpetual rose plants for this last Easter. If you want them for next season provide them right now. You can, of course, get them of nurserymen in the fall, but unless you are an expert of more than ordinary skill a field-grown plant will not please yon. Get them now; grow them in pots all summer and dry off just as those in the garden dry off. You will be reminded in October of what to do then. Baroness Rothschild, Crimson Rambler and Gen. Jacqueminot are good varieties.

Your first batch of gladioli for outside should be in before this. Any deutzias, spiracas, or other shrubbery desirable for pot growing should be propagated now. C. B. W.

Store of Alexander Parks, Northampton, Mass.

This is a typical country florist's store, in fact has never been fitted for Mr. Parks, who took it because he could find no other; but although the store may have a rural appearance, there is no hayseed on the proprietor, who in the three years which he has been in business, has built up a large and increasing trade, to which only first class goods are supplied.

G. W. T.

New York.

THE WHOLESALERS HAVE TROUBLE.—
BUSINESS VERY DULL.—FINANCIAL LOSSES.
—GREEKS SUSPEND PAYMENT.—FINE
ROSES.—VIOLET MARKET GONE TO PIECES.
—SCHULTHEIS' SUCCESS.—CRIMSON RAMBLER A FAVORITE.—LOCAL LINES.

The New York cut flower wholesalers' life since Easter has been anything but pleasant. Never before in the time immediately following Easter has business been so lifeless. War prospects are, no doubt, responsible in part for the unsatisfatory state of affairs now prevailing and which is likely to continue for the balance of the spring. The growers, however. seem to place the responsibility on the wholesalers, and so the present week has seen many changes and transfers of stock from one commission dealer to another, although it is not evident to a disinterested observer what advantage is to be gained by this course. The truth is simply that there are far more flowers daily received in this market than the limited demand can possibly assimilate. The wholesaler is powerless to alter this fact, no matter what street he does business on.

Another severe punishment the wholesalers have had to submit to during the past week is the suspension of a number of Greeks, who have been conducting pretentious establishments up town. John Rovatzos, of 125th street, and Polykranas & Stravopulo, of Columbus avenue, are the two most prominent failures. The mode of procedure followed by these people in such cases is to "sell out" to others of their countrymen; the name on the window is changed, and "what are you going to do aboutit"? Greeks with $100 bills and rolls of smaller denominations infested the wholesale districts in the days preceding Easter and carried things with a high hand generally, getting credit not only from the cut flower dealers but from the big plant growers as well. The prices the Greeks pay for cut flower stock leave very little margin to spare for bad accounts, and as most of the wholesalers have been stuck for a good-sized amount, in this instance their feelings toward the whole race of Greeks are decidedly warm. The influx of these foreigners into the flower trade here is a menace to the business in many ways, and is as unfortunate as it is unavoidable.

Much of the stock now coming in is of poor quality and is unsalable at any price, but the good material fares only a little better. Such Jacqs as Wiegand's and such Brunners as Zuber's which Thos. Young, Jr., receives, are rarely seen and have never been excelled for quality in this market, but they move slowly and at prices ridiculously low, and high-grade Beauties are equally unsalable. Carnations, at moderate figures, are selling fairly well, the supply being very limited. Violets came to the finish of their prosperity at the middle of last week, when the demand stopped short, and since them it has scarcely paid to pick and ship them.

The quality and variety of Easter flowering plants sent in by Schultheis, of College Point, would indicate that it will not be very long before this enterprising grower will become a formidable rival for the two or three big fellows who have had a monopoly of this trade hitherto. Looking back over the Easter report, nothing is more striking than the popularity which the Crimson Rambler rose developed from the start. Next season will undoubtedly see an enormous number of them forced. Crimson Rambler has caught on.

Wippermann, of Brooklyn, has taken the store on Nostrand avenue lately occupied by Rudolph Jahn, and will run it as a branch. He reports business as exceptionally good this spring.

The horticultural buildings for Bronx Park will be erected by Hitchings & Co., whose bid went in through a local contractor and stonemason, J. R. Sheehan. The plans were drawn by Lord & Burnham.

The marriage of Miss Frances, daughter of Charles Thorley, which took place on Thursday, 21st inst., was the notable event of the season.

Chas. Lechner, with Suzuki & Iida, will sail on a European trip on the Travenext Tuesday.

George II. Parsons, superintendent of Parson's nursery, Flushing, died suddenly Tuesday, April 14, aged 49 years.

Philadelphia.

THINGS MOVING ALONG AS USUAL AFTER THE RUSH.—BUSINESS FAIR.—INDECISION AS TO GROWING LILIES FOR NEXT YEAR.—HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY AND THE CLUBS.

Things are moving along as usual after a busyrush. The left-overstock has been sold or gone out of flower and, in ease of anything worth keeping, been sent out to the nurseries for another try next year.

Business has been fair the past week, although there has not been as many spring weddings as the boys would have liked, there have been a few good decorations, but most of the affairs have been of the quiet order. Good stock is plentiful and cheap. Really fine Beauties have been sold very low, good flowers with stems twelve inches long being offered by the fakirs at two for 5 cents, and they are to be seen carrying great armsfull of long-stemmed roses, which are offered at correspondingly low figures. Brides and Bridesmaids are also plentiful and sell at very low prices, in quantity. Carnations are slightly ahead of the demand, although there can scarcely be said to be a glut. Bulbous stock is about over, although a few outside daffodils and tulips are still to be had. Ouite a lot of belated lilies are being offered at low figures.

To plant, or not to plant lilies for next Easter's trade, is bothering growers at this time. The bulb men are after orders; they are always at it. The Japanese longiflorum man says, "plant the Japs, and avoid the diseases." The Bermuda dealer says, "Easter is early next year and you won't get them in in time, Don't run any such risk, plant ours," and so it goes. The bedding plant growers are busy filling up the room made by the Easter stock and getting ready for a good spring trade. Planting out has commenced in sheltered situations, although it is not considered safe until after May 10.

There is a good demand for Crimson Rambler for planting out, but it will not be generally popular until next season. Prices for plants in pots range from 50 cents to $1.50 at wholesale.

The inceting of the Penna, Horticultural Society, held last Tuesday, was fairly attended. Some very pretty, in fact, fine pansy flowers were exhibited. They were the Dreer strain and would earn prizes at any flower show.

Mr. Clinkaberry, gardener to Mr. Roebling, of Trenton, exhibited some new orchids. A liclia cross between L. purpurata and L. cinnabarina, buff yellow with a crimson purple tip, was awarded a silver medal. There were several others, but we refrain. A personal inspection of these jewels of the flower kingdom, is far better than any description of ours and perhaps we might get ourselves into trouble, not knowing the carats accurately enough to judge of their weight. The meetings of the society should be more fully attended; there is always something on exhibition or that transpires to repay one for the visit.

The Florists' Club is to have another theatre benefit in May. The Telephone Girl is to be the attraction, and all will, no doubt, avail themselves of the opportunity to closer inspect this much alive, but heretotore invisible lady. The shad dinner also matures in May, so that we promise to have a lively time next month.

There is some talk of the Gun Club offering their services to Uncle Sam as sharp shooters, their record the past winter surely should insure them a place in the front rank.

Boston.

BUSING SS DULL SINGE LASTLIC SOME, UN PILLASANT LASTLICIA MURICINES, STOCK ABUSINATA AND PRICES LOW.—A MEMORABLE VISIT TO SASHUA.—SEW CYPRELEDING STOCK AND SCAPE GARDEN FOR PRICES.

Business has been unexpectedly dull in the flower trade since haster. Nursery men and those florists who do something in the nursery and outdoor gardening line have been blessed with all the work they could attend to, but the flower trade proper has not shown up as it should. The plants left over from Easter -and most of the city establishments, at least, had some left over—are still on hand looking much the worse for wear and with poor prospects of doing any better. Some of the surplus lilies have been used up in cut flower work, but unfortunately there has been little of the kind of work that they would fit. Even the out-of-town growers, who managed to dispose of all their Easter stock to the city establishments in advance and were very complacent in consequence have reason now to change their mind, for quite a number of them were beguiled into giving credit to a plausible individual who opened a store temporarily on Tremont street and from whom they now find it impossible to collect. Of cut flowers coming in there is a fine variety, excellent in quality and more than sufficient in quan-Violets only seem to run short, and as trailing arbutus is now abundant the passing of the violet will not cause serious inconvenience. Roses of all kinds are abundant and cheap; carnations have descended from their pedestal and once more mingle with the common people; bulbous stock of all kinds is overstocked and lilies are the cheapest kind of stock; mignouette, marguerites, mosotis, snapdragons, swainsona, heliotrope, prim-roses and nasturtiums are seen in abundance in all the windows and an occasional bunch of Blanche Ferry sweet peas adds to the variety.

Hon, C. W. Hoitt entertained a large party of his horticultural friends at his residence in Nashua on Thursday, April 14. A ride about the town was first enjoyed and then the hospitable doors of the "Hermitage" were thrown open and Mrs. Hoitt with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Gilman, assisted the host in welcoming his guests. Judge Hoitt is a past master in all that pertains to the art of entertaining, with few equals and no superiors, and those who had the honor of partaking of his generosity on this delightful occasion will carry the recollection of it always as one of the brightest spots in their memory. "The house is yours," was the first word heard on arrival, and every individual was made to understand the sincerity of the remark every moment of his stay. Andmake a note of it-there were no speeches.

At Horticultural Hall, on April 16, J. E. Rothwell was awarded a silver medal for Cypripedium niveum grandiflorum and a certificate of merit for Cypripedium T. W. Bond, the result of a cross between C. Curtisii and C. hirsutissimum.

Mr. Bruton, who comes with the benefit of a thorough training at Dickson's Royal Nurseries, Chester, England, has opened an office in Boston as a landscape gardener and importer of hardy perennials. His father, Mr. John Bruton, will be associated with him and his brother will attend to the exporting business on the other side.

The store of P. W. Firth, on Meridian street. East Boston, was damaged by hire on the night of April 15, to the extent of several hundred dollars.

The annual dinner of the Gardeners' and Horists' Chib will take place at Horiteultural hall, Tuesday, May 3.

Absitors in town H. S. DeForest, representing Hitchings & Co., New York; Samuel Burns, representing Thos. W. Weithered's Son, New York; and Peter Barr. Covent. Garden, London, England.

Chicago.

OBSEQUIES WHICH MAKE MANY WEEP ARE A SAVING CLAUSE IN THE PAST WEEK'S TRADE REVIEW. — LARGE ADDITIONS PLANNED BY SEVERAL LOCAL GROWERS. —SUICIDE OF L. C. FARWELL. —PERSONAL MENTION.

The most notable feature of the past week's trade was the remarkable number of large funeral orders that were received. The latter part of the week several large orders for flowers came from St. Louis for the Busch funeral which occurred on Wednesday. The funeral of H. W. King, an old time and wealthy resident, kept a number of florists busy Thursday and Friday. At the funeral of Hubert Morris, the prominent young club man and son of Nelson Morris, the packer, which took place on Sunday, more flowers were used than at any other funeral in the history Three or four florists had all of Chicago. the work they could attend to for this funeral, and nearly every florist had orders for more or less flowers for it. A number of very handsome designs were made up, and I wish to note in this connection that more designs are ordered for funerals and not so many flat bouquets as formerly.

Since Monday business has been remarkably dull; only a small portion of the flowers received this week has been sold.

Wictor Brothers have just completed a range of five houses, each 20x130 feet, which they are now planting with American Beauties. This is but a small portion of the addition they contemplate making to their establishment this season.

There are several growers around Chicago who have made arrangements to make additions to their places of from 10,000 to 100,000 feet of glass. The prospect of war does not seem to deter the growers from building greenhouses.

It is reported that the Chicago Floral Co.'s greenhouses at Thirty-eighth street and Grand boulevard, which are the oldest and were for several years the largest in the city, are to be taken down and moved this summer.

Luther C. Farwell, manager of the greenhouses at Oakwoods Cemetery, shot himself at his home on Lake avenue on Tuesday, April 19. He was 27 years of age, and had been in poor health for some time. Despondency is given as the cause of his suicide. Farwell is a brother of Frederick M. Farwell, president of the Oakwoods Cemetery Association, and the family owns the greater part of that beautiful burial ground.

Louis Hunt, of Terre Hante, Ind., was in the city this week.

E. H. Hunt, who has been sick for several weeks, is improving, and hopes to get down to business in a fewdays. Walter Heffron, who for the past two years was with Mr. Hunt in the cut flower department, is now with E. C. Amling in a similar capacity. Mons, Olsen, the old-time wholesale florist, who for several years was with Reinberg Bros., now presides over the cut flower department for Mr. Hunt.

John Poehlman, who has been siek with typhoid fever since Easter, is improving.

O.J. Friedman is very sick with typhoid fever.

O. P. Bassett is at West Baden, Ind., for two weeks, Flint Kennicottstarts for the same place to-day.

Visitors J. Blaanw, representing J. Blaanw & Co., and P. M. Koster, of Koster & Co., both of Boskoop, Holland.

The American Florist

Subscription $1.00 a Year. To Europe, $2.00. Subscriptions accepted only from those in the trade.

Advertisements, 10 Cents a Line, Agate; $1.00 per inch. Cash with Order.

No Special Position Guaranteed.

Discounts, 6 times, 5 per cent; 13 times, 10 per cent; 26 times, 20 per cent; 52 times, 30 per cent.

The Advertising Department of the AMERICAN FLORIST is for Florists, Seedsmen, and dealers in wares pertaining to those lines ONLY.

Orders for less than one-half inch space not accepted. Advertisements must reach us by Wednesday to secure insertion in the issue for the following Saturday.

Address THE AMERICAN FLORIST CO., Chicago,

WE have to thank Mr. C. W. Sibley, of Athol, Mass., for a well-filled box of mayflowers. In fragrance and color the flowers were exquisite.

President S. T. Betts, of the Central New York Horticultural Society, mailed his friends a pretty Eastercard last week, the American Florist among the number.

AN ANNUAL DAFFORK exhibition is held in the Isle of Wight. At the exhibition just closed Messrs. Barr & Sons staged nearly 200 vases of this flower.

STEAM LAWN MOWERS are being quite largely advertised in the English papers. We believe there has been no attempt to put them on the market in this country as yet. Our English cousins are a little ahead of us in this respect. To an American, the cuts and descriptions of the English mowers are quite amusing. They are uniformly heavy, complicated affairs, the 21-inch machine requiring two men to operate it, while the new models of all-steel American mowers, in 21-inch widths. can be readily operated by one man. Perhaps this explains why they use steam.

Cut Flower Price Lists Received.

H. L. Sunderbruch Co., Cincinnati; Ellis & Pollworth, Milwaukee; Basset & Washburn, Chicago; Kennicott Bros.
Co., Chicago; Vaughan McKellar &
Winterson, Chicago; W. A. McFadden,
Cincinnati; City Hall Cut Flower Market,
Boston; Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo; Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee.

Greenhouse Building.

North Easton, Mass.-Oakes Ames, one palm house, 35 x 35; one cattleya, cypripedium and cool orchid house, each 20 x 44. Lord & Burnham, builders.

South Lancaster, Pa.—E. V. R. Thayer, one greenhouse, 40 x 100.
Oneida, N. Y.—J. C. Grems, one commercial house.

Fitchburg, Mass.—C. E. Mansfield, one commercial house.

Monroe Bridge, Mass. — Rammage

Paper Company, one greenhouse. West Chester, Pa.—M. Meyer, six greenhouses.

Holbrook, Mass.-A. Belcher, range of greenhouses.

Rockland, Mass.-W. D. Arnold, one greenhouse.

Middlebury, Vt.-Herbert Bros., one greenhouse.

Lewiston, Me.-E. Saunders, one commercial house. Watertown, Mass.-J. Hittinger, range of forcing houses. Fairhaven, Conn.-S. T. Bradley, one carnation house, 16 x 70.

Bar Harbor, Me.—J. Montgomery Sears, one conservatory, 10 x 34. Middlebury, Vt.—Hunt Bros., one greenhouse

Steam and Hot Water Heating.

PART III. CUTTING AND CALKING CAST IRON PIPES.

Although it appears quite difficult to cut cast iron pipe even and square without breaking or cracking the lengths, with out breaking or cracking the lengths, with a little practical experience, using the proper methods, it is in reality an easy and simple matter. There is no better way to tell a good or bad quality of cast iron pipe than by cutting it in two. And the better the quality of the iron the quicker and the more safely it can be cut. A good quality of cast iron pipe is soft, but tough, and will stand greater strains and is less liable to cracking than pipe of a harder nature. Consequently the best quality is the cheapest for all concerned. It can be handled in transportation from the foundry with less breakage. It can be handled, cut and fitted by the pipe fitter in less time than it takes to do the same amount of work with pipe of a cheaper quality.

A cheap quality of castiron pipe is never soft, so that this is a very good rule to go by in the selection. With the proper tools, good cast iron pipe can be cut, as the practical man calls it, like cheese, and there will be scarcely any danger of cracking. For the practical work of cutting and caulking there are only a few tools necessary, but it is well to have dupli cates of these. With a good se, of tools there is no great difficulty in executing the best class of work. Therefore this is a matter that should receive special consideration. A good hammer should always be among the set of tools, and for this purpose there is none better than what is known as the machinists hammer, of the pattern shown in the accompanying illustration, fig. 1. Cape or diamond pointed chisels are used as a rule in the shape of a block of size way. The latter of the size of a block of size way. the shape of a block of pine wood. This supports the pipe in such a manner that the blow affects no other part except the point that is being cut. It is a good plan to carefully mark the pipe all around where it is to be cut off, so as to follow this line with the chisel, although the average experienced mechanic can cut a perfect line around such pipe without having a mark to go by. It is not necessary to go deep into the metal; a depth of an eighth to three-sixteenths of an inch will generally be sufficient, and this cut must extend all around the pipe. The diamond nose chisel wnich is used more especially for this work is V shaped at its lower point, and therefore makes a V shaped cut. This style of chisel is the best for this purpose as it clears itself besides cutting deep, and removes but little metal. This part of the cutting being done on the joint of the pipe, if it does not fall apart after the cut has been made all around, a cold chisel is then used to make the cut deeper and it will be found that a few blows from the hammer and cold chisel, a few tuches apart around the cut, will cause the pipe to fall asunder. For this work the chisels must be sharp, and well tempered, and should be made of the best refined tool steel. There have been many attempts at making pipe cutters for cast iron pipe, but so far as the writer knows, there has never yet been one that has proved successful, and the old chisel and hammer are still the best far this important piece of work, not withstanding the great advancement made in every branch of the various mechanical trades.

The joints of cast iron greenhouse hubjoint heating pipes are caulked usually with iron borings, or filings, and are called rust joints. The sectional view of a hubjoint is shown in fig. 2. In making these joints a few strands of tarred rope are twisted together and inserted into the hub, forming a ring all around the bottom. Selected oakum is also used for this purpose. The rope is driven tight into the hub by a caulking chisel, which has a blunt end, and is bent in shape as shown at c, in fig. 2. The rope being tightly caulked into the hub, the next operation is to partly fill the hub with cast iron borings, which is made wet, or moistened with salammoniac water. A second layer of the rope packing is sometimes used over the first layer of iron borings, and then the joint is finished with iron rust again on the outer end. This is all carefully caulked with a blunt tool and hammer, but must not be made too tight or too solid, as these iron borings moistened so as to rust quickly, expand in solidifying, and if care is not exercised the hubs will crack from the pressure due to expansion.

There are specially prepared compounds in the market for the caulking of greenhouse heating pipes which are applied in the same general way as described above, and from observations by the writer answer the purpose in a very satisfactory manner. Cast iron hub joint gas and water pipes are usually caulked with molten lead, first being packed with rope, or picked oakum, as in the above cases, but for hot water pipes, which are continually undergoing great changes in temperature, the lead would not prove satisfactory, for the reason that it would soon become loose from expansion and contraction, and allow the water to leak at every joint in the system.

JAMES J. LAWLER.

THE Elizabeth Nursery Company has been awarded the contract for supplying trees for the public parks of Paterson, N. I. this season.

Providence, R. I.—Thomas, W. Weathered's Son has the contract for the new greenhouses to be erected at the North Burial Ground.

Tol.EDO,O .- W.W. Hicks entertained the Florists' and Horticulturists' Society on April 14. Mr. Tracy was the essayist of the day and read a practical paper on spraying.

Grafted Roses.

"What's all this talk about grafted There is nothing new them?" Thus spake an old-timer only a day or two ago. It is true there is nothing new about grafted roses; for all novelties, no matter whether they are teas, hybrid teas, or hybrid remontants, or what not, are invariably grafted on one or the other of the stocks now in use, because with the limited number of "eyes" on hand, and the high prices at which they are sold, grafting is the most expeditious and economical method of working up a stock of a new rose.

In Europe, whence most of the novelties in roses come, they have a variety of stocks that are used for the purpose indicated; namely, Rosa canina (the English brier), which is said to suit some of the varieties best, and the Manetti, which we are told is a wild rose introduced from Italy, and is the one which is being generally used at this time in America on which to graft some of our most popular roses for winter forcing.

There are other stocks on which to bud or graft roses, and it may be necessary to experiment somewhat in order to determine which is best for certain varieties and different soils. The De la Grifferie is used to some extent in Europe, and it is believed by many to suit some varieties best, especially the teas. Rosa Carolina, a native of this country, 1 believe is largely used in the lowlands of Holland for budding purposes, and the roses resulting from the union are much in evidence in many of the department stores here in these days. It must be the best for moist lands; but it frequently fails to render a good account of itself when planted out in this country, just because it does not receive sufficient water, and on account of the uncongenial environment.

There are quite a number who intend to give the grafted stock a trial next winter, and the results will be watched with keen interest by the rose growers for cut flowers in general. There will be some failures no doubt, or rather, perhaps, the difference will not be sufficiently profitable to warrant going to the additional expense in the purchasing of stock for planting. However, it is all in the line of progress, and notwithstanding the fact that there is nothing new about grafted roses, the way in which it is being adopted in this country at this time may be considered comparatively new-

An Easter Incident.

Lam a rose grower and dispose of my buds at wholesale. On Saturday, the day before Easter, a lady drove into my place and inquired for Easter filies in pots to put upon her little haby's grave. I had to say that I did not have any, when I bethought myself that a near neighbor might have a rew left. I hesitated about sending the lady to him because he was not acquainted with her nor any of the circumstances in the case, so I went my self. It was early in the atternoon, and the neighbor was busy entling everything in eight for his second trip among the dealers. Immediately upon my stating my errand he promptly said. "Pick 'em our where you like 600 curs a piece

They were a west looking lot, spindling and averaging three flowers to a plant and growing in 1 inch pots. The stakes though hear, and strong were not nearly long on augh, consequently the stems topped around a good deal. In order to grafity the good linty exact, I ordered some, and being happy because I was accommodating her lost sight of the price asked. Fortunately, or unfortunately, the lady did not inquire the price but ordered the plants to be sent as soon as possible. New and larger stakes had to be provided, also some five inch pots, and after the excitement had subsided and the plants had been dispatched, I proceeded to enter the charge in the day book, when it dawned upon me that I had had my leg pulled and in consequence I have been walking with a decided limp ever since.

I tried the regulation methods and made a charge of $1.20. I could hardly get a wink of sleep that night thinking of the profits I had made on that sale, so I have compromised and made a charge of 75 cents. That is yet an awful high price for such poorly grown plants. Honestly I never saw such poor stock offered for sale at Easter or at any other season. If it was not for the dreaded disease I would go into lily growing myself. Next year if I do not have any lilies, I will unhesitatingly say so, and I won't know whether my neighbor has any or not. He is like the farmer who was relating to a stranger that he was getting $4.50 a dozen for his eggs. "Isn't that kind of high?" inquired the stranger. "Yes," said the farmer, "it is, but I need the money.

So it is with this lily grower, for a few evenings before he and some friends met and had "a little game." Along toward quitting time there was a "jack-pot" which he opened for the limit and drew two cards. There were others who also drew two cards. The betting was fast and furious until two only remained in the game. Finally a show down was paid for, and the man who quoted Lilium Harrisii at 60 cents each, held four sevens to the other man's four eights. Is it any wonder he is endeavoring to replenish a depleted exchequer?

It Never Fails.

ED. AM. FLORIST.-The advertisement in the AMERICAN PLORIST has brought me a fine position with Mr. C. II. Kunzman, 3710 High avenue, to which address you will please send my copy of the paper. John C. Ruysenaars.

Louisville, Ky.

Columnta, S. C.—A highly successful floral festival was held here April 21.

SITUATIONS, WANTS, FOR SALE.

Advertisements under this head will be inserted at the rate of 10 cents a line (seven words) each insertion. Cash must accompany order. Plant advs. not admitted under this head.

Every paid subscriber to the AMERICAN FLORIST for the year 188 is entitled to a five-hise want adv. Free to be used at any time during the year.

STIT ATION WANTED By an experienced grower of roses extrations minus and bedding plants; see 27 J. HANK 716 Third Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

SPITATION WANTED By forist 22 years experimen age 35 Address Box 14 Inmellen, N.J.

SHI ATION WANTED Assistant private or com-nected place, events general experience, age 23 References State wiggs GEO NEV. Hucoln Neb

STITATION WANTED. By a first class grower of roses mains, carmations, violets, toundors, cu-curaters and other plants. Hest references, married, re-thiden. F. I. IONIZ.

5. Bunerville. Lancaster City, Pr.

STILL VITON WANTED. By young termon of good bubble as apprentice in a commerce of place; tody after acid will log to work for small wages in the begin clog. Circhmost or yield its preferred. Address static kg wages patholins. If H acid care Am Florist VNTED: An all r und greenhouse man, married Wages to Tipolic JACON MEYER, Worten Grove, III.

WANTED: A gentleman who understands the seed business, state age nationality and wages ex-pected. S.S. (are American Florist

WANTED—Good florist for greenhouse work; steady position for the right man.

GARFIELD PARK FLORAL CO.

1088 W. Madison St., Chicago.

WANTED—Three or four tret-class men for working in paims and stove plants. Wages no object to right men. Send copy of reterences. Address S P II, care American Florist.

WANTED ATONCE-Good florist for general green-house work Wages $20 per month with board, and increase ween satisfactory. Hill Shale Floral Park, Hillsdale, Mich.

WANTED-By May 1st, a florist, German and single preferred. Must be a good, all-round man, with some knowledge of design work. Will pay $25 per month, including board and washing BOLANZ BROS, Akron. O.

FOR SALK-Greenhouses on principal street to the city. For particulars apply to J. H. REBSTOCK, 584 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR SALE-Florist's single covered wagon; height about 5 feet, width about 4 feet, length about 7 feet; huilt to order, costing $250. Used but 2 years. Will be sold cheap for cash.

VAICHAN'S SEED STORE, BOX 688, Chicago.

TOR SALE—The greenhouse establishment of Schiller & Kuske, formerly Schiller & Mallander, is offered for syle at a great sacrides; $9000 will buy 21%20 seres of valuable ground, 23 greenhouses, comprising 56 000 square feet of glass; wells, 2 nice dwelling houses, sheds, etc., located in the village of Niles Center, about 12 miles from the heart of Chicago; 13% miles to deput. Terms, $5500 cash, balance on time; investigate. Address correspondence to Poelilmann Brys. Morton Grove Cook Co., Ill., or Herman Schiller, $20 W. Madlson St., Chicago.

WANTED AT ONCE

A good all-around greenhouse man; voung; single; one who is not aireld of work; wages $20.00 to $30.00 a month with board and room, according to shillty; steady work the year around; references required.

CRAMER, The Florist,

FOR SALE

Six Greenhouses: about 14,000 feet of glass, well stocked; wholesale and retail; town of 4,000; no competition; less than one hundred miles of Chicago; two railroads. For particulars address

"A," care American Florist.

FOR SALE OR RENT

VERY CHEAP.

Loffer for sale or rent my undivided half interest of the real estate of the greenhouse property formerly known as Schiller & Mallander situated in the village of Niles Center, about 12 miles from business center of Chicago and 15g miles from Morton Grove R. R. Depot. The property consists of 23 greenhouses, 2 dwelling houses, barns, wells not necessary sheds on 219-20 acres of land Investigate. Price for undivided balf, $1.000 cash, balance payable in seven yearly luntaliments, secured by mortgage, notes bearing 6 per cent. Interest, Or will rent or lease to some responsible party for a term of years at an annual rental of $150,000 giving option to lease to buy my interest for above stated price, provided that and leasewill make repairs the first year to the extent of $1,000. Will acquire deed to property May 18. Address

MRS. B. KUSKE.

Care Poehlmann Bros., Morton Grove, Cook Co., III..

EXECUTOR'S SALE

Fine Specimen, Ornamental and Japanese Plants. Rare Orchids, Vases, etc., at the Hayes Estate "Oakmount,"

Lexington, Mass. SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1898 AT 10 A. M.

All the plants on this large estate. Azalens Rhododendrons Palms, Bay Trees, Orange Trees, Rubbers - English Holly - Hydrangens, Agaves, Bendrodiums to logynes, etc., etc. - One of the finest enflections of plants ever offered for public competition. Can be seen on and after April 26. Ferms cash; deposit required. Trains leave 1 nion Station Boston, at 8,17, 9,17 and 10-17 year.

Friday April 29 at 10 year the furniture, paintings, change begans as brue sete, will be sold

EDWARD HATCH, Auctioneer, 22 DEVONSHIRE ST., - BOSTON

Hardiness of Ampelopsis Veitchii.

ED. AM. FLORIST: Should like to hear through the columns of your paper whether the Ampelopsis Veitchii is a satisfactory hardy climber in this state. I have heard it will not grow well here and is only satisfactory near salt water. CHAS. A. Moss.

I have grown Ampelopsis Veitchii in Iowa for over twenty-five years and now have a specimen growing to the roof of a two-story brick building. For some reason they are not reliably hardy here. They die to the ground every four or five years and sometimes die outright. I have tried them on every side of a building and they act the same. Twenty years ago I had them completely covering the east side of a church thirty feet high, but they are all dead now. J. T. TEMPLE.

A Red Flag

Is hung out every Tuesday and Friday. Florists who want to buy and Florists who want to sell meet on common ground at . . . . . . . .

CLEARY'S AUCTION ROOMS

New York's Floricultural Center.

N. Y. GUT FLOWER EXCHA

404-412 E. 34th St. Near Ferry Open for Cut Flower Sales at 6 o'clock Every Morning.....

DESIRABLE WALL SPACE TO RENT FOR ADVERTISING.

JOHN DONALDSON, Secretary.

HOLTON & HUNKEL CO.

SUCCESSORS TO

The Wisconsin Flower Exchange.

Fresh Cut Flowers, Florists' Supplies Manufacturers of WIRE DESIGNS

Consignments Solicited.

Phone Main 874

457 Milwaukee St., MILWAUKEE.

2-in. per 100 3-in. per 100 $5.00 Am. Beauties . . Perle . . . . . . . $2.75 4.50

Bridesmaid ... 2.75 4.50 MAPLEWOOD CUT FLOWER and PLANT CO. PLEASANT HILL, MO.

Asparagus Plumosus

Strings 8 to 10 feet long,

50 CENTS.

W. H. ELLIOTT, Brighton, Mass.

Memorial Rose

Strong field-grown plants, $50, $75 and $100 per 1000

SAM'L C. MOON, MORRISVILLE, Bucks Co., PA.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| Cincinnati, April 21.                                                                                    |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Books Browther wilder April 21.                                                                          |
| Roses, Beauties, *elect                                                                                  |
| " medium 10.00@20.00                                                                                     |
| Deldon 1.00@ 5.60                                                                                        |
|                                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                          |
| " Meteors 5.00@ 6 00                                                                                     |
| 1 Dorlo 2 00@ 1 00                                                                                       |
|                                                                                                          |
| Carnations                                                                                               |
| 40.000                                                                                                   |
| " fancy 2 00                                                                                             |
| D deles25@ .35                                                                                           |
| Lily of the valley                                                                                       |
| in the same same same same same same same sam                                                            |
| Sweet peas                                                                                               |
| Harristi                                                                                                 |
| Callas 8.00@10.00                                                                                        |
| 7 Alias 5.00@10.00                                                                                       |
| Smilax                                                                                                   |
| Adiaotum 1.25                                                                                            |
| Adiabudi                                                                                                 |
| Asparagus 40.00                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                          |
| St. Louis, April 21.                                                                                     |
| Bones Beauties and Indian and Indian                                                                     |
| Roses, Beauties                                                                                          |
| " Meteors 3 00 a 10 00                                                                                   |
| Meteors                                                                                                  |
| Portor 2 00G # 00                                                                                        |
|                                                                                                          |
| " Kalserin. 4.00@10.00Carnations. 50                                                                 |
| Camathan                                                                                                 |
| Carnations                                                                                               |
| Violets. California 1.00                                                                                 |
| Llly of the vailey 2.00                                                                                  |
|                                                                                                          |
| Harrisii                                                                                                 |
| Callas 10 00                                                                                             |
| Tuling                                                                                                   |
| Tulips     3 002 5 00       Narcissus, Romans     1 00@ 2 00       Smilax     15 00@ 20 00               |
| Narcissus, Romans 1 00@ 2.00                                                                             |
| Smilax 15,006,20,00                                                                                      |
| Proces                                                                                                   |
| Freesla 2.00@ 2.50                                                                                       |
|                                                                                                          |
| MILWAUKEE, April 21.                                                                                     |
| Roses, Beauties                                                                                          |
| Roses, Beauties                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                          |
| " Perle 3 00@ 4.00                                                                                       |
| 4 3 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4                                                                  |
| " Meteors 3 00@ 5 00                                                                                     |
| Carnations                                                                                               |
|                                                                                                          |
| Violeta                                                                                                  |
| Tulips, Daffodils                                                                                        |
| Lilviii the valled 2 m/s. 4 m.                                                                           |
| Marguerites, white                                                                                       |
| Marguerites, white                                                                                       |
|                                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                          |
| Yellow                                                                                                   |
| Yellow                                                                                                   |
|                                                                                                          |
| Hyacintbs   3.00@ 4.00     Callas, Harrish   8.00@1.00     Smilax   15.00@ 19.00     Adiantum   75@ 1.00 |
| Hyacinthe                                                                                                |
| Hyacinthe                                                                                                |
| Hyacinthe                                                                                                |
| Hyacinthe                                                                                                |
| Hyacinths                                                                                                |
| Hyacinths   1504   100                                                                                   |
| Hyacinths                                                                                                |

Flowers Business

2) cents enclosed in stamps will bring you samples that will interest you......

DAN'L B. LONG, Publisher, BUFFALO.

ASHES CHEAP. ALSO PURE GROUND BONE.

Write for prices CEORCE STEVENS, Peterborough, Ont.

C. A. KUEHN, Wholesale Florist.

1122 PINE STREET,

ST. LOUIS, MO.

A complete line of Wire Designs.

MOUND CITY CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED

Special attention given to shipping orders 1322 Pine St., ST. LOUIS, MO.

C. W. WORS 2740 Olive Street.

ST. LOUIS, MO. WERS ....wholesale....

.....ROSES, and a full line

Headquarters for the South West ..

When writing mention American Floriat

ST. LOUIS CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists

E. H. MICHEL

1620 Olive St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

ROSES, CARNATIONS, AND ALL KINDS OF SEASONABLE FLOWERS IN STOCK.

WM. F. KASTING COMMISSION FLORIST....

495 Washington St., Buffalo, N. Y. Also Dealer in Florists' Supplies and Wire Designs

W. A. MCFADDEN.

NEAVE BUILDING. CINCINNATI.

Producers and Shippers of every description of High Class Floral Supplies.

GOOD STRONG AMERICAN BEAUTY

AND CYCLAMEN PLANTS

2-in. Pots Ready for Delivery.

Hunt

THE "OLO RELIABLE" FOR

Hunt's Flowers Go Everywhere

76 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

WHOLESALE CUT FLOWERS AND FLORISTS SUPPLIES. WIRE WORK 88 WABASHAVE CHICAGO.

E. C. AMLING. WHOLESALE

Consignments Solicited.

CHICAGO.

Prompt attention to shipping orders.

A. G. PRINCE & CO.

AND FLORISTS' SUPPLIES.

Agents for the Hinsdale Rose Co. Special attention paid to shipping orders.

88 & 90 Wabaah Avenue.

Telephone Main 3208.

CHICAGO.

Mention the American Florist when corresponding with an advertiser.

S. B. WINTER,

(Successor to WINTER & GLOVER,)

21 Randolph St., Chicago.

HIGH GRADE JU

PACKED RIGHT,

so they will reach you in just as good condition as they reach us.

WIRE DESIGNS: A Full Line. Write us for our lilustrated Catalogue.

Wholesale Flower Markets

|        | CHICAGO, April 22.                         |
|--------|--------------------------------------------|
| Roses. | Beauties., per doz. 1,50@3,00              |
| 11     | Brides 2 00@ 4 00                          |
|      | Meteors, Bridesmaids, Kaiserin, 2,00@ 4.00 |
| +1     | Gontlers 2,00@ 3.00                        |
| 11     | La France. Testout 3.00@ 5.00              |
| Carna  | lons, common 50 @ 1.50                     |
|        | fancy 2.00@ 5 00                           |
| Violet |                                            |
| Narcis | sus Poeticus                               |
| Harrie | ⊓. Callas 4 00@ 6 00                       |
|        | the valley 2.00@ 3 00                      |
|        | 1.00@ 3.00                                 |
|        | pens 50 a I.00                             |
|        | iths 3.00% 6.00                            |
|        | um                                         |
|        | 10.00@15.00                                |
|        | gue 40.00@75.00                            |
| Pansic | 8                                          |

Bassett & Washburn's ROSE PLANTS

We have an extra selected stock of the following Rose Plants Will suarantee them to be as fine as any grown

|                        |            | ) Per 1000 |
|------------------------|------------|------------|
| American Beauty216-In. | pot, $5 ( | 00 $40 00 |
| Brides                 | 3 (        | .0 - 25.00 |
| Bridesmaids            | 3 (        | 25.00      |
| Kaiserin               | 3 3        | 50 30.00   |
| President Carnot       | . 3 /      | 50 30.00   |

BASSETT & WASHBURN,

Store: 88 Wabash Avenue, CHICACO, ILL Long Distance Thone Main 223.

Creenhouse and Residence, Hinsdale, III.
Long Distance Thone No. 10.

Wholesale Florist

Don't Forget that we are at 4 Washington St., Chicago.

Write for special quotations on large orders.

**Wholesale Florists

III West 30th Street, NEW YORK.

Consignments Solicited. Telephone, 260 38th St.

Cood Money for your Flowers. Cood Flowers for your Money.

49 WEST 29TH ST., NEW YORK. TELEPHONE 1675 38th St.

THE NEW YORK GUT FLOWER CO.

119 and 121 West 23d Street. 112 and 114 West 24th Street,

Telephone 733-18th.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED. Special Attention Given to Shipping Orders.

ROGERS PARK FLORAL CO..

Wholesale Growers of

51 WABASH AVENUE,

CHICAGO.

HEADQUARTERS FOR AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

WHOLEBALE GROWERS OF

FLOWERS...

600,000 feet of Glass. We can fill all orders on short notice with all leading varieties of Roses and Carnations. We are Headquarters for line American Beautles. Give us a trial and convince yourself. It is a  $\sqrt{4}$  of  $\sqrt{4}$

AM BEAUTIES #50.00 12,50 12,50 12,50 12,50 12,50 12,50 1.50 BRIDESMAID
PERLE
METEOR
BELLE SIEBRECHT

ROSE PLANTS

|             |     |    |    |    | ţ, | u  | ıt | . ( | )1 | ľ | 2 | ų  | į. | ì | 1 | c | h | 1 | × | м  | 8 |   |     | 1 | Н  | ar  | ٠ 1 | 0 | () | per 1000 |
|-------------|-----|----|----|----|----|----|----|-----|----|---|---|----|----|---|---|---|---|---|---|----|---|---|-----|---|----|-----|-----|---|----|----------|
| American 1  | ŀ   | •1 | Ŀ١ | łĺ | Ŋ  |    |    |     |    |   |   | ., | ٠. |   |   |   |   | ċ |   |    |   |   | . , |   | ٠. | 8   | ů,  | O | () | 845,00   |
| Meteor      |     |    |    |    | ٠. |    |    |     |    |   |   |    |    |   |   |   |   |   | , |    |   |   |     |   |    |     | 3   | 0 | Ú. | 25.00    |
| Perle       |     |    |    |    |    |    |    |     |    |   |   |    |    |   |   |   |   |   |   |    |   |   |     |   |    |     | 3.  | 0 | 0  | 25 00    |
| Bridg       |     |    |    | ,  |    |    |    |     |    |   |   |    |    |   |   |   |   |   |   |    |   |   |     |   |    | . ! | 2   | 5 | o  | 22,50    |
| Bridgemaid  | ١.  | ٠  |    |    |    |    |    |     |    |   |   |    |    |   |   |   |   |   |   |    |   |   |     |   |    | . ! | 2   | 3 | u  | 22.50    |
| La France   |     |    |    |    |    |    | ,  |     |    |   |   |    |    | , | ï | , |   |   |   |    |   |   |     |   |    | . ' | 2.  | b | 0  | 22.50    |
| Katserin.   |     |    |    |    |    |    |    |     |    |   |   |    |    |   |   |   |   | i |   |    |   | ì |     | i |    |     | 2.  | 1 | Ó  | 22.50    |
| Helle Slebr | e'c | 4  | 11 |    |    |    |    |     |    |   |   |    |    |   | ı | ŀ |   |   |   |    |   |   |     |   |    | . ' | 2   | 1 | 41 | 22.50    |
| Sullax pla  | nt  | 29 |    |    |    | į. | ٠, |     |    |   |   |    |    | į | ì |   |   |   |   | ٠. | i | i | ٠.  | Ì |    |     | 2.  | Ü | ö  | 15.00    |
| 0003        |     |    |    |    |    |    |    |     |    |   |   |    |    |   |   |   |   |   |   |    |   |   |     |   |    |     |     |   |    |          |

ROOTED CARNATION CUTTINGS

|                 |     | _  | •   | ••• |     | •  | •   | • | ٠.  |     |   | •  | •   | - |    | ٠  | •  | • | ۰ |   | • |       | U . |
|-----------------|-----|----|-----|-----|-----|----|-----|---|-----|-----|---|----|-----|---|----|----|----|---|---|---|---|-------|------------|
| JUBILEE         |     |    |     |     |     |    |     |   |     |     |   |    |     |   |    |    |    |   |   |   | 2 | .00   | 15.00      |
| Wm Scott        |     |    |     |     |     | ,  |     |   |     |     |   | ٠, |     |   | ٠. | ٠  |    |   |   |   |   | 1 (8) | 7.50       |
| Nancy Harks     |     |    |     |     | . , | ,  | , , |   |     |     |   |    |     |   |    |    |    |   |   | , |   | 1.00  | 7.50       |
| Tidni Wave .    |     |    |     |     |     |    |     |   |     |     | , | ·  |     |   |    |    |    |   |   |   |   | 1.00  | 7.50       |
| Porth.          |     |    |     |     |     |    |     |   |     |     |   | ,  | , . |   |    |    |    |   | , |   |   | 1.00  | 7.50       |
| Lizzle Metiowa  | ٤). | ., | . , |     |     |    | ,   |   |     | . , |   |    |     |   |    |    |    |   |   |   |   | 1.10  | 7.50       |
| Goldfinch .     |     |    |     |     |     | ٠. |     |   |     | . , | , |    | . , |   |    |    | ,  |   |   |   |   | 1.00  | 7.50       |
| Mrs. Thompson   | ١.  |    | . , |     |     |    | ٠   |   |     |     | , |    |     |   |    |    |    |   |   | , |   | 1.00  | 7.60       |
| Unybreak        |     |    | r   | ·   |     | ٠, | ,   |   |     |     |   |    |     |   |    |    |    |   |   |   |   | 1.50  | 12,50      |
| Emma Wocher     |     |    |     |     |     | ,  |     |   |     |     |   |    |     |   |    |    |    |   |   |   |   | 1,50  | 12 50      |
| Meterir .       |     |    |     |     |     |    |     |   |     |     |   |    |     |   |    |    |    |   |   | _ |   | 1.60  | 12.50      |
| Lizzie Gilbert. |     |    |     |     |     |    |     |   | . , |     |   | ·  | . , |   |    |    | į. |   | i |   |   | 1.50  | 12,50      |
| Harrison's Whi  | t4  | 4  |     |     |     |    | ,   |   |     |     |   |    | ,   |   |    |    |    |   |   |   | Ċ | 1.60  | 12,50      |
| Brideenorid     |     |    |     |     |     | ,  |     |   |     | ·   |   |    |     |   |    | į, |    |   |   | ï |   | 1,50  | 12 50      |
| Niven           |     |    |     |     |     |    | į.  |   |     |     |   |    |     |   |    | i  | į  |   |   |   |   | 3,100 |            |
|                 |     |    |     |     |     |    |     |   |     |     |   |    |     |   |    |    |    |   |   |   |   |       |            |

REINBERG BROS.. 51 WABASH AVENUE, CHICAGO.

M. A. HART, Commission Dealer Cut Flowers,

44 WEST 29TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

THE BEST MARKET IN NEW YORK.
'Phone 1307 38th St.

TRAENDLY & SCHENCK, Wholesale Florists,

Control the stock of many celebrated growers and are prepared to quote prices on First Grade Cut Flowers. All varieties.

38 West 28th St., and Cut Flower Exchange, Tel. 961 18th Street. NEW YORK CITY.

FRED. EHRET, Wholesale Florist

No. 1403 Fairmount Avenue,

Telephone. Long Distance.

PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| Roses Beauties, Hybrid 4 00@ 15 00                                    |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Jucqs 4.00@ 8.00                                                      |
| Brio smalds, Testout Carnot, 50@ 5 00                                 |
| " Morgans, Meteor                                                     |
| Carnstions 1 00% 1 50                                                 |
| " fancy 150% 3 00                                                     |
| Lily of the valley 1 00@ 2.00                                         |
| Sweet peas per 100 bunches. 8 00@ 10.00                               |
| Daffoolle, Tunps         .50@ 1.00           Violets         .15@ .35 |
| Violets 15@ .35                                                       |
| Harrish, Callas 4.00@ 5.00                                            |
| Asparagus                                                             |
|                                                                       |
| BOSTON, April 20                                                      |
| Roses Beautles                                                        |
| nrumers n.uc@25.00                                                    |
| MOTEUR, MPLEOF, 4 00% 6 00                                            |
| brides, bridesmaios, Carnot 2 00@ 5 00                                |
| Carnations 1 50 g 2 00                                                |
| 1 they                                                                |
| Lliv of the valley, Daffodlia, Tullpa 1.00@ 2.00                      |
| Violeta                                                               |
| Acres 60 00                                                           |
| Asparagus 50 00                                                       |
| PHILADELPHIA April 20                                                 |
| Roses. Beauties select. per dozen3.00                                 |
| medlum 5.00@.15.00                                                    |
| " Brunners                                                            |
| " Tens 4 00 · 12 00                                                   |
| Carnations 1 00@ 3.00                                                 |
| Lily of the valley, Narclesus 3 00@ 4.00                              |
| Violeta50 @ .75                                                       |
| Hynetnths 2.00@ 3.00                                                  |
| Harriell                                                              |
| Sweet pess                                                            |
| Smtlax 12.0v@15.00                                                    |

John I. Raynor,

49 WEST 28th STREET,

-NEW YORK.

SPECIAL EXTRA STOCK OF AM. BEAUTY, METEOR.

BRIDESMAID, BRIDE.

Record Breaking Carnations

THOS. YOUNG, JR.

* * Wholesale Florist

43 West 28th Street, New York.

WALTER F. SHERIDAN, WHOLESALE

FLORIST

39 West 28th Street, NEW YORK.

Roses shipped to all points. Price list on application.

Pose Growers

Will find a good market and good returns for their stock at....

JULIUS LANG'S
53 W. 30th Street, - NEW YORK.

Edward C. Horan, 34 W. 29th Street, NEW YORK,

WHOLESALE • FLORIST.

Careful Shipping to all parts of the country.

Price list on application.

WM. C. SMITH, Wholesale Florist,

40 So. 16th St., PHILADELPHIA.

Consignments Solicited. Special attention given to shipping orders Long Distance Telephone 5008 A

CITY HALL CUT FLOWER MARKET, 9 Chapman Place, 15 Province Street, BOSTON, MASS.

WELCH BROS., PROPRIETORS.

Consignments from regular growers assigned separate space in our market. We guarantee payment for all Flowers sold. Sales reported weekly; payments monthly, or oftener if required.

THE NEW ENGLAND HEADQUARTERS FOR THE BEST GRADE OF FLOWERS AT ALL SEASONS OF THE YEAR.

J. K. ALLEN, Wholesale Florist.

WHITE VIOLETS, finest quality, EXTRA ROSES and other desirable specialties.

57 West 28th Street,

Long Distance Telephone 382-38th St

NEW YORK.

GALVIN&CO.

Wholesale Florists

AND DEALERS IN ALL

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES,

4 Ordway Place, BOSTON, MASS.
Cnt. Flower Consignments Sulfcited. Best market.

GEORGE A. SUTHERLAND, Cut Flowers & Florists' Supplies WHOLESALE.

67 Bromfield St ..

BOSTON, MASS

Wholesale Florists

JOBBERS IN FLORIST'S

FLORISTS' VASES.

Horticultural Auctioneers.

84 HAWLEY STREET, - BOSTON.

JOHN YOUNG, ROSES, CARNATIONS, VALLEY

and all other choice cut flower stock.

51 W. 28th Street, NEW YORK.

Price list on application.

FRANK MILLANG, CUT FLOWERS

WHOLESALE COMMISSION,

408 E. 34th Street,

Cut Flower Exchange.

NEW YORK.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN. IRVING ROUSE, Pres.: E. ALBERTSON Vice-Pres.: GEORGE C SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y. Sec y and Trens.

The San Jose Scale.

Ep. Am. FLORIST:-lu North Carolina a peach or chard of 400 acres was treated with pure kerosene according to the recommendations of Dr. John H. Smith. On the 12th of January, 1898, the owner reported to the United States Department of Agriculture that 90% of his trees had been killed by the application.

Kerosene was applied to several varieties of fruit, ornamental and forest trees at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, for the sole purpose of determining definitely the effect of pure kerosene, applied during a hot, sunshiny day in September. The result has been that peach and plum to all appearances are dead. On the condition of the other varieties of trees, it is deemed best not to make any statement until they have had an opportunity to put forth foliage if they do at all.

It is very unfortunate that it was this same Dr. Smith who a couple of years ago very highly recommended the use of dendroline, to be applied to trees to protect them from insect attack. According to all reports received up to date, not only from individuals, but from experienced station workers, this has almost invariably killed the trees wherever it was applied. It would not seem that this was just what we would expect from following the advice of a scientific man, and will certainly create suspicion that statements coming from the same source with reference to this San Jose scale will not be more reliable.

We know that the San Jose scale in Ohio to-day threatens to be the most dangerous insect enemy the state has yet R. H. WARDER. known.

Cincinnati, O.

F, & F, NURSERIES SPRINGFIELD, N. J.

New Fruits and rare Ornamentals. Shade Trees, Shrubbery, privet, Specialites. 100,000 Peach at lowest prices. Catalogue free. Agents wanted.

CLEMATIS

Large flowering varieties—Rhododendrons, Ampelopsis, Azalea, H. P. Ruses, Tree Roses, etc., etc.—Lilies, Tuberoses, Begonias and Elizatories etc., etc. Gloxinias.

Branch of

The Horticultural Co. Bossoop, Holland. Rutherford, N. J.

My selection 80 per 1000 Descriptive entalogue and price axis for the trade.

SAMUEL C. MOON, MORRISVILLE, Bucks Co., PA.

HARDY

Herbaceous Perennials

THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK IN AMERICA. PÆONIES, PHLOX, IRIS, DELPHINIUMS, ETC., ETC.

JACOB W. MANNING, The Reading Nursery, READING, MASS.

Евтанцинко 1834

100 ACRES IN TREES AND Deciduous Evergreen, Hedging, Vines, Bulbs, Tubers, Etc. NEW 1898 CATALOGUE, 40 PAGES, FREE. The. Wm H. Moon Co., MORRISVILLE, PENNA.

FOR NURSERYMEN

Fresh seeds of the two best kinds of Japanese Walnuts In stock — Juglans cordiformls, $12.25 per 100 lbs. — Juglans regla $10.25 per 100 lbs.— Sold in quantities of not less than 50 lbs.

SUZUKI & IIDA, 11 Broadway, NEW YORK.

Double Hollyhocks

Fine plants, one-year-old, grown from best seed, ...

Pansy Plants Large flowering kinds. Verbenas, Carnations and other stock.

Send for Price List.

S. W. PIKE, St. Charles, III.

MUST HAVE ROOM

CERANIUMS -10 000 S. A. Nutt. 2-Inch. $15 00 per 1000 $2 10 per 100. Rooted Cuttings from soil, $10 00 per 1000 $1.50 per 100. Mixed standard varieties same price. Mme. Bruant. 2-inch $3 00 per 100. BECONIA Vernon, 2-Inch $3 00 per 100. CARNATION LIZIE MCCOWAN, soil or pots, $10 00 per 1000. Cash please.

CARL HAGENBURGER, West Mentor, Ohio.

PANSIES IN BLO

$2.50 per 100. .. $25.00 per 1000.

S. MUIR.

3530 Michigan Ave., - CHICAGO,

Florists' Stock for Bedding

Alternauthera, Coleus, Geraoiums, Pansies, Daisies, Verbenas, Fuchsias, Salvia, etc., etc. Write for prices. Florists when in Milwaukee are in-vited to look over our stock.

ARCHIE MIDDLEMASS, 1019 Foreet Home Ave., MILWAUKEE, WIS.

VIOLET CLUMPS AND ROOTED RUNNERS

JNO. F. WALKER, Waldrop, Vo.

WW VERBENAS WW

The finest collection in America, 30 varieties, every one a gem-mammoth size, striking colors, green as grass. Strong rooted cuttings, 60c per hindred $5.00 per thousand five thousand, $20.00. New Yellow Marguerife binest variety, strong 2 inpot plants, 3c, rooted cuttings, 2c.

STRICTLY CASH WITH ORDER.

SOUTH SIDE FLORAL CO, Springfield, III.

...MARIE LOUISE VIOLETS...

Rooted Runners, E-60 per 1999. No disease to my houses. I ask with order

JOSEPH MARKLE, - Rhinebeck, N. Y.

''Golden Glow' (HARDY)

Excellent for cut flower purposes in late summer. Strong plants, $6.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

IRIS KAEMPFERI strong clumps in ten to color. $1.00 per doz.; $6.00 per 100.

Edwin Lonsdale.

Money Order Office. Station H. Phila

Florist. CHESTNUT HILL, PHILA, PA.

Large Field-Grown Roots in all the Leading Varieties $5.00 lo $7.00 per 100.

30,000 DAHLIAS

Before ordering your Dahlla stock be sure and send for my catalogue of noveities and standards of the best quality and at the lowest prices. All stock guaranteed true to name.

W. W. WILMORE, Dahlia Specialist, Box 382, Denver, Colo.

Armstrong's

Everblooming

Tuberose & &

A NEW departure in Tuberose growth.
Flower bearing buds continue to form around the old flower stock indefinitely.
Flowers greatly superior to those of all other single Tuberoses. Awarded Certilicate of Merit by the S. A. F. at Providence last August, and the Shaw Gold Medal at St. Louis in November.

For Prices and Particulare
...Address...

LUTHER ARMSTRONG,
3720 Olive St., ST. LOUIS MO.

3720 Olive St., ST. LOUIS MO.

Peacock's 36 First Prizes out of 39 entries to 1896 and 1897.

Prize Winning Dahlias

Send for 1898 illustrated wholesale enta-ogue before placing orders elsewhere.

W. P. PEACOCK, - Atco, N. J.

50,000 MARIE LOUISE RUNNERS

at $1.00 per 1000-60c per 100. Cash with order.

Want to exchange above also for young Ameri can Beauties. Wootlen and Meteor Roses, as well as all the newer Carnations

HILLSDALE FLORAL PARK, Hillsdale, Mich.

Milwaukee.

BEAUTIFUL CINERARIAS IN FOREST HOME CEMETERY .- HOW M. B. CURRIE GROWS THEM .- TALK OF CREAM CITY EXPERTS. -NOTES.

James Currie, Jr., was recently asked how the Forest Home cemetery produced such beautiful cinerarias as were seen and admired the last two seasons. We have read lately that this plant was worthless, but the party making such a claim never saw Mr. Currie's plants. They were a grand sight, and no commercial grower would regret having a number of them left on his hands. Mr. Currie gave me concisely the points for producing such a stock. Seed is sown in the first week of August, plants are pricked off into flats as soon as large enough for handling in rich, light soil, so as to take out easily for potting; as soon as four character leaves show put in small pots; keep shift-ing until 7-inch pots are filled; at no time allow them to become pot-bound, neither must they be allowed to wilt. One common mistake, he says, is to set them too close, so that they cannot develop the foliage perfectly, and without good foliage flowers will not be good. Another mistake is to permit the temperature to go above 45°. When the leaves are large cinerarias are apt to be troubled with green fly. To avoid this cut to bacco quite finely and lay it over the benches between the pots. Keep plants well up to the light. When buds are forming it is well to cut out a few of the leaves; the flower stalk will then develop larger.

Frank Dilger happened in while we were talking, and the conversation turned to hris Hispanica and ixias. Mr. Dilger is an enterprising grower and is awake to the modern demands. These irises are beautiful. The flowers are easily handled and sell quickly. I don't know how they pay and didn't ask, but the bulbs are very cheap and Frank would not be discarding roses to make room for them if there was not some profit in them. He says he is pleased with results, but thinks he can improve another year. When bulbs arrive from Holland he puts them into flats and stores them away like hyacinths for rooting. He does not bring them into heat until February, and then only to a temperature of 45°. Alter they make a good growth he moves them into a warmer house. They want rich soil and should not wilt. The bloom appears in about nine weeks after they are brought into warmth. If they are brought in too early they fall right over as if they were cut. Mr. Dilger favors growing the mixed varieties, because they are early and late together. He puts them in closely and the early ones are cut out before the later ones require light. Mr. Dilger has other uncommon bulbs with which he will surprise this market next season. When asked how to grow these beautiful ixias he replied: "They are the easiest of all. Treat them exactly as you do freesias and you will have the same result.

William Currie, when asked how he managed to produce such a gorgeous display of hydrangeas for Easter, said the cuttings were made last season and grown in rich soil in pots all summer. In October they were set outside and hardened off. They were put under benches until January, when they were brought into a temperature of 65° and watered freely. When asked if he did not shake them out in January and give fresh soil Mr. Currie said: "No; you can't get them in so early if you do." The plants made a grand display, and Currie Bros.' window has been quite an attraction for two weeks.

There is some talk of calling A. Billings' place "Lily Dale," as we call him the Lily King. It is the general feeling that his plants for Easter were the finest lot any of us ever saw. Holton & Hunkel say they could not sell any others while his lasted. Of course we all want to know how he produced them, and when we are told it sounds very simple. He purchased Japan-grown longiflorums; potted them in September; set outside until cool weather, and then moved into a house, open roof, running north and south. After chrysanthemums were over he gave them moreroom; kept temperature about 50° until March, then 60°; watched watering carefully. The plants were two to two and a half feet high, strong, perfect foliage, clean flowers, no wrinkles or deformities, and of something like a thousand pots it was impossible to say which was the best. One important item which should be mentioned in connection with Mr. Billings is that all his potted plants are fine; everything he grows is a perfect specimen. He is also a mushroom grower. The soil used for mushrooms is very rich, and after it is thrown out he uses this soil for his pot plants. The way everything grows in it is a caution.

The next noteworthy product of Milwaukee is the mignonette grown by Charles Zepnick. He has supplied the market with plants measuring 18x10 inches, with enormous spikes, since December 1 to the present.

Quite a number of florists had orders for the inauguration of the new Common Council last Tuesday. Binzel & Kellner appeared to take the lead.

The demand for sweet peas and clematis appears to be greater than common.

Prices are very good.
The Whitnall Floral Co. are using a fine lot of Baroness Rothschild roses, both cut flowers and pot plants.

Binzel & Kellner will move to temporary quarters soon to remain while a new building is being erected for them.

Ben Gregory is cutting good sweet peas. Trailing arbutus is expected next week. Mr. D. S. York has established himself at the corner of Jefferson and Ouida streets, with a stand of flowers just outside the drug store.

C. B. W. side the drug store.

ALLEGHENY, PA.—Robert Faulk has raised a company of 100 sharpshooters and has offered Secretary R. A. Alger its services in the war with Spain. Mr. Faulk has lived in Ross township for forty-eight years and has been in the flower trade for sixteen years. He is a Grand Army man, having served in the Eighty-seventh Pennsylvania Volunteers during the Civil War, and in his new organization has three sons, each of whom is a member of Nevin Camp, No. 33, Sons of Veterans, three brothers and at least a dozen cousins.

HARTFORD, CONN.-The annual spring exhibition of the Connecticut Horticul-tural Society was held on April 5th, 6th and 7th. The weather was not favorable for the transportation of plants, but notwithstanding this disadvantage, the exhibition was a very creditable one. Spring flowers and flowering bulbs were shown in great profusion.

For Insurance against damage by hail, Address IOHN G ESLER Sec'v. F H. A., Saddle River. N. J

ALWAYS mention the AMERICAN FLO-RIST when writing to advertisers.

THIS IMPRINT ON AN ENGRAVING

MANZ CHICAGO

IS A CUARANTEE OF SATISFACTORY QUALITY....

Manz makes illustrations for this paper.

GEO. E. COLE & CO. Blank Book Makers. Stationers and Printers

86 and 88 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO.

THE Regan Printing House NURSERY CATALOGUES SEED FLORISTS

87-91 Plymouth Place, *** CHICAGO***

A LL Nurserymen, Seedsmen and Florists wishing to do business with Europe should send for the . . . .

"Horticultural Advertiser"

This is the British Trade Paper, being read weekly by all Horticultural traders; it is also taken by over 1000 of the best Continental houses. Address EDITORS OF THE "H. A."
Chilwell Nurseries. - Notts, England.

"Lyon=Horticole"

is an interesting review of French horticulture. Issued semi-monthly. 20 8-vo. pages illustrated. Subscriptions to the United States, 1 year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00. Address

DIRECTEUR LYON-HORTICOLE, Lyon-Villeurbanne, France.

FLORISTS' MUTUAL

FIRE INSURANCE ASS'N

Application Blanks and Prospectus Ready....

W. J. VESEY, Sec'y, - Ft. Wayne, Ind.

THE NATIONAL Florists Board of Trade

C. S. LODER, Sec'y, 271 Broadway, New York.

THE WABASH R. R. COMPANY

The Short and Quick Line between the East and West connecting Buffalo, Detroit and Toledo with Chicago, St. Louis, Kan-

and Tordo with Chicago, St. Louis, Kain-sas City and Onaha.

The Wabash is the Only Line running sleeping cars and chair cars (free) between Buffalo and St. Louis and Kainsas City.

Through sleeping cars between New York and Boston and St. Louis and Chi-

For further information apply to the nearest Railroad Ticket Agent, or to

H. B. McCLELLAN, G. E. A.,

387 Broadway, New York City,

J. D. McBEATH, N. E. P. A., 5 State Street, Boston, Mass.

C. S. CRANE, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Act., St. Louis, Mo.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

JEROME B. RICE, Pres.; E. B. CLARK, 1st Vice-res.; S. F. Willard, Wethersfield, Coan., Sec'y Pres.; S. F.

A. UNGER, of L. Boehmer & Co., Japan. is returning home from a European trip.

More seasonable weather has improved receipts in the mail trade and helped counter trade generally.

COLUMBUS, O .- The McCullough Seed Company, of Cincinnati, capital stock $75,000, was incorporated to-day by Albert McCullongh, Robt. M. Cox, Herman Teepen, L. C. Black, George H. Par-

Сисадо.-Goodwin, Harries & Co. will remove May 1 to 115 Kinzie street, North Side. The Braslan Seed Growers' Company are completing their shipments of stock seed of peas to the north. Visitors: J. E. Northrup, E. S. Wetherley, F. T. Emerson.

As order in council has been passed by the South Australian government to the effect that no bulbs or bulbous plants plants brought to South Australia shall be delivered to the consignee or importer thereof, unless the collector of customs shall be satisfied that such bulbs or bulbous plants were not raised or grown in a country from which their introduction is prohibited. This order is stated to be due to the prevalence in Japan of a disease which has been especially fatal to the bulbs, killing as many as 95 per cent.

bulbs, killing as many as 95 per cent.

AN INTERESTING EXPERIMENT in onion growing by Mr. Rhoomfield of Paerata, near Puckekohe, is reported by the We. Zeoland Farmer. An onion of good size and coundation was shown, the builb being described as the result of planting for certain seasons bulbs thrown off from seedling onions as one plants potato onions. His object was to best the practiculative of establishing from ordinary seedling onions a strain that rould be planted like potato onions and produce marketable bulbs the next season instead of running to seed. He began by planting the bulbs from a chance seedling which divided into a double onion. I from this stock he has raised onions as large as the average size of a potato onion. A orderable of these good bulbs a flower stalk is thrown uponach wear but which does not apportently affect the size and quality of the onions growing on the same roots. In time the tendency to preduce seed stalk, may be lessaned as gardenesses to have seen in the case of potato onion, several was come in the case of potato onions, several was deep in the early as seed stalk producing generally mercon less abortive flowers. Mr. Besondielder arms for his experiments that they be in the the possibility of producing strains of a season the planted from the bulbs of different aper or varieties of seeding onions which was to many covered to a season of the solesses of the bulbs of different aper or varieties of seeding onions which was a number of the season of the bulbs of control of the season of the bulbs of the season
ORNSOL N. J.-The New Jersey Thoricultural Society held an Eastertide Floral Festival and Musicale at Berkeley Hall on the afternoon and evening of April 24. All the most prominent society ladies of the Oranges gave cordial support to the affair as patronesses, and the function was one of the most brilliant ever given in this neighborhood. The display of choice plants, and showers made by the local Borosts and gardeners was uncommonly has and the society is justly proud of its Birrists Ps -Fred Burki had been missing quantities of flowers from his greenhouses, and employed a watchman to detect the thief, with the result that on the night of April 8, Paul Schultz, a. former employe was seen to lone an entrace and full two large baskets with carnations. Shultz is now awaiting trial for burglary.

Jersey City, N. J.

The indoor Clinton plant market was thoroughly appreciated during the inclement weather previous to Easter. Easter Saturday from sixty-five to seventy wagon loads of plants were offered for sale, about evenly divided between the indoor market and the park opposite. Prices were not up to expectations, owing probably to the unfavorable weather in the early part of the week causing a glut on Saturday. The indoor market so far is satisfactory to the stand holders.

In his church bulletin for the week ending April 9, Rector E. L. Stoddard, of St. John's P. E. Church, on Summit avenue, made this announcement, "It is requested that no Easter lilies be furnished this year." An appeal, however, was An appeal, however, was made for all other kinds of flowers with which to decorate the altar on that Sunday. It was said that the reason Dr. Stoddard made his request that no Easter lilies be contributed was that for several years past a number of persons, particularly those in the choir, were over-come during the services on Easter Sunday and fainted because of the odor of the lilies.

Rector Stoddard is already known to fame as the clergyman who superintends a dancing school in one of the buildings connected with his church. His terms, one dollar for eight lessons, have caused great indignation and disgust among the dancing musters of the neighborhood.

J. C. N.

RAFFIA BEST QUALITY, LONG MADAGASCAR Having purchased on a very favorable stock quickly, make the following special low quotations for prompt orders.

Grafting Wax.

Trowbridge's Celebrated Grafting Wax, the genuine article, 1 lb. bars at 3be; ½ lb. bars at 3be; ½ lb. bars. At 2be per pound. Rebutes: 10 lb. bots, 5 per cent; 25 lb. bots, 10 per cent; 50 lb. bots, 15 per cent; 100 lb. bots, 20 per cent.

G. C. WATSON,

Juniper, below Walnut, - PHILADELPHIA.

BURPEE'S SEEDS PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Price List for Florists and Market Gardeners *******************

TRY DREER'S GARDEN SEEDS,

表现有多种的有多种的有多种的有多种的

Plants, Bulbs & Requisites.
They are the best at the lowest prices. Irade tipl lasued quarterly, mailed free to the trade only.

HENRY A. DREER,
Philadelphibs, Pia

Mention American Florist

THE ALBERT DICKINSON CO. GRASS SEEDS

Parks, Tennis Courts, Lawns, &c.

In fancy 1 and 2 pound packages and bulk.

SPECIAL PRICES TO THE TRADE.

CHICAGO, ILL.

BEST OF ALL' TOMATO

"ENGLISH" MELONS
(FOR FORCING)

FLOWER SEEDS FOR FLORISTS
Catalogues on application

WEBER & DON, Seed Merchants and Growers, 114 Chambers St., NEW YORK, N. Y.

August Rölker & Sons, Spring Bulbs, Florists' Supplies, SE

IMPORT ORDERS booked now for forcing thubs. Azaleas, Lily of the Valley, etc., for fall delivery; send for terms to 52 Dey Street, - NEW YORK.

TO SEEDSMEN!

••••••

The Only Machine

on the market for automatically filling and sealing seed packets.

THE BROWN BAG-FILLING MACHINE CO.

FITCHBURG, MASS. ......

CLUCAS & BODDINGTON CO.

Importers and Exporters of

Seeds, Bulbs & Plants,

501 TO 503 W. 13TH ST., NEW YORK CITY.

Send for quotations on all Florists' Bulb Stock. Manufacturers and Dealers AGS COTTON SEAMLESS, BURLAPS, ETC.

SECOND HAND BAGS BOUGHT AND SOLO.

CINCINNATI BAG CO. Second and Walnut Sts., CINCINNATI, O.

Seed Stores and Flower Stores

Can profitably handle our Packages of Plant Food. Mattractive, take little & Mattractive, take little

The WALKER FERTILIZER CO.

Clitton Springs, N. Y. WORL i Cition Springs, n. i.

Los Angeles, Cal.

We have given up all hope for a general rain, and the record for the past winter will have to be written as the coldest and dryest for more than a score of years. The growers who have waited in vain for expected rain are now irrigating everything, and he who has all the water needed is considered very fortunate. Those who depend on wells and windmills for supply are trying to increase the output, while those who buy from a water company are watching to see that they get all they

The supply of ordinary flowers, grown out doors, is now fully equal to the demand and the florists have a much better selection for cheap grades of work. The price of carnations has kept up. All the principal growers united last November in establishing the price at $1 per 100 for the winter months. That price still holds good, but it is thought a lower rate will soon be made. The retail price is from 25c to 50c per dozen, according to quality. Last week brought in sweet peas in quantity. They retailed at 25c per bunch of fifty. Violets are growing scarce. While some few singles are in the market, the Farquhar and M. Louise are more in evidence. Some growers are discarding California and substituting Princess of Wales. La France will be tested also. Planting young stock of carna-tions goes merrily on and bids fair to keep pace with the rapidly increasing population of the city.

We hear of some disappointments in the way of results from Harrisii imported from Bermuda last year. The only grower who had a good supply for Easter, forced bulbs that were grown in California. The supply was not equal to the demand. The retail price was $1 per pot for plants with three and four blooms.

The people of Riverside celebrated Arbor Day with improvements in Fairmont Park. Hard, practical work, tree planting, and oratory on the benefits of parks were the principal features of the occasion.

Dr. F. Franceschi, manager of the Southern California Acclimatizing Association, is beginning to reap the benefits of his experiments in testing the hardiness of many tropical plants and trees, many of which he introduced into this country. He has recently shipped several car-loads of valuable stock to Arizona.

Louis Legrande, a former superintendent of the city parks, is preparing plans of all the parks from the original designs for the use of the present officials.

Chas. Winsel, the gardener in charge of the floral work of the Southern Pacific Railroad in this vicinity, was recently married to an estimable young lady in San Francisco. Mr. Winsel has many friends who tender best wishes.

The Redondo Beach Floral Company is cutting an average of 2,000 carnations per day at present, with the main crop just arriving.

It is rumored that two of the floral stores will shut down for the summer immediately after the Fiesta festivities.

There are, in this state, over 4,000 acres devoted to growing stocks of various kinds for seeds to partially supply the eastern demand. The value of this land and improvements exceeds $3,000,-000. The business is yet in its infancy, but is growing rapidly. D. R. W.

BEVERLY, MASS.-The Beverly Improvement Society announces its second annual flower show to take place about September 1st.

VAR PRICES!

Here's a chance for you to buy staple goods and get double value for your money. We must make room for a big line of unmatchable novelties soon to arrive, so down go the prices on & & & & & & &

American Beauty Vases in many shapes. China Jardinieres and Ferneries Metal Work and Artificial Flowers Baskets in great variety.

WE are cleaning out balance of the season's stock as rapidly as possible.

JUST RECEIVED New Cape Flowers

Extra large and extra white. A limited stock only, Heavier invoices are on the way. Prices on application.

ITINERARY OF OUR MR. H. BAYERSDORFER WILL BE NOTED LATER.

H.BAYERSDORFER & CO.

Importers and Manufacturers of Florists' Supplies,

50-52-54-56 N Fourth St, PHILADELPHIA, PA

REED & KELLER Florists'

Supplies

122 W. 25th St.,

NEW YORK CITY.

SMALL GREEN

Stiff, wiry stems. Are all the rage.

Box of 5000, $5.00. Less quantity at $1.25 per 1000. ....ADDRESS....

HARLAN P. KELSEY, 1150 Tremont Bldg., - BOSTON, MASS.

Galax Leaves, Cut Palm Leaves, bouquet green, Moss (sphagnum and green). Laurel Roping, Xunas Trees; everything in the green line always in stock at

H. E. HARTFORD'S, 18 Chapman Place. BOSTON.

Rice & Co.

Exclusive Importers and Manufacturers of....

Florists' Supplies

25 N. 4th Street,

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

BRILLIANT GREEN AND BRONZE

GALAX LEAVES.

For Decorating and alt Florists' Designs CHAS. H. RICKSECKER, Linville, Mitchell Co., N. C.

Do the American Florist a small favor. Mention the paper when writing advertisers.

Surplus Stock

Can be disposed of by advertising. Try lt.....

This Size "Ad." Costs Only $1.00.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO., CHICAGO,

Boston Florist Letter Co.

This wooden box nicely stained and varnished, 18x30x12 made in two sections, one for each size leffer, given away with first order of 500 letters.

Block Letters, 1 1/6 or 2-inch size, per 100, $2.00. Script Letters, $4. Fastener with each letter or word. Used by leading florists everywhere and for sale by all wholesale florists and supply dealers.

N. F. McCARTHY, Treas. and Manager, 84 Hawley St., BOSTON, MASS.

You Seen Our Agent? Have A Complete

Catalogue for Florists. Send for One.

ELLIS & POLLWORTH MILWAUKEE, WIS.

John Conley & Son,

IN FOIL

2 AND 4 DOMINICK STREET,

New York.

FOCING

WE have closed contracts with some of the best and most reliable producers for our stock of Roman Hyacinths, Dutch Hyacinths, Tulips, Von Sion Narcissus, Paper White Narcissus, Valley, Harrisii, Longiflorum, Azaleas, and all leading import forcing stock. Give us a list of your wants so that we may be able to quote you on same.

DON'T FORGET THAT WE ARE STRICTLY IN IT ON SUPPLIES OF ALL KINDS. SEEDS, BULBS AND CUT FLOWERS......

VAUGHAN, McKELLAR & WINTERSON, 45-47-49 Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO.

CANNAS NEW AMERICAN Finest in the World Our Novelties for 1898

|                                          | Per         | 100  |
|------------------------------------------|-------------|------|
| DUKE OF MARLBORO, darkest crimson        | $30        | -00  |
| DUCHESS OF MARLBORD, only pure pink.     |             | ()() |
| TOPAZ, only absolutely large pure yellow | . 50        | DH   |
| LORRAINE, joink, edged white, fine       | . 30        | DU   |
| MAIDENS BLUSH, delicate flesh color      |             | (K)  |
| GOLDEN PEARL, yellow, nearly double      |             | ()() |
| CUBA, finest and largest gilt edged      |             | 00   |
| GLORIOSA, very dwarf, March delivery     | . 12        | 50   |
| PHILADELPHIA, glowing crimson            | 15          | -00  |
| CHAMPION, largest, glowing scarlet $5   | 00 en       | ch.  |
| KLONDIKE, only large pure orange 32      | 50 '        |      |
| Send for complete list of 50 novelties a | $_{ m ind}$ | 200  |
| standard varieties at lowest prices.     |             |      |

OUR CANNAS IN FRANCE.

To Messrs A Blanc & Co.
Your new cannes of last year gave me much satisfaction. Please send me a complete set of your neveltles for ISS as soon as ready. Also 12
Glant Crimson, etc. Signed CH MoLIN,
Lyon France, Jan. 3, ISS

ASPARAGUS SPRENGERI

Fine plants in 6-inch pots, ready for 8-inch $5 per 12.

AMARYLLIS .....

Veltch's Hybrids, $4 per 12; Equestra, $4 per 100; Furmosissima, $3 per 100.

CALLAS

Spotted Leaf, 83: Black, 85; Yellow, 890; all per 100. Golden, 82 each.

DAHLIAS

ll prizes out of 22 at the last Dahlla exhibition First prize Dahlla, Gitt.T EDGE, $15 per ltm. Send for special list.

A. BLANC & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

HAERENS BROS.

From SOMERGEM near Ghent, Belgium

SPECIAL Growers and Exporters of Azu-SPICIAL Growers and Exporters of Azaleas. Palms. Arauearins and other decorative plants, take pleasure to inform you that their MR. Ato. HARBESS Is now on his annual visit through the Pnited States. The stock he offers is immense, of best quality and at most reasonable prices. Their New Azaleas will be the Invorites of the future. Write for price list and special offer until May 10th.

AUGUST HAERENS CARL OF ....

66 Beaver St., New York City.

IMPORTERS

JAPANESE PLANTS.

BULBA, ETC.

At lowest prices. Small orders filled from experimental garden Columbia blued Dorchester, Mass Wholesals catalogue, 1924 from to the trade.

JAPANESE NURSERY,

Office. 272 Boylston St., BOSTON, MASS

VAN HEEMSTRA & 60. BULB GROWERS

SASSENHEIM. - HOLLAND.

QEFORE ordering Dutch Bulbs ask our quotations. Our stock enables us to make good offers. Address letters until May 15th to

WARNAAR.

Care KNAUTH, NACHOD & KUHNE,

13 William St., NEW YORK.

SASSENHEIM. HOLLAND

HYACINTHS, TULIPS, CROCUS, DAFFODILS, AND OTHER BULBS. ALSO SHRUBS AND PLANTS.

THEY are strictly first-class and cheap. Special quotations for Wholesale Importers... Address all correspondence until May 15th to.......

H. VAN ZONNEVELD

care J. W. Hampton, Jr. & Co., 41 Broadway, New York

BEST HOLLAND BULBS QUALITY

PRICES

SASSENHEIM, HOLLAND.

Address up to May 1 in care of KNAUTH, NACHOD & KUHNE, 13 William S1., NEW YORK.

Beerhorst... & Van Leeuwen

GROWIRS SASSENHEIM, HOLLAND.

Dutch Bulbs

AND PLANTS FOR AMERICAN MARKET. Ask for Wholesale Prices.

We will stay in America until May 18th. Please address letters to

L. Van Leeuwen,

CARL COLOSNADE HOTEL,

726 Broadway. NEW YORK, N. Y.

For FLORISTS..

VAN ZANTEN BROTHERS.

HILLEGOM. HOLLAND.

N. Dames

of the firm of

经保存的股份股份

***** Vanderhorst Dames...

LOWEST

BULB GROWERS

Lisse and Heemstede, Holland,

is on his round trip through the United States. To spare time, we beg to send all betters and communications up to States. To spare all letters and o May 15, care of

Knauth Nachod & Kuhne, 13 William St., New York.

Give us the list of your wants and we will send you our lowest quotations for real good stuff.

Montion American Florist.

FROM A PHOTOGRAPH. Above Plant Produced from B to 10-Inch Size Bulbs.

.LILIUM LONGIFLORUM...

JAPAN GROWN

THE STOCK OF JAPAN GROWN & & & LILIUM LONGIFLORUM

WHICH WE SUPPLIED LAST SEASON HAS GIVEN EXCELLENT RESULTS AS OUR MANY CUSTOMERS WHO GREW THEM WILL TESTIFY.

OWING to the increasing demand for this Lily the supply will likely be exhausted before planting time and it is DOUBTFUL if . . . .

Late Orders

will be filled in full. 3. 3. 3. 3.

Estimates on above....

LILIUM HARRISII f as healthy as grown on the Island . . . . and all FORCING BULBS cheerfully furnished.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE

84-86 E. Randolph St.

NEW YORK: 14 Barclay Street.

Headquarters for "Fancy" Bulb Stock at Reasonable Prices.

EASTER TRADE REPORTS SHOW THE SALES OF

LILY PLANTS

ALL OTHERS

ORDERS PLACED

NOW

WILL BE MOST CERTAIN OF DELIVERY AND SECURE

INSIDE PRICES

GRAND NEW VIOLET "LA FRANCE"

STRONG VIGOROUS GROWER EXTRA FREE FLOWERING ***RICHEST COLOR

F the many new Violets introduced in the past few years this, the latest introduced in the past lew years this, the latest introduction of the foremost French specialist, is unquestionably the BEST. It has been thoroughly tested by Mr. Snpiot, the Violet expert, who pronounces it "perfect," and flowers which we have exhibited during the past few weeks have been much admired. In vigor of growth, freedom of bloom and in size and coloring, it is superior to all existing sorts, and will soon supersede them. Only a limited stock will be offered this season, and orders will be folled in strict rotation. will be filled in strict rotation.

Price, $1.25 per dozen; $10.00 per 100.

HENRY A. DREER, 714 Chestnut Street, PHILADELPHIA PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Violet Plants... Marie Louise

GEORGE SALTFORD, - Rhinebeck, N. Y.

Princess of Wales Violet...

The Best Money-Maker Among Violets. Strong 212-inch pot-grown plants ......$5.00 per 100.

J. A. PETERSON, = 105 E. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.

Geraniums for Decoration Day.

ED AM. FLORIST:-Is there any special way to make geraniums bloom for Me-moriai Day? Have had trouble in bringing them all out at the proper time.

GEORGE W. HUNT.

With the following treatment I have never experienced difficulty in causing geraniums to bloom late in May. Hold them in thumb pots till near the end of January. Then repot in 3-inch pots and place in a light, airy house; give a night temperature of from 50 to 52°. With care not to over-water they will grow rapidly and by the middle of March will be ready for a shift into 4-inch pots. If given plenty of air and light they will begin to bloom as soon as established. We pinch off all the buds which appear before the first of April. This throws all the strength into the plant and by the middle of May we have a nice stocky plant with ample bloom. I advise Mr. Hunt to not over-crowd his plants. If they are well established 1 see no reason why they should not be well in bloom by Memorial Day. C. W. JOHNSON.

Belleville, Ont.-W. G. Munro has been appointed instructor in botany at the Washington State Agricultural Bureau, near Spokane Falls, Wash.

STRONG STOCK TO POT ON NOW. JOHN H. LEY,

WASHINGTON, D. C. GOOD HOPE,

| Offers clean well rooted plants as below.                  |
|------------------------------------------------------------|
| Azeca Lutescena, 2 ft. tblck, 4-Inch $25.00               |
| Orange Trees 2 ft., full of green fruit, 5 in. pots. 25 00 |
| Phienix Reclinata, 4-Inch pots 5.00                        |
| Phoenix Rechnata, 2-Inch pots                              |
| Ferns, from flats, a good sorts, mailed 1.25               |
| $10.00 per 1000 by express.                               |
|                                                            |
| Oreodoxa Regla 5-Inch, 3 In a pot. (Royal Patm)            |
| 3 to 4 feet high $ 500                                    |
| Phoenicophorium Sechellarum, 4-Inch, nice plants           |
| of this rare palm. 24.00                                   |
|                                                            |
| Nephrolepis d. furcans, 5-inch, extra large 5.101          |
| " Finch, fit for s-Inch 9 00                               |
| Pandanus Utilis, 5-inch, extra large 4301                  |
| Well packed. Cash with order.                              |
|                                                            |

Well packed. Cash with order. EVERGREENS. Etc. 2000 American Arbor Vittes, 2 to 8 feet specimens and hedging plants. 5 (10) Eyramidal Arbor Vitte, 2 to 4 feet, 5 (10) Compacts to lobe and other dwarf Arbor Vittes all sizes. 3 (10) Nordinan's Silver Fir. 2 to 4 feet. 5 (10) European Silver Fir. 2 to 4 feet. 5 (10) Norway Sprine, 3 to 8 feet. 10 (10) Norway Sprine, 3 to 8 feet. 10 (10) Refinosperas Squarrea Plumosa aurea and other sorts 1 to 5 feet. 5 (10) Irish Jumpers 1 to 25 feet. 10 (10) Pines Austrian Seodch Eveelsa, White and dwarf varieties all sizes. 1 (10) Enonymous Impoines, 18 to 36 inches. 2 (10) Enonymous radicany variegata. 1 (10) English Holly 1 to 1 feet. 3 (10) Mahonias aquifolic and daponica. 3 (10) English Ivy strong plants. Pries few. 1 orrespandence solicited. THE WM. H. MOON CO., Morrisville, Pa.

THE WM. H. MOON CO., Morrisville, Pa.

ISORONIA

I will have a very nice store of these in perfect condition for autimn delivery
Bornella herotophylia. from 30 cents to $1 in each.
Bornel a leatfor

AZALEAS Grown especially for American trade
at very resemble prices
Palmis, Dracignas, Araucarias, Acacias,
Kalmia, Latifolia, Rhododendrons, Etc.
Sweet Brys, "standards and Pyramida, Description and prices on application.

ARTHUR DE MEYER, Nurneryman, Mont St. Amand, Chent, Belgium.

VERY LARGE BULBS AT A BARGAIN.

hulbe contain some of the choicest kinds in cul-on. Offer almply made on account of a surplus

F. J. ULBRICHT,

P. O. Box 655 ...

ANNISTON, ALA.

Lutescens Areca

LARGE HEALTHY STOCK

| 3 | Plants. | 6-in. | Pot. | 24 to | 32-it | n. high. | very | bushy, | each |  |      |  |  | 8 | 1 ( | Ю   |
|---|---------|-------|------|-------|-------|----------|------|--------|------|------|------|------|------|-------|-----|-----|
| 3 | 0       | 7-113 | '    | 32 to | . 36  | ٠.       |      |      | * *  |  |  |  |  |   | 1.5 | м)  |
| 3 | 4.9     | S-111 |      | 36 tc | 142   |          |    |        | 6.4  |  |  |  |  |   | 2 ( | H F |
| 3 | 4.4     | 8-in. |      | 42 (0 | 45    |        | * *  | 4.0    | * *  |  |  |  |  |   | 2 5 | ЯÌ  |
| 1 | 6.6     | 10-in |      | 4.10  | 5-11  | t high.  |    | 1.6    | 4.6  |      |  |  |  |   | 5.0 | Ю   |

Just received in perfect condition a large importation of Cattleya labiata, well leaved and perfectly dormant. Also C. Mossiæ, C. Chocoperis, Odontoglossum crispum and Miltonia Rozlii. A great many other South American and East Indian Orchids to arrive shortly.

WE ALSO CARRY A LARGE STOCK OF ESTABLISHED ORCHIDS OF MOST USEFUL KINDS.

LAGER & HURRELL,

Summit, N. J.

ON HAND per 100 1000 3000 Per 100 1000 3000 COCOS WEDDELIANA. $1.00 $7.50 $20.00 LATANIA BORBONICA. .50 3.00 7.50 KENTIA BELMORFANA 1.00 7.00 20.00 "FORSTERIANA 1.00 7.00 20.00 ASPARAGUS PLUMOSUS NANUS 1.50 12.50 35.00 "CANARIENSIS 1.50 12.50 35.00 "SPRENGERII. 1.50 12.50 35.00

J. L. SCHILLER, NEW YORK CITY. 404 E. 34th St.. Please mention American Florist.

Crotons...

_IN VARIETY

Rothschild, Hawkeri, Interruptum, Evansianum, Rubra Lineata, Andreanum, Aurea Machalatum and others, suitable for hedding. Fine plants in 3-tineh pots, $2.00 per doz. New and rare varieties, 50 cents each.

Aurea Maculatum, extra fine plants in 4-in, pots, $2.50 per doz.; $15 per 100; 3-inch pot plants, $2 per doz.; $45 per 100; thumb pots, $1 per doz.; $6 per 100.

Edwin Lonsdale,

Money Order Office, Statlon H. Phila.

Harist. CHI.SINUT HIE. PHILA., PA.

PORT CRAIG & SON ROBT. CRAIG & SON Roses, Palms

and Novelties in Decorative Plants.

Market and 49th Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Rose Hill Nurseries

Stove and Greenhouse plants, Ferns, Aranearno, Pandanus...

SIEBRECHT & SON, New Rochelle, N. Y. New York Office, 409 Fifth Ave.

When corresponding with advertisers, mention the AMERICAN FLORIST.

Asparagus Sprengerii

For another week (before potting up) we offer small dormant 1-year roots @ $5.00 per 100. These bulbs will quickly make strong 21/2-inch pot plants.

pot plants.

Ficus Elastica, true, large leaf variety, 6-inch pots, 20 inches high (a 50c each.

Crimson Rambler Roses, extra fine, bushy plants, in 4-inch pots, will soon bloom, per dozen, $2.00; per 100, $15.00.

Cycas Revoluta, dormant stems, size from 3 to 10 lb. (a 15c per lb.)

Clothide Soupert, the great pot rose, our stock is A No. 1, 2-in. (a $3.00; 21c-in. (a $4.00; 3-in. (a) $5.00; 31c-in. (a) $6.00; 31c-in. (a) $1.00; 30c-in. pot plants, in named varieties, per 100, $5.00.

Pelaronjums Mme. Thibaut. Mrs. Robt. Sandiford.

Pelargoniums Mme, Thibaut, Mrs. Robt. Sandiford, Edward Perkins and Dorothy, strong 3-inch stock, per doz., \(\frac{8}{1}\).50; per 100, \(\frac{8}{1}\).200.

For Cannas, Carnations, Chrysanthemums, send us your list; we have all kinds.

H. P. Roses, dormant. 2-year, extra fine stock @ \(\frac{8}{1}\).200 per 100.

Clematis, Ampelopsis Veitchi, Hollyhocks, Pwonies, Hydrangens P. G., etc. we have in large quantities; write us for prices.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

_____

Creenhouses: CHICAGO: Western Springs, III. 84-86 Randolph St.

DOUBLE PETUNIA, Dreer's strain, strong......$2.50

RUSSELIA JUNCEA, 21/2-in., strong 3.00

AMPELOPSIS VEITCHII, 21/2-in..... 2.50 PALM Latania Borbonlea, 21/2-inch,

3 to 4 leaves, per 1000, $40.00, 4.50

THOS. A. McBETH, Springfield, O.

St. Louis.

Since Easter things have quieted down more than at any time this season, and stock and prices show a tendency to assume a very undesirable condition. Carnations have worked down to $5 per 1000, and other stock in proportion. Considerable dull rainy weather has had the effect of stopping the heavy cutting that was commencing; it also stopped a great deal of the trade going.

The funeral during the past week of one of Adolphus Busch's sons caused a scarcity of flowers of some varieties in this market. The designs sent by employes and relatives were very large and numerous, and notable among them were an 8-foot column, 4-foot chariot, and others; smaller pieces were also abundant, in all several van-loads to take to the ceme-Lily of the valley and the finer terv grades of flowers were soon exhausted and outside markets had to be called upon.

Plant trade at the Union market is reported as fair, the unsettled state of the weather being chiefly held responsible by the salesmen. They say that with clear warm weather business would be very good, judging from present indications. Hydrangeas, which were late for Easter, have made their appearance in quantity, and are meeting with ready sale. A few lilies are still to be seen; the principal stock shown, however, is the usual run of spring material, and it is in excellent condition.

The fakirs are with us again. Easter had the effect of keeping them off the streets for a day or two, that is some of them, but they have reappeared in increased numbers. This is the first time that they can be said to be numerous in St. Louis, and they appear on entirely too many street corners to be pleasant or agreeable for the retailers. They are handling a fair grade of goods.

There is some talk of a new store being opened in the west end, rumor placing the probable location as near Grand and Olive streets or Jefferson and Washington avenues.

The Krebs Floral Co. have made quite an extensive change in their store; the window has been floored with marble, a handsome soda fountain occupies one side and candy cases the opposite side. These changes have greatly improved the able location their additions should prove R. F. T. interior of the store, and from its favor-

JRBANA, ILL.—This city affords a fine field for a florist as it is said there is not a greenhouse nearer than Champaign.

REDUCED PRICES

-Very Fine Rooted-

Carnation Cuttings

Taken from our "Prize" Stock.

DWAN ALASKA ALBE Helen Keller Armazindy McCOWAN ALBERTINI DAYBREAK $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

SOUTH PARK FLORAL CO., New Castle, Ind.

ROSES, VERBENAS, VIOLETS

Finest Teas and Hybrid Teas, clean, healthy, 10 to 15 inches high $4.00 per 100 Verbeaus, best colors, 2½ inch pots 2.00 per 100 Violets, California, well rooted $1.50 per 100 Calla Lilies, 5 and 6 inch pots $10.00 per 100

Invariably at these prices.

Cash with Order. F. WALKER & CO.

Box 316, New Albany, Ind.

Chrysanthemum Mrs. A. F. Wienold

WE claim this to be one of the grandest early whites yet sent out. Originated with us 3 years ago and given a thorough test. It is earlier than Bergmann. Flowers 7 to 11 inches in diameter; is easy to grow; a splendid keeper and above all never shows its center. Except in color it looks like a well grown Golden Wedding. Select stock, 2½-in. pots, 20c each; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

CAL. VIOLETS. No disease. Strong runners. 50c per 100; $4 per 1000. MCDONALD & STEELE, Crawfordsville, Ind,

Ghrysanthemum PRESIDENT

Yellow Sport of JEROME JONES.

It received the highest points and a Certificale of Merit at the Cleveland Chrysanthemum Show. It is in Yellow what Jerome Jones is amongst the White. The very best for late blooming. 212-in. pot plants, strong, $2.50 per doz.; $20.00 per 100. Stock ready April 15th.

E. J. PADDOCK, 295 Erie St., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

CARNATIONS FROM SOIL

Kathleen Pantlind, $10 per 100. Flora Hill, $5 per 100. Beauties, 2 1-2 in., $6 per 100. Carnots, 2 1-2 in., $4 per 100.

HOPP & LEMKE, Paul P. O. E. Grand Rapids, Mich.

ww TO ww

THE MORRIS FLORAL CO., MORRIS, ILL.

SUPER

The Gardenia Carnation.

Plants Now Ready * $10,00 per 100 60.00 per 1000

JOHN BURTON, Chestnut Hill, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Please mention the American Florist

AND 25 OTHER VARIETIES, LOW TO CLUSE OUT.....

GRAFTED TEA ROSES, $15 per hundred.

H. F LITTLEFIELD, Worcester, Mass.

SWELL YOUR BANK ACCOUNT

By growing Emily Pierson Carnations, the most profitable Red Carnation in cultivation. Clean healthy grower, large full flowers with fine stem. Our house, 70×20 feet, from which we have been culting sinee September, has 20,000 buds in sight to-day. We can supply fine rooted cuttings at $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per 1000. Cash with order.

South Side Floral Co., Springfield, III.

PLEASE mention the AMERICAN FLORIST every time you write to an advertiser.

New CARNATIONS.

WHITE CLOUD—White.
GOLD NUGGET—Yellow.
NEW YORK (Ward)—Bright cerise pink.
MRS. JAMES DEAN (Ward)—Clear silvery pink.
JOHN YOUNG (Ward)—White.
BON TON (Ward)—Scarlet.
Prices for above varieties: $2.00 per doz., $10.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

we will also have Cerise Queen (Breitmeyer),
Argyle (Stollery), Jack Frost (Swayne), Empress (Swayne), Evelioa (Witterstaetter), Firefly (Hancock), Psyche (Hill), Pantied Lady
(Hill), and Mrs. S. A. Northway (Simmons).

All good 1897 novelties and other standard varieties at reasonable prices.

New Chrysanthemums.

MRS. C. H. PEIRCE—Yellow.

35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

SNOW QUEEN—White.

50c each, $5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100.

MERRY CHRISTMAS—Late White.

35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

Send for Descriptive Price List. Ready January, 1898.

F. DORNER & SONS CO.

LAFAYETTE, IND.

NATHAN SMITH & SON

Wholesale Florists

Specialties & & & C

ADRIAN, MICH.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS CARNATIONS *** AND VIOLETS

· · · CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED · ·

CARNATION

STRONG, HEALTHY ROOTED CUTTINGS Ready Feb. 1st and Later

Including Morello, Flora Hill, Daybreak, Wm. Scott, Lizzie McGowan, Ivory, Silver Spray, Emily Pierson, Goldfinch, Eldorado, and others. Send me a list of what you want and get prices before you buy. We also have a fine lot of Carnation and Violet blooms for sale. Write for prices. Address.

CHAS. CHADWICK,

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. Lock Box II.

Hanover, Pa.

Mr. F. C. Cremer is about to commence work on an additional rose house to cover 100 x 20. Mr. Cremer has been pre-eminently successful in growing roses, his stock finding a ready sale, both locally and in the Philadelphia market. In addition to his place in Hanover, he has also a store in Gettysburg. Homo.

HARTFORD, CONN.-A rosehouse belonging to Alfred Whiting, West Hartford, was badly damaged by fire on the even-ing of April 3. Loss on building and contents is estimated at $1,500.

DANBURY, CONN.-The J. H. Ives greenhouses were not injured so seriously as at first reported, the loss being trifling.

KINCARDINE, ONT. - Mr. Wm. Bacon gave a lecture on Thursday under the auspices of the horticultural society.

PLANTS

FROM SOIL. CHEAP FOR CASH, PLEASE

CHAS, T. SIEBERT, Station B. Pittsburg, Pa.

NEW WHITE PERPETUAL

BLOOMING CARNATION

Anna H. Shaw

The Beet "All Round" White Carnation for Cot Flowers. Recommendations: Wonderful bloomer. Unusual Vigor, Rapid Grower. Forms Strong Blooming Plants in a Very Short Time. Perfectly Healthy, Handsome Foliage Large Beautifully Formed Flowers on Long Stems. Exquisitely Fragrant. Never Burets. Blooms Longer and Gives More Flowers and Any Other Variety Ever Offered. If you want a RELIABLE. Carnation that can always be depended upon. give Anna H. Shaw a trial. Blooms Cuttings $1 per doz; $5 per 100. Strong Plants. $15 per doz; $10 per 119. Strong Plants. $15 per doz; $10 per 119. Strong than Catalogue of Seeds, Bulbs. Plants. Cact. Etc.

Mrs. Theodosia B. Shepherd,

Ventura (by-the-Sea), Cal.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Rose Owen, J. H. Woodford, Dorothy Devens, G. F. Atkinson, Golden Trophy, T. B. Morse, Pres McKinley, Western King, The Herriott, Surprise, Marcia Jones Elvena, Miss Helen Wright Belle of Castlewood, Chito, C. W. Ward, Mrs. S. T. Murdock, 75 ctls, per dozen; $5.00 per 100. Clory of Pacific Maud Dean, Mrs. R. Crawford, W. P. Raynor, Modesto, Lenawee, Pride of Castlewood, Bonuaffon, Ivory, Ruth Ells, 50 ctls, per dozen; $3.00 per 100. Fank Hardy, T. H. Spanlding, Mrs. O. P. Bassett, The Vellow Fellow, Madeline Pratt, Mrs. C. H. Peirce, Merry Christmas, 35 cls. each; $3.00 per dozen Snow Queen, Pennsylvania, 50 cls. each; $5.00 per dozen. W. H. Chadwick, $1.00 each; $6.00 per dozen. Mrs. Jas, Dean, White Cloud, New York, Empress and Evelina, $2.00 per dozen. Dana, Mayor Pingree, $5.00 per 100. Daybreak and Stom King, fine from soil. $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000. Soct and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12 00 per 1000. CANNAS

Pres. McKinley, Defeader, Pres. Cleveland, Tarrylowa, 60 cls. each; $5.00 per 100. Eldorado, A. Billard, Burbank, Count de Bouchard, Souv. du Pres. Carnot, Souv. d'Antoine Crozy, Papa, $4.00 per 100. Faor and Charlotte, Admiral Avellan, Pres. Carnot, Souv. d'Antoine Crozy, Papa, $4.00 per 100. Faor and Charlotte, Admiral Avellan, Pres. Carnot, Souv. d'Antoine Crozy, Papa, $4.00 per 100. Faor and Charlotte, Admiral Avellan, Pres. Carnot, Souv. d'Antoine Crozy, Papa, $4.00 per 100. Faor and Charlotte, Admiral Avellan, Pres. Carnot, Souv. d'Antoine Crozy, Papa, $4.00 per 100. Faor and Charlotte, Admiral Avellan, Pres. Carnot, Souv. d'Antoine Crozy, Papa, $4.00 per 100. Faor and Charlotte, Admiral Avellan, Pres. Carnot, Souv. d'Antoine Crozy, Papa, $4.00 per 100.

Flora Hil

CARNATION

It sells because there is nothing in sight to at all equal it. It speaks for itself where-ever grown. It is fragrant. It is the largest bloom. It puts all others in the shade. Nothing past or present to equal it. We have four thousand plants exclusively for propagating from; don't allow them to bloom. Send at once and get the best stock ever offered. $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Our Lade list is issued. If you have not received one send for it.

E. G. HILL & CO.,

Richmond, Ind. Z......

NEW se se se CARNATION ARC

A few left at the following price & $ $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.....

STOLLERY BROS. ARCYLE PARK. CHICAGO, ILL.

ARGYLE FINE NEW CARNATION.

LARGE, healthy, free. $2.00 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000. Send for complete list of all the best varieties.

GEO. HANCOCK & SON.
Crond Haven, Mich.

$300 CARNATION PRIZE See half page ad. in issue of March 26th. Send for our circular. AMERICAN ROSE COMPANY, Box 422. WASHINGTON. D. C.

Carnations Chrysanthemums

NEW AND STANDARD VARIETIES

Our new Trade List will embrace the lend-ing novelties of 185e and 1856 as well as the heat standard sorts—Address

H. WEBER & SONS,

NEW CARNATION....

The argust tright rish crime Empress

Send for price list of above. New and Standard Sorts....

WM. SWAYNE, Box 226, Kennett Square, Pa.

Herr's Smilax

Sample plants sent for 10 cents. To rts. per 100, or 25 00 per 1998.

CARNATION EXPERIENCES

A few loundred left send your address and get one free.

ALBERT M. HERR

THE BEST OF THE NEW PINK CARNATIONS

Mrs. Frances Joost.

A WANTE INTERVIEW.

2 00 per diozen, $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000 per 100; $75.00 per 1000 per

C. BESOLD, Mineola, L. I., N. Y. n Noverterreterreterreterreterreter April Offer.

| Per 100                                               |
|-------------------------------------------------------|
| Alternanthera A. Nana, $1.75; P. Major$2.00         |
| Begonias, 5 var.—Vernen                               |
| Coleus Asst. and Centaurea Gymnocarpa 2.00            |
| Geraniums, 16 Var., 21/2-in. pots, $2.50; 3-in. 3.75 |
| Geraniums, 4-in, pots and Marguerites (Paris          |
| Daisy) 5.00                                           |
| Pansy plants from cold frames and Smilax 1.00         |
| CASH PLEASE.                                          |

JOS. H. CUNNINGHAM, Delaware. Ohio.

best selling, most floriferous and dwarfed Geraniums ever introduced.

FOR SALE BY

HENRY A. DREER, Philadelphia, Pa.

F. R. PIERSON CO., Tarrytown, N. Y.

J. C. VAUGHAN, Chicago, Ill.

COTTACE CARDENS, New York. AND THE INTRODUCER

HENRY EICHHOLZ, - Waynesboro, Pa. FRANKLIN CO.

PANSIES WE grow over a million from the choicest seeds of Bugnot, Cassier, Odier and Trimardeau, transplanted last November in cold frames; large plants now ready to bloom, 60e per 100; $4.00 per 1000; Mammoth Verbenas, 70e per 100; $5.50 per 1000; Double Geraniums, in bud and bloom, such as S. A. Nutt, Gen'l Grant, La Favorite and many others equally as good, 4-inch, $6.00 per 100.
3-in., $4.00 per 100.
3-in., $4.00 per 100.
3-in.h, $10.00 per 100.
4-inch, $10.00 per 100.

All the above are very bushy and well branched.

WHITTON & SONS.

Wholesale Florists,

City and Green Sts.,

UTICA, N. Y.

HARDY PINKS

2½-in. pots; Souv. de Sale, $3.50 per 100; Her Majesty, Glen Valley, Laura Wilmer, Ger-trnde, $3.00 per 100.

VIOLETS...

24-in. pots; Admiral Ayellon, Princess of Wales, $3.50 per 100; Luxonne, California, Campbell, Swanley White, $3.00 per 100. THE CONARD & JONES CO., - West Grove, Pa.

| MA       | IOK V   | ar.    | $\mathrm{Per}\ 100$ |
|----------|---------|--------|---------------------|
| From     | 4-ineh  | pots   | $7.00              |
| Identia. | O_inale | turbs. | 42 (0)              |

Sonnenschmidt & Junge

456 E. Washington St. INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

Always mention the . . .

American Florist

when writing advertisers.

PANSIES
THE JENNINGS STRAIN.
THEY ARE GRAND.
Fine stocky plants in bad
and bloom, $10 and $15 per 100 by express; small plants,
75c by mail. Pansy seed, $1.00 per pkt. Aste seed, Semple's pink, $1 00 per oz. Cush with order.

E. B. JENNINGS,

SOUTHPORT, CONN. Lock Box 254. Crower of the Finest Pansies.

100,000 VERBENAS. THE CHOICEST VARIETIES IN CULTIVATION.

Fine pot plants, $2.50 per 100; $20 per 1000. Rooted Cuttings, 75c per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $50 per 10000. NO RUST OR MILDEW.

PACKED LIGHT, AND SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. SEND FOR CIRCULAR.
We are the Largest Growers of Verbenas In the country. Our plants cannot be surpassed.

J. L. DILLON, Bloomsburg, Pa.

GERANIUMS

PINK, RED and WHITE Best Bedders. . . . Thousands Ready.

... W RITE....

GEO. A. KUHL, = PEKIN, ILL.

West Islip Greenhouses MARIE LOUISE VIOLETS

E. B. SUTTON, Jr. P. O. Address.... BABYLON, N. Y.

Hydrangeas

Several Thousand

Approximately

Several Thousand

A. C. OELSCHIG.

u Verrererererererererererer

ASTER WHITE COME

rure white. Trade pkt., 25c; oz., $2.00; fine mixed, oz., $1.75; tall Victoria, white, dark blue and pink, trade pkt., 25c; oz., $2.00; fine mixed, oz., $1.75. All the other seeds at market prices; trade list and sample on application.

BEAULIED War.

H. BEAULIEU, Woodhaven, Q. B., New York.

FAXON'S "WHITE, PANSIES.

The best mixture in cultivation, flowers very rge, thick and velvety; of superb colors and arkings. The perfection of form and texture. large, thick markings.

In Trade Packets at $1.00 each.

M. B. FAXON, Lock Box 1528. 528. BOSTON, MASS. Correspondence solicited.

SPECIALTIES

IN BEST VARIETIES. ROSES, from 3-lach pots.

CARNATIONS, for fall delivery.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS. SMILAX.

Prices low. Send for list. WOOD BROTHERS, FISHKILL, N.Y.

CLEMATIS Jackmanni, Henryii doz. 100 and others........$3.00 $20.00

H. P. ROSES Strong 2 and 3 years own roots. $1.50 $10.00 RED JACKET GOOSEBERRY, only large 75 $4.00

prices.

PAEONIES, fine ass't of colors and kinds $1.25 $8.00 $MILAX, extra strong plants...... $2.50

F. A. BALLER, Bloomington, III.

KLONDIKE

Cold Fields at Your Door.

Cold Fields at Your Door.

COLEUS—All kinds, all grades and all prices. Verschaftetitl and Queen. 75c per 100; 85.00 per 1000; 2½-10ch pots. 815 00 per 1000; 81.30 per 1000. St.75 per 100. Colens in variety, 35c per 100; 44.50 per 1000; 81.50 per 1000; 81.50 per 1000. Agrartum dwarf blue, 80e per 100; 81.50 per 100. Agrartum dwarf blue, 80e per 100; 81.50 per 100. Anthemis Coronaria. Golden Marguerite. 81.50 per 100. The think and per 1000; 81.50 per 100. St.20 per 1000; 81.00 per 1000; 31.00 per 1000; 31.00 per 1000; 31.00 per 1000; 32.00 per 1000; 32.00 per 1000; 32.00 per 1000; 33.00 per 1000; 81.00 per 1000. Hellotrope, 6 varieties, 81.00 per 100; 81.00 per 1000; 81.50 per

J. E. FELTHOUSEN, Schenectady, N. Y.

CARNATIONS AND COLEUS

ROOTED CUTTINGS

THE 1898 INTRODUCTIONS THE 1897 INTRODUCTIONS

DAYBREAK of special quality.

ROOTED COLEUS in variety.

Good stock only. Price list free.

DAN'L B. LONG, Growers' Agent. BUFFALO.

5,000 SMILAX...

From flats, by mall. 50c per 100, $4.10 per 1000 From 2-inch pots, $2.25 per 100, $13.00 per 1000 Gerantums from 2-inch pots, $2.25 per 100; $20.00 per 1000. Cash with the order. Send for samples. Fred Boerner, CAPE MAY CITY, N.J.

PRICES GREATLY REDUCED

For price lists, Plants and Cut Flowers, address the original cultivators.....

CHIPMAN BROS. SANDWICH, 4 (CAPE COD), 4 MASS.

LETTUCE AND OTHER ... VEGETABLE PLANTS

LETTUCE-Blg Boston, Boston Market, Tennis Bail, Grand Rapids and Reichner's Forcing. 15 cts per 100; $1.00 per 1000

TOMATO, CABBAGE and CELERY-Small plants for transplanting now ready. 15 cts. per 100; $1.00 per 1000. Pepper and Exg Plants-25 cts. per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

CAULIFLOWER, Snowball—35 cts per 100; $2.50 per 1000; ff by mail add 10 cts. per 100 for small plants, and 50 cts. per 1000. Send for price list. Cash with order.

R. VINCENT, Jr. & SON, White Marsh, Md.

Rochester, N. Y.

With the fine mild weather prevailing, our florists experience no difficulty in de-livering Easter plants. The increased sales of flowering plants necessitated extra trips for the delivery wagons, because plants are bulky and cannot be piled on top of each other, as in the case of cut flower boxes, but there is no grumbling, so far as I know, in this respect; on the contrary, some are inclined to think that the handling of plants is in many respects preferable to the cut flower business on the great holidays. It was expected that the sales in plants would be ahead of any former year, and all were prepared for a very large increase; but in some quarters expectations were perhaps out of proportion to the size of our town, and consequently we have a goodly number of unsold plants at the various establishments in the neighborhood, notwithstanding the fact that we really had a very acceptable increase in the demand for flowering plants of all descriptions.

A mistake was also made in the anticipation of a growing demand for the larger or higher priced plants; only a limited number of these found purchasers. The great majority of people will not spend more than $1.00 or $2.00, perhaps 83.00 at the outside, for a plant they may select several of these, but would hesitate to invest the whole amount in the purchase of a single specimen, however perfect in shape or attractive in appearance. Still, retailers have every reason to be satisfied with Easter trade this year. The total amount of sales this year. was decidedly larger than for several years past, and if there are a few plants on hand these may come in handy for some purpose during the remainder of the week, as indications for the near future are quite encouraging.

There was less demand in the flower line this year, in fact, the fallingon was greater than anybody could reasonably expect, consequently some of our storemen had an oversupply on hand, yet prices were very steady and no attempt was made to lower them at all because the supply was abundant. Mignonette, violets, tulips and hyacinths were more plentiful than ever, while a good and adequate quantity of roses and carnations could be seen everywhere; enough of everything was on hand, excepting lilies, of which many more might have been used, either in pots or in a cut

Weather conditions since Easter have ta, or of the development of flowers in the greatest abundance, consequently prices have suffered and the supply is greatly in excess of the demand, although the week was rather a busy one in every respect for our florists. Weddings and other functions were quite numerous and flowers were employed freely on all these accasions but the supply was too generons to be used up to advantage.

Roses of fine quality can be bought at $4 per 100, lower grades at correspond ang y smaller figures, carnations bring less than one half last week's prices. carlbons stock is decidedly plenty, a good part of it outdoor grown, and much of it is going to waste. Ainold's sweet peas never were better than at present, on they confronted to buccuits, ourdoor molet prine pally the olddomble larghsh, sell at 50 to 60 cents, eigenorette $2 to $3. I thus, longitlority is still bringing $1000 $12 not being veraplentiful, smile brings $12 to $15, and is rather scarce at

The treplent cals for docrations durmig the past week cleared away a good part of the flowering plants left over from Easter, but not all of it is out of sight In every store we can still notice a lavish display of these plants, though a good part of them were not intended particularly for Easter sales. Sales in this line have been, and are now, very satisfactory, assisted and stimulated, no doubt, by the exceptionally fine weather which prevails and the eager desire of everybody to adorn windows at the opening of spring with some bright colored flowering plant, a custom which we may say is constantly growing with every succeeding year. J. B. K. every succeeding year.

NORTH ORRINGTON, ME.-The greenhouses of George Nichols were destroyed by fire last Sunday night.

Lyxx, Mass.—The Lynn Florists' Club was entertained on Thursday evening, April 14th, at the residence of city florist William Miller. A large number were present and a delightful evening spent. A committee of five was appointed to make arrangements for the annual summer outing.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—The Utah Florists' and Gardeners' Association met April 11, with an unusually large attendance. "The Proper planting and cultivation of Roses," by Hugh Cannon, was a timely topic well handled. "Grafting Fruit Trees" was a practical paper by Parkkeeper Schultheis. Thomas Hobday sooks on the authorism of sooks. day spoke on the cultivation of carnations and the session closed with a general discussion of matters of interest to the craft.

Write for Prices

of Beanties, Meteors, Belle Siebrecht, Perles, Maids and Brides in 2-meh; same varieties and La France and V Raiserin in 3-meh. Smilax in 2-meh. If samples are wanted send 50c in stamps.

GEO. A. KUHL, - PEKIN, ILL.

ROSES OWN ROOTS & DORMANT &

FIELD GROWN

IN COLD STORAGE IN CHICAGO.

No. 1, 2 to 4 feel, cul back to 2 feel Yellow Rambler (Aglaia) Hybrid Perpetuals, Mosses, Hardy Climbers and Madam Plantier

These plants are very strong and well shaped. Prices on application. Address

W. F. HEIKES, Manager,

1308-1310 Unity Bldg., -CHICAGO, ILLS.

I have a nice stock for early extra strong, $10.00 per 100; a few 5 in., $13.00 per 100. California Violets, extra large elumps, $5.00 per 100, will divide up into 10 to 15 plants. Austria Cannas, strong plants @ 2e.

3,000 ROSA RUGOSA at.....$100 per 1000 8,000 DAHLIAS Whole roots at $40 per 1000. 50,000 CALIFORNIA PRIVET $20 to $40 per 1000.

100,000 SHRUBS Assorted, $50 to $125 per 1000. 50,000 SHRUBS Assorted, large sizes, $125 to $250 per 1000.

5,000 BERBERIS THUNBERGII 50 per 1000. 10,000 AMPELOPSIS VEITCHII

5,000 CLEMATIS PANICULATA

50,000 Sugar, Norway and Silver Maples

50,000 DECIDUOUS TREES Leading Varieties.

Satisfactory Prices. Correspondence Solicited.

THE Wm. H. MOON CO., Morrisville, Pa.

CRIMSON RAMBLER ) YELLOW RAMBLER Strong, dermant, field-grown plants 2 to 3 feet high.

Price $1.75 per 10; $15 per 100. Write for list of other stock. Roses, Shrubs, Currants, Fruil Trees, &c.

Jackson & Perkins Co. NEWARK, NEW YORK.

Koses! Koses! Koses!

Extra fine selected stock of all the leading varieti

Bride, Bridesmaid, Catherine Mermet, Madame Hoste, Mrs. Pierpont Morgan, Perle des Jardins, Meteor, at $5.00 per 100. La France, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Mrs. W. C. Whitney, Souvenir de Wootton, Madame Caroline Testout and Pres. Carnot at $5.50 per 100. Clara Watson and American Beauty at $8.00 per 100.4343434

WRITE FOR SPECIAL PRICES FOR LARGE QUANTITIES.

JOHN N. MAY,

NEW FORCING ROSE MRS. ROBT. GARRETT

Hybrid tea, rich soft nink, buds very long, flower extra large delightfully fragrant, rivaling Bridesmaid in color, but larger and much more produc-A stordy, vigorous grower, a money maker and a triumph of American skill. The best been in the country are investing in it. It has won numerous prizes and has elicited the most favorable comment from critical judges. Price trong plants from Ty-inch pots, $25.00 per 100 in las less than 1000; $225,00 per 1000. Orders blocked now, delivery March 15 1898. Corresprovidence solicited. Address

H. WEBER & SONS, Oakland. Md.

Summit, New Jersey. ROSES

PERLES . . . METEORS BRIDESMAID BRIDE

tinaranteed first-class Stock grown in low temperature

THE E. HIPPARD CO., Youngstown, Ohio.

300,000 YOUNG ROSES 300,000

Ramblers, Climb. Malmaison, Climb. White Pet, Climb. Woolton, Pres Carnot and 100 other leaders in Teas, II. Teas and Climbers. Send for prices. Moon Vines, $2.50 per 100. Rose Geraniums, $2 50 per 100,

The National Plant Company, Dayton, Ohio.

New and Rare Plants. GALANTHUS CICILICUS.

This new snowdrop was found by Mr. Siehe, of Mersina, in the Cilician Taurus, Southeast Asia Minor. It differs from all its allies by its enormous size; but for gardening purposes it has a still greater recommendation. While all the other snowdrops bloom after New Year's and cannot be or are with difficulty forced, this species flowers naturally from November to January, and is thus easy to be had in bloom around Christmas. The be had in bloom around Christmas. bulbs this year will be offered in greater quantity than heretofore.

RHEUM PALMATUM TANGUTICUM FLORE ROSEO.

A new variety of the true erown rhubarb, the flowers of which are rose-colored instead of yellow. The true erown rhubarb, once very much favored as the best sort, was cultivated in Europe in the beginning of this century, but with. out knowledge of its true value. Afterwards when the Canton rhubarb (Rheum officinale) appeared in commerce the Rheum palmatum disappeared. It was the well known Russian traveier Przewalski who detected again the true form of the crown or Klachta rhubarb and brought home seeds of it. The late Director E. Regel of the Imperial Botanic Garden at St. Petersburg cultivated it and found it a new variety of Rheum palmatum, viz., var. tanguticum. He showed also that the cultivated root gives after some eight years' cultivation a drug which cannot be distinguished from the true crown rhubarb. Besides this the plant is most valuable as a deeorative garden perennial. The leaves differ widely from those of other species of rheum. They are lobed, long petioled, the blade having a diameter of one foot. The color of the leaves is a purplish green. The leaf rosette has a diameter of about three feet. From the middle of this appears the flower stalk, growing six to eight feet high, somewhat ramified, but the twigs straight and directed upward, so that the whole inflorescence has a very peculiar appearance. The old variety has yellow flowers, which appear in great quantities and furnish after some weeks dark blood-red fruits. But it is a curiosity of the plant that it yields good seeds only in a colder climate, or if propagated in warmer climates by seed, only during the first two or three years. Afterwards the seeds, though full grown are sterile. The new variety flore roseo has flowers of a very fine rose color.

UDO DAMMER.

New London, Conn—Mrs. C. M. N. Sherman has sold the Piquot greenhouses to H. H. Appledorn, of Norwich, who will carry on the business at this place hereafter. This establishment was form-erly conducted by W. E. Pendleton.

CINCINNATI, O .- Caroline Schaefer, with greenhouses on Mellenry Road, has assigned, for the benefit of creditors, to Fyffe Chambers. Liabilities, $2,000; assets, $2,500. Dull trade is given as the cause of the failure.

Mention American Florist.

Kraft's Plant Tonic

For Plants, Palms and Flowers

A Wonderful Preparation for the Promotion of Plant Life, Des-truction of Insects and Scale......

84 & 86 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE.

14 BARCLAY STREET, NEW YORK.

Cocoa Nut Fibre

HAS COME TO STAY ON IES

HE SALEM COCOA NUT

FIBRE CO. Will ship to any part of the country at $9.00 per ton, F. O. B. at Sølem. Mass.

W. S. WARD, Mgr., Office: Federal Street, - SALEM, MASS.

EXTENSION THE MODEL EXTENSION SUPPORT

OUTEENS N Y., Feb. 16, W.
MR. THERON PARKER,
Brooklyn, N. Y., bear Sir:—
I have tested your latest model Carnation Support and am free to say that I consider it the best wire carnation support that I have ever seen.
It is quickly and easily appiled, and i think will prove very durable, and you certainly deserve great c'edit for the invention.

Very truly yours,

C. W. WARD.

FLATHUSH, BROOKLYN, N. Y., Feb. 18, '97
MR. THERON PARKER,
Dear Sir: - Your wire stake is certainly a gem. Without hesitating we indorse it as an up to-date carnation support. Yourstruly,
DAILLEDOUZE BROS.

W. HOBOKEN, N. J.,
FED. IS. 97.
MR. THERON PARKER,
Brooklyn, N. Y. Dear Sir:—
It gives me much pleasure to congratulate you upon your success in getting up carriations upports. I think that those I have had from you are a bout as perfect as anybody will be able to make them. They certainly fill my bill for an ideal carnation support, a thing I have been looking for for a long time.
Wishing you every success
In the sale of them, I am
Yours truly, E. ASMUS.

Write for price list and discount on early orders.

THERON PARKER, 22 Morton St.
BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Scollay

Sprinkler....

INDISPENSABLE J. A Seollay, Maker, 74 Myrtle Ave.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Gen't Western Agents, 84 Randolph St., CHICACO.

PLANT SPRIWREE

STEMS DUST EXTRAGT

BOTTOM PRICES.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE.

Chicago. New York.

Everybody is more pleased if you say saw your ad, in the American Florist when writing.

Cincinnati.

The tulip meeting of April 16 was the most attractive of this spring. The exhibition of tulips, roses and carnations brought out the best growers of this vieinity. Mr. William Swayne, Kennett Square, Pa., and H. Weber & Sons, Oakland, Md., were the only outside contributors. The tulip display was the center of attraction, in which A. Sunderbruch Sons were in the lead; they staged some forty varieties and scored thirty-two points. Notable among them were: Cottage Maid, Keizerskroon, La Regalis, Yellow I'rince and several others equally as good. The City Greenhouses made a creditable display of palms, ferns and orchids; many favorable comments were passed upon the orchids by the ladies. George & Allen showed a fine vase of American Beauty roses. R. J. Murphy was in the lead with Gen. Jacqueminot. 11. Weber & Sons staged a magnificent vase of their new rose, Mrs. Robt. Garrett, which caught the eye of every vis-itor. A vase of seedling carnations from the same firm were much admired and, no doubt, they will be heard from later. The new carnation, Empress, from Wm. wayne, attracted general attention R Witterstactter showed his new pink carnation, Opal, in good shape-it is a decided improvement over Daybreak and a favorite with the craft. Several other vases of seedlings deserve special mention. It was the universal opinion that a finer collection of orchids, roses, lilies, carnations and tulips were never presented to the Cincinnati public for inspection.

In the evening the regular monthly meeting was held and called to order by President Witterstaetter. It was decided that we wind up our last meeting in May with a banquet and entertainment. Messrs, E. G. Gillett and H. Schwarz were appointed a committee to make final arrangements. The president brought up the question, "What shall be done with members in arrears?" A discussion followed and it was finally decided to give them more grace to pay up. After the regular routine of business was transacted the meeting adjourned.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Anthony Fischer, of this city. Fischer was connected with the florist business since boyhood, and his demise will be a shock to his many friends. He was 10 years of age, and leaves a widow and four daughters to mourn his loss. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved H. Schwarz

SCMMII, N. J. A. R. Sampson has bought the greenhouse establishment of C. H. Hagert - Mr. Sampson has been in charge of the greenhouse as foreman heretofore

GREEN-HOUSE HEATING. MYERS & CO. 1518 & 1520 S. 9th St.

PHILADELPHIA. Rend for catalogue and price list

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO. Flower Pots,

Bulb Pans, Hanging Baskets and Saucers

OUR FLOWER POTS are standard measure and all first-class and we assure you they will give good satisfaction. We call your attention to our new pots, 6, 7, 8 and 9-inch, called the "Poro Pot." They are more Porous than any pots, smoother inside and outside, perfect drainage, and are easily washed and cleaned. Give them a trial and you will not want any other. Remember these Pots are as cheap as any other Pot on the market. Write for price list.

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

Standard Flower Pots...

OUR POTS ARE OF THE BEST QUALITY.

We ship all goods from Cincinnati, guaranteeing lowest treight rates and prompt delivery.

Write us before placing your orders elsewhere.

CAMBRIDGE TILE MFG. CO., Covington, Ky.

STANDARD FLOWER POTS

old reliable make of Elverson, Sherwood & Barker.

Write for price list. Address

PITTSBURG CLAY MFG. CO..

New Brighton, Pa.

FERN PANS and

AZALEA POTS...

FULL SIZE AND WIDE BOTTOMS. BULB PANS AND AZALEA POTS.

DETROIT FLOWER POT M'F'Y.

HARRY BALSLEY, DETROIT, MICH., 490 HOWARD ST.

Standard & & FLOWER

If your greenhouses are within 500 miles of the t'apitol, write as; we can save you mouey.

W. H. ERNEST,

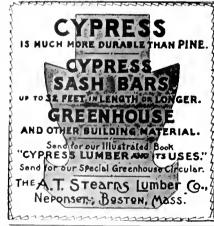

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Standard Made by

Good Railroad Facilities KELLER BROS. Special Attention Given to Mail Orders and Special Sizes Made to Order.

NORRISTOWN, PA.

Price Lists Furnished on Application.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST'S COLOR CHART

is now accepted as the standard in preparing color descriptions by many foreign houses as well as in America

PRICE 15 CENTS POSTPAID. AMERICAN FLORIST CO., 322 Dearborn St., Chicago

Kearney and Westside Aves., Jersey City, N. J. Jackson Av. & Pearson St., Long Island City, N. Y.

STANDARD FLOWER POTS

Send for price list of Standard Flower Pots, Hanging Vises, Seed Pans and Cylinders for Cut Flowers

Lawn Vises, 17x17-In., $1.00; Ex20-In., $1.50; Brises 12-In., htgh 50c. Address

HILFINGER BROS. POTTERY, FORT EDWARD, N. Y

AUGIST ROLKER A SONS AGTS, 32 DEV STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

FLOWER POTS

A SPECIALTY

ast and SAMPLES PRIES.

J. G. SWAHN'S SONS, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

361-363 Herndon Streel, near Wrightwood Ave,

CHICACO, ILL.

Mention American Florist

Putty.

There is practically no genuine putty in the market now. Ground marble and various substances are used in place of whiting and inferior qualities of oil are substituted for linseed oil.

For some years we have purchased bolted (or sifted) whiting at about $1 per 100 pounds and, using a good grade of boiled linseed oil, have made our own putty as needed. It is easily and quickly made and we thus get a pure article for about the same price that we must pay for the worthless imitations which are commonly sold for putty.

In glazing we add about 15% of white

In glazing we add about 15% of white lead to the putty. A larger quantity of lead besides adding unnecessarily to the expense, makes the putty too hard, while it no lead is used it is not durable enough.

York, Pa.

What promises to become one of the largest plants in this part of the state is that of Mr. C. E. Smith, who will soon commence building ten additional houses, nine of which will cover  $15 \times 60$  and one  $15 \times 150$ . Mr. Smith intends growing roses and carnations on a large scale, for in addition to his retail trade, both here and in Baltimore, there is an increased demand for his flowers from the surrounding towns. As usual, the houses will be built in fine shape and equipped with all modern appliances.

Provo, Utah.—Seventeen acres have been set aside on Capital Hill for a public park, and preliminary planting ordered.

Hot=Bed

Sash.

Tenons white-leaded. Corners secured with iron dowel pins. Every detail of construction perfect. Made of Clear Cypress Lumber.

Quick Shipments.

We have in stock and can ship immediately:

3 ft.x6 ft.,3 rows10 in.glass. 3 ft.3 in.x6 ft.,4 "8 in. " 4 ft.x6 ft.,5 "8 in. "

Not glazed, 1% in. thick.

Delivered Prices

Quoted on application. State size and quantity wanted. No order too small to receive careful attention, and none too large for our facilities.

LOCKLAND LUMBER CO.,

Lockland, Ohio.

Wheeler-Stenzel Co.

MPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF

*********

Make your contracts for next season now. We can deliver to any part of the country and Save You Money......

************

Greenhouse Glass

72 Sudbury St., BOSTON, MASS.

KROESCHELL BROS. CO. Greenhouse * Boiler,

Bollers made of the best of material, shell, firebox sheets and heads of steel, water space all around (front, sides and back). Write for information.

If corresponding with an advertiser at any time, say "saw your ad. in the American Florist."

VANCE BOILERS ARE THE BEST

For Heating Greenhouses, Conservatories and Dwellings.

Our boilers consume all gases from the fuel, therefore making it the most desirable boiler for greenhouse heating on the market.....

Send to-day for Catalogue and Price List,

Vance Boiler Works,

399 LAKE AVE., GENEVA, N. Y.

J.N.STRUCK G. BRO.

LOUISIANA Cypress Green House Material.

RED CEDAR

Write for Estimates.

Shading.

The question as to what is the best material for shading greenhouse glass has been a troublesome one to us, but we think we have solved it fairly well.

Whitewash has a bad effect on the painted bars and is sometimes hard to remove. White lead dissolved in cheap kerosene is very satisfactory, but expensive.

We used last year pure putty dissolved in kerosene, and found it to work perfectly, except that it was a little more difficult to remove than we liked. This was probably due to too large a proportion of linseed oil. This year we have added to the putty about half its bulk of dry whiting, thus giving a greater dilution of the linseed oil, and we feel confident that we have pretty nearly the ideal shade—cheap, effective, lasting, but easily removed when the proper time comes.

It is applied with a whitewash brush, a strip down the center of the glass at first, leaving the sides clear, later covering the whole glass, and when a heavy shade is required a third application still later all over the glass.

X.

DAVENPORT, IA.—Mrs. F. L. Bills' floral store is now finely located in the Roth-child building at the corner of Second and Brady streets.

WATERTOWN, Wis.—James Whelan, the venerable nurseryman, died at his home here on April 15. He was 65 years of age and leaves a family.

Oconomowoc, Wis.—Otto Sylvester, last week, shipped 12,000 violets to Chicago, and 14,000 to Milwaukee. He also shipped 2,500 carnations to the latter city.

THE Cape Ann Horticultural Society has elected the following officers: President, Bennett Griffin; vice-president, Andrew P. Lufkin; secretary, Wm. D. Lufkin; treasurer, George P. Rust; executive committee, John Cronin, L. H. Higgins, Chas. Bradstreet.

You can not get a GOOD THING for nothing. But the price of this apparatus is next to nothing. Send for price and description to

J. D. CARMODY, Evansville, Ind.

FIRST-CLASS 6000S and CORRECT PRICES

have forced on to the front and today we are the largest manufact orers of..

IRON RESERVOIR VASES

and Lawn Settees in America . A 40 page catalogue for the asking

McDonald Bros. 108-114 Liberty $1., COLUMBUS, O

Mantion American Florist.

Clear Cypress Greenhouse Material.

This with us means the best growth of Cypress Lumber and the best grade of that growth; and from this grade all the sap—bright sap, which only experts can detect—as well as stained sap, knots and other defects cut out. Others do not equal our quality if they do beat our prices. It is not hard to see the reason: You can not buy gold dollars at fifty cents each. Experienced growers know that the best is not too good and cheapest in the long run.

Write for Circulars or Estimates.

Lockland Lumber Co., LOCKLAND, O.

Water

For Greenhouses, Garden and Lawns in liberal quantities, every hour of the season, whether the wind season or not season season.

Improved Rider Hot Air Pump Improved Ericsson Hot Air Pump

Can be run by any ignorant boy without danger. Explosion impossible. Prices greatly reduced. In use in every part of the world.

RIDER-ERICSSON ENGINE CO.

22 Corllandt St., NEW YORK. 191-193 High St., 80STON. 684 Craig St., MONTREAL, P. Q. 86 Lake St., CHICAGO. 29-31 N. 7th St., PHILADELPHIA. Send for catalogue "A 3."

NEW & SECOND-HAND MATERIAL,

purchased from Sheriff, Receiver, and Assignee, sales at less than one-half prices. Pipe and Fittings those, Floriats Wire, the Water Heaters, Greenhouse Bollers and Engines, Rope, Light Wrought from Pipe, Glass Sash, and thousands of other articles, for an e by

CHICAGO HOUSE WRECKING CO. Largest Mail Order Depot for New and Second-Hand Material in the World.

W. 35TH & IRON STS., CHICACO.
Write for our free lilustrated catalogues.

FOR SALE CHEAP.
GLASS for Greenhouses, Conservatories, Hotbeds, etc. Also Hothed Sashes and Mats, Paints, Oils, etc. THE REED GLASS &
PAINT CO., 456 W. Broadway, NEW YORK.

CYPRESS GREENHOUSE MATERIAL

DESCRIPTION.

SEND FOR CATALOGUE.

DON'T SYRINGE WITH COLD WATER.

It lowers the vitality of your stock, but write for particulars of my tempering Apparatus.

HENRY W. GIBBONS, 134 LIBERTY STREET, NEW YORK.

MERCER BOILERS

&&FOR &&

STEAM or WATER WARMING

&&USE.

HARD OR SOFT COAL OR WOOD.

WATER BOILER.

SECTIONAL VIEW.

WESTERN AGENTS:
WESTERN BRASS MFG. CO.
ST. LOUIS. MO.

يو يو يو

Pacific Coast Agents:
HOLBROOK, MERRILL & STETSON,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

يل يل يلي

EUROPEAN AGENT: AUG. EGGERS, BREMEN.

The H. B. Smith Co.

WESTFIELD, MASS.

SALESROOMS:

133 Centre Street, NEW YORK CITY. 510 Arch Street, - PHILADELPHIA.

STEAM BOILER.

Index to Advertisers.

| 21.00 I                  |                                        |
|--------------------------|----------------------------------------|
| Allen J K                | Manning Jacob W1146Manz J & Co1147 |
| Amling E C1144           | Maplewood Cut Flu                      |
| Armstrong Luther1146     | and Plant Co114.                       |
| Baller F A               | Mnrkle Jos1146                         |
| Bartlett Geo S 1157      | May Jno N1156                          |
| Bassett & Washburo. 1144 | McBeth Thos1152                        |
| Rayersdorfer H & Co.1147 | McCarthy N F & Co., 1145               |
| Beaulleu H 1155          | McDonald Bros1160                      |
| Beerhorst & Van Leeu-    | McDonald&McManus 1145                  |
| wen                      | McDonald & Steele., 1153               |
| Besold C115t             | McFadden W A1143                       |
| Bianc A & Co1150         | Middlemass Archie1146                  |
| Bobbink L C1146          | Millang Frank                          |
| Boerner Fred1155         | Moninger J C Co1160                    |
| Boston Letter Co1149     | Moon Samuel C 1113 1146                |
| Brown Bag Filling        | Moon Wm H Co                           |
| Machine Co1145           | 1146 1152 1156                         |
| Burpee W Atlee & Co 1145 | Morris Floral Co 1153                  |
| Dueton John 1153         | Mound City Plo Co. 1112                |

Burpee W Atlee & Co 1148
Burton John ... 153
Pambridge Tile Mig 1158
Parmody J D ... 1160
Phadwick Chas ... 1153
Dhicago House Wreck
Ing. Co ... 1160
Phipman Bros ... 1155
Phipman Bros ... 1155
Phennati Bag Co ... 1143
Pleary & Co ... 1143 Mound City Flo Co... Cincinnati Baz Co. 1148
Clears & Co. 1148
Clucas & Boddington 1148
Cole Geo E & Co. 1147
Coles W W. . 156
Conard & Jones Co. 1153
Conley John & Soo. 1149
Cottage Gardena. 1154
Conningham J H. 1155
Conningham J H. 1155
Dames N. 1150

South Park Floral Coll53 South Side Floral Co.

Hitchings

ESTABLISHED 50 YEARS.

HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS

AND LARCEST MANUFACTURERS OF

GREENHOUSE HEATING AND VENTILATING APPARATUS.

THE HIGHEST AWARDS RECEIVED AT THE WORLD'S FAIR FOR HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTURE. GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION AND HEATING APPARATUS.

Conservatories, Greenhouses, Palm Houses, etc., erected complete, with our patent Iron Frame Construction. Send four cents postage for illustrated catalogue.

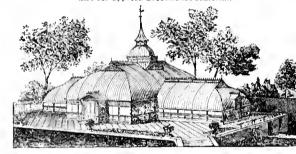

> 233 Mercer Street, NEW YORK.

LORD & BURNHAM Horticultural Architects and Builders STEAM AND HOT WATER HEATING ENGINEERS.

Plans and estimates furnished on application for Greenhouses, Conservatories, etc., erected complete with our patent iron construction; or for material only ready for crection. Estimates furnished also for Cypress Greenhouse Material.

LARGEST BUILDERS OF GREENHOUSE STRUCTURES.

PLANS ANO CONSTRUCTION EMBRACE LATEST IMPROVEMENTS

SIX HIGHEST AWARDS AT THE WORLD'S FAIR

Send 4 cents postage to New York office for latest catalogue

Send 5 cents postage for Creenhouse Heating and Ventilating Catalogue.

NEW YORK OFFICE, 160 FIFTH AVE., cor. 21st St. GENERAL OFFICE AND WORKS, IRVINGTON-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.

VENTILATING STANDARD MACHINE.

NONE EQUAL IT Strength Durability

Send for Catalogue.

NOTHING Flimsy OR Complicated about it.

E. HIPPARD, YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO.

Boilers

Hopp & Lemke | 153
Hopp & Lemke | 154
Hort Arty | 114
Hunt E H | 114
Hunt E H | 116
Hunt E H | 117
Japanese Nursery | 150
Jennings E B | 156
Kesting W F | 143
Keiler Geo & Sons | 158
Keiler Geo & Sons | 158
Keiler Geo & Sons | 158
Keiler Hant Tonic | 157
Kroeschell Bror Co | 152
Kuehn C A | 118
Hunt Geo A | 158 | 156
Kuske Mrs H | 142
Lagg A | 147
Lager A | 147
Lager A | 147
Lager A | 147
Lager A | 151
Locklend Lum Co | 152
Lotteffeid H | 152
Lotteffeid H | 153
Lord & Barnama Co | 152
Lord & Barnama Co | 154
Lord & Barna

OF HIGH

For GREENHOUSES.

See our Catalogue. . . . .

Giblin & Co., Utica, N. Y.

GREENHOUSE MATERIAI

Cal. Red Cedar and Louisiana Cypress. BEST GRADES. PERFECT WORKMANSHIP.

A. DIETSCH & CO. SHEFFIELDAVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

on GLASS and PAINT John Lucas & Co.

PHILADELPHIA.

NEW YORK.

CHICAGO.

Mass Agri Col

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

America is "the Prow of the Vessel; there may be more comfort Amidships, but we are the first to touch Unknown Seas."

Vol. XIII.

CHICAGO AND NEW YORK, APRIL 30, 1898.

No. 517.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

Copyright 1898, by American Florist Company. Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY AMERIOAN FLORIST COMPANY, 324 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Eastern Office: 67 Bromfield St., Boston.

Subscription, $1.00 a year. To Europe, $2.00. Subscriptions accepted only from the trade.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

OFFICERS-WM. F. GUDE, Washington, D. C., president; A. DONAGHUE, Omaha, Neb., vice-president; W. J. STEWART, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass., secretary; H. B. BEATTY, Oll City, Pa., treasurer. The fourteent annual meeting will be held at Omaha, Neb., August 16-19, 1898.

THE AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Annual Convention at Philadelphia, February, 1899. ALBERT M. HERR, Lancaster Pa., Secretary.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.
Annual meeting at Omaha, Neb., August, 1898.
ELMER D. SMITH, Adrian, Mich., secretary.

CONTENTS.

| Bedding plauts                                                           |    |   |   | 1163 |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|---|---|------|
| Bedding plantsMerbaceous plant notes                                 |    |   |   | 1163 |
| Obituary.Reinhard Maitre (portrait)                                  |    |   |   | 116  |
| Reinhard Maitre (portrait)                                               |    |   |   | 116  |
| 'arnations                                                               |    |   |   | 116  |
| 'arnations                                                               |    |   |   | 116  |
| Among Chicago growers                                                    |    |   |   | 1166 |
| McCov's store (illus.)                                                   |    |   |   | 1166 |
| McCoy's store (illus.)                                                   |    |   |   | 1163 |
| Fern notes                                                               |    |   |   | 116  |
| Fern notes Polypodium nigrescens (illus.)                                |    |   |   | 1168 |
| New York.                                                                |    |   |   | 1169 |
| New York.Azalea Fielder's white (illus.)                             |    |   |   | 1169 |
| Begonia notes.                                                           |    |   |   | 1169 |
| Begonia notes.Black speck on roses (illus.)                          |    | Ċ |   | 1170 |
| Philadelphia                                                             |    |   |   | 1170 |
| Boston                                                                   | ·  |   | Ĭ | 117  |
| Steam and hot water heating                                              |    |   |   | 117  |
| Ornamental bedding                                                       | ٠. |   |   | 117  |
| Ornamental beddingChicagoOutlook for cannasGrænhouse heating |    |   |   | 117  |
| Ontlook for cannas                                                       |    | • | • | 117  |
| Graenhouse heating                                                       | •  | • | • | 117  |
| Omaha                                                                    | ٠. | • | • | 117  |
|                                                                          |    |   |   | 117  |
| St. Louis                                                                |    |   |   | 117  |
| Distalana                                                                | •  | • | • | 117  |
| PittsburgNursery IradeHelpful remindersThe seed Irade        |    | • |   | 117  |
| Holyful reminders                                                        | •  | ٠ | ٠ | 117  |
| The soul trade                                                           | •  | ٠ | • | 118  |
| Steam heated hotbeds                                                     |    | • | • | 118  |
| Milwaukee                                                                |    |   |   | 118  |
| Spring and fall heating for roses                                        | •  | • | • | 118  |
| Compart tiles for bonches                                                | •  | • | • | 118  |
| Altueno Do                                                               | •  | • | • | 118  |
| Cement tiles for benches Altoona, Pa A word about valves                 |    |   | • | 118  |
| Now Haven                                                                | •  |   | ٠ | 119  |
| New Haven                                                                | •  | • | • | 119  |
| Another carnación pest                                                   |    | • | ٠ | 119  |
| Geranium notes                                                           |    | ٠ | • | 119  |
|                                                                          |    |   |   |      |

THE NEW DIRECTORY of florists, seedsmen and nurserymen of the United States and Canada will be ready for mailing soon. Twenty-five hundred new names. Postpaid for only $2.

Bedding Plants.

[Abstract of a paper read by Charles J. Strombach before the Chicago Florists' Club, April 28.]

The subject, I think, is pretty well thrashed out already, but as you wish me to say something I will state what plants we use for bedding in Lincoln Park. For early spring effect tulips, hyacinths and crocuses are planted the fall previous in fields of separate colors or in mixture. The effect is good and pleases the general public for a couple of weeks. Pansies are also in bloom at the same time; I sow the seed at Christmas and grow them along all winter, and by doing so get them to endure the heat better than the fall-sown plants, which are more slender and wiry and so cannot stand the hot weather as well as those grown in the winter.

After the tulips are ripened off they are taken up and stored away; the beds are manured, dug and planted with geraniums of varieties suitable for bedding; Mrs. E. G. Hill, salmon pink; La Favorite, double white; Bruant, searlet; Rev. W. Atkinson, dark velvety searlet; Invincible, semi-double crimson. Ageratum, Cope's Pet, blooms all summer if not given a too rich soil or too much water. Begonias are valuable as bedding plants; they will bloom from spring till fall if fairly strong at planting out time. Torenia Fournieri is also a good bedder, and if not sown too early—sav middle of March—will bloom till frost. Its pretty violet-purple, pansylike flowers marked with yellow in the throat are by some persons called "Johnny-jump-ups."

Pentstemon campanulatum varieties are effective for bedding sown from seed or propagated from cuttings; fairly strong plants in 3-inch pots will bloom early and continue till frost. The roots can then be taken up, trimmed back and kept in a temperature of 55° or 60° through the winter, when the plants can be again used for bedding. Vinca alba, V. alba-oculata and V. rosea are elegant bedders, flower all summer and have grand dark green glossy foliage making such a fine contrast with the flowers.

Ten-week stocks are good for early bedding if well grown. We sow the seed in the latter part of January, prick out in boxes when big enough to handle, plant in 2½-inch pots after fourth or fifth leaf appears, using sandy loam. When well rooted in this, pot up in 3-inch pots, to remain till planting out time. As soon as flower buds appear we can select the double ones to be planted out. They make a grand show till the middle of July when they must be replaced by Celosia cristata nana, which is in 4-inch pots at that time and remains in good condition till fall.

Single petunias of good varieties are useful for bedding, as they give a profusion of flowers all summer. Gomphrena globosa is valuable for its heads of brilliant and enduring tints. Phlox Drummondii, if sown in April will bloom till fall, but if sown earlier it will lose its vitality in the latter part of August and must be replaced by something else. Verbenas have been used in park bedding to good advantage in years past, but for the last few years in the latter part of August they became mildewed, which injured the effect of the garden.

Cannas are used to a great extent here and produce a brilliant effect with both flowers and foliage. I have forty varieties, but the most prominent at present are Egandale, Chicago, Florence Vaughan, Stella Kanst, Madame Crozy, Souvenir d'Anton Crozy and Queen Charlotte. All of these are, as you all know, great acquisitions to the flower garden because of their great blooming effect. Carpet bedding is still retained to some extent to please the general public, but we draw a little away from it each year.

A great many annuals that I used to grow for bedding in the Old World are not of much use in this climate, as their duration is short when hot weather sets in and we must try to keep our beds in presentable condition all summer without too much labor. There is no doubt in my mind that our flower garden and bedding will receive some of our most beautiful perennials in time, but we go a little slow because if we go too fast we may be condemned by the public, as it has become accustomed to the present system or fashion.

Herbaceous Plant Notes.

Plants in the herbaceous borders had an unusually early start this spring. The mild weather during March favored the early development of the spring flowers and many of the plants which in ordinary seasons would not be ready to bloom until the middle of April were almost fully out in the latter part of March. Especially noticeable was this in slightly sheltered positions, on southern slopes or on the sunny side of hedges, buildings or tight fences.

We had a few clumps of Primula acaulis in a southeastern exposure well covered with their showy pale yellow flowers long before April, while those planted under tall trees, though plenty of sunlight could reach them all day, have not yet (a month later) fairly developed their flowers. The former clumps were out at the same time with the scillas and snowdrops, both of which are past now, but the primulas are still as fine as at the beginning and will hold out, apparently, for a long time to come. A few hybrids of P. acaulis, which were planted last season, show great variety in color, golden yellows, pale and coppery red shades, velvety brown and deep, dark crimson purple, but most of them do not show their near relation to P. acaulis, producing their flowers in umbels on stems not so tall as in P. variabilis or P. officinalis.

The large leaved saxifragas sent up strong spikes of their finely colored flowers and were nearly at their very best when, early in April, a few nights of severe frost threatened to destroy their beauty; but only in the most exposed situations did they suffer any, and most of the plants are as attractive to-day as they were before the cold snap. Aubrictias in variety were among the earliest flowers in the border; they form a dense green cushion in winter, and as soon as the frost is out of the ground the buds make their appearance, opening out one atter another until the whole mat is covered entirely with pretty bloom, varying in color from pale lilac, almost white, to deep blue and purple, and we have them also in pink and reddish tints. They are most desirable plants for spring gardening, and when combined with any of the dwarf phloxes, arabis, alyssum, primulas, etc., can not be surpassed by any display in a bed of early bulbs. These plants, moreover, will retain their beauty for a much longer time than tulips or hyacinths or any of the spring flowering bulbs.

The hepaticas were out in good style a month ago, yet not one of the little flowers has dropped a single petal up to date and buds are still coming up among the bronzy young foliage; but this is only true with the old, well established plants which have not been disturbed for some years. We can not reasonably expect such an abundance of flowers from plants one year old, but when they are once well established in a spot, few plants are equal to them for supplying early bloom in our gardens; and they may be planted in places where most plants would refuse to grow at all, on dry knolls, under the shade of trees and in the poorest soil they will always reward us with a profusion of flowers in early spring and do not need any attention for the rest of the season; their long roots are capable of finding enough moisture in the ground in the dryest weather.

Another charming little plant for early spring is the charming Anchonella thalictroides. The pure white flowers are produced very freely on clongated stems; it continues to bloom for several months. its finely cut, trilobed foliage is hardly less attractive than the flowers. The habit and growth is very neat and and graceful, though the plant only atoms a height of from four to six inches these. Mertensia Virginica has opened as ovely flowers of a peculiar sliming shi de of blue, it blooms freely in almost my position, but probably lasts best when planted in partial shade. The pulonarias are now densely covered with flowers. Or first opening they are red and turn to blue afterward, the cymes showing both colors distinctly at all times Arabi has made a splendid show meethe first of the month with large needs of whate flowers, this is among the har therest of perennials early in the carbon. A therea, with like pink flowers, Three seasons are not more pank flowers, and the size but very early, described to a great more market and the size of the siz discered to grown more generally, it was a constant of a the snow disappears. The good Alicentess at the borders, its remarkably free blooming qualities and bright cheerful color call for the admiration of everybody.

Phlox subulata gives us sheets of white or pink wherever they may be allowed to spread; no foliage is visible so long as the flowers last in perfection and the plant grows only a few inches high, perfectly smooth and even. Iris pumila is conspicuous in many places at present; it increases and spreads rapidly and produces a pleasing effect among the smaller spring flowers. Doronicum Austriacum and D. Caucasicum are among the few early blooming plants which grow a little taller than the average and are most serviceable to relieve the monotony of a smooth surface in an extensive patch of creeping or dwarfer things; the large, bright yellow daisy-like flowers are very acceptable so early in the season. Polemonium reptans has been opening its charming blue flowers for a week past; the plant is neat and graceful in appearance; it will not lose its floral attractions for a month yet or longer, and the foliage is handsome throughout the season.

REINHARD MAITRE

Caltha palustris fl. pl. was in flower with us during October and November and is now again in grand shape, though for earliness the ordinary single variety is two or three weeks ahead of it. Most people have an idea that the ealthas can not be grown successfully in an ordinary border, that a marshy or wet place must be prepared for them. This is an error, for we have grown them for years in rather dry situations, exposed to the full action of the sun at all times and have not noticed any bad effect resulting from this treatment. The sanguinarias have sprung up with leaf and flower some time since and may last a great while yet if the weather keeps moderately cool, but a few hot, dry days would finish them.

Saxifraga Virginiensis is not much grown, but I like it in the border, for it flowers early and usually lasts into June. The small white flowers are produced on a branched, compact stem, eight to ten muches high, and they are really pretty. Tiarella conditolia has long and creet slender spikes of interesting small white flowers growing from ten to twelve muches high, they spring from a dense mass of pretty foliage. The plant succeeds in almost any place, but is especially adapted for rock work. The large flowers of the vellow Adonis vernalis appeared in the latter part of March, and are still in good condition. When planted in bunches or patches this is an ornament in the border, but small single stools are lost sight of among the surrounding plants unless these are very low. In some places they refuse to establish themselves as readily as ordinary things, but where they can have the benefit of a moist, welldrained soil, success is almost certain. They do not like to be disturbed at the roots and should be let alone for some years. The foliage is cut and lacerated into narrow segements and is very ornamental during the spring months; the plant attains a height of ten or twelve

Not many of our florists are prepared to furnish any of these or kindred hardy flowers, though it cannot be denied that the demand for herbaceous plants is inereasing every year. This demand, by present indications, will continue, and, therefore, it would be a good time to start in now preparing a stock for another season by saving the seeds of such species and varieties as may be obtainable. Some of the late summer and fall bloomers may flower the first year; the majority will, with proper care, make strong salable plants by next spring. With almost all of the double varieties of the various species it may be advisable to procure a few plants for stock, dividing them as they increase and spread.

Rochester, N. Y. J. B. KELLER.

Obituary.

REINHARD MAITRE.

Reinhard Maitre, one of America's pioneer florists, died of heart disease at his home at New Orleans on April 14. His remains now rest in beautiful Metairie cemetery. Deceased was born in Baden Baden, Germany, in 1830, and located in the Crescent city forty-six years ago when he was a young man of 22. In 1855 he married Christine Rehm, who survives him. They had no children.

Mr. Maitre spent his lifetime in floriculture, for he was a lover of nature's beautiful gifts to man. His artistic taste won him a national reputation as a horticulturist and landscape gardener. The finest grounds in New Orleans, both public and private, show the results of Mr. Maitre's fostering care. He was an unostentations man, fond of his home, his books and his flowers, and in his death his city and the Society of American Florists lose one whose endeavors have done much to beautify and smoothen life's pathway.

WILLIAM BIGGS.

William Biggs died at his home in Baltimore on April 22. He was 61 years of age and leaves a wife and seven children. Mr. Biggs had devoted many years to floriculture and landscape gardening.

Carnations.

Carnations are fast beginning to go down hill now, and it is as well to clean up any of the houses or any of the varieties that do not come up to the standard of excellence for a fair price. For it is certain folly with a declining market to dump a lot of second class stock on it to further depreciate values. Those houses or varieties that are doing well should be well taken care of. All colored and even the white varieties will be the better for a little shading any time after May 1. Ventilation is needed in abundance, and water should be applied frequently with the syringe, so that the foliage may be sent in free from spider.

It is a good time now to watch the effects of syringing on the rust if you have any varieties that are affected with it. Some growers assert that syringing daily has the effect of increasing it and others assert that it has the opposite effect. For myself I must confess to being on the fence, as I can see little difference either way. Possibly in different soils there may be different results, and it is a matter worthy of a little attention now when syringing is a necessity from other causes.

Disbudding, tying and keeping your stock up to the standard is as necessary now (if not more so) as during the height of the season, for it is in a falling market that quality tells. A great many growers do not seem to fully realize that they are helping to keep the carnation a cheap flower and to keep down the legitimate profit they should have from their houses by placing a lot of carelessly grownstock

Once carnation growers as a class can say to their commission dealers, "We insist that none of our carnations shall be sold for less than $1 per 100, and all that will not bring that figure are to be returned to us," they will be surprised to learn how many could be sold at that figure and over, that are now sold for much less; and they would also learn what to avoid in the way of bunching, counting and packing, and what varieties to discard.

ALBERT M. HERR.

Notes and Comments.

PELARGONIUMS AND FUCHSIAS.

I dropped in the other day on George E. Campbell. Mr. Campbell is well situated both for local trade and to furnish well-grown stock to the retailers, being conveniently located and within fifteen minutes to half an hour's drive to most of what we call the city florists. Mr. Campbell is very much pleased with old varieties? For my own gratification I have been picking up varieties of fuchsias wherever I could, and among them I have one which came to me labeled "Elm City," but if it proves to be the good old Elm City I grew twenty years ago, I shall be very much surprised. Black Prince is of more recent introduction, yet it may be termed old, for I have known it for at least fifteen years. Why it was named Black Prince I never could understand. It could not be on account of the flower being dark, because it is not. The midribs and stems of the young growth have a somewhat dark hue; possibly that is the reason for its name.

However, be that as it may, it is very popular market sort, and is perhaps grown more largely than all the rest of the varieties combined, that is to say, in this city (Philadelphia). It is a good grower, makes a nice shaped plant, and is easily carried through the hot, dry summer weather. I remember a good on the market at this season of the year. It is claimed that as no coal is required and very little attention but watering that even at the prices realized they are paid for their work. Possibly they are, but any carnation that will not bring at wholesale $1 per 100 should not be put on the market, because whenever you get below that mark you are cheapening the better grades in proportion.

HOUSE OF MAYOR PINGREE CARNATIONS, GROWN BY C. W. JOHNSON

It is to be hoped that as a natural result of the production of fine varieties the prices will rise to their standard and that in a few years $2.50 will be a low-water-mark price, and the better grades will average up to $12 or $16 per 100. This getting up to a paying level in carnation culture will, however, be an uphill job so long as carnations are sold as low as 10 and 25 cents per 100 over the counter of the commission man, and the grower is willing to have a return at the end of the season of one-eighth of one per cent on the money he has invested. This is not an imaginary profit but an actual one in some instances.

the comparatively new zonal pelargonium Mphonse Ricard. It belongs to what has been styled the "Bruant" and "Sunproof" race, having strong foliage of heavy texture. The individual flowers are large and numerous, and the trusses are the largest 1 have seen. The color is a light red. Mr. Campbell expects to go into this quite heavily. He has a fine stock of the show and regal pelargoniums—the one he calls Maud he thinks a great deal of; it is dark red in color with darker blotches. It has the advantage also of being dwarf and neat in manner of growth.

of growth.

We were comparing notes about fuchsias. The fact was deplored that though most of the new varieties had very large flowers, yet the habit of growth was not nearly so good as in some of the old-timers, such as Elm City, Inimitable, and similar types. I forget the amount that Joseph Campbell—father of George—who joined us, said he would give for an old stump of Inimitable. What has become of these good old kind called Maori Chief, though the name was changed to Modoc Chief by some of our old-time Philadelphia catalogue men, whether by accident or because it was easier to say, I do not know. Lord Byron is grown to some extent for market, and a very beautiful single flower it is, with rich plum colored corolla and red sepals, but it is not nearly so good a grower as is "Gracieux," which appears to have been renamed "Little Beauty." This is the best variety that I have so far seen for some time for a market fuchsia. At present the indications are that it cannot be grown to a very large size from green cuttings for spring sales, but it certainly can be grown into a very pretty shape. The corolla is single and in color it is a delicate light bluish purple, and it is covered with buds and blossoms from bottom to top.

ADVERTISING.

This is worthy of our deepest thought and most intelligent consideration. I have been an advertiser "off and on"

for twenty years. When I first tried the influence of printers ink to draw trade it was through the medium of the good old Gardener's Monthly. Like most other advertisers I have had varying success—sometimes I would make a big hit, and at other times I would miss the mark—all of which caused me to do a lot of thinking and some experimenting.

thinking and some experimenting.

A few years ago I advertised in both trade papers. There were only two at that time. I felt reasonably sure that both papers went to about the same class of people, and in order to get an idea as far as I could which gave the best returns, I made a difference in my post office address in each paper, though not enough to cause my letters to go astray. After what was considered fair trial it was found that six to one more inquiries were received from the advertisement in the trade paper which I now use exclusively as an advertising medium than from the other one. was certainly food for thought, though not conclusive evidence that the other medium was no good.

An advertiser of my acquaintance, who uses only one trade paper—the AMERICAN FLORIST—at the present time, recently received two orders for stock as advertised, and in addition to writing the orders the correspondents went to the trouble to state that they saw the advertisement in the other trade paper, or in other words, in that one in which it did not appear. The only explanation, apparently, is that a persistent request is made by the trade paper which did not have the advertisement therein, yet was given credit therefor, to advise its readers when writing to mention their paper, or words to that effect, with every advertisement. It is a good scheme may be for the paper because it becomes so impressed upon the minds of its readers that they are liable to make the mistake of giving eredit where credit is not due without being conscious thereof, but it is hardly treating its readers and advertisers fairly because it creates a wrong impression.

The AMERICAN FLORIST might try the same or a similar plan to its advantage possibly, and it would act as a counterpoise upon the general readers. I would not, however, approve of the making use of the space paid for by the advertiser to accomplish the reform, because this looks too much like taking an undue advantage of your patron: "getting the penny and the cake" both, as it were, or rather using for your own aggrandizement that which some one else has paid for. I am authorized to give the above advertiser's name to anyone wishing to know who it is

Among Chicago Growers.

There are very few places in this country where so many growers of cut flowers have collected as have assembled at Bowmanville, just north of Chicago. Here were located some of the first establishments ever erected for the purpose of supplying the Chicago cut flower market and here to day is the seat of that large interests.

W. Jacques was the first florist to build at Rowmanyille. Other pioneers were W. D. Allen, A. T. Jackson and A. V. Jackson. Twenty years ago these growers owned a combined area not exceeding 30,000 feet of glass. Now 4,250,000 feet is not more glass than is there. Of the old guard, V. Jackson is the only one who is still in business, but Otto Ristow, Julius Ristow, August Grossman, Herman

McCOY'S STORE, TACOMA, WASHINGTON.

Bauske, J. A. Budlong, the Reinbergs, Peter Shaffer, Anton Then and others have spent sufficient years there to have built splendid businesses.

Among the finest earnations which reach the Chicago market are those from Weber Bros., 2408 Lincoln ave. This firm grows but three varieties, the Lizzie Me-Gowan, Daybreak and Tidal Wave, which they plant early in about equal proportions. These earnations have been in bloom continuously since September 20th and are now in perfect health and vigor. Weber Bros, are meeting with good success with Kaiserin roses, which are just now showing buds which promise an abundant crop at just the season when Brides will begin to be scarce. For summer bloom the Webers take up their Kaiserins in the fall and keep them in a cold frame through the winter until March or April when they are replanted on the benches.

Manguson & Pearson are cultivating mushrooms quite as extensively as they are roses and carnations and find them a paying crop. They have three houses devoted to mushrooms, one house being built expressly for this purpose with benches one above the other, the second bench being twenty inches above the lower bed.

The greenhouses of Otto and Julius Ristow are joined end to end. They have everything in excellent condition. Otto was one of the first florists around Chicago to make a success of American Beauty. Julius has two large new greenhouses in course of construction

As a rose grower Herman Bauske has no superior. He grows most of his rose plants two years on the benches, and says that the greatest success which he has ever had was with Beanties which had been forced one year and then replanted. Mr. Bauske is erecting five new greenhouses, each 21 x 260, which he expects to have completed by June 1.

pects to have completed by June I.

The establishments of the Reinberg brothers are entirely separate, that of Peter being on the east side of the dividing alley with that of George upon the west. The two began in their present locations ten years ago, building ten houses, four for George and six for Peter. Each year since 1888, they have made additions to their buildings and at present each brother has nearing completion six new houses, 21 x 265. With these each will own one-half of 600,000 feet of glass. This immense place is devoted to the production of cut flowers, principally roses, although within the last year or two they have gone into carnation growing upon a large scale. Quantities of young roses and carnation plants are also offered in the market. Seven years ago the firm of Reinberg Bros., now located at 51 Wabash ave., was organized for the sale of the product of their establishments.

The Growth of Floriculture.

It is not a great many years since floral establishments of any importance were confined to the eastern portions of the country. Now, however, they are to be found in every town or city worthy of the name from Maine to California and from Virginia to the State of Washington. The truth of this is fully borne out by the illustrations of stores which have appeared in our pages at various times. Last December, for example, we reproduced a photo of F. E. Gray's store at Los Angeles, Cal., which will compare favorably with the best of any section, and the same may be said of McCoy's, of Tacoma, Wash., whose place is shown in the accompanying engraving.

A Means to an End.

Vour humble servant recently had the temerity to stand before his betters and express himself on the subject of "The Florist versus The Flower Show," a topic of which he does not profess to know it all, although he has had considerable opportunity to learn, it an active experience covering the past nine or ten years, and embracing a variety of spheres can be counted on the credit side. His main idea was to say a few words for the flower show as a means for widening the florists' market. An attempt was made to show that the feature of prize money was not the all important object to the commercial grower; but that it is, on the contrary, a really minor consideration. Incidentally, the question of what constitutes a successful show was touched on and the too frequent habit of applying the touchstone of the box-office as the only criterion was mildly criticized.

All this was expected to meet with a more or less general assent, and the writer was greatly surprised at the storm of controversy indulged in on the subject. But what is most to be regretted is the fact that but few of those present grasped the idea that was attempted to be brought to their consideration, namely, that the flower show is a means to an end-the widening of the market for the growers' product. How much thought does the average florist give to how he is to sell his stock when produced? You see oceans of advice to him how to grow his crops. Week in and week out he is deluged with cultural instructions of the most copious and exhaustive kind; but how seldom is there a word as to the disposal of all this fine stock. Is not the selling of as much importance as the growing? Should not that department of the business receive as much thought and discussion?

No doubt it was the writer's own fault that he missed his mark although he tried to make himself clear. Some say that his language was too common; that vulgarrauguage was too common; that vulgarisms abounded; that members of the Browning Society, of Boston, and the Pantfellian Society, of New York, who were present were shocked at the expressions used; that the words "bosh" and "bidney" were uttored in their present where the state of the state "kidney" were uttered in their presence. This frightful "break" probably accounts for the state of tremulous indignation into which some of the attenuated cultures were precipitated during the discussion. Expressive American idioms may do very well for the mob but should undoubtedly be kept in the background when the frou frou, and the kid glove, and the simper appear. It is also brought out in terms of reproach that this common man isn't even "a grower." Alas, alas, 'tis but too true! He was brought up at the plough and has been dealing among farmers and gardeners all his life, but yet he is no grower, only a seedsman. The seed trade is, however, a business in which the selling end is studied as well, if not better, than the seed growing part, and therefore a seedsman should not be the very worst adviser on the matter of widening the market for the florist. The criticism, if it means anything, means that only a grower is capable of talking intelligently on the subject. On the contrary, it is generally accepted that one can see things clearer at a little distance than when right under his nose.

As to being a theorist the man that is not a theorist does not amount to much. Theories, or ideas, are required to the beginning of all things. The theories may not always be correct but that is not the To condemn a person for being a theorist is about on a par with condemning a man for being young. It is related of William Pitt, or Benjamin Disraeli, or both, that this serious crime of youthfulness was once triumphantly charged to them. No doubt their accusers not only thought them guilty of being young men, but also of being thinkers, or theorists. However, William and Benjamin both survived and therein is a crumb of comfort for a humble admirer of these great This common, eight-day person pleads guilty to the serious delinquency of being a theorist—and a young man to boot—not because he wishes to be so but because he was born that way. Furthermore he hopes to keep hearty and vigorous for many a day and always full enough of the healthy effervescence of youth to have some ideas to express for the good of the grower and the good of himself.

G. C. Watson.

The Yellow Daisy.

The yellow daisy Etoile de Lyon, is a very acceptable addition to this popular class of plants: while quite common in the large cities, it is not as yet widely disseminated, this being only its second season. Frederick Burki of Allegheny City, Pa., is credited with sending out this really valuable variety, which he imported from Germany. Some years ago a large yellow daisy similar to this in appearance was forced for the New York market (we do not recollect the name), but it proved to be such a shy bloomer that the room was soon taken up with more productive stock.

Etoile de Lyon is not much of an autumn bloomer, but from January until the summer months it can be counted on for a continuous crop of fine large flowers from two and a half to three and a half inches in diameter, borne on good long stems. The flowers when cut keepfor a long time and this quality makes it especially desirable to the retail florist. For the Easter trade it makes a very showy specimen, as the accompanying illustration shows. An 8-inch-pot plant carries from 100 to 150 flowers and well clothed with foliage.

Fern Notes.

ADIANTUM FARLEYERSE.

In a recent issue of the Gardeners' Chronicle I notice a correspondent writing from the United States, says: "The summer is the most trying time of year for the above owing to the dry heat, but this is overcome by throwing plenty of water about, especially overhead," and adds, "English gardeners would no doubt consider this a dangerous practice." Now, this reminds me of an incident which occured while I had charge of the plant houses at the Royal Horticultural Society's gardens, Chiswick. In one little house, I had an arrangement of choice foliage plants, such as crotons, dracanas, palms, and a number of other subjects, including among ferns some fine plants of Adiantum Farleyense. The whole house was syringed regularly every morning and evening, the Farleyense seeming to appreciate a shower as much as any of the other plants. A lady visitor happened to come along one morning, just as I was using the syringe, and was much distressed at what I was doing, saying I was certainly destroying those lovely ferns, and advised me to see some one in authority before I did additional mischief. After listening to further protests, I informed her that I was in authority myself, and had subjected the Farleyense to the same treatment for a consider-rable time. The lady seemed more than ever astonished at this and told me that her gardener was always afraid to let a drop of water go on the fronds. I gathered, however, that the gardener never grew Farleyense satisfactorily, and I fancied he would hear something about it when the lady returned.

Now, I believe it is not an uncommon mistake to keep this beautiful fern too dry. To have healthy plants they must be potted in a rough porous compost, and when growing freely they take up a lot of water. As soon as they get a little too dry, the pinnules curl up and generally the under ones suffer first. The pinnules which have suffered cannot absorb the water afterwards, but begin to decay as soon as wetted and cause what is usually termed damping. The roots having probably suffered as well, the plants soon get into a weak, unhealthy condition, which is frequently attributed to too much moisture, whereas the opposite has been the primary cause of the evil. I do not recommend the too frequent use of the syringe, but in hot dry weather it is certainly beneficial when used judiciously.

DICTYOGRAMMA JAPONICA.

This is now included with the gymnogrammas, but is very distinct from the calomelanos group, being destitute of the farina (or powder) which is so conspicuous in the gold and silver varieties. fronds are also of a thick coriaceous texture. In seedlings the first fronds are di vided into from 3 to 5 pinnæ and when more advanced they have from 5 to 7 strap shaped pinna on either side and terminate in one longer and more pointed. The basal or barren fronds spread over the pot and the fertile ones grow nearly erect. When well managed this makes a most useful tern for decorations and deserves to be more extensively grown for florists' work. Fertile fronds are not so abundant as in many ferns, and the spore cases are inconspicuous. To mature spores the plants should be grown in a cool house with rather a dry atmosphere. Good spores germinate freely, and almost as quickly as those of the gold and silver ferns. In a young state they are slow compared with pterises, but after they once get a start they make more rapid once get a start they make more rapid progress. This fern is especially adapted for early spring work. As its name im-plies it is from Japan, and succeeds well under cool treatment; it should be potted in a loamy compost. If kept in a cool house through the winter and started in heat early in the year, young fronds are thrown up freely, and it takes a very short time to establish a good plant if there is a strong crown to start with.

THE YELLOW DAISY, ETOILE DE LYON.

I should have mentioned that the fronds te of a deep green, with a bright glossy surface. There is a variegated variety with fronds of a lighter shade, and a pale vellowish green, irregular linear marking. This is, perhaps, the most useful of the two, and finds more favor with our marker growers.

ASPIDIUM TSLS SIMENSIS

It is now some years ago since I first met with this useful fern. It appears to he closely allied to Aspidium (Polystichum) aculeatum but differs in being of a darker olor, the stipes and scales are almost black; the deep green fronds have a bright surface, it forms a most compact and syn metrical plant, and being of a good substance and nearly hardy may be used where many other terns would quickly perish. Spores are always plentiful and germinate treely. It is not so rapid in growth as many terns, but this is made up for by the time the plants last in good. condition after they are established. I should have mentioned that it may be grown in loam, and an intermediate temperature, a dry atmosphere must be evoided or thrips will be troublesome.

Thelieve this is the same fern as referred.

to and illustrated at p. 557, under the one of Aspidium tensemense. I have tour dithere has been some contusion as to the spelling of the name, but believe the

ASTROLA CORRACTION.

This is another asciul term which is not in highest in the does not come quite so section spores as many but with care good hat his easy to obtained, the chief thengus to talle the spear fronds as soon is the apsales begin to open. Take most a this class the scotlings are slow of growth han the trands are of great subrance and a leight tresh given, lasting under end treatment. The above which cores tree Australia is usually the an anenye are with A. Capense but this from South Africa, though be amfally that the the same is sufficient , distinct for horti ultural purposes to preserve the transport of the Cape variety bring the later to the Cape variety bring the later to the Cape variety and the property of the Cape variety of the Cape va state. In the Australian variety the rhizomes are conspicuous and covered with reddish brown scales. When well grown it is most effective as a pot plant, and there are few ferns which last as well; in the cool fernery it is always effective. I may mention that this fern is usually catalogued with the polystichums Aspidium sctosum is another species which may be grown, and makes a nice plant under similar treatment, but grown in heat it is of little use.

SMALL FERNS.
From now onward, during the time Dutch bulbs are flowering, small ferns are more in demand than at any other season of the year, and it is perhaps the most perature of 65° to 70°. They must be well exposed to the light and watered carefully; overwatering is very damaging at any time but more particularly with fresh potted stock during the autumn. They may be kept growing freely nearly up to Christmas, when they should have rather a cooler position. Placed on a rather a cooler position. shelf where they get all the light possible, they will mature their fronds and harden off. Care must be taken that the temperature does not fall too low, especially when first removed from heat, or the fronds will go rusty. Many collections of ferns have this rusty appearance of the fronds in winter, due to random changes A. Hemsley. of temperature.

POLYPODIUM NIGRESCENS

difficult period to have useful material, for the autumn grown fronds will begin to get shabby and the new fronds will be too tender. It requires some forethought to have really good stock for early use. It is cliefly the varieties of Pteris serru Leta and P cretical that are most service able. To cusure good stock, a batch of Lealthy seedlings should be ready for pottime early in September. If these are potted mainth changes of four or five plants to other in 25 and properly to ited they will come in at the right to e. They may be green on in a tem

Polypodium Nigrescens.

On page 597 of our issue of January 8, Mr. A. Hemsley gives some interesting particulars of this plant, to which we may now add that some growers in this country have found it useful for general greenhouse purposes, but rather delicate for the ordinary trade of florists. It is certainly a handsome and striking plant, and should find tayor among the amateurs and gardeners who have the requisite greenhouse accommodations. The plant is a native of India, and sometimes called Phymatodes nigrescens.

Azalea Fielder's White.

This white azalea is perhaps one of the very best to grow for cut flowers. The flowers are pure white, and about three and one-half inches across. The plant suffers less by cutting than any other in its class, and produces longer stems. Plants have been cut back and left without a leaf and without an eye over one-sixteenth of an inch long, and they pro-duced flowers on the three hundred and sixty-fifth day, and after two weeks longer were covered with flowers, demonstrating that they can be cut severely and still bloom every season. This variety has not such a compact habit as most others, but it is a free grower, and if, as soon as the plants have done flowering, they are dried a little, the seed vessels picked off and the shoots shortened in, the balls reduced and repotted, they will flower freely every year. Nearly all the cuttings will root.

John Coulson.

New York.

BUSINESS VERY DULL IN BOTH RETAIL AND WHOLESALE CENTERS. - LOW PRICES. -NEWS FROM BERMUDA LILY FIELDS .-A FIGHT WITH THE GREEKS. - PROGRAM FOR CLUB MEETING. - VARIOUS ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Business is unprecedentedly dull for the season; so say the retailers and that clinches it, for the wholesale dealers have already given their testimony to that effect. War excitement is the generally accepted explanation and if this is the correct theory we have seen the finish of the flower trade for this season, at least. Monday of this week was the banner day for bad business, Mr. John Weir asserts. Mr. Weir does not often speak out so decisively. The middle of the week sees production shortened up about one-half and while the demand has not shown any increase in volume yet results are apparently better than last week, for there is not so much stock among which to divide the total receipts. Violets are practically unsalable; they are disposed of in original packages for best offer, and this is pretty low. Lilies manage to realize two dollars a hundred at 34th street market; some were bought last week for one dollar a hundred. Roses are low all along the line, extra good Beauties bringing twelve cents with difficulty and when sold in bulk bringing considerably less. Lily of the valley is of fine quality, as a rule, but the cut is largely increased and prices are nowhere. South-ern lilac is now on deck and is good, bringing cost of freight and a little more.

James Weir, Jr., returned on Tuesday from Bernuda, where he has been on a visit of inspection of the lily fields. As this firm uses about 60,000 bulbs every year the loss of one-third of their stock the past season from disease makes the matter one of much importance to them. Mr. Weir says that the majority of the fields be examined looked decidedly unpromising

MacDonald & McManus, who are creditors of the insolvent firm of Polykranas & Stravopoulo made a seizure at the establishment lately occupied by that firm one day last week, and the Marshall had a lively rough-and-tumble fight with a dozen or more Greeks before possession was gained.

Jas. Weir & Sons have secured the store on the corner of Fulton street and Hanover place, Brooklyn, which is to be vacated by Peter Mallon on May 1, and will run it as a branch store.

W. E. Britton of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, will be the lecturer at the May meeting of the Florists' Club. His subject will be "Experiments with Chemical Fertilizers on Greenhouse Plants.

Cleary is getting the crowd to his auction rooms these spring days. A large and varied stock and energetic hammer wielder with the resultant competition are a great combination in the auction business

Louis Kratz, of 220 Lexington avenue, Jersey City, was brought before the police court on April 16, on a charge of assault and battery, preferred by Mrs. Louis Kratz.

H. A. Siebrecht & Son have just shipped to Mr. Ulrich, at Omaha, a car load of hardy ornamental shrubs and climbers to be used in the decoration of the grounds of the Trans-Mississippi Exposition. Miss M'Creary, of Orange, N. J., will succeed Charles L. Doran, at 860 Sixth avenue, on May 1.

Edw. Littlejohn, of Chatham, N. J., made an an assignment on Thursday, April 21.

Begonia Notes.

Those of us who saw the grand displays of begonias at Newport last summer during the convention of the S. A. F. were made aware of the greater possibilities of the semperflorens type of begonias for summer bedding.

If I am not mistaken Vernon was the first of the race to make a name for itself in that direction in this country, and those which have come later may be selections from that variety. I am trying a number of the varieties this year, and it is interesting to watch for the variations which come in a package of seed. The only way to establish a strain of any of the types with the hope and expectation of keeping them true is to isolate the plants that are intended for seedsaving purposes, and even then with all the care exercised variations may be looked for.

Begonia Erfordia will be largely planted the coming spring for next sumplanted the coming spring for next summer's display. I was very favorably impressed with this variety two or three years ago. The seed was sown too late that season to give the plants a trial for summer bedding, but they made grand plants in 6-inch pots for the fall, and found a ready sale among dealers who sold them for window plants, for which purpose they are admirably adapted. This is said to be the result of a cross between the old reliable Vernon and Schmidti, and the flowers of the two varieties are sympathetically crossed for seed saving purposes every year and offered in many of the seedsmen's cata-

The majority of the plants of Erfordia will produce flowers of a beautiful deli-cate shade of pink, while the remainder, about five per cent perhaps, will bear white flowers. I secured seed of Schmidti and the plants resulting therefrom at this stage of their development show strong variations. I had a pre-conceived idea of what Schmidti was like, having, I believe, seen it many years ago, but while some show a tendency to resemble what I had pictured Schmidti to be, most of them appear to look like semperflorens.

My object was to select the best of the respective types and cross them and save

AZALEA FIELDER'S WHITE.

my own seed, and then select the very best varieties and increase them by cuttings. It is best not to allow the young growths to become too long before severing them for the propagating bed, as many of them do not seem to break well from the base of the plant.

Before leaving the subject of the begonia, I have great faith in its future, for bedding purposes as well as for use in conservatories and for home adornment. The tuberous rooted section has not seemed to "catch on" for bedding purposes in this climate so far, and may be we have not studied their requirements to fully as to warrant success as we might and ought to have done. We are, however, promised a new departure in this class; it is called Duke Zepplein, which will be watched with much interest the coming summer.

L. E.

Black Speck of the Rose.

A gardener complains to me of his rose leaves being badly disfigured with minute dark specks and asks for the cause and cure for the same. The trouble is due to the indirect and not the intentional action of a fungus, and in this respect is quite unusual and merits a word of consideration. The fungus that is the source of trouble is somewhat closely related to the coarse one that thrives upon bread, and is very damaging to sweet potatoes in the storage bin, causing the soft rot. In short, it is one of the molds and grows upon organic substances and not, as before stated, upon the rose. Figure

I shows a rose leather as distigured, with the specks

The fingus in question is Pilobolus crystalmus Tode, and in this case, grew in large numbers upon the manner used to cover the bed when the roses were growing. As it matures a dark oval ball or sac is produced filled with the spores of the pilobolus, as shown in figure 2. This black sac is supported upon a swollen stalk rising from the surface of the manure and when is attuct the callerged por tion, filled with liquid, suddenly forces off the spore sac and collapses, throwing the ball of spores into the air, also shown in figure 2. These dark spore sacs are covered with moisture as they are discharged and will adhere to any object which they may strike in their flight.

The writer has examined houses where this fungus has developed extensively upon the manure and counted as many as a hundred speeks to the square inch upon the white wood work surrounding the bed. An examination of the perpendicular sash in division walls in greenhouses will show, from the numerous spore speeks adhering, that the height to which the dark saes are thrown is fully ten feet; but there is a rapid falling off in the number upon any given area when the height of two or three leet is reached.

These specks, of course, from what has been written, may be upon any plant that is within rauge; but they do no further harm than the disfigurement thereby produced. They are more often met with in rose houses, because there the manure is more frequently left upon the surface than with other kinds of plants.

If a remedy is sought it may be found in dispensing with the manure on the surface, stirring it at frequent intervals to prevent the fungi from having time to mature their dark shells containing the "shot" in the form of spores, so to speak, or by using some fungicide as a spray upon the manure that will kill the mold. However, as a rule the bombardment does not last long and no vigorous measures are generally called for in this case.

Byron D. Halsted.

Philadelphia.

BIG STOCKS AND LOW PRICES.—NEWS NOTES FROM THE CITY OF BROTHERLY LOVE.— BAKER'S GREAT BOWLING.—POINTERS.

Roses are now on the market in unlimited quantities. Fine long-stemmed Beauties, three to four feet, are sold every day for $1 the dozen, and a large department store retails them at 15 cents each. Of course after a purchase there the $3 to $5 per dozen asked in the cut flower stores gives the buyer the impression that he is being robbed. Still the regular market channels do not take half the stock coming in, so what else can the poor grower do?

Carnations are also mountain high in quantity but mole-hill low in price. The quality is all right, but the buying public seems to have its heads full of war news, and as a result the finest stock at tempting prices finds but a slow demand.

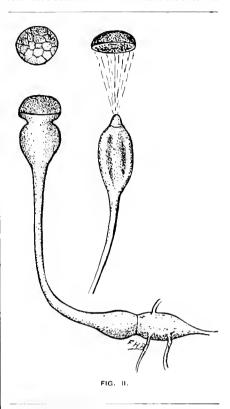

J. W. Colflesh is cutting some nice lacqs for which he finds a ready sale, as he has the market all to himself.

Sweet peas are plentiful at from 75 cents to $1.50 per hundred. Violets are practically done, although there are a few stranglers about.

Litaes from Virginia and Maryland are coming in great quantities. S. S. Pennock received thirty barrels last Tuesday upon which he realized $3 per barrel. Lilaes will be in flower here in a few days. Mr. Pennock has fitted up a carnation cellar which he has taken special care to have ventilated thoroughly.

At Robert Craig's an immense shipping trade is going on, this being the busiest season he has experienced for years. Two of his houses are planted with gratted frascrius, which are looking well. For Laster these houses were filled with lilies and hydrangens, but two or three days after Laster the roses were all planted trass very quick work. Mr Craig says that he finds an immense demand, for grafted roses for forcing. All the growers are waking up to the advantages of grafted stock, and everyone who had a supply of these roses has sold out, so that no more are to be had at present. Growers in this neighborhood who planted a few last season for a trial are all after a larger stock, but as a rule find themselves too late. The popularity of the ficus must be noted again. A house at Mr. Craig's is filled with plants selected in lots and marked "sold." All are in 4-inch pots, the demand being so great that they are taken in the small sizes. It is the same with all the growers.

F. Supoit has been sending in some very pretty anemones. They are all colors of the rainbow, and are very attractive and showy flowers. He winters them in a cold frame, planting them between rows of violets, as with this treatment they come in just as the violets go out. They will find greater favor with the public when better known.

Japanese and Bermuda lily bulbs are quoted considerably higher this season than last. One of the dealers says he will guarantee his longiflorums to the extent that he will remit the price of all bulbs that, when grown, are found to be diseased to such a degree as to interfere with their sale.

The public squares have been very gay the past lew weeks with their beds of hyacinths and tulips. The bulbs were furnished by H. F. Michell and turned out to be exceptionally good.

Bowling matters are looking up, and it is now proposed to have a night for each class, have all the men there, and from those present select teams who will howl against each other, the individual scores to count for the medals offered. The Graham medal for the ten highest games each month is likely to be won this month by W. J. Baker, or "Old Two-hundred," as he is now called, as he promises to win with an average of 200 or over.

The Pennock Co., retail florists, of Wilmington, Pel, have given up their local business and gone into wholesaling exclusively.

Visitors in town: Timothy O'Connor and wife, of Providence, R. I.; M. B. Bunker, Boston; Wm. Edgar, Waverly, Mass.; F. G. Berger, Baltimore.

Boston.

CUT FLOWER BUSINESS IN UNSATISFACTORY CONDITION.—ENTERTAINING LECTURE AT HORTICULTURAL HALL.—NEW CYPRIPE-BIUMS. — DAMAGE BY FROST.—F. W. FLETCHER GOES TO WAR.—CARNATION NIVEA IS A WINNER.—AUCTION SALES.—FINE VIOLETS.—BIG OFFER FOR A CARNATION.

The cut flower business is in a most wretched condition. Ever since Easter it has been bad and now seems to be growing rapidly worse. Just as the demand diminishes the supply, with proverbial contrariness, shows a big increase. The country customers who have been good friends to the wholesaler all through the winter are now getting home crops and can get along without the Boston shipments, which adds to the local inactivity. Roses are coming in quantities that are unmanageable and even carnations are sluggish. Bulbons stock of all kinds is unsalable. Violets run very poor except in the case of a limited quantity from frames, but even the latter are disposed of with difficulty. Lilies continue to be received in excess of the demand. Smilax is in short supply and appears to be about the only item that is able to maintain its price.

A very entertaining address, under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and the Appalachian Mountain Club, was given at Horticultural Hall on Tuesday evening, April 21, by Cornelius Van Brunt. The subject was "The wild flowers of the Canadian Rockies amid their native surroundings," and many stereopticon views were presented to illustrate the lecture. Many of the views were beautifully colored by Mrs. Van Brunt who accompanied her husband on a trip over the Canadian Pacific Railroad from Montreal to Vancouver.

The usual Saturday display was made at Horticultural Hall on April 23. A well bloomed plant of white genista from Japan was shown by James Comley. J. E. Rothwell was awarded a certificate of merit for Cypripedium Eleanor Rothwell, a cross between Leeanum and Lowin made by the late Win. Grey and now flowered and shown for the first time. Mr. Rothwell also received honorable mention for Cypripedium leucochilum a pretty natural cross between bellatulum and concolor.

For the third consecutive season the wistarias in this vicinity are nearly barren of blossoms. The mischief was undoubtedly done in the severe freeze experienced late in March. The flowers on Mahonia aquifolia are also nipped, but magnolias, forsythias and other early blooming shrubs that suffered last year are in fine condition and make a great show.

F. W. Fletcher has resigned his position as editor of the New England Florist and has gone to the front as a war correspondent for the Boston Herald. Thos. II. Meade succeeds him in the management of the paper.

Carnation Nivea is fulfilling the predictions made for it as the best standard white carnation for this market. As received from Cook by Welch Bros. it has every good quality of a market carnation.

every good quality of a market carnation.

N. F. McCarthy's auction sales have begun and will continue regularly every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday until June 22. Prices at the initial sales on dormant stock have been very good. Geo. A. Sutherland is receiving some

Geo. A. Sutherland is receiving some very handsometrame violets of the Campbell variety.

Peter Fisher has refused an offer of $4,000 for the stock of carnation Mrs. T. W. Lawson.

Visiting Boston, Winfried Rolker, New York.

Steam and Hot Water Heating.

PART IV. HOT WATER HEATING WITHOUT BOILER PIT.

It is a general supposition among florists, and also many practical hot water fitters, that to have a successful hot water heating plant for greenhouse work the boiler must be located in a pit or cellar several feet below the heating coils. Such, however, is not the case, but at the same point as the building will permit of the delivery of this water into an expansion tank, as shown at T. in the illustration. This flow pipe from the top of the boiler to the expansion tank should be covered with a good non-conducting pipe covering in order that no heat may escape until it enters the expansion tank. The water is then carried from the tank at a point lower than the inlet as shown, connecting with the upper part of the bench coil and returning to bottom of the boiler as indicated by the direction of the arrows.

The vertical line of supply pipe from the bottom of the expansion tank should not be covered, but allowed to act as heating surface, and in some places this pipe may be situated partly in the greenhouse, passing through the boiler room partition at a point just below the greenhouse roof. When expansion tanks are located at a high elevation, as shown in the accompanying illustration, it will be time a more rapid circulation of water through the heating system will be found in plants where the boilers are located below the level of the greenhouse floor. There are many locations in which it is not practicable to build a boiler pit on account of low, wet ground. It is also a considerable item of expense to build a good boiler pit even on dry ground, especially if the site is a rocky one. Therefore under such circumstances the hot water boiler may be located, as shown in the accompanying illustration, on a level with the greenhouse floor.

HEATING WITHOUT A BOILER PIT.

A partition, it will be noticed, divides the boiler shed and the greenhouse proper, so that coal-gas, dust and smoke which may escape from the fire will be excluded from the latter. As gravitation alone is the motive power for the circulation of water through hot water plants of this kind, the one essential thing necessary will be to carry the pipes in such a manner that there will be a difference in temperature between the rising and falling columns of water. The best plan to obtain the greatest difference of temperature between these columns of water and secure the greatest motive power for circulation, is to carry all the hot water from the top of the boiler to as high a found convenient to have them provided with glass water guages, so that the height of water in the tank can be seen at a glance. Again, to fill heating plants of this kind a hose may be attached to the draw-off cock at the bottom of the boiler, when the water system is in or connected with the building. In work of this kind where four-inch cast iron pipes are used with hub joints, cast iron expansion tanks will be necessary; and as they are quite heavy, it will be necessary to provide a substantial support for the tank

It is also an important matter to have solid foundations for the boiler and all the pillars on which the pipes rest, because they are comparatively heavy without water, and when filled with water, as they are when in operation, the combined weight will be considerable. Two good reasons for having solid supports for hot water greenhouse heating plants are: First, because cast iron pipe of the size used on such work has very little flexibility to it, and will therefore break before it bends when improperly supported; and secondly, as it is also important to have hot water coils properly lined and pitched, for the purpose of getting a good and positive circulation of the water; a sag in the pipes caused by poor foundation might often greatly retard the circulation and affect the efficiency and durability of the apparatus in requiring an increase of attention and tuel. JAMES J. LAWLER.

Ornamental Bedding.

PART VI.

Next we will turn our attention to ellipses and how to lay them out. In Fig. 20 a-b is called the major axis, d-e the minor axis, c is the center, f and g the focil, the distance from the center to either focus is called the eccentricity; any straight line through the center with vertices in the cllipse is a diameter. The relations of the focii to the ellipse are that the sum of the two straight lines drawn from any point of the ellipse to the tocii is always the same. To lay out an ellipse for instance nine feet (major axis) by six and one-halffeet (minor axis) choose the place for line a-b and put pegs at these two points nine feet apart. Proceed to find d and e, as explained for dramonds, c-d and c-c, each three feet three melies, put pegs at d and e. From d intersect a-b with radius c-a, in this case four and one-half feet, which gives the focilf and g. Tie a piece of twine around 112 %.

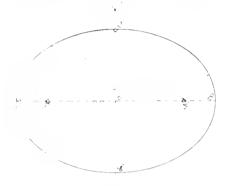

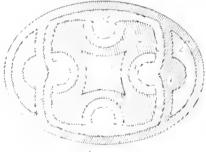

Fig 20.

ant peg / and with it, keeping the twine stretched, draw the ellipse. The dorted lines indicate some of the different positions of the twine and pegs during this process. But peg of in place again. From sect as press as bound it, will come hand on aving out the design. Fig. 21 shows an easy design for an ellipse of

Tig :

Alternanchera, parentehroides 2 Microanthera aureanan (* 3 - Santolina 5 ara (4 - Viernanthera spatulata

Fire a great refret.

A Morran thera paronychioides, 2 derman thera aurici mana 3 Alternan thera paronychioides in a or 4. Santo in a mana 5. La reversa rosea, 6. Achy rathes Lindent Tree of the feet 1 I beveriese indeaglance, 2. After northere and on spect als 3. After nanthera aurea nana; 4. Alternanthera spatulata; 5. Santolina incana

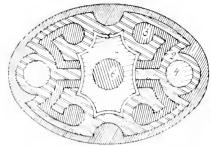

Fig. 22.

These two designs are of a more com-licated nature. The lanceolate outline plicated nature. The lanceolate outline of Fig 24 consists of two curves with equal radii; the centers are situated in the perpendicular of the middle, same construction as when laying out the diamond and the ellipse, but more about this later.

Fig 21 20x10 feet.

Alternanthera paronychioides; 2. Pilea nana; 3. Alternanthera amoena spectabilis; 4. Alternanthera aurea nana; 5. Santolina incana.

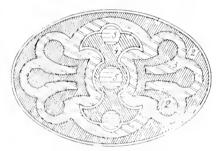

Fig. 23.

The Maltese cross is a design commonly asked for; it is easily laid out and can be made to look very presentable by tasteful planting.

Fig. 25.

Alternauthera paronchioides major; 2. Santolina incana; 3. Coleus Golden Bedder; 5. Coleus Verschaffeltii.

This represents a ten-foot cross; first draw a ten loot square, then from the center, where the diagonals cross each other, draw the circle, three feet 3 inches radius: from the corners of square measure along each side one foot two inches and set pegs; from the points where the diagonals cross the circle measure to each side six inches and set pegs. Now draw twine around the pegs for each wing; draw the lines and you have the outline of the cross. For the planting of borders one and three, I have allowed six inches. Do not make the mistake to plant different colors in H. Hansen. the different wings.

Chicago.

SHIPPING TRADE IS GOOD, -STOCKS AND PRICES.—CHANGES,—OFF TO THE WAR.— LOCAL JOTTINGS.

Shipping trade is fairly good, but the class of stock that is now required on out-of-town orders is entirely different from that which was wanted a year or two Then a large portion of the orders for shipping, especially to the smaller places, were for the cheaper grades of flowers while now the best is almost invariably called for.

Large stocks of all leading varieties of flowers are now coming in and nearly everything is sold out every day. The stock of liles, of which there has been somewhat of a glut since Easter, is much reduced, though there is still plenty for all demands at from $5 to $8 per 100. Good lily of the valley is quite scarce and brings better prices them it has since Christmas, selling readily at $5 per 100.

The mortgage on Julius Martini's place,

459 Division street, has been forcelosed and the property has been leased to Jos. L. Raske. It is reported that Martini has left the city.

John Zeek, who has hadcharge of Reinberg Bros', store for sometime, has berg Bros, store for sometime, has resigned his position, and will be with S. B. Winters after May 1. Archie Spence, who has been with Reinberg Bros, for several years, now has charge of the store.

Wietor Bros., successors to the Rogers Park Floral Co., are building five green-houses 30x120 and sixteen houses 20x120, all for roses. They are also putting up an icehouse and packing room and when these improvements are completed their facilities will equal the best in the city.

At the regular session of the Florists' Club on April 28, it was decided to change the nights of meeting from the second and fourth Thursdays to the first and third Friday evenings of each month. This will bring the next meeting night upon May 6, when the subject for disenssion will be, "Palms, Ferns and Decorations," a topic not likely to be exhausted at one sitting. At this week's session Charles J. Strombach, head gardener at Lincoln Park, read an excellent paper on "Bedding Plants," an abstract of which appears clsewhere in this issue.

Thomas P. McCormick, lately with A. G. Prince & Co., has gone to the war with the Seventh Regiment, L. N. G.

Carl Hammer, with Bassett & Washburn, is a member of the First Regiment, L. N. G., and has gone to Springfield with the command.

Mrs. L. Cation, formerly of Peoria, has opened a store at 321012 Cottage Grove avenue.

Among this week's visitors were Samuel Murray and Arthur Newell, of Kansas City—Mr Newell went to see the picture gallery, and took a trip down the slide.

Bassett & Washburn have leased the Mitchell rose house at Hinsdale, and will remodel it for carnations

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

Subscription $1.00 a Year. To Europe, Subscriptions accepted only from thos in the trade. To Europe, $2.00.

Advertisements, 10 Cents a Line, Agate; $1.00 per inch. Cash with Order.

No Special Position Guaranteed.

Discounts, 6 times, 5 per cent; 13 times, 10 per cent; 26 times, 20 per cent; 52 times, 30 per cent.

The Advertising Department of the AMERICAN FLORIST is for Florists, Seedsmen, and dealers in wares pertaining to those lines ONLY.

Orders for less than one-halt inch space not accepted. Advertisements must reach us by Wednesday to secure insertion in the issue for the following Saturday.

Address THE AMERICAN FLORIST CO., Chicago.

We have received some excellent samples of carnation blooms from Mrs. L. C. Bueheler, Oconomowoc, Wis.

THE National Florists' Board of Trade has moved into larger quarters at the old address, 271 Broadway, New York. Increased business, calling for additional room, is the cause of the change. The telephone number is now 1955.

PRINCE THEODORE GALITZINE, a new orange yellow tea rose, will be sent out this spring by Messrs. Ketten Bros., of Luxenburg (Grand Dutchy). It is de-scribed as being very large and full; long buds, stiff stems and very fragrant.

THE NINTH annual report of the Missouri Botanical Garden comes to hand in its familiar attractive form. The volume is richly illustrated, and in addition to the usual summary of the year's proceedings, contains many valuable papers and notes of a scientific character.

THE Lord & Burnham Co., of Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y., will move their New York office on May 1 to St. James Building, Broadway and 26th street. Their new city quarters give them increased office room besides show rooms where they will shortly exhibit samples of their greenhouse heaters, ventilating machinery and other manufactures.

THE CANNA LEAF ROLLER is a source of considerable annoyance to canna growers in some parts of Florida. In bulletin No. 45 of the Florida Experiment Station Mr. A. L. Quintance gives a full account of the insect and its life history. The only remedy suggested is picking and burning the infested leaves and trash from the buds, as the insects pass the winter in them.

Cut Flower Price Lists Received.

St. Louis Cut Flower Co., St. Louis; II. L. Sunderbruch Co., Cincinnati; Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee; W. A. McFadden, Cincinnati; E. II. Hunt, Chicago; Bassett & Washburn, Chicago.

Greenhouse Building.

Flushing, N. Y.—A. L. Thorne, one rose house, 54x150.

Miami, Fla.-Royal Palm Grounds, one greenhouse, 40x100.

West Derry, N. H.-Mrs. L. F. Cullen, one greenhouse.

Joliet, Ill.-Illinois State Penitentiary, five commercial houses, 12,000 square feet of glass, to be completed June 1. Jos. Labo, superintendent.

"Greenhouse Management."

This is a book of some 400 pages by Prof. L. R. Taft, of the Michigan Agricultural College, and published by the Orange Judd Co., New York. The author is well known to the trade not only by his former valuable work on greenhouse building, but also by the numerous excellent papers from his pen on trade subjects, especially greenhouse heating, which have appeared in the last few years. The book eovers the ground indicated by its title very fully, and is profusely illustrated.

The forcing of roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, violets and bulbs is very fully treated, a special chapter being given to each. We note no class of greenhouse plants commercially grown in this country which is not given attention in proportion to its relative importance. Very full instructions are also given on vegetable foreing, mushroom growing, the foreing of truits, the management of house plants, propagation, insects and insecticides, plant diseases and remedies, soils, manures and fuel.

It should be in the hands of every beginner and even the wise ones, who are not too old to learn, while there is of course much of an elementary nature, will find in it many new and valuable hints.

It is sold by the author and the publishers, price $1.50 postpaid.

The Outlook for Cannas.

Taking into consideration the large sales of dry bulbs that have been made during this season, it would seem as if cannas would be used for bedding purposes more largely this season than ever before. There certainly is no florists' plant that affords so certain a display of brilliant color as the canna, no plant with which the amateur is so sure to succeed.

The dormant roots are now grown and sold at a price that brings them within the reach of the masses and a consequent increase in consumption is the logical result. Introductions of new and high priced novelties may not meet with as large sales as heretofore; but as soon as meritorious introductions become known and their price falls to the moderate level, they will be absorbed with the mass.

To sum up the situation: The canna is one of the best and most satisfactory bedding plants the American public has at its command. The people are learn-ing that fact; they are buying and will continue to buy cannas until some superior plant is introduced to replace it. Good, serviceable varieties offered at reasonable prices will sell. C. W. WARD.

Greenhouse Heating.

A recent farmers' bulletin of the Department of Agriculture (No. 69) contains a popular summary of experiments on greenhouse heating. It is an unfortunate thing that the accurate and scientifically conducted experiments have necessarily dealt with small houses only. The results are almost uniformly in favor of hot water over steam, of hot water under pressure over the open system and of small pipe hot water systems over 4-inch cast iron pipe systems. Where the piping is poorly arranged, and in small houses where there exist many turns in the pipe and a very small fall, steam has given equally good or better results than the other systems. There are certain indica-tions from some of the experiments that in extensive plants the difference between the results of the two systems may be less great, but this is only inference and not a demonstrated fact.

It is certainly demonstrated, however, that aside from the amount of eoal consumed steam is in every way as efficient for the ordinary commercial place as the other system, while being cheaper to install and the pipes much quicker heated or cooled. To those so located that manure is a searce and expensive article, the adaptibility of steam to hotbed and frame heating is quite an item in its favor.

The only question to be yet definitely decided, and the one on which the decision as to which to use rests, is as to the amount of coal consumed by each to perform the same service in a day's scale. It is to be hoped that this may be investi-gated at an early day. We have to look to the experiment stations, however, for work of this kind, and there are at present probably none of them having plants of sufficient extent to enable them to test the matter.

Omaha.

THE RETURN OF PROSPERITY TO THE NEBRASKA METROPOLIS.-THE WEEK'S RECORD. - EXPOSITION VISITORS.

Lenten season with our florists was very much unlike the old-time Lenten period. The business, during this season, has been on the increase for several years and 1898 is a mascot for us. Things are coming our way, we feel, if we did not get the meeting of the officers of the S. A. F., which is eustomarily held in the convention city during the early part of the year.

Prices on cut flowers did not range quite so high as in former years, but the volume of business done made an increase in the amount of sales. Carnations and bulbons stock, aside from lilies, were mostly sought for ranging in price from 50 to 75 cents and $1 per dozen. Roses brought $1 to $1.50 with some of the choice a trifle higher. American Beauties were very searce and brought their own price according to quality. There was a very brisk demand for violets and the supply was very short the latter part of the week. Lilies, of course, formed the bulk of the plant sales, although the Dutch hyacinth also sold freely. lilies, those that were in bloom, were all sold at a good price but at the same time the plants were mostly heavily budded. Azaleas were also in great demand and there was little "parleying" on good plants. There was very little demand for palms, ferns and hydrangeas.

Geo. Marshall, president, and Peter Younger, secretary, of the State Horti-cultural Society, were in the city the early part of the week to look over the exposition grounds. G. R. H.

Scranton, Pa.

A marked change for the better is reported on all sides and it is gratifying to note that the florists, among others, are inclined to take an optimistic view as regards the pending crisis, and are going ahead as if "peace on earth, good will to men," was the order of the day. Messrs. G. R. Clark & Co., have remod-eled their store and have everything in fine shape.

W. II. Davis contemplates building two additional three-quarter span houses, one 16x100 for palms, the other 24x100 for roses. In addition to cut flowers, Mr. Davis grows a general stock of bedding plants.

John Palmer has removed his store to 407 Spruce street, the firm of Palmer & McDonald having recently dissolved.

Morel Brothers may make extensive additions to their plant during the coming summer. They report trade encour-HOMO.

St. Louis.

BUSINESS SHOWS AN UPWARD TENDENCY WITH MOST STOCKS VERY LARGE. LERNS ARE SHORT.—PLANTING OUT TIME. NOTES.

A slight improvement in trade has been noticed during the last week, although nothing remarkable has developed. Prices still rule low, especially on stock in quantities or in thousand lots. Roses have improved more than carnations, there being an immense supply of the latter to make up for the shortage before Easter. l'ive dollars a thousand for the poorer grades, and a cent a piece for good flowers are asked, but the prices they bring is another story. Cooler weather, necessitating firing, has improved rose stock, and also shortened the supply. Harrisi can be had in immense quantities at your own price, somebody evidently having tailed to make Easter connections. Ferns are very scarce and several parties report their inability to purchase any in town.

Market trade still continues slow, the excitement over war bulletins, and the cooler weather having a depressing effect on business. Orders for planting out are coming in quite freely, and several weeks of warm weather would put things in full swing. The parks have commenced planting out lilies and the hardier class or plants. Bulbous plants have about passed their zenith for the present season.

The fakirs are still with us, one of them having turned over several large lots of carnations the past week and, judging from the purchasing price, must have made a good thing out of them.

Mrs. Martin, who has been conducting the flower stand in Alexander's drug store, has failed. This stand was con-ducted, up to four months ago, by Wm. Lingenbrink, under the name of Elleards. He disposed of it to go to Klondike.

R. F. T.

Cleveland.

WAR PRICES PREVAIL IN THE OHIO CITY, BUT IT IS A LOCAL CUL RATE CONTEST WHICH HAS DEMORALIZED THAT MAR-

The usual spring glut, which, owing to a crious circumstances, had been staved on thus far this season, arrived the latter port or last week. Business, up to that time, had, on the whole, been fairly good and, although prices in some lines were often somewhat shaky, there had been manufest, except in one or two isolated and rather unimportant instances, no disposition to unload stock at prices far below cost. Things took a mighty on the however, at the above mentioned time and pretty nearly everyone took a hand in the game, including one dry goods emportum, where some very good long stemmed Beauties were sold for the sugnificent sun of ten cents each. Brides and Bridesmands, at this same establishment were generously offered to the pubhe at the rate of two for five cents. all the stock of Beauties offered in this They ranged case were long stemmer ir an shart ap to two and three feet, but even at that the grower must have been unit entry rewarded for his labors. The tracket for five rate was discounted in more than one florist's shop, where Brides and Bridesmands were sold, in very good grades at 25 cents a dozen. Other florists who were not so long on researontributed to the general cheerful. ness by selling carnations at 15 or 20 cents a dozer, dagodils at 25 cents, and other stocks, which they chanced to be well supplied with at about any old price." It is announced by one of the festive florists that other further exploits along this line of commercial activity will this week result in the inauguration by his firm of a grand, unprecedented feast of bargains. This banquet may not materialize, as it is contingent upon the erratitudes of others, but should it come to pass we shall enjoy a spectacle unique in the present rough and tumble contest for the bargain record.

Aside from the merry price war there is little to report. The weather is now taking on a more spring-like aspect. Planting, however, even for the earliest stock, cannot safely begin for nearly a week, so that nearly everyone is resting on his oars at present.

Pittsburg.

THE FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB PLAN TO GIVE A BIG FLOWER SHOW .-PLANTS, PRICES AND WEATHER.

After Easter trade is fairly good, the fact that our country is at war not having affected the local florists' business as yet. Stock is plentiful, of good quality and prices are well sustained. The weather has been much too cold recently for the bedding plant growers, but as soon as it becomes warmer the indications point to an excellent trade in that line. The quality of the plants so far offered shows that good stock will be very general this sea-

The Pittsburg and Allegheny Florists' and Gardeners' Club met on the evening of April 25, and hereafter the fourth Monday of each month will be the regular meeting night. This change is owing to the club's inability to secure the hall on the night previously selected. This month's meeting was well attended and much more than ordinary interest was manifested, the question box proving a source of inspiration. After a lengthy discussion as to the advisability of giving a flower show next fall the decision was left until the next meeting. Those present were very decidedly in favor of giving a show, and all the growers said they would be very willing to participate. all probability the exhibition will be given under the auspices of some worthy charity. A very fine vase of the Walter Harvey cornation grown by John Murchie, of Sharon, Pa., was shown at the meeting by Mr. John Ludwig, the club extending a vote of thanks both to the grower and exhibitor for the fine display. The club seems to have taken on a new spirit and a very successful year is predicted.

Mr. Zyp, of Uitgeest, Haarlem, Holland, was with us last week, and reports trade as good. REGIA.

SITUATIONS, WANTS, FOR SALE,

Advertisements under this head will be inserted at the rate of 40 cents a line (seven words) each inser-tion. Cash most accompany order. Phat advs. not admitted under this head. Every paid subscriber to the AMERICAN FLORIST for the year 188 is entilled to a five-line want adv. free to be used at any time during the year.

STILATION WANTED Hyncompetentyoningman: Streets experience, steady and other Best of ref-erences Address GAL care Am. Florist

STILLATION WANTED By young man as second a gardener of to lake cars of small private place, of deletences Address J. O.E.A.R.S.J. out 5.1 between 10th A Pth Ave. Brooklyn, N. Y.

S113 A110N WANTED. In commercial place by single norm hage 0, grower of rroces, carmations, manus yields wades and general stock. References, Enviolence Hill 26 W. Schock M. Owwego, N. Y.

STILLATION WANTED By young man age 21; in the years experience in foscs and carnations, can furthelight the test of references. Philadelphia or vicinity preferred. J.W. Box Ds. Newton, Pa.

STILATION WANTED Increase growing established intentor general greenhause work as assistant letterences and particulars. Western states properly different Address. A P.A. cara American Florist SITUATION WANTED—By a first class grower of roses. mums, carnations, violets, tomatoes, cucumbers and other plants. Best references; married, no children. F. F. RENTZ, 7 Bitnerville, Lancaster City, Pa.

SITUATION WANTED

by florist and gardener; private or commercial place; near Hoston preferred. Ten years' thorough experience in growing rossa, curnations violets and general forlists' stock. Fur years steady at present place as foreman; god maker-up and seller. German, slogle, 25 years old; 7 years in America. Honest, sober and steady. Best of references. Good wages expected. Ready May 2d. Address. H.S. care Am. Florist.

Wanted-First-class grower to take charge of a section of roschouses Address Wieter Bros., 51 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

WANTED AT ONCE—An all-round good florist, single: German preferred.
BAY WOOD FLORAL CO., Bryant St. E. E., Pittsburg, Pa.

WANTED AT ONCE-Good florist for general green-house work Wages $20 per boom with board, and lore assessment states factory. HILLSDALE FLORAL PARK, Hillsdale, Mich. and inc

WANTED-Phot graphs of gardens and plans; also specimen plants hardy and otherwise. Send price and particulars to BURTON, care W. J. Stewart. 67 Bromfield St., Boston.

WANTED-An assistant in greeohouse capable of taking charge when necessiry; must adderstand roses carnations and imms: marged and man; wages $45 per mooth; give references and oathonality Address K. care American Floriet.

WANTED AT ONCE-Man for general gardenlog, especially understanding care of lawns, shrubherv and outling out bedding plants. Young man preferred, Address E. L. B., P. O. Box 101. Northeast Harbor, Me.

WANTED-A good rose grower, as working foreman, one who can take charge of a commercial place. To a reliable, steady man, permanent position, Send coay of references, wages expected. Married man preferred. FLORIST, P.O. Box 230, Madison, N.J.

FOR RENT-For greenhoose purposes, 32,700 square feet on Michigan Ave. Long lease and low rental. Room 122, 184 La Salle St., Chicago.

FOR SALE-Greenhouses on principal street to the city. For particulars apply to J. H. REBSTOCK, 584 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR RENT-To retail Borlst, a large show window good location in hotel building. For particulars, etc., call and see.

POR SALE—Florist's single covered wagon; beight about 5 feet, width about 4 feet, length about 7% feet; built to order, costing $250. Used, but 2 years. Will be sold cheap for cash VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, BOX 688, Chicago.

FOR SALE—Five greenhouses, all in first-class order, well stocked; a brick house and barn; a lovely home and doing good business; must sell at once on account of more health; a bargeln; 183 acres of land. MRS. H. C. BUCHELER, Oconomowoc Wis.

POR SALE The greenbouse establishment of schiller & Kuske Tormerly Schiller & Mathander, is offered for a de at a great sacrifice; $9000 will buy 2 19-20 neres of valuable ground, 23 greenbouses, comprising 56,000 equare feet of glass; wells, 2 nice dwelling houses, sheels, etc. located in the village of Niles Center, about 12 ndies from the heart of Chicago; 15 miles to deput. Terms, $5500 cash, balance on time; investigate. Address correspondence to Pochimann Bros. Morton Grove Cook Co., Ill., or Herman Schiller, $20 W. Madlson St., Chicago.

FOR SALE.

Greenhouses in one of the best citt, s in Wisconsin A got d investment and a money maker for a fustler owner must retire on account of poor health. For particulars write.

A LEUMER, Wadshu, Wis.

FOR SALE.

Three well stocked greenlonises 3 vears old, llying rooms, horse and wagons. Will be sold cheap if taken at once; $1900 for first payment, balance on time, Sick-ness cause of selling. A ANTHES, Milwukee A Warner Aves, Chiengo, or Inquire 286 North Clark St.

FOR SALE OR RENT

VERY CHEAP.

VERY CHEAP.

Lofter for sale or reat my undivided init laterest of the real estate of the wreenhouse properly formerly known as Schiller A Malhader structed in the village of Niles Center, ahout 12 miles from business center of Chiengo and 1bq miles from Morton Grove R R. Depot. The property consists of 23 greenhouses, 2 dwelling houses, berns, wells and necessary sheds on 2.9 20 eres of bird. In visitable Price for midvided built, $1.50; forms $1.60 cmsh, bulince payable has evently insuliments secured by mortgage notes bearing 6 per cent interest. Or will reat or lease to some responsible party for a term of verts at an annual rental of $1500 giving option to lessee to buy my interest for above stated price, provided that said lesse will make repairs the first year to the extent of $1000. Will acquire deed to properly May 18. Address.

MRS. B. KUSKE,

Care Poehlmann Bros., Morton Grove, Cook Co., III.

CUT FLOWER EXCHANGE

404-412 East 34th Street.

Near the Ferry

...New York.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Stockholders of the Cut Flower Exchange will be held at the above address on Saturday, May 7th, 1898, at 9 o'clock A. M. Five Directors will be elected and other important business transacted at this meeting.

I. DONALDSON, Sec'v.

Going, Going, Gone!

and it's your own fault if you don't get the bargaius. Auction Sales of Plants every Tuesday. Thursday aud Salurday at 9 A.M.al.....

McCARTHY & CO.'S

If you want to buy, send for Catalogues. & If you want to sell, write for terms. & & &

IT PAYS!

No. 60.

THIS COUPON

if presented on any Tuesday or Friday during the spring season will entitle THE BEARER to a good comfortable seat at where he can purchase at his own feures anything and everything in plants, roots, trees and shrubs.....

CLEARY'S

Sales at 60 Vesey Street, NEW YORK, 11 A. M. EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY.

Y. CUT FLOWER EXCHANGE

404-412 E. 34th St. Near Ferry.

Open for Cut Flower Sales at 6 o'clock Every Morning...... DESIRABLE WALL SPACE TO RENT FOR ADVERTISING.

JOHN DONALDSON, Secretary.

HOLTON & HUNKEL CO.

SUCCESSORS TO

The Wisconsin Flower Exchange. Fresh Cut Flowers, Florists' Supplies

Manufacturers of WIRE DESIGNS

Consignments Solicited.

Phone Main 974

457 Milwaukee St., MILWAUKEE.

Strings 8 to 10 feet long.

50 CENTS.

W. H. ELLIOTT, Brighton, Mass.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| Cincinnati, April 28.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Roses, Beautles, select                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Deldo: 9.000 1.60                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| " Bridesmalds 3 00@ 4 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| " Meteors 4,00@ 5 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| " Perle                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Carnations 1 000 1 50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| " fancy 2 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Marguerites                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Lily of the valley 3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Harrisil                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Callas 8 00@10.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Smllax                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Adlantum 1 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Asparagus                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| ST. LOUIS, April 28                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Ponce Possition 0.000000000                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Roses, Beauties                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| " Meteors 1.00 g 4.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Brides, Bridesmaids 1,00@ 4,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| " Perles 1.00@ 4 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| " Kaiserin 1.00@ 4.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Carnations                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Violets, California                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| double                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| double                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Harrisii 6 00@10.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Callas 5.00@ 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Smllsx                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| MILWAUKEE, April 28                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Roses, Beauties                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| " Brides Bridesmaids " Was 5 W                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| " Perle. 3 00@ 4 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| " Metsors 3 00@ 5 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Carnations                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Sweet peas                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Sweet peas                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Lily of the valley 3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Marguernes, write                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| " yellow 60@ .75                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| yellow 60@ .75Callas, Harrish 8.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Callas, Harristi s (a)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Calina, Harrisii                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Callas, Harristi s (a)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Calins, Harristi.         S.00           Smilax.         15 (0)           Adiantum.         75% 1.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Calins, Harristi.         S.00           Smilax.         15 (0)           Adiantum.         75% 1.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Calins, Harristi.         S.00           Smilax.         15 (0)           Adiantum.         75% 1.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Calins, Harrisi                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Calins   Harrisii   S   00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Calins   Harrisi   S   50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Calles   Harrisi   S   00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Calins, Harrisi                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Calles   Harrisi   S   00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Calins, Harrisi                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Calles   Harrisi   S   00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Calins   Harrisi   S   00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Calins   Harrisi   S   00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Calles   Harrisi   S   00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Callas   Harrisi   S   00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Calles   Harrisi   S   00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Calles   Harrisi   S   00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Calins. Harrisi         8,00           Smilax         15 (n)           Adiantum         75 m         1,00           Adiantum         75 m         1,00           Adiantum         BUFFALO, April 28.           Roses, Beantles         10,00@ 40         00           " Brides, Bridesmaids, Meteors         4 0.0@ 8,00         00         5 00           " Perles         3 00@ 5,00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00 |
| Calles   Harrisi   S   00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Calins. Harrisi         8,00           Smilax         15 (n)           Adiantum         75 m         1,00           Adiantum         75 m         1,00           Adiantum         BUFFALO, April 28.           Roses, Beantles         10,00@ 40         00           " Brides, Bridesmaids, Meteors         4 0.0@ 8,00         00         5 00           " Perles         3 00@ 5,00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00         5 00 |

Flowers And Business

2) cents euclosed in stamps will bring you samples that will interest you......

DAN'L B. LONG, Publisher, BUFFALO.

It will be better for everybody if you mention the American Florist when writing advertisers on this page.

Successful Growers are Wanted

To know that they can dispose of all their surplus stock by advertising in the American Florist. TRY IT NOW! .....tising in the American Florist.

C. A. KUEHN, Wholesale Florist,

1122 PINE STREET.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

A complete line of Wire Designs.

MOUND CITY GUT FLOWER GO.

Wholesale Florists.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED

Special attention given to shipping orders Special a...

1322 Pine St., S...

C. W. WORS SEESESESESES SEESES
OWERS ....WHOLESALE....

.....ROSES, and a full line Headquarters for the South West ....

When writing mention American Florist

ST. LOUIS CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists

E. H. MICHEL

1620 Olive St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

ROSES, CARNATIONS, AND ALL KINDS OF SEASONABLE FLOWERS IN STOCK.

WM. F. KASTING WHOLESALE COMMISSION FLORIST....

495 Washington St., Buffalo. N. Y. Also Dealer in Florists' Supolies and Wire Designs

W. A. MCFADDEN.

NEAVE BUILDING. CINCINNATI.

Producers and Shippers of every description of High Class Floral Supplies.

GOOD STRONG AMERICAN BEAUTY

AND CYCLAMEN PLANTS

2-in. Pots Ready for Delivery.

E. H. Hunt

THE "OLD RELIABLE" FOR

WHOLESALE

CUT FLOWERS

Hunt's Flowers Go Everywhere

76 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

E. C. AMLING, WHOLESALE COMMISSION FLORIST

51 WABASH AVENUE,

Consignments Solicited. CHICAGO.

Prompt attention to shipping orders.

A. G. PRINCE & CO. Wholesale Gut Flowers

AND FLORISTS' SUPPLIES.

Agents for the Hinsdale Rose Co. Special attention paid to shipping orders.

88 & 90 Wabsah Avenue.

Telephone Main 3208. CHICAGO.

Mention the American Florist when corresponding with an advertiser.

S. B. WINTER,

/Successor to WINTER & GLOVER,)

21 Randolph St., Chicago.

GRADE CUT FLOWERS,

PACKED RIGHT,

so they will reach you in just as good condition as they reach us.

WIFE DESICNS: A Full Line. Write us for our litustrated Catalogue.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| Roses   Reauties   per duz. 1.50@3.00     Brides   2 00@ 4 00     Meters   Bridesmalds   Kalserin   2 00@ 4.00     Meters   Bridesmalds   Kalserin   2 00@ 3.00     La France   Testout   3.00@ 5.00     Carnations common   50 a 1.50     Fancy   2 00@ 5 00     Violets   4 00@ 5 00     Narcissus   Poeticus   4 00@ 5 00     Harrish   Callas   4 00@ 5 00     Harrish   Callas   4 00@ 5 00     Tulips   1 00@ 5 00     Tulips   1 00@ 5 00     Hyacinths   2 00@ 1 00     Hyacinths   2 00@ 1 00     Sweet peas   50 4 1.00     Hyacinths   50 00     Hyacinth   | CHICAGO, April 29.                           |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------|
| Brides   2 1006 4 00     Meteors, Bridesmalds, Kalserin   2 1006 4 00     Meteors   Bridesmalds   Color 4 00     Gontlers   2 006 4 3 00     La France   Testout   3 006 5 40     Carnations, common   50 a 1 50     Fancy   2 006 5 0     Violets   4 006 5 5     Narcissus Poeticus   4 006 5 5     Harrisli, Callas   4 006 5 0     Lily of the valley   4 006 5 0     Trilips   1 006 4 10     Sweet peas   50 4 1 0     Liyacinths   2 006 4 0     Adlantum   506 1 0     Smillax   10 006 5 5 0     Asparagus   40 006 5 5 0     Asparagus   40 006 5 5 0     Asparagus   40 006 5 5 0     Meteory   Color 5 00     Meteory   Color     | Roses, Reauties per duz, 1.50@3.00           |
| Meteors, Bridesmalds, Kalserin. 2,00% 4,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Brides                                       |
| " Gontlers. 2,006a 3,00  " La France. Testout 3,006a 5,10  Carnations, common 50 à 1,50  Violets. 466 75  Narcissus Poeticus 106 8 90  Harrisii, Callas 4,006 5 90  Tulips. 1,006 5 90  Tulips. 1,006 5 90  Lily of the valley 4,006 5 90  Lily of the valley 4,006 5 90  Tulips. 50 4 1,00  Sweet pens 50 4 1,00  Hyacinths 2,006 4,00  Smilax 10,006 75,00  Smilax 10,006 75,00  Smilax 10,006 75,00  Smilax 90,006 7  | " Meteurs, Bridesmalds, Kalserin, 2.00@ 4.00 |
| " La France. Testout 3.000 5.40 Carnations. common 510 1.50 Carnations. common 510 1.50 Carnations. common 510 1.50 Carnations. common 510 1.50 Carnations. Carnat | " Gontlers                                   |
| Carnations common     50 à 1.50       " fancy     2.00% 5 00       Violets     46%       Narcissus Preticus     50       Harristi, Callas     4.00% 8 00       Lily of the valley     4.00% 5 00       Tulips     1.00% 4 100       Sweet pens     50 4 1.00       Hyacinths     2.00% 4.00       Adlantum     50% 1.00       Smilax     10.00% 5.00       Asparagus     49.00% 5.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | " La France, Testout 3.00@ 5.00              |
| Tency   2.00% 5 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Cornetions common                            |
| Violets.   40@ 75     Narcissus Preticus   50     Harrisii. Caliss   4 00@ 8 00     Lily of the valley   4 00@ 5 00     Tulips   1 00@ 4 00     Sweet pens   50 4 1 00     Hyacinths   2 000     Lyacinths   50     Lyacinths   1 0 00@ 15 00     Smilax   1 0 00@ 15 00     Asparagus   10 00@ 15 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | " fancy 2.00% 5 00                           |
| Narcissus Poeticus         50           Harrisli, Callas         4 00% 8 00           July of the valley         4.00% 5 00           Tulips         1.00% 4 100           Sweet pens         50 4 1.00           Hyacinths         2.01% 4 00           Adlantum         500 1.00           Smilax         10.00% 15.00           Asparagus         40.00% 75.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Violete .40@ .15                             |
| Harrisli, Callas                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Narcissus Poeticus                           |
| Lily of the valley                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Harrish Callas 4 00@ 8 00                    |
| Tulips     1,006 4,100       Sweet pers     50 4 1,00       Hyacinths     2,006 4,00       Adlantum     500 1,00       Smillax     10,006 15,00       Asparagus     40,006 75,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Lily of the valley 4.00@ 5.00                |
| Sweet pens         50 a 1.00           HyacInths         2.006 a 4.00           HyacInths         2.006 a 4.00           Smilax         10.00@15.00           Asparagus         49.00@75.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Tniins 1.00@ 4.00                            |
| Hyacinths   2.0462 4.00   Adlantm   5069 1.00   Smilax   10.002 15.00   Asparagus   40.002 75.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Street ness 50 a 1.00                        |
| Adiantum 5,90% 1.00Smilax 10.00% 15.00Asparagus 10.00% 75.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Hyacintha 2 00@ 4.00                         |
| Smilax                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Adjentum                                     |
| Asparagus 40.00@75.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Smile v 10.00@ 15.00                         |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | A a pare (7)19 $0.00@75 00                  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Pansles                                      |

Bassett & Washburn's ROSE PLANTS

We have an extra selected stock of the following Rose Plants Will guarantee them to be as fine as any grown Per 1000 Per 1000

| American Beauty2164n. | pot, $5 | 00 | $40 GH |
|-----------------------|----------|----|---------|
| Brides '              |          | £0 | 25.00   |
| Bridesmaids           | ' 3      | 00 | 25 00   |
| Kaiserin              | 4 3      | 50 | 30.00   |
| President Carnot      | 1 3      | 50 | 30.00   |
|                       |          |    |         |

BASSETT & WASHBURN,

Store: 88 Wabash Avenue, CHICACO, ILL Long Distance Phone Main 223.

Creenhouse and Residence, Hinsdale, III.
Long Distance Phone No. 10.

A. L. RANDALL 3

Wholesale Florist

Don't Forget that we are at 4 Washington St., Chicago.

Write for special quotations on large orders.

Ford Bros...

Wholesale Florists

111 West 30th Street, NEW YORK.

Consignments Solicited. Telephone, 260 38th St.

JAMES M. KING

Commission Dealer in

CUT FLOWERS.

Cood Money for your Flowers. Cood Flowers for your Money. 49 WEST 29TH ST., NEW YORK. TELEPHONE 1675 38th St.

THE NEW YORK GUT FLOWER CO.

119 and 121 West 23d Street, 112 and 114 West 24th Street, Telephone 733-181h.

NEW YORK

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED.
Special Attention Given to Shipping Orders

ROGERS PARK FLORAL CO.,

Wholesale Growers of

CUT FLOWERS,

51 WABASH AVENUE,

CHICAGO.

HEADQUARTERS FOR AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

REINBERG BROS.

WHOLESALE GROWERS OF

...CUT FLOWERS...

600,000 feet of Glass. We can fill all orders on short notice with all leading varieties of Roses and Carnations. We are Headquarters for fine American Beauties. Give us a trial and convince yourself. It is a 3 is 3.

ROOTED ROSE CUTTINGS

And the state of t

| Per 100 | Per 1000 |

ROSE PLANTS

|              |       | oti | 10 | r | 91 | ۷, | ı. | 11 | 11 | c | h |    | н | 31 | 8 | ١, |   |   | ı | pi | Θľ | . 1 | Ю  | )  | per 1000 |
|--------------|-------|-----|----|---|----|----|----|----|----|---|---|----|---|----|---|----|---|---|---|----|----|-----|----|----|----------|
| American     | Beaut | y.  |    |   |    |    | ,  |    |    |   |   | ĺ, |   |    |   |    |   |   |   |    | 8  | Ď,  | 11 | 1  | $15,110 |
| Meteor       |       |     |    |   |    |    |    |    |    |   |   |    |   |    |   |    |   | Ċ |   |    |    | 3   | Uk | (I | 25.00    |
| Bridg.       |       |     |    |   |    |    |    |    |    |   |   |    |   |    |   |    |   |   |   |    |    |     |    |    |          |
| Bridesmale   |       |     |    |   |    |    |    |    |    |   |   |    |   |    |   |    |   |   |   |    |    |     |    |    |          |
| La France.   |       |     |    |   |    |    |    | i  | ì  |   | ì | ١. |   | ì  |   |    | ì |   | i | Ċ  | ì  | 2   | 3  | a  | 22,50    |
| Katserin     |       |     |    |   |    |    |    |    |    |   |   |    |   |    |   |    |   |   |   |    |    |     |    |    |          |
| selle Such   |       |     |    |   |    |    |    |    |    |   |   |    |   |    |   |    |   |   |   |    |    |     |    |    |          |
| Smillion pia | nts   |     |    |   |    |    |    |    |    |   |   |    |   |    |   |    |   |   |   |    |    |     | () |    |          |

CARNATION CUTTINGS

OUT OF BLACK SOIL.

|                |  | Deal, 1001 h | 850 F. 5131 F9 |
|----------------|--|--------------|----------------|
| Wns. Scott     |  | $2.50       | § (1 (1)       |
| McGownii       |  | 2 .11        | 20 OF          |
| Kobbioor       |  | 3.20         | 20,00          |
| ian y foresik  |  | . 2.50       | 201-000        |
| derio Gillhort |  | 1250         | 20,00          |
| Smnox W cher   |  | 2 50         | 20 00          |
| io difech      |  | 2.59         | 20.00          |
| Bridesmaid     |  | 2.50         | 20.00          |
| Inbliec .      |  | 5.00         | 10,00          |
| Flora IIII .   |  | 5,00     | 10,00          |
| Mayor Plugue - |  | 5.00     | 4H) [H)        |

REINBERG BROS., 51 WABASH AVENUE. CHICAGO.

M. A. HART. Commission Dealer Cut Flowers. 44 WEST 29TH STREET. NEW YORK CITY.

THE BEST MARKET IN NEW YORK. 'Phone 1307 38th St.

TRAENDLY & SCHENCK, Wholesale Florists.

Control the stock of many celebrated growers and are prepared to quote prices on First Grade Cut Flowers. All varieties.

38 West 28th St., and Cut Flower Exchange, NEW YORK CITY. Tel. 961 18th Street.

FRED.

No. 1403 Fairmount Avenue.

Telephone, Long Distance.

PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| NEW YORK, April 26.                                                  |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Roses, Beauties, Hybrids 4 00@ 12 00                                 |
| Jacqs 4.00@ 8.00Bridesmaids, Testout, Carnot. 50@ 4.00           |
| " Bridesmaids, Testout, Carnot 50@ 4 00                              |
| " Morgans, Meteor                                                    |
| Carnations 1 00 @ 2 00                                               |
| Lily of the valley 1 00% 2.00                                        |
| Lily of the valley                                                   |
| Daffodils, Tulips                                                    |
| Violets                                                              |
| Harrisii, Calias 1.00@ 2 50                                          |
| Smtlax                                                               |
| Asparagus 40.00@50.00                                                |
| •                                                                    |
| BOSTON, April 27.                                                    |
| Roses, Besutles, Brunners 5.00@15.00                                 |
| " Morgan, Meteor 1 00@ 4 00                                          |
| " Brides, Bridesmaids, Carnot 1 00@ 4 00                             |
| Carnations 1.00 & 1 50                                               |
| fancy 1.50@ 2.00Lily of the valley, Daffodils, Tulips 1.00@ 2.00 |
| Lily of the valley, Daffodils, Tulips 1,00@ 2.00                     |
| Violets                                                              |
| Harristi, Callas                                                     |
| Arnaragus 50 00                                                      |
| Smilax                                                               |
| PHILADELPHIA April 27.                                               |
| Roses, Beauties, select, per dozen1.00                               |
| medium                                                               |
| " Brunners                                                           |
| " Teas                                                               |
|                                                                      |
| Carnations                                                           |
| Thy of the valley, Narcissus 5 000 1.00                              |
| Violets 50 @ 75Hyscinths 2.60 @ 3.00                             |
| Harrisii                                                             |
| Financia ness                                                        |
| Sweet peas                                                           |
| Smitax 12.00@ 10 00                                                  |
|                                                                      |

1612-14-16 LUDLOW ST. PHILADELPHIA, PA

John I. Raynor,

49 WEST 28th STREET.

NEW YORK.

SPECIAL EXTRA STOCK OF

AM. BEAUTY, METEOR, BRIDESMAID, BRIDE.

Record Breaking Carnations ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

THOS. YOUNG, JR.

* * Wholesale Florist

43 West 28th Street, New York.

WALTER F. SHERIDAN. WHOLESALE

ORIST.

39 West 28th Street, NEW YORK.

Roses shipped to all points. Price list on application.

ose (irowers

Will find a good market and good returns for their stock at....

JULIUS LANG'S

53 W. 30th Street. - NEW YORK.

Edward C. Horan. 34 W. 29th Street, NEW YORK.

WHOLESALE • FLORIST.

Careful Shipping to all parts of the country.

Price list on application.

WM. C. SMITH. Wholesale Florist.

40 So. 16th St., PHILADELPHIA.

Consignments Solicited. Special attention given to shipping orders Long Distance Telephone 5008 A

9 Chapman Place, 15 Province Street, CUT FLOWER MARKET. BOSTON, MASS.

ed separate space in our market. We guarantee payment for all Flowers sold. Sales reported weekly; payments monthly, or oftener if required.

THE NEW ENGLAND HEADQUARTERS FOR THE BEST GRADE OF FLOWERS AT ALL SEASONS OF THE YEAR.

J. K. ALLEN. Wholesale Florist.

WHITE VIOLETS, finest quality. EXTRA ROSES and other desirable specialties.

57 West 28th Street.

Long Distance Telephone 382-38th St

NEW YORK.

GALVIN & CO.

Wholesale Florists

AND DEALERS IN ALL

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES,

4 Ordway Place, BOSTON, MASS. Cut Flower Consignments Solicited. Best market.

GEORGE A. SUTHERLAND, Cut Flowers & Florists' Supplies WHOLESALE.

67 Bromfield St..

BOSTON, MASS.

Wholesale Florists

BRIDESMAIDS

JOBBERS IN

Horticultural Auctioneers. 84 HAWLEY STREET, . BOSTON.

JOHN YOUNG, ROSES, CARNATIONS, VALLEY

and all other choice cut flower stock.

NEW YORK. 51 W. 28th Street. Price list on application.

FRANK MILLANG,

CUT FLOWERS.

WHOLESALE COMMISSION,

408 E. 34th Street.

Cut Flower Exchange.

NEW YORK

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN. IRVING ROUSE, Pres : E. ALBERTSON Vice-Pres.: GEORGE C SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y and Treas.

The Paeony Symposium.

At the next regular meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, to be held on Tuesday next. May 3rd, the subject for the symposium will be "Paonies," and Joseph Heacockis down on the cards to open the discussion. Paronies are attracting more attention at the present than they did at one time; this applies both for outdoor decoration as hardy plants and as cut flowers for the city florists.

The committee on subjects for essays had hoped that owing to the apparent earliness of the season a creditable exhibition would be held in conjunction with the symposium; but the change in the weather since last meeting has decided that it cannot be, except that possibly there may be a few flowers of P. tennifolia and P. Montan. Since the last meeting of the club, we have had several degrees of frost hereabouts, and as many of the tree piconies are quite precocious, some having made six inches of growth at the time they were badly nipped, though not killed, the ragged appearance of the foliage will, it is to be leared, cause many of the flowers to come crippled.

paeonia show, it was fondly hoped, could be made a feature, for there are some varied and valuable collections of these hardy flowering plants in Philadelphia and vicinity. It is to be hoped that if the show is not well patronized this year it will point the way to a better one next year. I recently saw a block of several hundred plants of the tree paronia in over fitty varieties; this is the second year after planting, and most of them are well set with flowering buds. It will be interesting to examine them when they commence to bloom, though it will require exhibitions in all the large cities to make them as thoroughly popular as they deserve to be. E. D. W.

A COMMITTEE has been formed with a view to securing funds for the erection, at Brussels, Belgium, of a monument to Jean Linden, botanist and explorer. Conte de Kerchove is president; M. Kegeljan, treasurer, and M. Lubbers, sycretary. Botanists and horticulturists throughout the world are invited to cooperate in the movement, and subscriptions should be addressed to M. Kegeljan, president of the Royal Horticultural Society of Namur, Belgium, in the form of postal orders, payable at Namur.

GRAND RAPHS, MICH. Albert, H. Rogers, formerly florist at the Lansing Industrial school, died at his home here.

SAMUEL C. MOON,

MORRISVILLE.

Bucks Co., PA.

F. & F. NURSERIES

fruits and care Ormaniculate. Shade Trees bery eraset, specialtee 100.000 Pauch est prices tals suctree Agents wanted

EVERGREENS AND

FLORISTS AS WELL AS NURSERYMEN HANDLE MY NURSERY-GROWN EVERGREENS AT A BIG PROFIT

Leaders for this season. 300,000 transplanted Hemlocks. of the beautiful Rocky Mountain Evergreens. 200,000 Red Cedar from northern seed and millions of the old standard sorts, such as Spruces, Pines, Balsams and Arbor Vitæs. My trade list costs you nothing but a postal card.

D. HILL, Evergreen Specialist, = Dundee, III.

OUR SPECIALTIES

AZALEAS, ROSES, RHODODENDRONS

New and rare hardy plants for forcing. Novelth 8 in Ferns (raised by the largest London grower). The newest and best varielt 8 of roses: Il P and Tea scented, from a French raiser. Write us and ask for quoteth as We Import direct to Boston to meet the demand from Canada and New Englatd States.

F. Brunton & Co.

IMPORTERS AND EXPORTERS OF NEW AND RARE PLANTS.

136 Boylston Street, - BOSTON, MASS.

EVERGREENS, Etc.

20 000 American Arbor Vitas, 2 to 8 feet specimens and hedging plants.
5,000 Pyramidal Arbor Vitas, 2 to 4 feet.
20 000 Compacto, Globe and other dwarf Arbor Vitas, 31 sizes.
3 000 Nordman's Silver Fir. 1 to 2½ feet.
2 000 European Silver Fir. 2 to 4 feet.
5,000 Hembock Spruce, 1 to 4 feet.
10 000 Norway Spruce, 3 to 8 feet.
10 000 Vorway Spruce, 3 to 8 feet.
5 000 Irish Jumipers. S quarroa, Plumosa, Plumosa aurea and other sorts, 1 to 5 feet.
5 000 Irish Jumipers. 1 to 2½ feet.
1000 Prucs, Austrian Seotch, Evcelsa, White and dwarf varieties, all sizes.
1 000 European Silver Fir. 2 to 4 feet.
3 000 Hoon mous radicans variegata.
1 000 European Silver Fir. 2 to 4 feet.
3 000 Mahomas aquifodia and Japonica.
3 000 Luglish Bolly, 1 to 1 feet.
3 000 Luglish by, strong plants.
Prices low, Correspondence solicited.
THE WM H. MOON CO. Morrisville, Pa

THE WM H. MOON CO.. Morrisville, Pa

TOKYO... NURSERIES CO.

Headquarters for Japan Lilles. Cycas Revotutin, Morrilar Glory, all k nds of Japances plant, seeds etc., etc. Large assortment night ways it stock. Orders promptly executed.

Write for entitlogue.

The Tokyo Nurseries Co. Komagome, Tokyo,

DIAPANI Cuble Address Nuiserles" Tokyo.

CLEMATIS

Large flowering varieties—Rhododendrons, Ampelopsis Azalen, H. P. Roses, Tree Roses, etc., etc.—Lalies, Tuberoses, Begonius and Glovinus...

Branch of The Harticultural Co. L. C. BOBBINK,

Rutherford, N. J.

HARDY

Herbaceous Perennials

THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK IN AMERICA. PÆONIES, PHLOX, IRIS, DELPHINIUMS, ETC., ETC.

JACOB W. MANNING The Reading Nursery, READING, MASS. ESTABLISHED 1854

Armstrong's

Everblooming

Tuberose & &

A NEW departure in Tuberose growth.
Flower bearing buds continue to form around the old flower stock indefinitely.
Flowers greatly superior to those of all other single Tuberoses. Awarded Certificate of Merit by the S. A. F. at Providence last Angust, and the Shaw Gold Medal at St. Louis in November.

For Prices and Particulars
...Address...

LUTHER ARMSTRONG,
3720 Olive St., ST. LOUIS MD.

FOR NURSERYMEN

Fresh seeds of the two best kinds of Japanese Walnuts In stock — Jouenns cordiformls, $12.25 per 100 lbs. — Juy-lans regla, $12.25 per 100 lbs.— Sold in quantities of not less than 50 lbs.

SUZUKI & IIOA, 11 Broadway, NEW YORK.

PANSIES IN BLOOM

$2.50 per 100. .:. $25.00 per 1000.

S. MUIR.

3530 MICHIGAN AVE., - CHICAGO.

Florists' Stock for Bedding

Alternauthera. Colens, Geraniums, Plansies, Daisies, Verbenas, Fuchsias, Salvia, etc., etc. Write for prices. Plorists when in Muwaukee are in-vited to look over our slock.

ARCHIE MIDDLEMASS. 1019 Forest Home Ave., MILWAUKEE, WIS.

Peacock's 36 First Prizes out of 39 entries in 1886 and 1897.

Prize Winning Dahlias

Send for 1808 illustrated wholesale enta-ogne before placing orders elsewhere.

W. P. PEACOCK, - Atco, N. J.

...MARIE LOUISE VIOLETS... Itooted Runners 2.00 per 1000 No disease in my houses Cash with order.

JOSEPH MARKLE, - Rhinebeck, N. Y.

Helpful Reminders.

At this time, being busy waiting on customers, you are apt to be so economical as to employ no help and neglect stock which you will need later on. Your chrysantheniums in 3-inch pots may be suffering for lack of root room and nutri-Be careful in repotting to get your broken pots for drainage curved side up. I find many put them in because others do and appear to exercise no judgment about securing perfect drainage. Hoya carnosa, the old-fashioned wax plant, is always pleasing, and this is a good time to make two or three layers for next season's sales. You never want a large stock, but cannot afford to be without a few, so cut off a few leaves and bury the stems in a small pot of light soil in a moderately warm situation.

Many plants requiring a shift that you cannot give promptly are benefited by putting a little sheep manure on the surface of their pots. A great number of plants can be gone over in an hour and many may be saved in this way.

All geraniums should have their last shift before now. No cuttings should be taken from plants you wish to sell. Don't crowd. Plants of Lilium lancifolium and L. auratum that were potted in February should be brought to light now. If you have none, they can still be had, but will be a trifle later. A few clumps of eulalia or Arundo Donax should be started to cut with the lily flowers as there is nothing like choice grass foliage to help out lilies and gladiolus. Give a few teet of bench room to pink and white asters if you can, as a small lot always comes in well for early erop. Smilax seed should be sown now for July or August planting. A second batch of Asparagus tenuissimus plumosus, A. Sprengerii and Grevillea robusta should be sown now, as it is stock which you will always be using and you must keep a few batches growing on.

You are having inquiry about clematis for outside planting now and perhaps customers complain of the number they have planted and lost. You cannot afford to let such a state of affairs exist with a customer. Take ten minutes to explain that the trouble is that they set their elematis at the side of a house where it gets little or no rain but gets the natural amount of sun besides that which is reflected from the wall. Probably they are on top of a lot of rubbish, brick-bats and lime filled in when the house was built. Give the dissatisfied customer a plant and tell him to place it according to directions and if satisfied with results by September to come in and pay for it.

Tell your customer to dig a trench four feet out from the wall; have it one foot wide and three feet deep; put tile or board spout in the trench at end furthest from wall; put in one foot of curf with some old manure; then fill up with loam; plant the root as usual next to the house; fill in the trench quite full, keep water running in the spout or tile at the end of the trench all the time you are filling but never wet the surface; when the earth becomes dry again, pour in more water in the same way; it will take at least a half barrel to do it thoroughly. Have a good wire trellis put up, and by fall you will find that the roots have extended as far as the trench was dug away from the building and quite as deep, so that the plant will not suffer with dry heat or lack of moisture. You will soon see the result of this care as your customer will be de-lighted and will help to advertise you. When you have a customer who is annoved by a neighbor's window and wishes it could be screened without a fence, set out a small Lombardy poplar; at its base plant a bitter sweet vine and Clematis paniculata. Feed well and the window will be hidden by a mass of vines in two seasons.

Pæonies outside should be cleaned, soil loosened and a top dressing given them at once. The same is true of candidum C. B. W.

Catalogues Received.

Robert Craig & Son, Philadelphia, Pa., Hancock & Son, Prinadelpina, Pa., plants; Geo. Hancock & Son, Grand Haven, Mich., rooted cuttings; James Galen, Bethesda, Pa., plants, shrubs and seeds; Pierce, Butler & Pierce Mfg. Co., Syracuse, N. V., heaters; H. Cannell & Sons, Kent, England, plants; Hærens Brothers, Somergem, near Ghent, Belgigm, allerted gium, plants.

Genoa Junction, Ill.—Adam Berger is now in charge of Frank Buell's gardens, Mr. Buell having assumed a position in the leading greenhouses at Rockford.

YONKERS, N. Y.-J. R. Paul formerly superintendent of the Stokes estate at Lenox, Mass., will take charge of M. B. Parr's place here on May 1.

WILMINGTON, DEL.—The greenhouses and nurseries of De Vocht & De Wilde, in South Wilmington, have been seized by the sheriff, on a claim for $5,000, held by various persons.

N. Dames

Vanderhorst seesese & Dames...

BULB GROWERS

Lisse and Heemstede, Holland.

is on his round trip through the United States. To spare time, we beg to send all letters and communications up to May 15, care of

Knauth Nachod & Kuhne, 13 William St., New York.

Give us the list of your wants and we will send you our lowest quotations for real good stuff. Mention American Floriat.

BAPTIST ANNIVERSARIES

Rochester, N. Y., May 16-24, 1898.

THE NICKEL PLATE ROAD is authorized to sell tickets to Rochester, N. Y. and return, at one fare and one-third for the round trip, on certificate plan, account of above meeting. Tickets good on any of our through express trains leaving Chicago daily from Van Buren Street Passenger Station at 10 35 A. M., 2.55 P. M., and 10:15 P. M. Vestibuled sleeping cars and nusurpassed dining car service. You will save time and money by patronizing the Nickel Plate Road. For further information address J. Y. CALABAN, Gen'l Agt., 111 Adams St. or 'phone Main 3389.-(16)

For Insurance against damage by hail, Address

JOHN G. ESLER. Sec'v, F H. A., Saddle River. N. J

THIS IMPRINT ON AN ENCRAVING

CHICAGO

IS A CUARANTEE OF SATISFACTORY
QUALITY....

Manz makes illustrations for this paper.

GEO. E. COLE & CO. Blank Book Makers. Stationers and Printers

86 and 88 Dearborn Street. CHICAGO.

THE Regan Printing House NURSERY SEED FLORISTS

87-91 Plymouth Place, ***CHICAGO***

A LL Nurserymen, Seedsmen and Florists wishing to do business with Europe should send

"Horticultural Advertiser"

This is Ihe British Trade Paper, being read weekly by all Horticultural traders; it is also taken by over 1000 of the best Continental houses. Address EDITORS OF THE "H. A."

Chilwell Nurseries. - Notts, England.

...THE...

"Lyon=Horticole"

is an interesting review of French horticulture. Issued semi-monthly. 20 8-vo. pages illustrated. Subscriptions to the United States. 1 year. $2.00, 6 months, $1.00. Address

DIRECTEUR LYON-HORTICOLE, Lyon-Villeurbanne, France.

FLORISTS' MUTUAL

INSURANCE ASS'N

Application Blanks and Prospectus Ready.... Write now. Delays are dangerous.

W. J. VESEY, Sec'y, - Ft. Wayne, Ind.

THE NATIONAL

Florists Board of Trade

C. S. LODER, Sec'y, 271 Broadway, New York.

THE WABASH R. R. COMPANY

The Short and Quick Line between the

The Short and Quick Line between the East and West connecting Buffalo, Detroit and Toledo with Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

The Wabash is the Only Line running sleeping cars and chair cars (free) between Buffalo and St. Louis and Kausas City.

Through sleeping cars between New York and Boston and St. Louis and Chicago run everyday.

For further information apply to the nearest Railroad Ticket Agent, or to

H. B. McCLELLAN, G. E. A.,

387 Broadway, New York City,

J. D. McBEATH, N. E. P. A., 5 State Street, Boston, Mass.

C. S. CRANE, G.n. Pass. & Tkt. Act., St. Louis, M

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

JEROME B RICE, Pres: E B CLARK, lst Vice Pr s - F WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Secy and Ireas

Cincago,-Visitors: F. Barteldes; R. Cinicago, Historis, F., Barteloes, R., Nicholson, manager Texas Seed & Floral Company, Dallas, Tex.; W. W. Tracy, Detroit, Mich.; A. J. Brown, Grand Detroit, Mich. Rapids, Mich.

BEAN contracts are now being made with farmers in the bean growing districts with difficulty, by reason of the sharp advance in price of Navy beans under the war excitement; farmers are holding off in view of making the common field crops more profitable.

California reports under recent date only continue to confirm what we have already noted in these columns concerning the drought, and continued poor outlook for 1898 crops there. Some varieties of sweet peas will probably be very short, as well as some kinds of onions.

Minneapolis.—Business in the mail seed trade has shown an upward tendency for the past week or ten days with scarcely a warble from blue jay and robin red-breast, harbingers of early spring, which is soothing medicine to the nervous mail seedsman. We, in the Northwest, still hope for a reasonable total spring business with profit enough to at least take a trip to St. Paul this summer to help Brother May clip coupons and spend his surplus profit. From present reports he appears to be the only occupant of the front seat of the band wagon. Latest news from the front this, Monday, morning, April 25: First two mails show 25% increase over Monday, April 18 and 11. Let us take courage, boys, but not "holler" until we are out of the woods. This reminds me that our mutual friend, Burpee, some-times takes to the woods when business has had a downward tendency, and I wonder if such is the case with him now. S. Y. H.

Steam Heated Hotbeds.

All the directions for heating hotbeds by steam which the writer has seen state positively that an air space must be left around the pipes, and necessitate somewhat expensive construction. The writer has operated two 100-foot hotheds through several seasons in a much simpler way and to his entire satisfac-

Three trenches are dug, 2 feet apart and s inches deep, of course carefully graded. In these are laid three runs of 1inch pipes, it to be used more than one season the pipe should be galvanized and arranged so as to be disconnected and carefully drained in the fall when not in ase. The trenches are then filled up and the soil carefully tamped into them. Ordinary both dtrames of 112 incluboards 12 melers of course bettern, 6 teet wide and set on the ground, over the pipes, so that the outer pipes will be 1 foot inside the edge of the frames. The frames are banked up outside with litter, or even soil, the planting soil or plunging mat eral is put in the frames, the sashes put in and steam turned on. In a few hours the led is ready for the plants

When the thermometers indicate a proper soil to operature steam is shut off and the beds will run for a number of hours. It would be we'll for the beginner to run the beds a couple of days, turning the steam on and off as the temperature changes, and noting the time which it takes to heat up the soil and the length of time the bed will go without steam. After this information is obtained there is very little trouble-much less than one would suppose. Sufficient water must be used so that the beds do not be be-come dry underneath. Of course the man who occasionally "forgets all about can not be trusted to handle such beds and a night fireman is a necessity.

TENT CATERPILLARS are reported by Mr. Murhland, of the New Hampshire Agricultural Experiment Station, as readily attacking the foliage of roses. Spraying with Paris green is recommendate. mended.

BROCKTON, MASS.—On Tuesday evening last Mr. John Farquhar delivered his lecture upon "Bulb Growing in Holland and Plant Life in Jamaica," before the Brockton Florists' Club. A very large audience was in attendance and enjoyed the lecture thoroughly.

FAIRFIELD, ME -The Fairfield Floral Company is having trouble with the postal authorities despite the fact that when an inspector recently examined the firm's methods he stated that he found them legitimate. The case has been taken to the United States court at Portland.

Grafting Wax

Trowbridge's Celebrated Grafting Wax, the genuine article, 1 lb. bars at 19c; ½ lb. bars at 20c; ½ lb. bars at 20c; per pound. Rebutes: 10 lb. lots, 5 per cent; 50 lb. lots, 15 per cent; 100 lb. lots, 20 per cent. Address all orders and correspondence to Jumper and Walnut Streets. Philadelphia. Pa.

G. C. Watson.

BURPEE'S SEEDS PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Price List for Florists and Market Cardeners

Mention American Florist.

THE ALBERT DICKINSON CO.

GRASS SEEDS

Parks, Tennis Courts, Lawns, &c. In fancy I and 2 pound packages and butk.

SPECIAL PRICES TO THE TRADE

CHICAGO, ILL.

BEST OF ALL<sup>33</sup> TOMATO
(FOR FORCING)
"ENGLISH<sup>33</sup> MELONS
(FOR FORCING)

FLOWER SEEDS FOR FLORISTS
Catalogues on application.

WEEBER & DON, Seed Merchants and Growers, 114 Chambers St., NEW YORK, N. Y.

August Rölker & Sons, Spring Bulbs. Florists' Supplies, 3E

ITPORT ORDERS booked now for forcing Burbs, Azaleas, Lily of the Valley, etc., for fall delivery; send for terms to

52 Dey Street, - NEW YORK.

ennananananananananananananana

300 Kilo. Musa Ensete, New crop. per 1000 seeds, $2.50; 10,000 seeds, $18.00.

100 Kilo. Sweet Pea, Eckford Mixture, per kilo, 20c; per 100 kilo, $12 00.

10 Kilo, Coix Lachryma,

( Job's Tears ) per kilo, 40c; 10 kilo, for $12 00. 10 Kilo. Stocks White Nice,

Per 100 gramm, 40c; per kilo., $3 00; 10 kilo. for $25.00.

LETELLIER & FILS, CAEN, Calvados, FRANCE.

CLUCAS & BODDINGTON CO.

Importers and Exporters of

Seeds, Bulbs & Plants, 501 TO 503 W. 13TH ST.,

NEW YORK CITY. Send for quotations on all Florists' Bulb Stock.

SEEDS LAWN GRASS $12.00 per 100 lbs.

J. CHAS. McCULLOUGH, SEEDSMAN, BECLEANER AND JOBBER GRASS SEEDS.

North-East Second & Walnut Sts., Cincinnati, O. Send for Illustrated Catalogues.

Seed Stores and Flower Stores

Can profitably handle our Packages of Plant Food. Attractive, take little shelf room. Valuable 🤜 booklet lree. Good profits.

The WALKER FERTILIZER CO.

****************

Clifton Springs. IN. Y. HUNEY

Milwaukee.

NEED OF AN HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY TO SEE THAT THE PUBLIC GETS ITS MONEY'S WORTH IN THE PARKS.—NOTES.

The need of a strong horticultural society here is more apparent than ever since the daily papers have made the state of affairs regarding the management of public parks quite prominent. Since Mr. Pettigrew resigned as superintendent of the public parks, Milwaukee has been without an official to exercise professional supervision over the annual expenditure of $60,000. One of the commissioners who is credited with having caused Mr. Pettigrew's resignation has taken upon himself the duties, and, although the superintendent's salary has been saved, it is claimed to be 'penny wise and pound foolish.' People of ex-perience see how both time and money are wasted, and it appears that one commissioner has come to realize the situa-tion. This branch of our municipal affairs should have the supervision of a horticultural society to back up men of worth and keep the public posted, much the same as the School Alliance does in a number of cities. A $20,000 plant of conservatories is soon to be erected in Mitchell Park.

Frank Dilger has a sport of Daybreak carnation a trifle darker than is usual from which he will propagate and improve his crop for next season.

It is quite safe to say that Ben. Greg ory's house of Daybreaks and Blanche Ferry sweet peas is as perfect a lot of pink as has been seen in this locality.

It appears to be fashionable now-a-days to offer one's place for sale on "account of failing health." One grower in this state who did this had calculated on forming a partnership and taking up the Blue Mound establishment to improve his health. As the opportunity was seized by another party he will re-cuperate where he is.

Narcissus princeps, outside grown, and trailing arbutus are in market, and amaryllis, iris and Bride gladiolus are shown in windows.

Chas. Baumgarden has opened a stand Chas. Baumgaruen nas open with Gregg Bros., on Van Buren street. C. B. W.

Summer Treatment of Azaleas.

ED. AM. FLORIST:- l have had some azaleas for two years, and now wish to know what to do with them. Can you kindly advise me as to their treatment?

The proper time to pot azaleas is after they are through flowering. Having accomplished their work in the show Having houses, they are one by one put under the bench-but not left to dry, which would mean the loss of the plants-until a space in the hotbed is made vacant by the removal of bedding plants to their sta-tionary quarters. They are now potted, using a mixture of peat (if on hand), leaf mold, decomposed sod and sand in almost equal parts. In potting we are not afraid of packing the soil solid with a piece of wood in the shape of a table knife and about one-fourth of an inch thick. This will prevent the water from draining through the newly added soil without first soaking the solid ball of fibrous roots. A liberal amount of drainage material should be placed in the bottom of the pots. After potting the plants are plunged to the rim in the hotbed and a shade, consisting of laths about one inch apart, placed over them. This shade is put on a frame nailed to the hotbed but can be elevated to any desirable height. We use the hotbeds because the plants are here more easily attended to than in some isolated place, otherwise the north side of a house would be just as desirable. Azaleas need plenty of water during the growing season, and I think this is the main point if success is desired. Once dry they will never recuperate. As soon as cool weather sets in they are placed in a greenhouse with a temperature of from 45° to 50° until they commence to bloom, when they are removed to the show houses. obtain a few plants at an earlier season, they should be gradually inured to a temperature of from 60° to 65°. The same treatment is given to rhododendrons and camellias. J. JENSEN.

HINCKLEY, ILL.-Mrs. Partridge, being about to remove to Chicago, has leased her greenhouse to John Gustalson

A New Asparagus.

In addition to the well-known nanus, another form of Asparagus plumosus has now appeared, and is grown by Mr. T. Jannoch, at Dershingham, near King's Lynn. The new variety, called cristatus, has deep green branches, somewhat more densely clothed with verticillate clusters than the ordinary A. plumosus. The chief charm of the plant, however, consists in the main rachis being several times divided toward the tip, then producing a beautiful cresting after the style of the crested varieties of l'teris serrulata cristata, only, of course, much finer and more graceful in appearance. In addition to the crested peculiarity it may be added that the plant is not a climber, so that if grown in pots it should prove very attractive and a great acquisition.-The Garden.

H. BAYERSDORFER & CO.

Cycas Wreaths, Moss Wreaths, Ferneries and Jardinieres, Wheat Sheaves and Immortelles.

New Catalogue of all FLORISTS' SUPPLIES on application. (25° For the trade only.

H. BAYERSDORFER & CO.

50. 52. 54 and 56 N. 4th St , PHILADELPHIA, PA.

SMALL GREEN

For use with.... VIOLETS

Work up beauutiflly. Stiff, wiry stems. Are all the rage.

Box of 5000, $5.00. Less quantity at $1.25 per 1000. ....ADDRESS...

HARLAN P. KELSEY,

1150 Tremont Bldg., - BOSTON, MASS.

Galax Leaves, Cut Palm Leaves, bouquet green, Moss (sphagnum and green), Laurel Roping, Xmas Trees; everything in the green line

H. E. HARTFORD'S, 18 Chapman Place, BOSTON.

M. Rice & Co.

Exclusive Importers and Manufacturers of....

Florists' Supplies

25 N. 4th Street. -PHILADELPHIA, PA.

BRILLIANT GREEN AND BRONZE

GALAX LEAVES.

For Decorating and all Florists' Designs. CHAS. H. RICKSECKER, Linville, Mitchell Co., N. C.

Do the American Florist a small favor. Mention the paper when writing adver-

Surplus Stock

Can be disposed of by advertising. Try it.....

This Size "Ad." Costs Only $1.00.

AMERICAN FLORIST Co., CHICAGO,

Boston Florist Letter Co.

This wooden box nicely stained and varnished, 18x30x12 made in two sections, one for each size letter, given away with first order of 500 letters.

Block Letters 1 1/2 or 2-inch size, per 100, $5.00. Sorbit Letters $4 - 1 aste or with each letter or word. Used by leading florists everywhere and for sale by all wholesale florists and supply dealers.

N. F. McCARTHY, Treas. and Manager, 84 Pawley St., BOSTON, MASS.

Have You Seen Our Agent? A Complete

Catalogue for Florists. Send for One.

ELLIS & POLLWORTH MILWAUKEE, WIS.

John Conley & Son,

Manufacturers of

TIN FOIL

2 AND 4 DOMINICK STREET,

__New York.

Forcing

WE have closed contracts with some of the best and most reliable producers for our stock of Roman Hyacinths, Dutch Hyacinths, Tulips, Von Sion Narcissus, Paper White Narcissus, Valley, Harrisii, Longiflorum, Azaleas, and all leading import forcing stock. Give us a list of your wants so that we may be able to quote you on same.

DON'T FORGET THAT WE ARE STRICTLY IN IT ON SUPPLIES OF ALL KINDS, SEEDS, BULBS AND CUT FLOWERS......

VAUGHAN, McKELLAR & WINTERSON, 45-47-49 Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO.

BEST QUALITY

Holland Bulhs

LOWEST PRICES

JAC. WEZELENBURG

SASSENHEIM, HOLLAND.

Address up to May 1 in care of KNAUTH, NACHOD & KUHNE, 13 William St., NEW YORK. 🧀 🚜

NNAS NEW AMERICAN Finest in the World Our Novelties for 1898

|                                          | Per   | 100  |
|------------------------------------------|-------|------|
| OUKE OF MARLBORO, darkest crimson        | $30  | (R)  |
| OUCHESS OF MARLBORO, only pure pink      | . 30  | 00   |
| TOPAZ, only absolutely large pure yellow | 50    | 00   |
| LORRAINE, pink, edged white, fine        | 30    | 00   |
| MAIOENS BLUSH, delicate flesh color,     | 15    |      |
| GOLOEN PEARL, yellow, nearly double      | . 20  | (00) |
| CUB4 Buest and largest gilt edged        | . 40  | (R)  |
| GLORIOSA, very dwarf. March delivery     |       |      |
| PHILADELPHIA, glowing erimson            | 15    | 00   |
| CHAMPION, largest, glowing searlet $5   | 00 ea | u-h  |
| KLONDIKE, only large pure orange 32      | 50    |      |
| Send for complete list of 50 novelties a | and : | 200  |
| standard varieties at lowest prices.     |       |      |
|                                          |       |      |

OUR CANNAS IN FRANCE.

OUR CANNAG II.

To Mearra & Blanc & Co.
Your new cannas of last year gave me much satisfaction. Please seed me a complete set of your nevelties for lists in soon as ready. Also 12
Glant Crimson, etc. Signed CH MOLIN,
Lyon France, Jan 3, 188

ARAGUS SPRENGERI

Fine plants in winch pots, ready for winch $5 per 12

AMARYLLIS....
Velteh's Hybrids $1 per 12: Equestra, $1 per 10); Formoslashna $5 per 10).

ALLAS

Spotted Lenf. El: Black, El: Yellow, Ell; all per litt. Golden, & each.

DAHLIAS

all prizes out of 22 at the last Dahila exhibition. First prize Dahila, Gatt. LDG E. El5 per 100 send for special list.

A. BLANC & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

IMPORTERS

JAPANESE PLANTS.

BULBS, ETC.

At owest prices "unal orders filled from experimental garden tolumba Road Doublester, Mass Wholesale catalogue is a free to the trade

JAPANESE NURSERY.

Office: 272 Boylston St.,

BOSTOS, MASS

BULB GROWERS

SASSENHEIM. - HOLLAND.

QEFORE ordering Dutch Bulbs ask D our quotations. Our stock enables us to make good offers. Address letters until May 15th to WARNAAR.

Care KNAUTH, NACHOD & KUHNE,

13 William St., NEW YORK.

SASSENHEIM. HOLLAND

HYACINTHS, TULIPS, CROCUS, DAFFODILS, AND OTHER BULBS. ALSO SHRUBS AND PLANTS.

THLY are strictly first-class and cheap. Special quotations for Wholesale Importers... Address all correspondence until May 15th to.......

H. VAN ZONNEVELD care J. W. Hampton, Jr. & Co., 41 Broadway, New York

When writing mention American Florist,

TO IMPORTERS!

HAERENS BROS. From SOMERGEM near Ghent, Belgium

STITIAL Growers and Exporters of Va-lens Patins Aronearins and other decorative plants take pleasure to inform you that their Mir Avia, Havia Se is now on his animal visit through the United States. The stock he offers is numerise of hest quality andral most reasonable prices their Sew Araboas will be the layorites of the luture. Write for price list and special offer until May 10th.

AUGUST HALRENS (ARI O) .... (O) 66 Heaver St., New York City.

Beerhorst... & Van Leeuwen GROWERS SASSENHEIM, HOLLAND.

Dutch Bulbs

AND PLANTS FOR AMERICAN MARKET. Ask for Wholesale Prices,

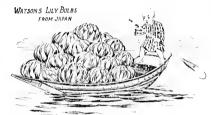

We will stay in America until May 14th. Please address letters to

L. Van Leeuwen,

CARL COLUNNADI HOSTE,

726 Broadway, NEW YORK, N. Y.

LONGIFLORIUM DURF STOCK SOUND AND WELL RIPENED.

On account of the scarcity of the larger sizes of JAPAN LONGI-FLORUM and the large demand for same this season I have to request that orders be booked EARLY to avoid disappointment. I offer 3 sizes namely: 5-7, 7-9 and 9-10 inches, but can only accept orders for the larger sizes when fair proportion of the smaller is taken. Delivery Sept. 25 to Oct. 15, 1898. Would be pleased also to get your general order for other Forcing Bulbs and Roots at same time. Address all orders and correspondence to Juniper and Walnut Sts., Philadelphia.

G. C. WATSON.

For FLORISTS... For SEEDSMEN.

VAN ZANTEN BROTHERS, HILLEGOM, HOLLAND.

JAPAN LILIUM LONGIFLORUM

Our "Easter" Brand has a reputation. This stock will be none too pleuty this year and we believe prices will advance before time of delivery. We can make favorable rates NOW. A card stating probable quantity required will start quotations.

SURPLUS BARGAINS

A limited surplus of the following bulbs. We make prices low to close out. Quality guarauteed.....

Tuberoses...

|                                                   | Per 1000       |
|---------------------------------------------------|----------------|
| Dwarf Excelsior Pearl, strictly first size $ .75 | $ 7.50 |
| 3000 for $19.00.Second size                  | 3.50           |
| Tall Double, first size                           | 6.5010 00  |

Speciosum Lilies...

|           |        |    | Per 100 | Per IOO |
|-----------|--------|----|---------|---------|
| Album     | 7-9 ir | ch | 84.50   | 840,00  |
| 14        | 9 11   |    | 5 50    | 50,00   |
| 44        | 11-13  |    | 7 50    | 70,00   |
| Rubrum    | 6.8    |    | 2.25    | 20.00   |
| 6.6       | 7.9    |    | 3 f0    | SO 00   |
| Melpomeue | 7.9    |    | 3.50    | 30,00   |

SPOTTED LEAF CALLA

Per 100, $2.50 Per 1000, $20.00.

C. ESCULENTUM

|   |   |   |     |     |     |     |    |     |     |    |    |    |     |   |  |      |  |   | 11  | W.    |  |
|---|---|---|-----|-----|-----|-----|----|-----|-----|----|----|----|-----|---|--|------|--|---|-----|-------|--|
| â | t | 0 | î   | inc | hes | ln  | ci | rei | ım  | fe | re | n  | ce. |   |  |      |  | 8 | 3   | $r_0$ |  |
| 7 | t | 0 | 9   |     |     |     |    |     |     | •• |    |    |     |   |  |  |  |   | 1   | 50    |  |
| 9 | 1 | 0 | 12  |     |     |     |    |     |     | •• |    |    |     | , |  |  |  |   | 8.  | .00   |  |
| 1 | , | l | nel | bes | апо | i u | ιp |     | , . |    |    | ٠. |     |   |  |      |  |   | 1.5 | .00   |  |

BEGONIAS, GLOXINIAS, Etc.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE.

CHICAGO: 84-86 RANDOLPH ST.

NEW YORK: 14 BARCLAY ST.

Headquarters for FANCY BULB STOCK AT REASONABLE PRICES.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY'S DIRECTOR

AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY, 324 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO.

Coming Exhibitions.

We are in receipt of the advance pre-mium list of the twelfth annual chrysananthemum show and floral festival of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, to be held at Tomlinson's Hall, Indianapolis, Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. S. 9, 10, 11 and 12, 1898. Secretary, R. A. McKeand, Garfield Park. Indianapolis, Ind.

The preliminary list of the premiums to be offered at the eighth annual chrysanthemum exhibition of the St. Louis Florists' Club has come to hand. The exhibition will be held at the Coliseum November 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18, 1898. Secretary, Emil Schray, 4101 Pennsylvania avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

From Frankfort-on-Main we have reecived the programme of the great rose show to be held there from June to September of the present year.

Syracuse, N. Y.—The Central New York Horticultural Society gave its fourth complimentary lecture to its members and friends on the evening of April The address was by Edward A. Powell, who discussed "Plant Life in the Park, the Garden and the Home.

SACO, ME.-Alonzo Hill has gone into insolvency. A meeting of creditors to prove claims and choose an assiguee will be held at the Probate Court Room in Alfred on May 4.

ROBT. CRAIG & SON ROSES, Palms and Novelties in Decorative Plant

Market and 49th Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Rose Hill Nurseries

LARGEST Growers of Palms, Orchids, Stove and Greenhouse plants, Ferns, Arancarias, Pandanus, ...

SIEBRECHT & SON, New Rochelle, N. Y. New York Office, 409 Fifth Ave.

Just Arrived

IN FINE CONDITION

Odontoglossum Crispum, Miltonia Roczlii, Cattleya Chocoensis, Cattley Labiata, Oncidium Varicosum Rogersii.

LAGER & HURRELL, Summit, N. J.

Begonias

The most complete collection in America. Nice 21g in, stock 85,00 per limidred.

G. R. GAUSE & CO. RICHMOND.

Kentia Palm Seeds

Fresh Seeds of Kentia Behnorcana and Forsteriana by the ease of 5000 Seeds received direct from Australia. Price $17.50 net eash, F. O. B. New York. Prices for large quantities on application.....

Australian Palm Seed Co.

ROOM 52. 🚜 🧀

90 Nassau Street, NEW YORK.

Asparagus Sprengerii

For another week (before potting up) we offer small dormant 1-year roots a $5.00 per 100. These bulbs will quickly make strong 2½-inch pot plants.

Ficus Elastica, true, large leaf variety, 6-inc<sup>5</sup> bots, 20 mehes high @ 50c each.

Crimson Rambler Roses, extra line, bushy plants, in 4-inch pots, will soon bloom, per dozen, $2.00; per 100, $15.00.

Cycas Revoluta, dormant stems, size from 3 to 10 lb. @ 15c per lb.

a 15e per lb.
 Clothilde Soupert, the great pot rose, our stock is A No. 1, 2-in. (a $5.00; 2<sup>1</sup>e-in. (a $4.00; 3-in. (a $6.00; 3<sup>1</sup>e-in. (a $9.00 per 100.
 Dahlias, 2<sup>1</sup>e-in. pot plants, in named varieties, per 100, $5.00.

Pelargoniums Mme. Thibaut, Mrs. Robt. Sandiford, Edward Perkins and Dorothy, strong 3-inch stock, per doz., $1.50; per 100, $12.00.

For Cannas, Carnations, Chrysanthemums, send us your list; we have all kinds.

H. P. Roses, dormant, 2-year, extra line stock of $12.00 per 100.

Clematis, Ampelopsis Veitchi, Hollyhocks, Paonies, Hydrangeas P. G., etc. we have in large quantities; write us for prices.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

CHICACO: Creenhouses: Greennouses: CHICACO: Western Springs, III. 84-86 Randolph St.

Crotons...

___IN VARIETY

Rothschild, Hawker: Interruptum, Evansianum, Rubra Lineata, Andreanum, Aurea Machalium and others, santable for bedding. Fine plants in 3-inch pots, $2.00 per doz. New and rare varieties, 50 cents each.

Aurea Machalium, extra fine plants in 4-in, pots $250 per doz. $15 per 100; 3-inch pot plants $20 per doz.; $12 per 100, (humb pots, $1 per doz.; $6 per 100.

Edwin Lonsdale,

Money Order Office Station II Phila

Horist.

CHESTNUL BIRT.

PHILA., PA.

2.00

3.50

FOR HERE WE ARE 4 Weeks FIRST COME, FIRST SERVED.

FUCHSIAS in assorted varieties, double single, fin HIBISCUS in assortment, single and double,

JESSAMINE Grandlitora, To the Grandlitora, The the Grandlitora, The the Grandlitora, The the Grandlitora, Th Rhynchospermum Jasminoides, 2 ln

SMILAX, good strong plants 2 in 2000 MOON VINES, strong plants, 24n-

NANZ & NEUNER. LOUISVILLE, KY.

J. L. SCHILLER

NEW YORK CITY. 404 E. 34th St., Please mention American Florist.

STRONG STOCK TO POT ON NOW. JOHN H. LEY,

GOOD HOPE, - WASHINGTON, D. C.

D HOPE, - WASHINGTON Offers clean well rooted plants as below:
Per 100, $25,00

DOUBLE PETUNIA, Dreer's strain, strong......$2.50

RUSSELIA JUNCEA, 21/2-in., strong 3.00 AMPELOPSIS VEITCHII, 2½-in.....

PALM Latania Borbonica, 23/-inch,

3 to 4 leaves, per 1000, $40.00, 4.50

THOS. A. McBETH, Springfield, O.

CAN YOU USE ANY

Latania Borbonica in 1-in pots at Kentia Belmoricana in 1-in, pots at 30 cents each. Cocos Weddeliana in 3 in, pots at 20 cents each. Vincas, fine plants. 8 cents each. 8 cents each.

8 cents each.

THE F. R. WILLIAMS CO. WHOLESALE FLORISTS AND SHIPPERS OF CUT FLOWERS

60 Huron Street, -CLEVELAND, O.

ARTHUR DE MEYER, Nurseryman, Mont St. Amand, Chent, Belgium.

Spring and Fall Heating for Roses.

C. R., Park Ridge, Ill., asks for information that will enable him to put in a small steam plant to be used spring and fall principally, not so much for the purpose of heating, I take it, as to be able to utilize the pipes to keep down mildew, which he has difficulty in doing at the present. If to be used only for raising fumes from the sulphur, and to give a little heat in very mild weather, in place of keeping fires in the hot water boilers, two 114-inch pipes to each house would serve the purpose. Place them under the benches, one on each side of the house, convenient to the walks. If conditions permit have a continuous fall in the pipe from the steam main to the place where it connects with the drip. Should the grade of the house render this impracticable the flow pipe may be laid on the up-grade, and the return on the down. In that case, however, the flow must have a connection at its lowest point with the main return pipe to drain off all condensation. It is understood, of course, that the boiler is located at the lowest end of the greenhouses.

For a plant of eight houses, each 18x 100 feet, the main steam pipe need not be larger at the boiler than 212 inches, and should be gradually reduced as it nears the end of the range. It is advisable to have the main carried overhead in the shed, well up above the greenhouse doors and to cover it with asbestos or some other material to prevent unnecessary waste of heat and, of course, condensation. The main drip pipe may be 2-inch, and should be laid below the water line of the boiler.

A boiler of twenty-five horse-power would furnish sufficient steam for the range in question, though it is always economy to have at the start a surplus of heating capacity, and not risk a shortage. A horizontal, return tubular boiler is a better style for greenhouse heating than an upright boiler, as with it less heat goes to waste, and it is more desirable in other ways. To get the water back easily by gravity the boiler must be set low. If possible, the water line should be five feet below the lowest level of cir-ROBT. SIMPSON. culating pipes.

Ix a recent bulletin of the l'urduc University Agricultural Experiment Station on the indoor culture of lettuce Prof. Arthur states that no good effects were obtained by adding chemical fertilizers, such as muriate of potash, sulphate of ammonia and dissolved bone black, to a soil already made rich with an abundance of stable manure. It should be remembered, however, that lettuce is a quick growing crop, occupying the soil but a short time and results from trials with lettuce may not be comparable, in many respects, with florists' crops occupying the benches for a much longer time.

TACOMA, WASH.-J. E. Baker, State Commissioner of Horticulture, has notified the Department of Agriculture at Washington of discrimination against nursery stock consigned from the United States to British Columbia. No complaints of infection have been made, but all recent shipments have been turned back. Mr. Baker asks that steps be at once taken to remove the prohibition and recommends that nurserymen withhold for a timeshipment of orders from British Columbia.

It is good business policy to mention the American Florist when you write to our advertisers

60.000 OSES FORCING ROSES

PRIME STOCK ONLY.

The Bride....

| BridesmaidMme. Chatteneaux                                                                                                         | } $2.50 per | 100; | ₹20       | per | 1000 |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------|------|------------------|-----|------|
| Perle des Jardins Meteor La France Duchess of Albany Kaiserin Victoria Niphetos Papa Gontier Climbing Perle Clothilde Soupert Mossella | $3.50 per   | 100; | $ 30 | per | 1000 |

American Beanties.... $5.00 per 100; $45 per 1000

Send for our wholesale price list of all home-grown stock. Palms, Ferns, Decorative Plants, Etc. . . .

J. B. HEISS,

The Exotic Nurseries.

115 So. Main St., DAYTON, OHIO.

NEW FORCING ROSE MRS. ROBT. GARRETT

Hybrid tea, rich soft pink, bads very long, flower extra large, delightfully fragrant, rivaling Bridesmaid in color, but larger and much more productive. A sturdy, vigorous grower, a money maker and a triumph of American skill. The best firms in the country are investing in it. It has won numerous prizes and has elicited the most favorable comment from critical judges. Price strong plants from 21/2-inch pots, $25.00 per 100 in lots less than 1000; $225.00 per 1000. Orders booked now, delivery March 15, 1898. Correspondence solicited. Address

H. WEBER & SONS. Oakland. Md.

ROSES OWN ROOTS DORMANT

FIELD GROWN

IN COLD STORAGE IN CHICAGO.

No. 1, 2 to 4 feet, cut back to 2 feet
Yellow Rambler (Aglaia)
Hybrid Perpetuals.
Mosses, Hardy Climbers
and Madam Plantier

These plants are very strong and well shaped. Prices on application. Address

W. F. HEIKES, Manager,

1308-1310 Unity Bldg., - CHICAGO, ILLS.

ROSES..

2-in. per 100 3-in. per 100 5... $5.00 Am. Beauties . . Perle . . . . . . $2.75 Bridesmaid . . . 2.75 4.50 4.50

MAPLEWOOD CUT FLOWER and PLANT CO. PLEASANT HILL, MO.

Memorial Kose

(Rosa Wichuriana)

Strong field-grown plants, $50, $75 and $100 per 1000

SAM'L C. MOON,

MORRISVILLE, Bucks Co., PA.

Roses Per 1(0. Per 1(0. 3-in. 4 in. pots 87 (0) $9.0) Am. Beauties......$5 00 $7.00 Brides..... 2.50 4 00 Bridesmaid..... 2 50 4.00 Perles... 2.50 4.00 Meteors.

Allen & Ockerlund.

114 Winona Ave.,

Station X.

CHICAGO, ILL.

ROSES

METEORS.... BRIDESMAID BRIDE.....

Pots 100 Pots 100 2½ $2.50 3 $3.50

Guaranteed first-class. Stock grown in low temperature

THE E. HIPPARO CO., Youngstown, Ohio.

300,000 YOUNG ROSES 300.000

Ramblers, Climb, Malmaison, Climb, White Pet, Climb. Wootton, Pres. Carnot and 100 other leaders in Teas, H. Teas and Climbers. Send for prices. Moon Vines, $2 50 per 100. Rose Geraniums, $2 50 per 100.

The National Plant Company, Dayton, Ohio.

I have a nice stock for early planting; 3-in.

planting; 3-in, pots, $6.00 per 100; 4-in, pots, $6.00 per 100; 4-in, pots, extra strong, $10.00 per 100; a few 5-in, $13.00 per 100. California Violets, extra large clumps, $5.00 per 100, will divide up into 10 to 15 plants. Austria Cannas, strong plants @ 2c.

W. W. COLES, Kokomo, Ind.

Write for Prices

of Beauties, Meteors, Belle Siebrecht, Perles, Maids and Brides in 2-inch: same varieties and La France and V Kaiserin in 3-inch. Smitax in 2-inch. If samples are wanted send 50c in stamps.

GEO. A. KUHL, - PEKIN, ILL.

FROM 2 I-2 INCH POTS.

Strong, thrifty, well established plants. General price $4.00 per 100. Extra fine lot of Crimson Rambiers.

Jackson & Perkins Co. NEWARK, NEW YORK.

From 5 inch Pots at 3c. From 5 inch Pots at 3c. From 5 inch Pots at 3c. From 6 inch Pots at 3c. From 6 inch Pots at 3c. France. Constitution of the Alps. Louis (Idler, Clothlide Soupert, Julies Margotten, Packed free Clemants—Henry and Miss Bateman, the lessons large white sorts; fine, I and 2-year field-grown plants (10c. Clemants Virginia, sweet scented, small white dower, 2-year, rne, 5c.

W. H. SALTER, Rochester, N Y.

Do You Plant Beauties?

Am. Beauties, 3 inch at $5.00 per 100. Not cullings, but clean, strong, well grown stock and gnaranteed free from all disease.....

A. DONAGHUE, 108 S. 16th Street,

OMAHA, NEB.

FINE PLANTS from 3-inch pots, $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

JOSEPH HEACOCK

Cement Tiles for Benches.

ED. AM. FLORIST:-How would cement tiles do for bench bottoms made in strips 18 inches wide by 3 feet long, with two iron rods running through the center the long way to give them strength? In using such a tile on the bench, it should have three supports, one at each end and one in the center. If more drainage is needed make several holes through the tile when the cement is soft. A tile of this character would be cheap, a barrel of cement making a long strip. It would be necessary to use a frame 18x36 inches inside measurement and two inches deep placed on a board a little wider and longer than the frame. The iron rods should then be placed in position and the frame filled with cement, turning out the tile when the cement sets. I do not think there would be much danger of the cement breaking with the strip of iron through it. Wood with me only lasts from two to three years, and it is not convenient to renew it at all times under roses, etc. Perhaps some one may have tried this and can speak from experience F. G. D. of its merits or demerits.

I have never used cement tiles made as described by "F. G. D." but it seems as if the method could be improved upon. the first place I would not use the iron rods, as they will be likely to weaken rather than strengthen the tiles. Any weight sufficient to break the tiles will bend the rods. If properly made, a tile of the size described will bear any ordinary weight without the rods; in fact. if made of good cement it would answer without a middle support. The latter might do as much harm as good if any of the supports should settle so as to beof line with the others, as the come out tiles would then be as likely to crack as though there was no middle support. My own choice would be to make the tiles square, measuring from eighteen to twenty-four inches on a side, according to the width of the benches. L. R. Taft.

ALBANY, N. Y.-The Court of Claims has awarded Siebrecht & Wadley, of New York city, 85,500 for injury to plants and shrubbery used at the New York state building at the World's Pair The firm asked damages of $17,017.

AURORA, LLL.-W. R. Rees and J. A. Freeman, successful greenhouse owners and good aldermen, were last week reelected to the city council.

NATHAN SMITH & SON

Wholesale Florists

Specialties www.

ADRIAN, MICH.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS CARNATIONS AND VIOLETS.4.4.4

· · · CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED · ·

ROSES, VERBENAS, VIOLETS

200 per 100 130 per 100 10 00 per 100 to form a sea regited a formal
Invariably at these prices.

Cann with Order. F. WALKER & CO.

Box 366, New Albany, Ind.

lora Hill

20,000 at greatly reduced prices. Don't miss planting the best of all whites. &

H. F. Littlefield

WORCESTER, MASS.

BONE FLOUR

PRICE . $1.75 per 100 lbs......$30.00 per ton.

One of many testimonials:

Washington, D. C., April 4, '98. H. F. LITTLEFIELD, Dear Sir—I take pleasure in testifying to the excellence of your done Flour and I feel sure that I am indebted to its purity and responsive qualities for speciality and responsive qualities for speciality and responsive qualities. Jos. R. FREEMAN.

Chrysanthemum Mrs. A. F. Wienold

XXE claim this to be one of the grandest early whites yet sent out. Originated with us W 3 years ago and given a thorough test. It is earlier than Bergmann. Flowers 7 to 11 inches in diameter, is easy to grow; a splendid keeper and above all never shows its center. Except in color it looks like a well grown Golden Wedding. Select stock, 2½-in. pots, 20c each; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

CAL. VIOLETS. No disease. Strong runners. 50s per 1000, $4 per 1000. MCDONALD & STEELE, Crawfordsville, Ind,

Ghrysanthemum

Yellow Sport of JEROME JONES.

It received the highest points and a Certificate of Merit at the Cleveland Chrysanthenium Show. It is in Yellow what Jerome Joses is amongst the White. The very best for late blooming.  $\mathfrak{L}_2$ -in. pot plants, strong,  $\mathfrak{L}_5$ 0 per doz.;  $\mathfrak{L}_5$ 00 per 100. Stock ready April 15th.

E. J. PADDOCK, 295 Erie St., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

CARNATIONS FROM

Kathleen Pantlind, $10 per 100. . Flora Hill, $5 per 100. Beauties, 2 1-2 in., $6 per 100. Carnots, 2 1-2 in., $4 per 100.

HOPP & LEMKE, Paul P. O. E. Grand Rapids, Mich.

ww TO ww

Make Koo

THE MORRIS FLORAL CO., MORRIS, ILL.

REDUCED PRICES

Carnation Cuttings

Taken from our "Prize" Stock.

ALASKA ALBERTINI HELEN KELLER ARMAZINDY DAYBREAK

£3.00 per 100, $15.00 per 1000,

SOUTH PARK FLORAL CO., New Castle, Ind.

New CARNATIONS.

WHITE CLOUD—White.
GOLD NUGGET—Yellow.
NEW YORK (Ward)—Bright cerise pink.
MRS. JAMES DEAN (Ward)—Clear silvery pink.
JOHN YOUNG (Ward)—White.
BON TON (Ward)—Scarlet.
Prices for above varieties: $2.00 per doz., $10.00
per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

We will also have Cerise Queen (Breitmeyer), Argyle (Stollery), Jack Frost (Swayne), Empress (Swayne), Evilon (Witterstaetter), Firefly (Hancock), Psyche (Hill), Panted Lady (Hill), and Mrs. S. A. Northway (Simmons).

All good 1897 novelties and other standard varieties at reasonable prices.

New Chrysanthemums.

MRS. C. H. PEIRCE—Yellow.

35e each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

SNOW QUEEN—White.

50e each, $5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100.

MERRY CHRISTMAS—Late White.

35e each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

Send for Descriptive Price List. Rendy January, 1898,

F. DORNER & SONS CO.

LATAYETTE, IND.

CARNATIONS

STRONG, HEALTHY ROOTED CUTTINGS Ready Feb. 1st and Later

Including Morello, Flora Hill, Daybreak, Wm. Scott, Lazzie McGowan, Ivory, Silver Spray, Emily Pierson. Goldlinch, Eldorado, and others. Send me a list of what you want and get prices before you buy. We also have a fine lot of Carnation and Violet blooms for sale. Write for prices. Address.

CHAS. CHADWICK.

Lock Box II.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH

Altoona, Pa.

A. A. Whithred's experience with his Harrisii is worth recording.
"I planted my Harrisii," he said, "in too batches; 500 for early forcing and 500 for Easter use. Those planted early were given a liberal dose of bone flour with the result that the plants were the poorest looking lot I have had in my place. The second lot, given nothing more than cow manure, came out in fine shape with but very few diseased plants. This experience will certainly be my guide during the coming season."

This is a very simple process, to be sure, and is another proof that at times the most complicated cases require but the simplest of treatment.

Myers Bros. report the best Easter trade they have had for years. In addition to their store and greenhouses, they had a temporary place in the heart of the business center. It was a paying venture.

Mr. Whitbred is building an additional rose house.

NEWPORT, R. I.—Articles of incorporation of the Newport Horticultural Society have been filed at the office of the Secretary of State.

> THE BEST OF THE NEW PINK CARNATIONS

Mrs. Frances Joost

A WINNER EVERYWHERE.

$2.00 per dozen; $10 00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000. Cash with order.

C. BESOLD, Mineola, L. I., N. Y.

FLORA HILL cause there is nothing in sight to at all equal it. It speaks for to at all equal it. It speaks for itself wherever grown. It puts all others in the shade Nothing past or present to equal it. We have four thousand plants exclusively for propagating from; the best stock ever offered. So, 60 per 100; $40.00 per 1000. Our trade list is issued. If you have not received one send for it.

E. G. HILL & CO., Richmond, Ind.

Bread and Butter

Carnations Scott and Rose Queen for Pink; Emily Pierson for Red; Meteor, Crimson; McGowau and Kohinoor for White. No experiment and disappointment growing these caruations. Strong rooted cuttings $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per thousand. Cash with order,

ORDER AT ONCE AND SECURE STOCK

CHRYSANTHEMUMS Rose Owen, J. H. Woodford, Dorothy Devens, G. F. Atkinson, Golden Trophy, T. B. Miss Helen Wright, Belle of Castlewood, Chito, C. W. Ward, Mrs. S. T. Murdock, 75 cts. per dozen; $5.00 per 100. Glory of Pacific, Mad Dean, Mrs. R. Crawford, W. P. Raynor, Modesto, Lenawee, Fride of Castlewood, Bonnaffon, Yory, Ruth Ellis, 50 cts. per dozen; $3.00 per 100. Frank Hardy, T. H. Spanlding, Mrs. O. P. Bassett, The Yellow Fellow, Madeline Pratt, Mrs. C. H. Peirce, Merry Christmas, 36 cts. each; $3 00 per dozen. Snuw Queen. Pennsylvania, 50 cts. each; $5.00 per dozen. W. H. Chadwick, $1.00 each; $6.00 per dozen.

CARNATIONS Juo, Young, Bon Ton, Mrs. Jas. Dean, White Cloud, New York, Empress and Evelina, $2.00 per dozen. Slo.00 per 100: $75.00 per 1000. Lily Dean, C. A. Dana, Mayor Pingree, $5.00 per 100. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $10 per 1000. $10.00 per 1000; $10.00 per 1000; $10.00 per 1000; $10.00 per 1000; $10.00 per 1000. Lily Dean, C. A. Pres, McKinley, Defender, Pres. Cleveland, Tarrytown, 60 cts. each; $5.00 per dozen. Queen Charlotte, Admiral Avellan, Pres, Carnot, Midway, Ami Pichon, Egandale, Chas. Henderson, $2.50 per 100. Eldorado, A. Billard, Burbank, Count de Bonchard, Souv. du Pres, Carnot, Souv. d'Antoine Crozy, Papa, $4 00 per 100.

For full description send for our 1898 wholesale list.

THE GOTTAGE GARDENS, Queens, N. Y.

Jarnation

The Gem of All the ....Variegated Varieties

JOHN N. MAY, Summit, New Jersey.

NEW & & & CARNATION ARU)

A few left at the following price & $ $10.00 per 100; $75,00 per 1000.....

ARGYLE FINE NEW CARNATION.

LARGE, healthy, free. $2.00 per doz.; $10.00 per 1000. $75.00 per 1000. Send for complete list of all the hest varieties.

$300 CARNATION PRIZE See half page ad, in issue of March 26th. Send for our circular. AMERICAN ROSE COMPANY, Box 422. WASHINGTON P. C.

Carnations hrysanthemums

NEW AND STANDARD VARIETIES

Our new Trade List will embrace the leading novelties of 1898 and 1897 as well as the best standard sorts. Address

H. WEBER & SONS,

Oeklend, Md.

NEW CARNATION....

son yet introduced...

The largest, bright rich crim- Empress

Send for price list of above. New and Standard Sorts....

WM. SWAYNE, Box 226, Kennett Square, Pa.

Herr's Smilax

Sample plants sent for 10 cents. 75 cts. per 1(0, or $5 00 per 1000.

CARNATION EXPERIENCES

A few hundred left, send your address and get one free......

ALBERT M. HERR

Lancaster, Pa.

 $oldsymbol{\pi}$ nnnnnnnnnnnnnnnnnnnn $oldsymbol{\pi}$

NEW WHITE PERPETUAL BLOOMING CARNATION

Anna H. Shaw

The Best "All Round" White Carnation for Cut Flowers. Recommendations: Wonderful bloomer. Unusual Vigor, Rapid Grower, Furns Strong Blooming Planta in a Very Short Time. Perfectly Healthy, Handsome Foliage. Large Beautifully Formed Flowers on Long Stems. Exquisitely Fragrant, Nevers on Long Stems. Exquisitely Fragrant, Growers on Longer and Gives More Flowers than Any Other Variety Ever Offered If you want a RELIABLE Carnation that can always be depended upon. give Anne H. Shaw a trial. Rooted Cuttings. $1 per doz; $6 per 100. Strong Plants, $1.75 per doz; $10 per 100. Stend for Trade List and Catalogue of Seeds, Bulbs, Plants, Cacti. Etc.

Mrs. Theodosia B. Shepherd,

Ventura (by-the-Sea), Cal.

A Word About Valves.

What a painful thing it is to go through an otherwise fairly well equipped green-house and note the miserable "contrap-sions" doing duty as steam or water valves: old fashioned, rickety, leaky. spattering things, that stick when you try to open them and stick worse when you close them. It is all so useless, too, as the first cost of a good valve is so little more than that of a poer one. The life of a thoroughly good valve is more than double that of a cheap one, while in com-fort to the workman and economy in steam and water the good one is far in advance of the other. Little leaks of steam, of water, of time in opening and closing, and in repacking and "tinkering," while not great losses, separately, amount to a large sum during a number of years, to say nothing of the satisfaction of having things ship shape.

Cheap valves besides being poorly made are nearly always thin and lacking in metal. They are much given to twisting and springing when being connected, be-sides their tendency to show side leaks through the wear of the steam against the thin metal. Pick out a good stout fellow who likes to do a good job and set him to repacking one of these valves. If he does not twist the top off the bonnet of the valve it is two to one that he will force the packing through the little thin packing nut. By all means then, select a good heavy valve; there never was one with too much metal in it.

For steam, although gate valves work very well, globe and angle valves are generally used. Metal seat valves very soon wear so that they will not close properly and it is a tedious job to regrind them. A standard make of composition disc valve is much the best for greenhouse conditions. When the old disc becomes worn, which will not be until long after a metal disc becomes leaky, a new disc can be bought for a small sum and easily put in place. For sizes up to and including two inches, brass valves are best, above that size iron body valves with brass trimmings can be used.

For hot water, gate valves should be used with wrought iron pipe, and if with non-rising stems much work in repacking will be saved. They should never be used in a vertical pipe when it can be avoided. For a water supply inside the houses the valve known as a Fuller bib is far handier and more reliable than any other we have used and as the patent has long since ex pired they are not expensive. As the rub-ber ball which forms the valve wears, it can be easily tightened by unscrewing the valve and turning the nut back of it. For the water supply shut off a gate valve is best, although as they are not in frequent use, what is known as a round way rough stop will do.

MISSOURI STATE HORTICULTURAL SOCI-LTY - The summer meeting of the Missouri State Horticultural Society will be held in West Plains, June 7, 8 and 9, 1848. All persons interested in fruit growing are invited to be present. Papers will be read on small fruits, peaches, diseases, insects, marketing and ornamental gardening. The secretary is L. v. Gandinan, Westport, Mo.

Consen. Blancis, Li W. B. Reed, the ne say elected city treasurer, has sold his interest in the establishment of McPherson & Reed to H. H. Frey of Lincoln, a vergian in the business. The new firm will make a number of additions to their greenhouses and have leased the room at I Pour street for a retail store.

100,000 VERBENAS. THE CHOICEST VARIETIES IN CULTIVATION

Fine pot plants, $2.50 per 100; $20 per 1000. Rooted Cuttings, 75c per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $50 per 10000. NO RUST OR MILDEW.

PACKED LIGHT, AND SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. SEND FOR CIRCULAR. We are the Largest Growers of Verbenas in the country. Our plants cannot be surpassed.

J. L. DILLON, Bloomsburg, Pa.

GERANIUMS

4 inch Paper Pots, in Bloom,

PINK, RED and WHITE Best Bedders. . . . Thousands Ready.

GEO. A. KUHL, = PEKIN, ILL.

West Islip Greenhouses MARIE LOUISE VIOLETS

Rooted Runners, $4 per 1000. Cash with order.

E. B. SUTTON, Jr. P. O. Address.... BABYLON, N Y.

Hydrangeas

Fine plants with 10 to 30 blooms per plant. 10 cents per bloom...

JOHN SCOTT, Keap St. Greenhouses,

PANSIES WE grow over a million from the choicest seeds of Bugnot, Cassier, transplanted last November in cold frames; large plants now ready to bloom, 60c per 100; $4,00 per 1000; Mammoth Verbenas, 70c per 100; $5,50 per 1000; Double Geraniums, in bid and bloom, such as 8 A. Nutt, Gen'l Grant, La Favorite and many others equally as good, 4-inch, $6,00 per 100, 3-in., $4,00 per 100, 3-inch, $5,00 per 100, HELIOTROPE, 4-inch, $6,00 per 100, VINCAS, extra heavy, 4-inch, $8,00 per 100.

All the above are very bushy and well branched.

WHITTON & SONS.

Wholesale Florists,

City and Green Sts.,

UTICA, N. Y.

Violet Plants...

Marie Louise

GEORGE SALTFORD, Rhinebeck, N. Y.

WHITE FAXON'S "WHITE, PANSIES.

The hest mixture in cultivation, flowers ver-large, thick and velvety; of superb colors and markings. The perfection of form and texture.

In Trade Packets at $1.00 each. M. B. FAXON,

528. BOSTON, MASS. Lnck Box 1528,

SPECIALTIES

IN BEST VARIETIES. ROSES, from 3-Inch pote

CARNATIONS, for fall delivery.
CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

SMILAX.
VIOLETS
Prices low. Send for list

WOOD BROTHERS, FISHKILL, N. Y.

GLEMATIS Jackmanni, Henryli doz. 100 and others......$3.00 $20.00 H. P. ROSBS Strong, 2 and 3 years own roots......$1.50 $10.00 REO JACKET GOOSEBERRY, only large

PAEONIES, fine ass't of colors and kinds $1.25 $8.00 SMILAX, extra strong plants..... $2.50

F. A. BALLER, Bloomington, III.

KLONDIKE

Cold Fields at Your Door.

Cold Fields at Your Door.

COLEUS—All kinds, all grades and all prices. Verschaffeitl and Queen. 75c per 100; $8.00 per 1000; 25c-inch pots, $15 00 per 1000; 1175 per 100. Coleus in variety, $5c per 100; $150 per 100. Coleus in variety, $5c per 100; $150 per 100. 25c-inch pots, $12 00 per 1000; $1.50 per 100. Agrantum dwarf blue. 60c per 1000; $1.50 per 100. Agrantum dwarf blue. 60c per 1000; $1.50 per 100. Anthemis Coronaria. Golden Marguerite. $150 per 100. Anthemis Coronaria. Golden Marguerite. $150 per 100. Anthemis Coronaria. Golden Marguerite. $150 per 100. Yello per 100; $200 per 1000; $200 per 1000; $100 per 100. Hellotrope. 6 varieties, $1.00 per 100; $100 per 100. Hellotrope. 6 varieties, $1.00 per 100; $100 per 100. Alternanthera Paronychiodes, Major and Anrea Nana, 60c per 100. Hellanthus Muttiforus. Double Golden. 25c-inch pots. $2.00 per 100; $12 00 per 1000; $2-inch pots. $2.00 per 100; $12 00 per 1000; $2-inch pots. $2.00 per 100; $12 00 per 1000; $12 00 per 100

J. E. FELTHOUSEN, Schenectady, N. Y.

CARNATIONS AND COLEUS ROOTED CUTTINGS

THE 1898 INTRODUCTIONS THE 1897 INTRODUCTIONS

DAYBREAK of special quality.
ROOTED COLEUS in variety.
Cood stock only. Price list free.

DAN'L B. LONG, Growers' Agent, BUFFALO.

5,000 SMILAX...

From flats, by mail. Sie per 100 $4.00 per 1000 From 2-inch pots, $2.25 per 100, $13.00 per 1000 Geranlums from 2-inch pots, $2.25 per 100; $20,00 per 1000. Cash with the order. Send for samples. Fred Boerner, (APE MAY CITY, N. J

PRICES GREATLY REDUCED Cape Cod Pink Pond Lily For price lists, Plants and Cut Flowers,

address the original enlivators

CHIPMAN BROS. SANDWICH, " (CAPE COD), " MASS.

MUST HAVE ROOM

Ceraniums 10:00 S. A. Nutt, 2-inch, $15.00 per 1000; $2:00 per 100 - stoated Cuttings from soil, $0:00 per 1000; $1:50 per 100 - Mano. Brunnt, 2-inch, $3:00 per 100: Krancea Ferkins best Pink 2-in, $3:00 per 100: Oracoma Indivisa Strong 3-in, $8:00 per 100: Ocious - Kondiko, strong 2-in, $5:00 per 100: Begonia Vernon, 2-inch, $2:10 per 100. Contration Lizze Metiowan, soil or pots $10:00 per 100. Cosh please.

CARL HAGENBURGER, West Mentor, Ohio.

BENJ. CONNELL, Florist,

WEST GROVE, PA.

10,000 Ampelopsis Veltchil, the dormant put plants, 1 and 2 year old, price 3 and 6c (1000 pt grown Cannas, cream of bedding sorts, 20,000 Viousis, 20,000 Caronitous; Spires Anthony Waterer and Blue Spires; Strawberry-Raspberry and other new small fruits. All must be sold. Ask for prices. Address.

BENJ. CONNELL, West Crove, Pa.

YOUR ORDER AT ONCE, PLEASE!

GERANIUM

Special Certificate of Merit! A Gem! A Beauty!

CHARLESTON, S. C., Merch 8, 1898
DEAR SIR: Please send me 100 Mars etc.
J. M. CONNELLY.

CHARLESTON, S. C. March 12, 188
DEAR SIR: Mars received this A. M. I am pleased with them, you will please send me another 180 Mars, etc.
J. M. CONNELLY.

STOCKBRIDGE, MASS., April 18, 1838. Enclosed find two dollars for which send me 25 Geranium "Mars." I had one dozen of you and they are fine. GEO. SEYMOUR.

LET US HAVE YOUR ORDER AT ONCE

HENRY EICHHOLZ,

WAYNESBORO, PA.

MOST ANYTHING YOU WANT.

L. SMITH, Aurora, Illinois.

*AGERATUM

Cope's Little Pet, $3.00 per 100; 200 for $5.

PELOPSIS

Young plants for bedding out; $4 per 100.

TERNANTHERAS. $3 00 per 100; 200 for $5.00.

BEGONIAS Finest sorts, $4.00 per 100.

CARNATIONS

Leading kinds $3.00 per 100; $25 per 1000.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Finest sorts, our selection; $3 00 per 100; 200 for $5.00.

*COLEUS

20 varieties; $3 00 per 100; 200 for $5 00.

*CENTAUREA GYMNOCARPA $3.00 per 100; 200 for $5.00.

All Marked With Star $20.00 per 1000. Look over our Trade List. We can't enumerate everything in nu ad like this. Look ver the List and keep watch of our ads.

HELIOTROPE

Finest ever offered; $3.00 per 100. HOLLYHOCK Double white; $4.00 per 100.

DRANGEA HORTENSIS

Small for planting out; $4.00 per 100.

RIUM OLEANDER

Dbl. Pink and white, $6.00 per 100.

OTAHEITE ORANGES

Very strong; 3-incb, $10.00 per 100

PETUNIAS

Dreer's magnificent named sorts, $4.00 per 100.

PELARGONIUMS

We still have some. Victor and Freddie Heiul, $6.03 per 100; mixed without labe's, $3.00 per 100. Victor and Freddie

SANTOLINA INCANA

$3 00 per 160; 200 for $5 00.

SMILAX $3.00 per 100.

VERBENAS

No one has so fine sorts, $2.50 per 100.

VINCAS All sizes

VIOLETS

Marie Louise, Calitornia, $3.00 per 100.

HARDY PINKS

2½-in, pots; Souv. de Sale, $3.50 per 100; Her Majesty, Glen Valley, Laura Wilmer, Ger-trude, $3.00 per 100.

VIOLETS...

21<sub>2</sub>-in. pots: Admiral Avellon, Princess of Wales, $3.50 per 100: Luxonne, California, Campbell, Swanley White, $3.00 per 100.

THE CONARO & JONES CO.. . West Grove, Pa.

VEGETABLE PLANTS

Tomato. Cabbage. Lettuce. Celery and Sweel Potato, 1b cts. per 100; $1.00 per 1000.

Pepper and Egg Plants, 25c per 100; $2.00 per 1000. Cauliflower Snowball, 35c per 100; $2.50 per 1000. All plants by mail, 10c per 100 extra Price list for large quantities. Cash with order.

R. VINCENT, Jr. & SON, White Marsh, Md.

ECHEVERIA WANTED...

• • • 1000 plants for carpet beds, from  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to  $3\frac{1}{2}$  inches in diameter.....

PETTINGELL & HENRY, - Toledo, Ohio.

Roses...

GERANIUMS

THE JENNINGS STRAIN.

PANSIES
THE JENNINGS STRAIN.
THEY ARE GRAND.
Fine stocky plants in bud
and bloom, $10 and $15 per 1000; $1.50 and $2 per 100 by express; small plants,
75c by mail. Pansy seed, $1.00 per pkt. Aster seed, Semple's pink, $1 00 per oz. Cash with order.

Little Gem, $3.00 per 100. Golden, $3.00 per 103; 200 for $5.00.

We have most anything you can ask for. Just now specially we have some par-ticularly fine 3-inch forcing, $6 per 100.

And we have everything you cau think of. Our choice, $3.00 per 100 Rose, Happy Thought, Mrs. Parker, etc. See our list.

FUCHSIAS In Variety
$3.00 per100: Phenomenal and Mrs. E.
G Hill, $4.00 per 100.

E. B. JENNINGS,

Lock Box 254. SOUTHPORT, CONN.

Crower of the Finest Pansies.

BARGAINS IN PLANTS CASH

| ı | French Cannas, Crozy, Queen Charlotte. p | er 100  |
|---|------------------------------------------|---------|
| ı | Florence Vaughan, etc., fine plants      | .$4.00 |
| B | Ceraniums, Double Grant 25 Inch pots     | .2.00   |
| ì | Salvias, Clara Bedman, 2%-Inch pots      | , 2.00  |
|   | Coleus, 5 varieties, fine, 21g-inch pots | .2.00   |
|   | Regonia Vernon, fine 24-inch pors        |         |
|   | Mountain of Snow Ceranium, 21/2 In. pots |         |
|   | Order at once and get good stock         |         |

NICHOLAS AMOS, Crestline, Ohio.

Always mention the .......

American Florist

when writing advertisers.

April Offer.

| Alternanthera A. Nana, $1.75; P. Major$2.00       |  |
|-----------------------------------------------------|--|
| Begonias, 5 var Vernen                              |  |
| Coleus Asst, and Centaurea Gymnocarpa 2.00          |  |
| Geraniums, 16 Var., 212-in. pots, $2.50; 3-in 3.75 |  |
| Geraniums, 4-in, pots and Margnerites (Paris        |  |
| Daisy) 5.00                                         |  |
| Pansy plants from cold frames and Smilax 1.00       |  |
| CASH PLEASE.                                        |  |

JOS. H. CUNNINGHAM, Delaware, Ohio.

Please Mention The American Florist.

MAJOR Var.

From 4-inch pots .....$7.00 From 2-inch pots .....$3.00

Sonnenschmidt & Junge

456 E. Washington St. INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

New Haven. Conn.

The dullness attendant upon the belligerent talk of the last few weeks, seems to have resulted in a period of inactivity with the actual unloosing of the "dogs of war." It is quite natural that the of war." It is quite natural that the fighting fever should affect the florist's business earlier than most others, and so it seems to be.

Prices remain about the same. Roses are declining in figure as the season grows, and sell for 75 cents to $1.50 per Violets remain popular as ever dozen. and bring $1 per 100.

F. S. Platt and Robt. Veitch & Sons report briskness in their seed line, and the demand is fully up to that of other years.

Pansy plants and mountain daisies for bedding purposes are holding their own in popular favor, selling for 35 cents per dozen.

J. A. P.

Another Carnation Pest.

ED. AM. FLORIST: - I send by mail specimens of a moth, the caterpillar of which did much damage last winter to carnation flowers before they were ready to open, by boring into the calyx and cutting up the petals. Only for the vigilance of my men in hunting for it nightly it would have destroyed a solid bed forty feet by six. It is new to me. Inced scarcely say that it is a night worker. For want of a better name I call it the "bur-It got justice without process of glar. law. JOHN SPALDING.

The insects sent by Mr. John Spalding from New London, Ct., and which he states are injurious to carnations by horing into the calyx and cutting up the petals, belongs to the species known as the variegated cutworm (Peridroma saueia). The specimens transmitted were not in good condition, but specific determination was, nevertheless, possible. This is a general feeder, like most of the cutworms. I have at hand no record of its previously being injurious to carnations in hothouses. The best method of destroying these entworms is by means of poisoned bait, directions for the preparation and use of which are given in Farmers' Bulletin, No. 19, as follows: "It is not always advisable or effective to apply arsenicals directly to the plants, and this is particularly true in the case of the attacks of the grass hopper and of the various cutworms and wireworms. In such eases the use of poisoned bait has proven very satisfac-For locusts, take 1 part, by weight, of white arsenic, 1 of sugar, and 6 of bran, to which add water to make a wet mash. Place a tablespoonful of this at the base of each tree or vine, or apply a line of baits just ahead of the advancing army of grasshoppers, placing a tablespoonful of the mash every 6 or 8 feet, and following up with another line behind the first. For baiting cutworms and wireworms, distribute poisoned green, succulent vegetation, such as freshly cut clover, in small bunches about the intested fields. Dip the bast in a very strong arsenical solution, and protect from dry ing by covering with boards or stones. Kenew the bait as often as it becomes dry, or every three to five days. The brainarsemial bait will also answer for cut-worms C. L. Marlatt.

Washington, D. C.

 $S(1,y,y,\Delta(x))$  The ladies of the Presby terian church gave their annual Rose Show on April 19 There were prizes in rwenty four classes and excellent exhibits scere numerous.

Kraft's Plant Tonic

For Plants, Palms and Flowers

A Wonderful Preparation for the Promotion of Plant Life, Des-truction of Insects and Scale......

The Tonic makes the foliage of the plan a beautiful bright green. For sale at . .

84 & 86 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

14 BARCLAY STREET, NEW YORK.

Cocoa Nut Fibre

HAS COME TO STAY ON ITS ..... MERITS.

HE SALEM COCOA NUT

FIBRE CO. Will ship to any part of the country at $9.00 per ton. F. O. B. at Salem, Mass.

W. S. WARD, Mgr., Office: Federal Street, - SALEM, MASS.

EXTENSION THE MODEL CARNATION SUPPORT

OUEENS N. Y., FORD II. '37.

MR. THERON PARKER, Brooklyn, N. Y., Dear Sir:—
I have tested your latest model Carnation Support and am free to say that Leonsider it the best wire carnation support that it have ever seen. It le quickly and enaily applied, and I think will prove very durable, and you certainly deserve great credit for the invention.

Cry U. WARD.

FLATBUSH, BROOKLYN,
N. Y., Feb. 18, 27
Mn THERON PARKER,
Dear SIT: - Your wire stake ls certainly a gem Without heshtating wu indorse it
as an up to-date carnation
support. Yours truly,
DAILLEDOUZE BROS

W. HOROKEN, N. J., FOL. 18, 97.

MR. THERON PAIRER, Brooklyn, N. Y., Dear Shr.—
It gives me much pleasure to congratulate you upon your success in getting up carnation supports. I think that those I have had from you are about as perfect as any-body will be able to make them. They certainly fill my bill for an ideal carnation support, a thing I have been looking for for a long time. Wishing you every success in the sale of them, I am Yours truly, E. ASMI'S. and discount on early orders.

Write for price list and discount on early orders.

THERON PARKER, 22 Morton St. BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Scollav

INTERPENANTE J. A. Scollay, Maker,

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Gen'l Western Agents, 84 Randolph St., CHICACO.

Stems...

Strong and Clean

...Dust BEST QUALITY

T. W. Wood & Sons,

Seeds, Bulbs and Supplies for Florists and Gardeners.

Send for Catalogue.

... RICHMOND, VA.

STEMS

BOTTOM PRICES.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE.

Chicago. New York.

Geranium Mars.

ED. AM. FLORIST:-Noticing in your report of the spring exhibition of the Northampton Horticultural Society that several florists of that place consider this an old variety renamed, we have to state that it was a chance seedling grown by the late S. J. Nitterhouse, of this place. On taking possession of this property, we found two plants of the geranium in question. Mrs. Nitterhouse informed us that the late Peter Henderson had, shortly before his death, offered $60 for the small stock of the plant then on hand, and on the strength of this statement, together with the merit displayed by the variety, we decided to introduce it and named it Mars. So far only two persons claim to have seen it before, and this is explained by the fact that a few plants were sold in the neighborhood before we took possession. Apart from this, there is nothing old or renamed about it.

HENRY EICHHOLZ.

If corresponding with an advertiser at any time, say "saw your ad. in the American Florist."

-Net cash with order. If ordered shipped by FREIGHT, ADD 50 CENTS CARTAGE.

| Size    |    | PackedCrates | of p   | rosser 10 | 00 p | õte |       |      | er 1000 |
|---------|----|------------------|--------|---------------|------|-----|-------|------|---------|
| 246-100 | h  | 1000             | 8      | bou           | t 20 | The | § | 0.25 | $2 20  |
| 212     |    | 1000             |        |             | 23   |     |       |      | 2.40    |
| 3 " "   |    | 1000             |        |             | 34   |   |   | .45  | 3,90    |
| 316 "   |    | 1000             |        |               | 45   |   |   | .60  | 5.15    |
| 4 "     |    | 500              |        |               | 76   | 14  |   | .80  | 6,90    |
| ž 1,    |    |                  |        |             | 100  |     |   | 1.20 | 10.35   |
| ğ 1.    |  |                  |        |               | 150  |     |       | 1.65 | 14.55   |
| v       |    |                  | aodard | Pot           |      |     |       |      |         |

| Standard Pot Measure. | Lees quantities than full crates at 100 rates. | Full sample dozens of a size malled on receipt of 10c | 12c | 15c | 22c | 30c | 45c | 60c | 60c | 12c | 13c | 13c | 11c | 14n | 5-1n | 6-1n | 6-

Address all orders to our General Agents,

August Rölker & Sons

52 DEY STREET, NEW YORK. Our Eastern Agents are

R. & J. FARQUHAR & CO., Boston, Mass.

FIRST-CLASS GOODS and CORRECT PRICES

have forced us to the front and today we are the largest manufact-urers of.....

IRON RESERVOIR VASES

and Lawn Settees in America. . . . A 40-page catalogue for the asking.

McDonald Bros. 108-114 Liberty St.,

COLUMBUS, O.

CHICAGO, ILL.

FLOWER POTS

A SPECIALTY

STANDARD POTS List and SAMPLES FREE.

J. G. SWAHN'S SONS, MINNEAPOLIS. MINN.

PROMPT SHIPMENT. LARGE STOCK > > > > > ALSO DIFACTURERS Pure Linseed Oi WRITE FOR LATEST PRICES

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO. Flower Pots,

Bulb Pans, Hanging Baskets and Saucers

OUR FLOWER POTS are standard measure and all first-class and we assure you they will give good satisfaction. We call your attention to our new pots, 6, 7, 8 and 9-inch, called the "Poro Pot." They are more Porous than any pots, smoother inside and outside, perfect drainage, and are easily washed and cleaned, Give them a trial and you will not want any other. Remember these Pots are as cheap as any other Pot on the market. Write for price list.

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

Standard Flower Pots...

OUR POTS ARE OF THE BEST QUALITY.

We ship all goods from Cincinnati, guaranteeing lowest treight rates and prompt delivery.

Write us before placing your orders elsewhere. . . . . .

CAMBRIDGE TILE MFG. CO., Covington, Ky.

THE BEST STANDARD FLOWER POTS

WE make the best flower pot for Florists and general use made in America, as many dealers in Mich., Ill., Wis. and Ind. can testify. We invite a trial order and will be pleased to send price list. Our business demanded a Western Office and we have recently established a Chicago office at 115 Dearborn St., MR. M. E. PARRENIEAU, Agt. Give him a call.

■ONIA POTTERY CO.,

Manufacturers of Standard Flower Pots.

THE IONIA POTTERY CO., Ionia, Mich.

Kearney and Westside Aves., Jersey City, N. J. Jackson Av. & Pearson St , Long Island City. N. Y.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST'S COLOR CHART

is now accepted as the standard in preparing color descriptions, by many foreign houses as well as in America.

PRICE IS CENTS POSTPAID. AMERICAN FLORIST CO., 322 Dearborn St., Chicago

"STANDARDS"

FULL SIZE AND WIDE BOTTOMS. BULB PANS AND AZALEA POTS.

DETROIT FLOWER POT M'F'Y. HARRY BALSLEY.

DETROIT, MICH., 490 HOWARD ST. Standard 🧈 🧈

FLOWER

If your greenhouses are within 500 miles of the Capitol, write us; we can save you money.

W. H. ERNEST,

Station M. N. E.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Made by

Good Railroad Facilities For shipping.
Special Attention Given to
Mail Orders, and Special
Sizes Made to Order.

KELLER BROS.

NORRISTOWN, PA.

Price Lists Furnished on Application.

STANDARD FLOWER POTS Send for price list of Standard Flower Pots, Hanging Vases, Seed Pans and Cylinders for Cut Flowers

Lawo Vuses, 17x17-ln., $1 00; 19x20-ln., $1 50; Bases 12-lo, hlgh 50c. Address

HILFINGER BROS. POTTERY,
R.... FORT EDWARD, N. Y.
AUGUST ROLKER & SONS. AGTS.,
52 DEY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Mildew on Roses.

En. Am. Fl.orist:—I am troubled with mildew on my roses in pots. But as I built my house in the winter the floors are damp, which, I believe, is the cause of it. Can you give me a remedy? T. X.

Dampness of the floor coupled with too much atmospheric moisture, and possibly too high or a changeable temperature may have been responsible for mildew. When roses are not properly handled, that is, when they are given conditions and treatment that are unnatural and uncongenial, mildew is the result. The price of clean, healthy roses is unremitting watchfulness. If there are steam pipes in the house, coat them with a mixture of flowers of sulphur and lime, made like whitewash; if not, dust the plants affected with sulphur in the morning and leave the ventilators closed until the temperature reaches $5; keep rather close for two days and then wash off. Try to keep the mildew off rather than to kill it after it has ruined the foliage.

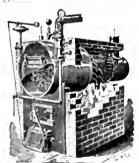

ROBT. SIMPSON.

VANCE BOILERS

ARE THE BEST

For Heating Greenhouses, Conservatories and Dwellings.

tur boders consume all gases from the fuel, therefore making if the most desirable boder for greenhouse heating on the market.....

Send to day for Cataslogue and Price Lest.

Vance Boiler Works,

399 LAKE AVE., GENEVA, N.Y.

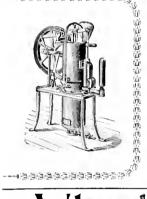

Write for Estimates.

FOR SALE CHEAP.

GLASS for Greenhouse | Conservatories, Hotel
Mate Paints Oils etc | Hotbed Sashes and
PAINT CO., 456 W Broadway, NEW YORK.

Water

Improved Rider Hot Air Pump Improved Ericsson Hot Air Pump

Can be run by any ignorant boy without danger—Explosion impossible.—Prices greatly reduced.—In use in every part of the world.

RIDER-ERICSSON ENGINE CO.

22 Cortlandt St., NEW YORK. 191-193 High St., BOSTON. 684 Craig St., MONTREAL, P. Q. 86 Lake St., CHICAGO. 29-31 N. 7th St., PHILADELPHIA. Send for catalogue "A 3."

Wheeler-Stenzel Co.

IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF

Make your contracts for next season now. We can deliver to any part of the country and Save You Money .....

Greenhouse Glass

72 Sudbury St., BOSTON, MASS.

3

GREENHOUSE MATERIAL

Cal. Red Cedar and Louisiana Cypress.
BEST GRADES. PERFECT WORKMANSHIP.

A. DIETSCH & CO. SHEFFIELD AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

KROESCHELL BROS. CO.

Greenhouse * Boiler, 29 to 59 Erie St., CHICAGO.

Bollers made of the best of material, shell, firebox sheets and heads of steel, water space all around (front, sides and back). Write for information.

Do not lorget to say "saw your ad, in the AMERICAN FLORIST" when corresponding with advertisers.

GORTON SIDE FEED P Boiler

is the only holler that will keep a steady heat in a greenhouse all night without attention. No sitting up all night to keep a good fire-

Further infermation on application,

GORTON & LIDGERWOOD CO.

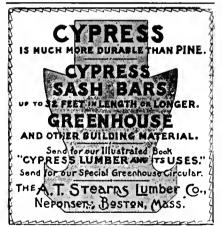

96 liberty Street, NLW YORK.

You can not get a GOOD THING for nothing. But the price of this apparatus is next to nothing. Send for price and description to

J. D. CARMODY, Evansville, Ind

NEW & SECOND-HAND MATERIAL

purchased from Sheriff, Receiver, and Assignee, sales at less than one-half prices. Pipe and Fittings Hose, Florists' Wire, Hot Water Heaters, Greenhouse Bollors and Engines. Rope, Light Wrought Iron Pipe, Glass Sash, and thousands of other articles, for as e by

CHICAGO HOUSE WRECKING CO.
Largest Mail Order Depot for New and Second-Hand
Material in the World.

W. 35TH & IRON STS., CHICACO. Write for our free illustrated catalogues

GREENHOUSE WOODWORK

Open-air-dried Cypress Lumber is more durable, and better suited to Greenhouse conditions, than kiln dried stock. But you cannot get it trom those that are engaged in the business in a small way—even though their entire busi ness is contined to greenhouse material—for it takes a long time for the lumber to thoroughly dry and this means an investment in lumber that only those of large capital can make. The only way to have air-dried lumber is to buy green lumber and hold it until it dries. Those that order dry lumber from the producers of Cypress get kiln-dried stock. It is cheaper for them to kiln-dry than to hold the stock long enough to season it in the open air. We carry a large stock and fill all orders with open-air-dried Cypress clear of knots, sap and all other defects.

Write for Circulars or Estimates

Lockland Lumber Co.

LOCKLAND, O.

SALESROOMS:

133 Centre Street, - NEW YORK CITY. 510 Arch Street, - PHILADELPHIA.

COTTAGE BOILER

WESTERN AGENTS WESTERN BRASS MFG. CO. ST. LOUIS, MO.

PACIFIC COAST AGENTS HOLBROOK, MERRILL & STETSON SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

AUG. EGGERS, BREMEN.

THE H. B. SMITH CO., Westfield, Mass.

On Your Coal Bills

If your Houses are Heated by a Furman Boiler.

Send for large Illustrated Catalogue, Florists' Edition. Let us make you an estimate FREE.

THE HERENDEEN MFG. CO.

BRANCH OFFICES: Boston: 54 Oliver St.

New York: 39 Cortlandt St.

20 Vine Street, GENEVA, N. Y. Philadelphia: 1019 Betz Building.

MACHINE. VENTILATING STANDARD

NONE EQUAL IT Strength Durability

NOTHING Flimsy Complicated about it.

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO.

Please mention the American Florist when writing to advertisers.

| Index to A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | dvertisers.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Allen & Ockerlund. 1185                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Louisville Tobacco Colled Lucas J & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Allen & Ockerlund. 1185 American BoseCo. 1187 Amiling E C. 1176 Amis, Nicholas 1189 Armstrong Luther. 1178 Australian Palm Seed Co. 1184 Baller F A. 1188 Bartlett (Fee S. 1180 Bassett & Washburn. 1176 Bassett & Co. 1181                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Lynch W E 1176                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Aming E C                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Manning Jacob W1178Manz J & Co1179                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Armstrong Luther1178                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Maplewood Cut Flo                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Markle Jos                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Bartlett Geo S 1190                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | McBeth Thos                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Bartlett (ee) S. Mashburn 1179 Bassett & Washburn 1179 Bayeradorfer W & Co. 1181 Beerhorst & Van Leeuwen 1182 Besold C. 1185 Blanc A & Co. 1185 Blanc A & Co. 1185 Blanc A & Co. 1185 Bobinta L C. 1185 Boenner Fred. 1188 Frunton F & Co. 1181 Brunton F & Co. 1181 Brunton F & Co. 1181 Brunton F & Co. 1183 Cambdy J D. 1183 Chadwick Chas 1184 Chadwick Chas 1184 Chadwick Chas 1184 Chadwick Chas 1185 Chagar House Wreck Ing Co. 1185 Cleary & Co. 1185 Cleary & Co. 1185 Cleary & Co. 1185 Conard & Jones Co. 1181 Conned & Gadens 1181 | McCullough J Chas 1180                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Beerhorst & Van Leeu-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | McDonald 3ros 1191                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Besold C                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | McDonald & Steele., 1186                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Blanc A & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Boerner Fred1188                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Millang Frank,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Brunton F & Co1178                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Moon Samuel C 1178 1185                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Cambridge Tile Mfg 1191                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Moor Wm H Co1178Morris Flural Co1186                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Carmody J D                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | McFadden W A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Chicago House Wreck                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Nat I Flo Board Trade1179                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Chipman Bros,1188                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Nanz & Neuner 1184                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Cleary & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Nickel Plate                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Cole Geo E & Co1179                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | N Y Cut Flower Co1.76                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Coles W W                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Parker Theron 1190                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Conjey John & Son1181                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Pennock Sam'l S1178                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Cottage Gardens 1157                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Pettingill & Henry 188                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Cunningham J H 1184                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Quaker City Mo'h Wks1193                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Conley John & Son1181 Connell, Benj                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Randall A L                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| DeMeyer Arthur1184                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Reed Glass & Paint CollegRegan Printing Houseling                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Dietsch A & Co1192                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | neinberg Bros1176                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Donaghue A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Bicksecker C H 1181                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| DornerFred & Sons Collsi                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Rider, Ericsson Co1192                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Ehret F                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Bolker A & Sons 1180 1191                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Elllott W. H                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Salter W II                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Elils & Pollworth 1174 1181                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Saltford Geo                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Faxon M B                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Scollay Jno A1150                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| F & F Nurserles1178                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Shepherd Mrs T B 1187                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Dames N William Deuroit Fin's Pot Mighin Dickinson Albert Co. 1180 Dickinson Albert Co. 1180 Dincer A & Co. 1181 Donardue A 1180 Editor Fin A. 1180 Editor Fin Historia III Editor W H 1180 Editor W H 1180 Eraxon M B 1188 Fot Mut Fire ins Co. 1183 Ford Bros 1186 Galvin & Co 1186 Gorion & Lidgerwoodling Gurney Heguer Co. 1189 Gorion & Lidgerwoodling Gurney Heguer Co. 1189 Gurney Heguer Co. 1189 Gurney Heguer Co. 1189                                                                                                                                  | Regar Printing Housell?  Regar Printing Housell?  Reinberg Bros. 1176  Rice M & Co. 1181  Ricksecker C H. 1181  Rider, Ericsson Co. 1192  Rowers P's Fioral 'Co 1176  Roller A & Sons 1180 1181  Salem Cocoa Plore Co 1180  Scott Jno. 1180  Scott Jno. 1180  Scott Jno. 1181  Sherhedan W F. 1177  Sherhedan W F. 11 |
| Galvin & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Situations, Wents, etc. 114                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Glbbons H W                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Smith The H B Co 1153                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Gorton & EldgerwoodligGurney Heater Co. 1191                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Smith W C                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Gurney Heater to 182 Gutta Percha and Rub ber Mfg Co 180 Dagenburger Carl 1188 Haerens Ang. 182 Hancock Geo & Sons. 184 Hartford H E 184 Hartford H E 184 Hartford M E 184 Heate W F 185 Helkes J B 185 Herendeen Mfg Co 186 Herralbert M 186 Herralbert M 186 Hintinger Bros. 186                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Smith W C                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| ber Mfg (01190                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | South Park Floral Colls6                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Haerens Ang 1182                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Stearns Lumber Co 1193                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Hancock Geo & Sons                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Hart M A 1177                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | st Louis Cut FlowerCollid Stollery Bros                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Helkes W.F                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Sunderbruch H L Co. 1175                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Helss J B 1185Herendeen Mig Co., 1193                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Sutherland Geo Alin                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Herr Albert M                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Suzuki & Iida                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Hu b                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Swayne Wm1187                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Hippard E1185 HS                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Tokyo Nurserles1178                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Hitchings & Coll34Hulton & Hinkel Co.1175                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Van Heemstra & Co 1182                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Hopker at M Co 1191                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Vance Botter W'ks192                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Hillinger Bros. 199 Hill D 118 Hill E G & Co. 118 Hill E G & Co. 118 Hippard E. 118 Hichlings & Co. 119 Hoton & Hinskel Co. 118 Hoton & Hinskel Co. 118 Hop & Lemke. 118 Hopa & Lemke. 118 Hopa Edw. 117 Hotal EH 118                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Van Zonneveld II 1182                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Illinuis Cut Flower Collin                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Vaoghan J ( 11:3 1181 1190Vaoghan, McKellar &                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Jackson & Perkins Collection                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Vincent R & Son 1189                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Jackson & Perkins ColladJapanese Nursery 1182Jaunings & B 1189Kasting W F 1175Keiter Bros 1191                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Winterson                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Kaeting W.F                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Walker Fertilizer Co Hst                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Keller Geo & Mone 1131                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Walker F. & Co 1186Walker Fertilizer Co 1180Watson G. 1180 1183Weathered's Sons TW 1184                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Keller Bros                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Weber H & Sone HS, 1187                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| King J M 1136Kraft's Plant Tonle 1139                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Weber H & Sons 1150 1187Weeber & Don                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Kraft's Plant Tonic 1989Kroeschell Bros Co 1980                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Welch Bros                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Kuchn C A 1175Kuhl Geo A 1185 1186                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Wheeler Stenzel Co11 2Whilldin Pot Co1151                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Kroeschell Bror Co. 1135Kuchn C. A. 1155Kuhl Geo A. 1185 1198Lazer A. Hurrell                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Whitton & Son                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Ley John H 1184                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Weich Bros                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Ley John H 1184 Letellier A Bons 1180 Littlefinid H F 1186 Lockiano Lum (50 1183                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Witthold Geo 1194Wood Brow 1198                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Long D. B. 112, 11ss                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Wood Bros                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Long D B   His Hes Londale Edwin   Het Lord & Burnsam Co 184                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Wood T W                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Did at naturalm to Uld                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | TORRESTRONGE The                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |

Boilers

OF HIGH

For GREENHOUSES.

See pur Catalogue. . . . .

W Steam and W Hot Water. Gibiin & Co., Utica, N. Y.

WON SENT

WIL BRING YU 50 DIFFERENT HARMONIUS KOLOR KOMBINA-ONS FOR XTERIOR DEKORA-IONS OF HOUS AN HOM.

Hitchings & ESTABLISHED 50 YEARS.

HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS

GREENHOUSE HEATING AND VENTILATING APPARATUS.

THE HIGHEST AWARDS RECEIVED AT THE WORLD'S FAIR FOR HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTURE.
GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION AND HEATING APPARATUS.

Conservatories, Greenhouses, Palm Houses, etc., erected complete, with our patent Iron Frame Construction. Send four cents postage for illustrated catalogue.

NEW YORK. 233 Mercer Street.

VENTILATING APPARATUS 🔤 FLORISTS

LOW COST--SATISFACTION GUARANTEED

Send 5 cents postage to New York Office for latest catalogue of Greenhouse HEATING AND VENTI-LATING Apparatus. Send for estimates on CYPRESS GREENHOUSE MATERIAL, also for our PATENT IRON GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION. Send for circulars of HOT BED SASH AND FRAMES.

LORD & BURNHAM CO.

HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS.

NEW YORK OFFICE

ST. JAMES B.DG., Broadway and 26th St.

GENERAL OFFICE & WORKS IRVINGTON-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.

Thos. W. Weathered's Son

Horticultural Architect ····and Builder

Manufacturer of Greenhouse Heating and Ventilating Apparatus, Cypress Greenhouse Material of every description. Send four cents postage for illustrated catalogue.

141 Centre St., NEW YORK.

YOU CAN SAVE MONEY BY HAVING ME

BUILD AND HEAT YOUR GREENHOUSES

HENRY W. GIBBONS 134-136-138 LIBERTY STREET, NOW VADE

EXPERT ADVICE AND PLANS FURNISHED.

ESTIMATES FREE.

THE AMERICAN I LORIST

America is "the Prow of the Vessel; there may be more comfort Amidships, but we are the first to touch Unknown Seas."

Vol. XIII.

CHICAGO AND NEW YORK, MAY 7, 1898.

No. 518.

The American Florist

Copyright 1898, by American Florist Company. Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter,

Published every Saturday by AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY, 324 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Eastern Office: 67 Bromfield St., Boston.

Subscription, $1.00 a year. To Europe, $2.00. Subscriptions accepted only from the trade.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

OFFICERS-WM. F. GUDE, Washington, D. C., president; A. DONAGHUE, Omaha, Neb., vice-president; W. J. STEWART, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass., secretary; H. B. BEATTY, Oll City, Pa., treasurer. The fourteenth annual meeting will be held at Omaha, Neb., August 16-19, 1888.

THE AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Annual Convention at Philadelphia, February, 1889.
ALBERT M. HERR, Lancaster Pa., Secretary.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.
Annual meeting at Omaha, Neb., August, 1888.
ELMER D. SMITH, Adrian, Mich., secretary.

CONTENTS.

| he price of glass                                                                          |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| rehids for Borists                                                                         |
| adia Perrinii (illus.)onds and lakes for aquaticsJuscari botryoides album (illus.) |
| onds and lakes for aquatics                                                                |
| luscari botryoides album (ıllus.)                                                          |
| arnations                                                                                  |
| outhern development                                                                        |
| arnationsouthern developmentstablishment of Wolf & Co. (illus.)                    |
| good advertisement (illus.)                                                                |
| ew York.                                                                                   |
| ew York,ange of greenhouses creeted for P. Bradley                                     |
| (illus.)                                                                                   |
| hiladelphia                                                                                |
| (illus.)hiladelphiaoston                                                           |
| hicago                                                                                     |
| hicagon ever-blooming chrysanthemum (illus.)                                           |
| rafting chrysanthenums                                                                     |
| rafting chrysantheniums hading carnations and roses                                        |
| reenhouse building                                                                         |
| Tolet culture                                                                              |
| drummer's twaddle                                                                          |
| fiolet culture. drummer's twaddle                                                      |
| Cochester                                                                                  |
| Decorating                                                                                 |
| ochesterJecoratingJent quinquennial show                                           |
| leloful reminders                                                                          |
| lelpful remindersTursery tradeTurserymen's convention                              |
| Jursery tradeJurserymen's convention                                                   |
| apanese maples                                                                             |
|                                                                                            |
| lily experience symposium                                                                  |
| 'he seed trade                                                                             |
| ittsburgoungstown, O.                                                                  |
| oungstown, O                                                                               |
| ndianapolis                                                                                |
| 'atalogues received                                                                        |
| ndianapolis'atniognes receivedVorcester, Mass.                                     |
| Diseased pelargonium leaves                                                                |
| Experiments in carnation culture                                                           |
| farrisburg, Pa                                                                             |
| Vhen to fumigate                                                                           |
| Cashville, Tenn                                                                            |
| 'leveland                                                                                  |
|                                                                                            |

LOUISVILLE, KY.—C. K. Kunzman, being dissatisfied with the wholesale methods of disposing of stock, has opened a retail store at Jefferson and Eighth streets.

The Price of Glass.

FRANK HAYES DISCUSSES THE SITUATION.

The present unexampled conditions in the glass trade are affording no concern to H. M. Hooker, the venerable head of the Hooker Company, through which Chicago growers obtain a large proportion of their transparent roofing. Mr. Hooker has grown grty in the business in which his pocket book has become plethoric. It was more than four decades ago that he first jobbed glass and made paints. Before that he sold both lines in a drug store which he conducted on Randolph street diagonally across from the present location at the corner of Clinton.

It has been some time since Mr. Hooker shook from himself the cares for the details of his extensive business, placing the reins of management in the hands of Frank Hayes, junior partner in the company, who has been associated with Mr. Hooker for thirty-five years. The senior has not lost his commanding presence, his elastic step or his cheery manner of salutation and is wonderfully well preserved for a man in his seventieth year. He is at his desk each day, but having found strong shoulders to support the burden of business which he so long carried, is enjoying a freedom from responsibility earned by more than half a century of unceasing commercial activity.

Mr. Hayes is said to be one of the best posted glass dealers in Chicago. He makes a study of the trade in all its phazes, and in a recent conversation said:

"I am aware that a number of greenhouse owners are postponing large and much needed additions to their establishments, because of the prevailing altitude of the price of glass, and I don't blame them, but I regret that I can hold out no immediate prospect of lower prices; in fact, the next few days will see a further rise of at least 5% and possibly 10%.

"Where we formerly charged a grower $2.50 for fifty square feet of 16x24 we are now obliged to get $4, and I agree with the florist who considers the increase unwarranted. It makes far more difference with a greenhouse builder than it does with the man who is putting up any other sort of a structure but the rise is general throught all branches of the trade and is solely due to the organization of the American Glass Company, which, at its inception last year, controlled 95% of the furnaces in the country.

"To-day there are approximately 2,000 pots in operation in the United States and Canada. New independent furnaces are starting every day, but their production will not be sufficient to affect the market before June 30, upon which day the making of glass will cease for two months. The independent concerns will start up September 1, and their capacity by that time may equal 20% of the whole, in which case they may force the combine to begin operations on the same date and may provoke hostilities which will result in a cut in prices. However, such an eventuality is entirely problematical, and in my own mind I see no likelihood of a reduction before December 1, the date of the expiration of the agreement under which the glassmakers are now doing business.

"Never have American glass factories been so busy as they are to-day. The strike which kept the plants tied up for months last fall resulted in the absorbtion of all the stocks on hand. Then prices took their first leap. This spring's business has been the best in many years despite the fact that prices have not been so high since 1879, and now every factory has more orders than it can execute, with but two months in which to accumulate a stock to tide through the annual summer period of inactivity. The trust has just withdrawn its latest quotations, which indicates that another rise is at hand, and under existing conditions it seems more than probable that prices will achieve further heights before they recede.

"When the glass workers resumed their tasks after last fall's imbroglio they received an increase in wages of 15'; or about the increase which the Dingley law made in the glass schednle of the tariff. Despite this I believe that the profit to the maker of window glass is to-day not less than 40';. When the present agreement expires the workmen will insist upon a further increase in their pay, or I am much mistaken, and this, with the uncertainty as to the effect of the rapidly increasing independent competition to the combine, renders the future decidedly obscure. However, foreign glass can now be laid down in Chicago at prices less than that of American glass and I observe that importations are rapidly increasing, 22,000 boxes coming over last week. Therein is a ray of hope."

[Since Mr. Hayes gave the above interview the 10% rise which he predicted has become a fact.—Ep.]

Orchids for Florists.

After the cattleyas, the next in importance to the florist, are the ladias, and they are closely allied to each other, the difference being only a botanical one, the pollen masses being in eight masses instead of four, and there are no reasons why the kelias should be treated in any way different from the cattleyas except in individual instances, due to geographical distribution, and this applies equally to the cattleyas that grow at the extreme limits of latitude or clevation. Ladias are, however, much more widely distributed than the cattleyas, there being but one cattleya in Mexico, C. citrina, but quite a number of ladias, most of which are valuable to the florist as cut flowers, owing to their long stems and their flowering in midwinter. They are also easily procured at low prices and are, as a rule, easy to cultivate.

It is a great mistake to keep these orchids from the Mexican highlands in a close moist atmosphere with a dense shade on the glass; they are found on the trees at great altitudes; sometimes near the frost line, and always where plenty of sun and air reaches them. We have succeeded in flowering the white forms of Lælia anceps as freely as the colored type by placing the plants outdoors in the growing season, suspended in partial shade or where curely wired on fern fibre they seem quite at home and we have them now in flower with bulbs much larger than ever they made in Mexico. After the flowering season is past it is a mistake to keep the plants dry, as is often recommended, for it is at this time that they make their new roots that go to make up for the loss due to the strain that the flower spikes have put them under and to cause the bulbs to send out strong new growths in spring, and when it is seen that they need new receptacles, it is best done as soon as possible after flowering, as they have the resting period to recover in.

For the other lælias that are of value

For the other lælias that are of value to the florist we have to go to Brazil, where there are two that are very desirable. The first, L. purpurata, being one of the finest orchids known, as well as one of the best to grow and keep healthy. One often meets with fine old specimens of this that have been in collecthe force of the sun at midday is broken up by trees, and there is nothing left to be desired in the way the plants grow and flower. We shall place all the Lælia anceps outdoors in future early in June, and give them a spray with the hose every evening during warm weather. In the fall they must be brought indoors as soon as cold nights arrive and be placed in an arry house that will be kept at 55-during the winter months, which will misure a good crop of bloom for Christimas time.

LÆLIA PERRINII.

7 On the Mexican kinds referred to above there, re three that are valuable for florests Lacian albida, L. aurimmalis and L. anceps, all three thriving under the treatment named, but where the white variety of L. coleps is grown at its best to give here little more warnth in winter, as the coles said to come from the Pacific cast of Jeneo, and they like the warmest end of the house to mature the bulbs and flower stems. L. albida is best grown on blocks of term three and suspended at the ends of the house where they may get frequent spray from the hose in hot weather. This kind will not thrive well in pots unless suspended, and this makes considerable labor in water my where a number are grown, but se tions for long periods and they flower regularly each year in early summer, generally in May and June, and are valuable for festivities at that date as the color is pure white with a rich purple lip; there is, however, great variation in the coloring in individual plants and among those of recent importation may be found as fine varieties as were ever introduced. Although this plant comes from southern Brazil, it does not need any more heat than the cattleyas; we find that it grows weak among the cattleyas and is best at the cool end of the house, as the growth is made in winter when there is not much sun and air to mature them. Lælia crispa is similar in its needs, and is a useful variety to bloom in summer when summer flowers of a choice quality are wanted

Mention should also be made of the several dwarf growing forms of Lælia pinulla, they are so easily grown, require so little space, and the flowers are so large in proportion to the size of the plants, that a few of each are always a paying investment. It should also be mentioned that L. pinulla offers one of the best seed bearing parents to hybridizers of all lo lias and cattleyas. We have succeeded in getting up-seedlings in almost every instance when one of these forms were used, and this has also been the experience of others. Lælia præstans is generally regarded as a variety of L. Dayana is also good, its flowers being smaller but of richer color than the other two. We find that these dwarf kelias grow freely in shallow pans suspended near the light in a cool house in summer and with a little more warmth in winter with the cattleyas. A single flower makes a choice and elegant buttoniere for a gentleman, and we grow them for this especially.

Ponds and Lakes for Aquatics.

Too often, unfortunately, we may still see ponds of circular or oval shape with banks secured by stone walls or pebbles set in cement concrete that show above the water line. This may do for the horsepond of a farmyard, but it will not do for a watergarden. If it is worth our while to make a pond at all it should be also worth our while to pay attention to nature's most simple laws with regard to beauty, and when an artificial pond shows in its shore line curves that could not possibly have been formed by nature the effect is repulsive. When writing of water in the rock garden I mentioned that a pond in most cases should be treated as an expanded streamlet, and the curves of large ponds or lakes give no exception to that rule. A natural pond with a bold projection or promitory on one side will almost invariably show a still bolder recess on the opposite shore, and vice versa. If such projections are covered by vegetation that hides a portion of the water, so that from no point the whole of the surface can be seen, the effect will be all the more picturesque. A good example of this may be seen in the lakes at Birkenhead Park, which, in consequence of this partial obscuring of the water from certain points, appears much larger than it really is.

In the case of a broad stream or river flowing through some meadows within sight of the house, the simplest way to produce a pond or lake would, of course, be to widen the stream or river to the size that would seem most desirable. But if the pond and its banks are intended for a water garden this course would not be the most practical if the flow of water is at all rapid, because, after heavy rains, when the river swells and floods its surroundings, there would not only be a danger of the water plants being earried away, but silt, gravel and river mud would quickly fill up all recesses and thus practically destroy the beauty of the pond and choke the plants. The best plan in such a case is to "tap" the river, conduct the water intended for the supply of the pond some distance away from the original stream, and finally let overflow rejoin the river at a lower level. If the water is first conveyed in pipes, and made to flow in an opposite direction to that of the river, the danger of chokage by mud or silt will be entirely avoided. When laying out some grounds at Great Marlow a few years ago I made a most successful poud in the way just described, by tapping the river Thames. In most cases it may also be advisable to cover the month of the pipe by wire netting to keep out water rafs and other vermin. There is no reason why water drawn in this way from a river should not, at some little distance from the "tapping place," reappear in the shape of a natural streamlet before filling the pond, and here and there its water-soaked banks might become the home of all kinds of most suitable as well as beautiful plants. In like manner the water emerging as overflow from the pond might form a picturesque brook of any desirable length with or without waterfalls before rejoining the river.

In a case like the preceding, where the water supply would be practically un-limited, the comparatively small waste of water through absorption by the banks, and perhaps also by the hottom of the pond, would hardly need comment. But where the supply is scarce and the bottom and sides of the pond are of a porous nature, the latter would have to be either "puddled" or covered with concrete to prevent waste. Concreting on a large scale is always expensive work, and clay puddle, especially on the sides of banks, is very apt to be injured by water rats, to crumble away after a severe frost, or be washed away by the ripples of water moved by wind. Sometimes it so happens that the sub-soil consists at a certain depth of a tough clay which no water could penetrate, but that the soil at the required water level is of so porous a nature that it would not hold water. Naturally the first impulse in such a case would be to excavate the pond to the depth of the natural layer of clay, and then form banks of clay puddle at the sides. But there is a much cheaper and more simple plan. Instead of excavating to the clay, excavate only to a depth sufficient for growing aquatics (say two or three feet), and instead of piling up clay against the sides leave the sides untouched as much as possible, preferring the natural slope of the ground to dip below the water line. To prevent waste percolation surround the whole pond by a trench about eighteen inches wide excavated beyond the depth of the natural clay sub-soil. The whole of this trench should then be filled with claypuddle to a height extending slightly above the water level, filling up the remainder with ordinary soil, so that the whole is completely hidden. The trench should not be close to the shore line, neither need it follow the curves of the shore, but, as it would be invisible when finished, it might even be perfectly straight in some places if this would be a saving in distance. The advantages of this in distance. The advantages of this system are obvious. The water-tight puddle would be situated where it would neither wash nor crumble away. But the greatest advantage is that the ground intervening between the trench and the actual outline of the pond would be continuously soaked, and a natural bog for plants that love the waterside is thus formed without much trouble.

Very frequently a pond most suitable for a water garden can be formed by throwing a dam across a valley traversed by some streamlet. Generally this is effected by a straight or slightly curved wall, which is afterwards covered with soil, turf and plants with an opening from which the overflow water may emerge as a waterfall. As a rule such an opening is left near the middle of the dam and looks most unnatural, because the overflow emerges from what would be the broadest side of the pond. In nature this could scarcely ever occur. If we observe the natural formation of ponds, we find almost invariably that a streamlet becomes gradually wider and wider till a lake like expanse is formed; it then almost just as gradually contracts, and finally emerges again as a narrow streamlet. If the dam has to be made it would, therefore, be much more natural to have two walls gradully contracting till the desired outlet or overflow is provided. Any formal edging of stones or any other material around a pond would at once deprive the latter of all natural appearance, however carefully it might have been constructed. The best way of securing the shore line against crumbling and washing is to round off all edges till they form a gentle slope, and then lay down long pieces of good tough turf, which should be continued quite a foot below the water mark, and should be further secured by long sticks driven firmly through them and into the bank.

Islands in ponds should be arranged with due regard to such formations in nature. In natural lakes we find them not often in the middle, but generally just beyond a promontory, where they would justify the idea of having been severed from the mainland by the breaking through of the water, or if they are of a rocky nature by upheavals from the bottom. A circular mound of soil in the middle of the pond generally looks as ugly as can be, and most unnatural—F. W. Meyer, in The Gardener's Magazine.

Muscari Botryoides Album.

The white grape hyacinth or blue bottle are better known names for this really pretty Easter plant. It was first forced or grown as a pot plant in this neighborhood by Albert Woltemate, of Germantown. It comes into competition with lilies of the valley, being about the same height when in flower. It bears from eighteen to twenty-five spikes according to the number of plants in a 6-inch pot. It is treated the same way as hyacinths and other like stock, being wintered in a cold frame and requiring only a few days of heat to bring it out. Two spikes are generally produced from a bulb.

Carnations.

Hybridization is usually considered a matter to be attended to during the winter months, so that the seedlings can be flowered the following summer. If, however, you can possess your soul with enough patience to wait a year before you find out what results you have obtained from your experiments, May is a good month in which to hybridize and produce seed.

There is no time of the year when your carnations are in quite such good shape to produce good pollen and vigorous pistils as this month with the abundance of sunshine and the constant ventilation that is now on the houses. Later in the season the plants will have suffered too much from the heat, and earlier they have had too much artificial treatment.

MUSCARI BOTRYOIDES ALBUM.

ESTABLISHMENT OF WOLF & CO., SAVANNAH, GA.

The bees are the only objectionable feature in May hybridization and they can be easily avoided by selecting your flowers, covering them a day or so before the pollen is ripe with a cap made of tissue paper. This cap can be made by cutting a piece of tissue paper say six inches square and putting it over the flower, bringing the corners down below the petals and slipping a rubber band around it at the base of the flower; this will keep out all insects and yet give plenty of room around the top of the flower.

These caps should be put over both the flowers intended for work a day or so before the pollen is ripe and before the pistils are ready to receive it, so as to make it impossible to have any other pollen than which you want to use come in contact with them. This may seem nancessary with the pollen bearing plant, but if it is not protected a bee may come along the day the pollen is ripe with some from another plant on his body and drop a portion of it on the stamens you are working from and the result would be a mixture of pollen as complete as it you left the pistils uncovered to be fertilized by the bees themselves.

After you have fertilized the flower, it must be kept covered with the cap until the pollen has taken effect, which will be from one to three days, according to the condition of the plant and the weather. After the pollen has taken effect, and the petals of the flower dry off, it is best to pull them out carefully and leave only the alyx as a protection to the seed pod. This gives the air and light a chance to act to better advantage in the production of the seed.

When the seed pod attains its full growth and begins to turn a yellowish brown, it will be necessary to watch it earefully so that it does not get too ripe and burst or the bulk of your seed will be lost. As soon as the pod begins to open at the top pull it off with a good long stem and dry carefully until the bud opens up and oursts. Then your seed is ready to put way until Tebru cry, when it should be sown.

There are clew natural laws to bear in mind when you are selecting your flowers see hybridization, and the first and most important of these is the fact that in nine cases out of ten diseased parents will produce diseased seedlings. The next is that high culture, and high culture alone, will bring up the percentage of double flowers produced, and that starving the plant while it is deceloping the seed bines.

This st. Propagation - heald be begun as soon as the pollen has taken effect and the easiest method is to deprive the plant of water gradually until it is growing almost entirely dry, and by the time the seed has ripened it should be almost ready to die. This method of getting results may seem a bit odd to some growers, but if you will try it and note the difference in the proportion of good colors from seed grown in this manner over that grown in the usual way, you will find there is something in it. The seed will not be quite so plump and healthy looking as that grown without starvation, and there may be a few more of them that will not germinate; but all of this is made up in the quality of flowers produced.

Albert M. Herr.

Southern Development.

Of all the florists who have gained success from a modest start on a restricted capital, none have greater reason for self-complacent retrospect than have Wolf & Co., of Savannah, Ga., who embarked in business in 1895 and who are able to look back upon three years of hard work and wonderful growth in the face of strong competition. Most of their 5,000 feet of glass, shown in the accompanying illustration, is devoted to the culture of roses and carnations.

A Good Advertisement.

The accompanying illustration shows an advertisement as used by the American

Rose Co. in street cars. The cards are of varied design and painted by hand in colors. This is a costly form of advertising, but one which has attracted much attention.

New York.

IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS, — RECEIPTS LIGHTER AND DEMAND BETTER,—HARRY BAYERSDORFER SAILS,—KOFFMAN WILL OPEN A NEW YORK STORE,—LOCAL NOTES.

A slight improvement in the cut flower trade is noticed. The receipts have been steadily decreasing in volume during the past week, and pleasanter weather hav-ing come the demand has shown more life than for some time past. Many of the roses coming in are more or less disfigured with mildew, the result of the long period of wet weather. This seriously affects the prices, which are none too good at best. Violets are on the down grade, very few of them being of requisite size. Sweet peas are improving daily. Some growers have adopted the plan of cutting their peas in big branches, 18 to 24 inches long, with abundant foliage and tendrils. Twenty-five such sprays make a grand show in a big vase and bring good money. Vellow flowers seem to be in demand. Big trumpet daffodils of the fancy named kinds and bunches of bright yellow snap-dragons are popular. There are too many pansies in the plant market and prices are away down.

Many McGowan earnations and some of the other varieties have been dying off, from stem rot apparently, with the Long Island growers. Scott scems to be going along all right.

The steam ship Havel sailed for Europe on May 3. This announcement, of itself, would be of no special interest were it not for the fact that the smiling countenance of Mr. Harry Bayersdorfer was seen blooming radiantly among the passengers. Harry goes for "novelties." He has a host of friends who will wish him every success.

E Koffman will open a depot for his own specialties at 52 West 29th street as soon as necessary alterations are completed—probably about July I. His avowed intention is to sell for cash only; no money, no flowers.

The Paterson florists have appointed a committee to wait upon the city government and protest against the peddling of plants through the streets by outside parties without paying any liceuse.

A STREET CAR ADVERTISEMENT

RANGE OF GREENHOUSES ERECTED FOR MR. P. BRADLEY, AT HINGHAM, MASS., BY HITCHINGS & CO.

Mrs. I. Fosterman, of Newton, was married to Mr. Chas. Aishmann on Saturday, April 23. Mr. and Mrs. Aishman will reside in Brooklyn.

Robert Simpson will start in business for himself at Clifton, N. J., on the first of July.

Harry A. Siebrecht, Jr., is confined to his home by a severe bronchial trouble.

R. Wenham has removed from 359 Fifth avenue to 432 Fifth avenue.

P. Vos sailed for Holland via England April 30.

Philadelphia.

THE QUAKER CITY EXPERIENCES A WEEK OF QUIET.—ROSES IN DEMAND.—APRIL WEATHER.—PLANTING OUT TIME.—NOTES.—THE PLEONY SYMPOSIUM POSTPONED UNTIL JUNE.—THE MAY PICNIC.—LITTLE BEAUTY FUCHSIA.

Planting out season has arrived and all bedding plant men are busy. Roses are in good demand, and as the season grows warmer the eall for this class of stock promises to be excellent.

April passed out with a chill that gave a fright to growers who had young violets, carnations and other plants set out in the field. Although there was a severe storm of sleet and the mercury touched the freezing point, little damage seems to have been done. All danger now seems to be past.

Business in the stores is gradually dwindling to a summer basis, and customers are leaving orders daily to call for plants to be kept over the summer. Flowers are plentiful enough although the cold spell of last week threatened the crops for the time being. Beauties jumped in price, and those that were begging at from $1 to $2 per doz. readily brought from $3 to $4. Other kinds of flowers were in better supply, and prices remained about the same. Sweet peas are now quite plentiful at $1 to $1.50 per hundred; carnations at $1 to $2. The most popular kinds in this market are McGowan, Scott, Tidal Wave, Portia, Cartledge and Eldorado. Many others have come and gone since these favorites were introduced, but they are still the leaders. Victor and Flora Hill promise to be in favor next year.

George Faulkner, with Jos. Kift & Son, enlisted for the war, and is with his company of the State Fencibles. He is, as far as we have heard, the only soldier of the craft in this city to join in the nation's defense. Two men from the Dreer Nurseries, at Riverton, have volunteered, and no doubt many more will be found in line if another call should be found necessary.

Wm. Scott, of Buffalo, and his son, accompanied by Wm. Christenson, visited us this week. Mr. Scott is the Buffalo Bill of the flower business and is as popular in his sphere as is Col. Cody on the western ranches and among eastern show goers.

The May meeting of the Florists' Club Tuesday evening was quite well attended, the number present attesting the interest taken in the pæony, which was the subject for discussion. Mr. Joseph Heacock, who was to read an essay, was, however, nnavoidably absent, therefore the pæony symposium will be held in June, when there will also be a display of the cut blooms.

The benefit at the Walnut Street Theater on May 11 promises to be very successful as many tickets have been sold, a second allotment having been obtained to supply the demand.

The May picuic is to be held at Wissanoming on the Gun Club grounds, on May 25. A Maypole dance is to be the feature, or one of them, for we hear there are to be several. There is to be a feast with plenty of all sorts of good things to eat and drink; a shooting contest, games and trials of skill in which all may take part. Tickets are $1. If it rains on the 25th the pienic will be held on the week following.

ing.

Mr. Lonsdale exhibited at the club meeting a few very pretty plants of fuchsia Gracieux. This was raised and sent out from France, but when it reached this country it was re-christened Little Beauty. It is quite dwarf and carries a quantity of flowers with red sepals and blue corolla.

K.

Boston.

ELEVENTH ANNUAL SUPPER OF THE GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB.—A NOTED VISITOR.—THE HAVES AUCTION.—DEATH OF J. F. C. HYDE—IMPROVEMENTINTRADE.—SUPPLY AND DEMAND.—PERSONAL MENTION.

A very gratifying improvement in business is noted in all directions. As to the permanency of the recovery from the recent debility differing opinions are expressed, but all are glad to take as much benefit out of the present turn as possible. White carnations have struck a lively gait and there are not enough of them to meet the demand even at the figure of $3 per hundred for extra good flowers. Violets are rather weak as to demand, but are firm in price when of good quality. Lily of the valley has braced up nicely; so have longiflorum lilies and callas. On the other hand, tulips and daffodils, having reached the outdoor blooming season, are more noticeable as to bulk than value. Smilax continues scarce; those who want it have to pay a good stiff price, and are not expected to make any remarks regarding its length or thickness. The plant trade is approaching its height, and only waits for a cessation of the present cold, rainy weather. This week will about end the planting season in the nursery business, and seldom is it stretched out over so many weeks as in the present instance.

The eleventh annual supper of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club was held at Horticultural Hallon the evening of May 3, and was a very enjoyable affair. There were nearly 100 in attendance, the majority being young men. Some pretty plants and vases of blooms graced the tables and an orchestra furnished music.

On the head table large vases of the rival searlet carnations, Wellesley and Bon Ton, blinked defiance at each other and found their reflection in the blushing countenance of President George Anderson as he rose at the conclusion of the feasting and placed A. P. Calder in charge of the post-prandial programme. Mr. Calder was characteristically fluent and with anecdote and well-turned phrases soon had his audience in good humor to listen attentively to the veterans, Fred L. Harris and John Galvin, who were the first called upon. Lawrence Cotter, Warren Ewell and other local lights preceded the guest of the evening, Peter Barr, of Covent Garden, London, the renowned "Narcissus King," who wears the Victorian medal and whose genial countenance and fraternal handshake are an inspiration.

Mr. Barr pleaded inability to make a speech, and asserted that this peculiarity had carned for him at home the title of "Peter the Silent," but he spoke of how much he had enjoyed his sojourn in Boston and referred hopefully to the prospects of a closer unity among the English speaking peoples of the world, while the little American flag which adorned his buttonhole seemed to nestle close, as though it realized that it had discovered another staunch friend.

George Spaulding and Joe Mahan were the musical stars of the occasion and acquitted themselves with great credit. It is now in order for the young men who are not members of the club to come into line and give their allegiance to the organization the existence of which made it possible for them to enjoy so pleasant and profitable an evening.

The auction sale of plants at Oakmont, the F. B. Hayes' estate, which took place last Saturday, did not develop much competition and prices realized were very low. The big rhododendrons which have received so much admiration when in bloom under the big tent every spring were disposed of with ditheulty.

1.1. C. Hyde, who was president of the Massachusetts—Horticultural—Society from 1867 to 1870, and always an active supporter of that organization, died at his home in Newton, on May 2, aged 75 years—Mr. Hyde was the first mayor of the city of Sowton.

Lackson Dawson is suffering from a severe rold and unable to leave his house.

Chicago.

MAPERIC DISTRICT OF THE AND AND MAPERIC DISTRICT OF THE OF THE AND MAPERICAN OF THE AND MISTARD OF THE AND M

The past week has been one of decided dullness alt along the line. The clouds weather which we have experienced, to gether with the care extendent, general nowing and house cleaning have combined to depress the retaleutificaer trade to a point seldom it ever reached at this season of the vents gone by. Before the coul, damp weather set, in there was a good demand for small shrubs and the early spring stolling plants, and pairs is and daisies sold remarkably well, but the bad weather has materially reduced this class of trade.

Many flowers are being shipped out of the city, but at greatly reduced prices. There is a superabundance of all kinds of stock. Among roses Meteor is least plentiful, with Bride following in this regard. All short-stemmed Beauties are sold at some price, while extra select long stemmed stock will not go at $1.50 to $2 per dozen. Longiflorum lilies bring from $2 to $5 per 100; out-door grown lilv of the valley fetch from $1 to $2 per hundred; common roses command from $1 to $4 per 100 tor extra select stock; carnations bring from 40 cents to $2 per 100, with a few extra selects commanding $3.

E. H. Hunt was at his store Wednesday for the first time after several weeks ill-

Flint Kennicott returned to-day from West Baden, Ind., and O. P. Bassett will reach home from the same place on Sunday.

flerman Matti, a well-known North Side florist, formerly in partnership with Christ Muno, but lately with Wictor Bros., died suddenly last Saturday evening, of heart disease. He leaves a wife and one child, who have the sympathy of many friends.

L. H. Wise was in the city on Wednesday on his way home from Denver, Col., where for two years he has grown carnations for the Park Floral Co., to Newgestle Pa

Harry A. Stollery, grower for Stollery Bros., has taken a similar position with J. F. McDonough, of Newark, N. J.

Among the Chicago visitors recently were E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind.; N. J. Burt, of Burlington, Ia.; Mr. Boddington, of Chicas & Boddington Co., of New York, and Jacobus Keur, of the firm of C. Keur & Sons, bulb growers and nurserymen, of Hillegom, near Haarlem, Holland.

The wife of Frank Felke died Tuesday, May 3, leaving three small children. Frank is the voungest son of John and Mary Felke, and is with them out at Wilmette.

A. L. Randall went to West Baden, Ind., on Wednesday for a two weeks' rest.

An Ever-Blooming Chrysanthemum.

Schlegel's ever-blooming white chrysanthennum, as shown in the illustration, was grown by Robert Laurie, gardener to Cornelius Vanderbilt, at Newport, R. 1. These flowers measure from four to four and one half inches in diameter, and are from cuttings put in during the first week in February. The plants have bloomed ten weeks from the time the cuttings were started.

Mr. Laurie has made a trial of these chrysanthemums for the past two years, and says they are of easy culture and can be had in bloom at any season of the year, for once the flowers are removed the plants again branch from the bottom and bloom.

1. J. B.

SCHEEGEL S EVER-BLOOMING CHRYSANTHEMUM.

The American Florist

Subscription $1.00 a Year. To Europe, $2.00. Subscriptions accepted only from those in the trade.

Advertisements, 10 Cents a Line, A $1.00 per inch. Cash with Order Agate:

No Special Position Guaranteed.

Discounts, 6 times, 5 per cent; 13 times, 10 per cent; 26 times, 20 per cent; 52 times, 30 per cent.

The Advertising Department of the AMERICAN FLORIST is for Florists, Seedsmen, and dealers in wares pertaining to those lines ONLY.

Orders for less than one-half inch space not accepted. Advertisements must reach us by Wednesday to secure insertion in the issue for the following Saturday.

Address THE AMERICAN FLORIST CO., Chicago.

WE have received the report of the seventh annual meeting of the American Carnation Society, held in Chicago February 17 and 18.

A BUFF COLORED NARCISSUS was lately given an award of merit by the Royal Horticultural Society of England. This is quite a break in color among these flowers and may be the beginning of a new race.

Messrs. Hirchings & Co., horticaltural architects and builders, of New York, have under construction at the present time no less than twenty commercial or private greenhouses, located in nearly as many cities.

LORD & BURNHAM COMPANY, horticultural architects and builders, of Irvingtonon-Hudson, now have in course of construction a score of greenhouses and conservatories scattered from Massachusetts and New Jersey to Duluth, Minn., and Moscow, Idaho.

Cut Flower Price Lists Received.

W. A. McFadden, Cincinnati; H. L. Sunderbruch, Co., Cincinnati; Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee; Bassett & Washburn, Chicago; Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Grafting Chrysanthemums.

An article in the Gardening World (English) gives an account of an interesting experiment in grafting. With an idea of changing the character of the flowers, the top of a plant of one variety was cut off and the bottom grafted into a plant of another kind, both being planted in one pot, the result being to produce a stem of one variety supported by short stems of two varieties, and nourished by two distinct sets of roots.

The experiment, so far as it influenced the character of the flowers was a failure, but it was noted that the plant was much strengthened and the size of flowers increased. It seems quite likely that this process may prove of value in growing exhibition blooms, especially of weak growing varieties.

Shading Carnations and Roses.

Ed. Am. Florist: You would oblige me by advising, in the columns of the AMER-ICAN FLORIST, as to the best material for shading rose and carnation houses, also when and how to apply same. X. Y. Z.

Until last season we always used white lead mixed with coal oil, but requiring a large quantity we found this to be rather expensive. We are now using a mixture of whiting with a little linseed oil added and mixed with coal oil. This fills the bill, but care must be taken not to get too much linseed oil in the mixture or there will be trouble in removing it. It is best to apply a little first; allow it to dry and if a sharp rubortwo brings it off readily it is right for use.

Carnations should have been shaded a month or more past. An 8-inch strip down the center of each pane of glass will be ample, but it should not be too dense as the idea is to break the glare of the sun's rays and at the same time allow the plants as much light as possible. Light will never harm carnations where plenty of ventilation is available.

In regard to shading roschouses: With the weather we have been having so far this season there has been no necessity for shading. The only period of growth in which roses need shading is with old plants in mid-summer, when you want to prolong the crop. Shading should be removed as soon as young stock is started, and if any leaves are apt to become burned through blurs in the glass, go over the roof with a brush and daub the troublesome spots. As it is in summer and fall that we have to put the strength into our plants, we find clear sunlight to be their greatest requirement, the temperature being regulated by ven-

Greenhouse Building.

Quebee, Can.—J. T. Ross, conservatory. Duluth, Minn.—Geo. Spencer, large addition.

Cleveland, O.-C. Aul, greenhouse 20x70.

Newark, N. J.-W. Kraft, one rose house.

Nyaek, N. Y.-Depew Bros., one rose house.

Pittsburg, Pa.-II. C. Frick, large extension.

Omaha, Neb.-George A. Joslyn, large palm house.

West Hoboken, N. J.-E. G. Asmus, six rose houses.

Dover, N. V.-Mrs. H. D. Sherman, one plant house.

Albany, N. V.-Mrs. Dean Sage, one plant house.

New York, N. Y.-F. L. Loring, one eonservatory.
Westville, Conn.—Carl Rosien, rose

Milwaukee, Wis.-J. Breuss, one commercial house.

Summit, N. J.-Lager & Hurrell, orehid house 25x150.

Flushing, N. Y.-Thorne & Co., rose house 54x150.

Passaic, N. J.-P. Bannigan, four commercial houses. Muncie, Ind.-Jesse Carnes, office and earnation house. Plainfield, N. J.—C. M. McCutcheon, one plant house. Northampton, Mass.-H. W. Field, one commercial house. Lewiston, Me-Ernest Saunders, one commercial house. Northboro, Mass.-H. A. Cook, one commercial house. Guelph, Ont., Can.-A. W. Alexander, one conservatory. Dayton, O.—National Soldiers Home, palm house 50x100,

Youngstown, O.-E. Hippard, carnation house 35x100,

Woodside, N. Y.-Victor Dorval, earnation house 25x108.

Hillside, Pa. - Adolph Fahrenwold, three houses 20x120.

Short Hills, N. J-Thomas Jones, earnation house 18x100.

Seabright, N. J.-II. L. Terrell, range of palm and greenhouses.

Stoughton, Mass.-F. L. Rumney, commercial house 25x150.

West Derry, N. H.-Mrs. L. F. Cullen. one commercial house.
West Haven, Conn.—Thomas Pattison.

carnation house 20x65.

Tuxedo Park, N. V.-C. B. Alexander. greenhouse and grapery.
Westhampton, N. V.-W. F. Jagger, two

earnation houses 18x100. Lancaster, Pa.-Landis & Co., 10,000 feet of glass for earnations. Wissahickon Heights, Pa.-C.W. Henry.

large private conservatory. Jewett City, Conn.—A. A. Young, Jr., one carnation house 20x6.

Germantown, Pa.-J. W. Young, two commercial houses, 21x100.

Toledo, O.-Crane Brothers, four commercial houses, each 30x250.

Lancaster, Mass.—E. V. R. Thayer, grapery and nectarine house.

North Easton, Mass.—John McFarland, one commercial house 27x175.

Fairfield, Conn.-O. G. Jennings, large palm house, potting shed and office.

Riverton, Pa.-H. A. Dreer, eight modern houses to take place of old block.

Philadelphia, Pa. - Myers & Sarntman, house 24x170 for American Beauties. Braintree, Mass.-G. H. Arnold, one three-quarter span greenhouse 35x70. Leavenworth, Kas.-Kirkpatrick Bros.

rebuilding greenhouses destroyed by fire. Milwaukee, Wis.—Mitchell park, one conservatory, from plans of IL C. Koch & Co.

Chestnut Hill, Mass.—II. Dumaresq. grapery, nectarine house and violet house.

Moscow, Idaho.-University of Idaho. large greenhouse for experimental purposes.

Bridgeport, Conn.-Samuel Swan, one conservatory; T. W. Weathered's Son

Glen Cove, N. V.-F. G. Mense, commercial house 20x150; two violet houses 10x150.

Linden, N. J-Walter Luttgen, one three-quarter span and two even span greenhouses.

Madison, N. J.—Henry Hentz, Jr., five rose houses 20x175; one propagating house 9x175.

New Haven, Conn.-S. T. Bradley, carnation house 16x70. J. E. Hubinger, one conservatory.

Newburyport, Mass.-E. W. Pearson, one commercial house. J. J. Comley, two commercial houses.

Flatbush, N. V.—Dailledouze Bros., two earnation houses 22x200. Alfred Demeusy, one greenhouse 20x133, Elmira, N. Y.-Fred La France, 1,000 feet additional glass. Grove P. Rawson, two violet houses 200 feet long.

Bloomington, III.—Bloomington Ceme-Ward Service and Service W. T. tery Association, greenhouse. Hempstead, commercial house 20x60.

Ashtabula, O.-Dunbar & Hopkins, two greenhouses 24x125. Ashtabula Greenhouse Co., two greenhouses 22x140.

Spuyten Duyvel, N. Y-Thomas Douglas, rose house and grapery, each 20x75; T. W. Weathered's Son huilder.

Sharon Hill, Pa.—Robert Scott & Son, four carnation houses 21x200 with 6-foot propagation house beside each. F. II. Bull, range of greenhouses.

North Easton, Mass,-Oakes Ames, one conservatory consisting of center house for palms, two wings for orchids and laboratory for experiments.

Providence, R. L.—Fruit Hill Greenhouse Co., two commercial houses each 400 feet long. Butterick Pattern Co , two green houses, each 200 feet long.

Worcester, Mass.—II. F. A. Lange, 10,000 feet of commercial houses. II. F. Littlefield, one commercial house. Denholme, McKay & Co., one conservatory.

Chicago, Ill.-Wietor Bros., five rose houses 30x120. Julius Ristow, two rose houses 21x150. Herman Bauske, five rose houses 21x260. Magnuson & Pearson, one greenhouse 20x125. George Reinberg, six houses 21x265 for American Beauties. Peter Reinberg, six greenhouses 21x265.

Louisville, Ky.—C. II. Kunzman, two rose houses. Nanz & Neuner, rebuilding three rose houses, one 24x100 and two 19x100; also new range of violet houses. George Schultz, rose house 20x100, J. E. Marrett, four greenhouses 20x100. Coenen & Bohrman, new forcing houses. F. Walker & Co., two foreing houses 20x150. Anchorage Rose Co., house

Violet Culture.

In my last article on violets I described our method of field culture and benching. A few brief notes on the details of our method of growing the plants where they are to bloom should now follow in order to make my notes complete.

We grow only 1,000 plants in this way. The two houses in which we plant this number are 11x80, of equal span and built together without partition. The roofs are of common hotbed sash with 8x10 lights facing the east and west. The sashes on the west side are six feet long, while those on the east side are only five feet long, leaving a space one foot wide the whole length of the houses, which is covered with pine boards six feet long hung on hinges and used as ventilators. Both of these houses are heated by two flow and two return 4-inch hot water pipes, connected with the general heating system and controlled by valves as needed.

The solid bed is 8x75 and is situated partly in both of these houses, the center of it being directly under the gutter, extending four teet in each house, leaving a walk and a bench on the west side of one house and on the east side of the other. The last week in May or the first week in fune we prepare this bed by removing enough of the old soil so that we have a depth of six inches to be refilled with fresh loam, in which has been previously incorporated a sufficient quantity of well rotted manure. We either allow this loam to settle for a few days or tamp it with our feet before planting. The bed is then laid out in five rows in each house with 100 plants in each row, giving us 1,000 plants in equal distances of about 839 inches

The plants that we use for this purpose have been raised for the last two years from cuttings selected from plants that had a tendency to make only a very few runners, and have been grown in the same manner as described in my former article. As soon as they have established them relyes we remove the sashes from the east ride of the houses, the sashes on the west side being kept on all sommer and shaded This practice of leaving the sashes on the west side has given the best results, but why I am not prepared to say, and while I have a the as and the facts seem to bear me out as to the correctness of my conclusions. I besitate to state the same for fear that I may be wrong.
The summer bads and runners are packed off and the ground stirred up after each watering which keeps the plant free from weeds. This is followed up until the plants cover and completely shade the ground. So do not feel the plants during the summer, the fertility of the loam being sufficient for a healthy growth; but as soon as the blooming season arrives they are watered with liquid The sashes are replaced when manure. the benches have been planted, and the houses are regularly attended as to ventilating, watering and temperature.

This mode of culture has not given us any more or better flowers than the one described in my former article, while the cost of production is certainly higher. l cannot help but urge upon every grower to test for himself the general principles and different methods of growing violets. The question of the best method can only be solved locally, as the general results are conflicting in the different parts of the country, and I repeat that the best way to grow violets is the one where the cost of production does not exceed the price of the product, but leaves the largest margin for profits. CHAUTAUOPA.

A Drummer's Twaddle.

At Utica, N. Y., recently much pleasure was mingled with our business by the cordial character of the florists of that interesting city; genial Peter Crowe, with the same kindly greeting as of yore, had his latch string out and interesting things to show us about his well kept establishment. Of more than ordinary interest to the florist were some plants of Adiantum cuneatum Bardii, the original of which Mr. Crowe found growing on the wall of his fernery.

This is a most distinct form, with stems 20 to 26 inches long, so firm and wiry as to need no "stemming" in using for designs, the fronds of a deeper and richer green and tully as graceful as those of A cuncatum; for use with long stemmed roses it is especially valuable; quantities of it are shipped weekly to Boston, New Vork and Syracuse; but Mr. Crowe's main object is to work up a stock for dissemination among florists as soon as ready, and we know the craft is waiting for it.

C. F. Seitzer had a kindly greeting, and sensibly attested his appreciation of the AMERICAN FLORIST by flattering words and a subscription when he learned that he was the only one in Utica out of the fold. F. E. Shaw, in his tasty store, felt at peace with all mankind, and was rubbing his hands with satisfaction at the present trade and future prospects. No pent up Utica can restrain his powers" as one of the progressive florists of the east. J. C. Spencer was industriously disposing of orders crowding upon him, but he had time to treat us well. Humorous Frank Baker from his throne a sent on the counter-regaled us with his wittleisms, and enriched our experience very pleasantly, not forgetting a little order to "let us down easily," nor to pronounce his benediction on us as we went forth again on our everlasting

At Rome, S. Y., we met C. B. Humphicy, at his snug and tidy greenhouses, congratulating himself on the completion of a gas well on his premises, so that now a coal bill bath no terrors for him, as gas in sufficient volume is at hand to supply tuel for heating his place E. J. Byam, at the Labraty Greenhouses, recently built, was full of interest in his new business, and already has all be can attend to. Mr. Hughes, superintendent for Mrs. Morris F Jones, is carrying on for her a most morsstol business, and appearances of woldings and stock attest his skillful ed exceful management.

At Stracuse, N. V., we found P. R.

Ouinlan full of cares, and in that wrapt condition indicative of a man who has more than one iron in the fire; but Mr. Quinlan does not wear the clouded brow which many busy people have, and has always a gentlemanly and good-sense greeting for callers who know how to talk business without useless and com-mon-place verbiage. Modest "Bobby" Bard superintends Mr. Quinlan's green houses with remarkable efficiency, and besides knows how to cheer and entertain the pilgrim who is so fortunate as to meet him; the craft, also, is much indebted to "Bobby" in more ways than one, although you could not get him to say it. At Henry Burt's we found the proprietor busy, but with cordiality to spare, and he more than went out of his way to make our hurried visit agreeable. At his attractive store, his assistants were busy and trade lively.

Jumping to Buffalo we found Wm. Scott in the throes of removal to his new location at 546 Main street, on the right side of the street, and he gets on the right side of his customers also by this improvement in space and facilities. Scott's purpose in life is ever to move onward and upward and to become stronger -indeed there is nothing too strong for him-and while he indulges in gentle facetiousness regarding the guileless drummer we forgive him for he always has a drop of consolation, a cheery greeting and a plum of an order for every one who comes along. His place at Corfu suburb was started to grow the excess of stock which this practice yearly loads him up with, but like the darkies' gig of 4-11-44, which comes out once a year, Scott bits it with these plays and the blessings have returned tenfold.

Wm. Bucchi has started a Holland on a small seale at his place out on Genesee street, growing hyacinths, tulips, parcissus, fily of the valley, etc. We believe William is arranging to introduce general bulb growing into this country. Baumer Bros., a new firm of florists, have started at Pine Ridge, having purchased a good sized place, creeted four new greenhouses and a fifth one going up next month. One of the Messrs. Baumer has worked 21 years for Geo. Urban, and if the same skill and industry follows the firm which characterized Mr. Baumer's long apprenticeship they are bound to succeed.

We have been asked by several florists who want to grow the Crimson Rambler rose for next Easter how to manage for that end. Verbally, we have explained what we know, and for the benefit of those who have not succeeded with this plant, we advise to start good plants now in 6 inch to 8-inch pots, to grow through the summer cutting back all but four or five shoots, ripening off the stock October 15 to November 1. Starting plants again about ten weeks before wanted in bloom (Easter Sunday occurs April 2 next year), grow for the first two weeks in a temperature of 40 and the balance of their season at 50 to 55°. If good plants can not now be obtained from American aurserymen, say good strong 4 inch, or better still, dormant nursery grown plants, secure them early in November, pot at once and keep in a cool frame until time to start; these plants require more cutting back than they do by the former method, say onethird of their beight, but are grown, of course, during the ten weeks the same as the others. These directions followed out, with mildew and vermin looked after, will afford flowering plants at the proper season Buffalo EDDY.

Milwaukee.

GEORGE VOLK'S SAD CASE. - DEPARTMENT STORE METHODS OF ROSE SELLING. ROSE SCRATCHES AND OTHER NOTES.

Geo. Volk, who has been ill for some time, became violent last Thursday and was taken to an asylum for treatment. He has been suffering from indigestion for a long time and that, with insonmia, caused largely by over-work, destroyed his nervous system. Mr. Volk's business has been carried on in connection with J. M. Fox's grocery store, the arrangement being something on the order of the department store. Mr. Volk furnished the stock and Mr. Fox did the selling. It is to be hoped that Mr. Volk will recover shortly.

Several florists are suffering with sore hands, caused by scratches from roses, which it seems are poisonous. The scratches become inflamed and fester, in some cases resulting in blood poisoning. The same trouble occurred here a few years ago.

The weather has been cool and damp for this time of year, but appears quite favorable for the perfect development of the forsythia. They are completely cov-ered with the large yellow bells and are particularly conspicuous in yards where the house is of red brick.

Narcissus princeps has proven a successful crop for outside growing. Those planted in south exposures come earliest. The double varieties are not popular.

Flowers have not been plentiful lately and living prices have prevailed.

Gimball Bros., the largest department store, had a sale of imported roses last week. It was two-year, grafted stock and sold at 15 cents, two for 25 cents, or $1.25 per dozen. The store furnished printed directions for planting. They must have sold more plants in two days than all the local florists handlein a year, and florists have more bother and lose more time in dealing with a customer who purchases one dozen than Gimball Bros. had with the whole business.

The preparations for the June flower carnival are still talked about in the local papers, but we hear of no preparations being made by florists.

The Milwaukee Florists' Club is in a dormant condition. There has not been C. B. W. a meeting in four months.

Rochester, N. Y.

An unusually heavy demand in funeral work was the principal feature for the work was the principal leature for the week past; the very abundant supply of flowers in the market was none too great, especially in white. Everything in this line was readily disposed of, but prices have been, and are yet, rather low. White flowers are likely to be short in supply the a week or so and prices may go up if the demand should continue. The mild, sunny weather brings out roses and carnations very fast, therefore it is not expected that a rise would be enduring.

Florists are busy planting out their carnations and violets. The ground has been in fine condition for several weeks and is kept in shape by an occasional light rain, insuring a good start to the little plants. Even those which are planted out from flats have not suffered in the least, for we have had no hot or bright days nor drying winds so far.

The plant business continues good. A few azaleas are yet to be seen in the store windows. So are kalmias and rhododendrons, though the hydrangeas are the plants which, at present, sell best of all. Bedding plants are now offered in variety, and many of the grocery stores keep them on hand. Prices are ridiculously low, and there is but little profit in theni.

I. W. Keller is now settling up his accounts, intending to leave the commission business. He is the only wholesale florist in town and is very popular among the boys, but is, perhaps, a little too big-hearted for this peculiar branch of the J. B. K. business.

WINCHESTER, IND.—George St. Meyer has sold his greenhouses and will join the army to fight the Spanish.

BERKELEY, CAL.—The Berkeley Floral Society's annual spring flower show was held April 28 to 30 and was the most successful on record. The University of California exhibited numerous rare plants and flowers from its gardens and greenhouses, but the special feature was the display by George Tyler, of Alameda, Cal., of 275 varieties of pelargoniums. The show was in charge of W. C. Blasdale, W. H. Smythe, Col. Greenleaf and Mrs. W. S. Wattles.

SITUATIONS, WANTS, FOR SALE.

Advertisements under this head will be inserted at the rate of 10 cents a line (seven words) each insertion. Cash must accompany order. Plant advs. not admitted onder this head.

Every paid subscriber to the AMERICAN FLORIST for the year 18% is entitled to a five-line want adv. free to be used at any time during the year.

OlTUATION WANTED-By married man on private place; well posted on in and outdoor culture; 30 years' experience. Good references. Address Box 231, Lake Forest, Ill.

SITU ATION WANTED-By English florist: grower fine roses: carnations, 'moms, violets, etc.; disengaged; 20 years experience, best references. W G. Box 547, Alliance, O.

O'ITUATION WANTED—In commercial place by single man, age 30; grower of roses, carnations, mums, violets, valley and general stock. References. FREDERICK HILL 207 W. Seneca St., Oswego, N. Y.

SITUATION WANTED—By experienced and successful rose, carnation and violet grower, and all choice florist stock. Wages moderate; married. In or around Chicago. Address

J.P., care American Florist.

SITUATION WANTED—By a first class grower of roses, mums, carnetions, violets, tomatoes, cucumbers and other plants Best references; married, F. F. RENTZ.

7 Bitnerville, Lancaster City, Pa.

SITUATION WANTED-By a flort of executive ability and references in both lastide or outside work, propagating, etc., who desires to make a change in position, either private or commercial. Address B. Meier, Sewickiey, Allegheny Co., Pa.

SITUATION WANTED -By experienced dorlst, mar-ried (no children), middle age; eliber private or commercial place; understand ralsing general stock, greenbouse boiloing and stemm diting. Address FLORIST, 5739 Enston Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED-Greenhouses to rent by responsible flo-rist; country town preferred Address. FLORA. care American Florist.

WANTED-Catalogues of seeds and florists' suplements.

D. Moskovsky, S. A., Ujhely, Hungary.

WANTED-First-class grower to take charge of a section of rosehouses. Address WIETOR BROS. 51 Wabash Ave.. Cblcago.

WANTED AT ONCE—An all-round, good florist, single; $18 to $20 per month, with board and room.

JOHN D. BUSCH, Elgin, Ill.

WANTED-Three or four first class men for work-ing in palms and stove plants. Wakes no object to right man. Send copy of references. Address SP 11, care American Florist.

WANTED AT ONCE—Good florist for general green-house work. Wages $20 per month with board, and lner ase when satisfactory. HILI SDALE FLORAL PARK, Hilledale, Mich.

WANTED-Phot graphs of gardens and plans; also specimen plants hardy and otherwise. Send price and particulars to BURTON, care W. J. Stewart. 67 Bronnield St. Boston.

WANTED-As working foreman, a good rose grower on commercial place near Philacelphia, Pa.; must be sober, reliable and capable of taking charge. Wages 830 a month. References. Address A, care American Florist.

WANTED AT ONCE-Man for general gardening, especially understanding care of lawns, shrubbery and putting out bedding plants. Young man preterred. Address.

E. 1. B. P.O. Box 101, Northeast Harbor, Me.

WANTED—An experienced propagator and plantsman. One accustomed to hard and soft wooded plants, where a great many are grown for a catalogue trade; must be a hustler; no drinking man wanted, Apply with references to JAMES SOUDEN.

Foreman for L. L. May & Co. St. Paul, Minn.

WANTED—A good rose, carnation and violet grower as a working man to take charge of a commercial place; to a rellable, steady man, permanent position; maried man, small family, age 25 to 35, experienced. Send references, stating wages, with house, Address L, 256 Main St., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

FOR RENT-For greenhouse purposes, 32,700 square feet on Michigan Ave. Long lease and low rental. Room 922, 184 La Salle St., Chicago.

FOR SALE-Greenhouses on principal street in the city. For particulars apply to J. H. REBSTOCK, 584 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR SALE—One Hitchings boiler No. 16 in fair order. Will be sold low.
THE FLORAL EXCHANGE. 614 Chestnut St., Phila.

POR SALE—Florist's single covered wagon; height about 5 feet, width about 4 feet, length about 74 feet; built to order, costing $250. Used but 2 years. Will be sold chesp for cash.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, BOX 688, Chicago.

POR SALE—The greenbouse establishment of Schiller & Kuske, formerly Schiller & Mallander, Is offered for sile at a great serifice; $800 will buy 218-20 scres of valoable ground, 25 greenbouses, comprising 56 000 aquare feet of glass; wells, 2 nice dwelling houses, sheds, etc., located in the village of Niles Center, about 12 miles from the heart of Chicago; 15-cmles to depot. Terms, $5500 cash, balance on time; investigate Address correspondence to Pochimann Briss. Morion Grove Cook Co., Ill., or Herman Schiller, $20 W. Madison St., Chicago.

WANTED-TO BUY OR LEASE.

About 5 acres of land with glass and house within 10 miles of Boston. The land must be good rich loam; on a main line preferred Particulars to

F. BRUNTON & CO., 136 Boylston St., Boston-

FOR SALE.

Greenhouses in one of the best cittles in Wisconsin, A good investment and a money maker for a bustler. Owner must retire on account of poor health. For particulars write.

A. LEUBNER, Wausau, Wis.

SITUATION WANTED

by florist and gardener; pilvate or comme civil place; near Boston preferred. Ten years thorough experience in growing ross, carnations violets and general florists stock. Four years steady at present place as foreman; go dd maker-op and seller. German, single, 25 years old; 7 years in America. Honest, sober and steady. Best of references. Gnod wages expected. Ready May 2d. Address. H.S. care Am. Florist.

WANTED

PARTNER with $800, in an established business of 30,000 feet of glass; one who thoroughly understands raising roses, carnations, palms and all kinds of bedding plants. Married and middle aged man preferred. The establishment is in the principal part of the city and doing a very good business; good chance for the right man. Address C. E. T., care American Florist.

THE JORDAN FLORAL CO.

OF ST. LOUIS

Offer for sale their greenbouses, 20 in number, with complete heating plant, covering about 3 acres of ground, with all stock and good will of the business; will lesse ground on fair rentsi value long as wanted. Established irade for over 35 years; this is an opportunity of a life time to buy a good established business. Also have a large retail store opposite the post office. Apply to

Leon L. Hull Real Estate Co. ST. LOUIS, MO. 804 Chestnut St.,

FOR SALE OR RENT

VERY CHEAP.

Lotter for sale or rent my undivided init interest of the real estate of the greenhouse property formerly known as Schiller & Mallander situated in the village of Niles Center, abut 12 miles from busine-s center of Chicago and 1½ miles from Monton Grove R R. Depot. The property consists of 28 greenhouses, 2 dwelling houses, barns, wells and necessary sbeds on 212-20 agrees of fand inv. stigate Price for undivided half, $4.500; terms $1.000 cash, balance payable in seven enrly installments, secured by morigar's notes bearing 6 per cent. Interest, Or will rent o lease to some responsible party for a term of years st an annual rental of $4.50.00, giving option to lessee to buy my interest for above struce price, provided that said lesses will may 6 repairs the first year to the extent of $1.000. Will acquire deed to property May 18. Address

MRS. B. KUSKE.

Care Poehlmann Bros., Morton Grove, Cook Co., III.

THE "OLO RELIABLE" FOR

Hunt's Flowers Go Everywhere

76 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

WHOLESALE CUT FLOWERS AND FLORISTS SUPPLIES. WIRE WORK 88 WABASHAVE CHICAGO

E. C. AMLING, WHOLESALE

CHICAGO. Consignments Solicited. Prempt attention to shipping orders.

A. G. PRINCE & CO.

AND FLORISTS' SUPPLIES.

Agents for the Hinsdale Rose Co. Special attention paid to shipping orders.

88 & 90 Wabaan Avenue. CHICAGO. Telephone Main 3208.

Mention the American Florist when corresponding with an advertiser.

S. B. WINTER,

(Successor to WINTER & GLOVER,)

21 Randolph St, Chicago.

HIGH GRADE

PACKED RIGHT,

so they will reach you in just as good condition as they reach us.

WIPE DESIGNS: A Full Line. Write us for our lilustrated Catalogue.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| CHICAGO. May 6.                              |
|----------------------------------------------|
| Roses, Beautiesper doz75@2.00                |
| Brides 1.00@ 4.00                            |
| " Meteors, Bridesmalds, Kaiserin, 1,00@ 4.00 |
| " Gontfers, Perles 1.00@ 3.00                |
| " La France. Testout 2.00@ 4.00              |
| Carnations. common                           |
| fancy 2.00@ 3.00                             |
| Violets 40@ .75                              |
| Narcissus Poeticus                           |
| Harristl, Callas 2 00@ 5 00                  |
| Lily of the valley 1.00@ 3 00                |
| Tulips                                       |
| Sweet peas                                   |
| Gladioli 6.00 a 8.00                         |
| Adlantum                                     |
| Smilax                                       |
| Asparagus                                    |
| Panalea                                      |
| t diffice                                    |

Bassett & Washburn's ROSE PLANTS

We have an extra selected block of the following Rose Plants Will summintee them to be as fine as any grown

|                        |    |           | Per HIN |
|------------------------|----|-----------|---------|
| American Beauty21/2 In | po | t. $5 00 | $50.00 |
| Brides                 |  | 3 (0      | 25.00   |
| Bridesmaids            | •• | 3.00      | 25 00   |
| Kaiserin               | 44 | 3.50      | 30.00   |
| President Carnot       |  | 3 50      | 30.00   |

BASSETT & WASHBURN.

88 Wabash Avenue, CHICACO, ILL. Long Distance Phone Main 223.

eenhouse and Residence, Hinsdale, III. Long Distance Phone No. 10.

Wholesale Florist

Don't Forget that we are at 4 Washington St., Chicago.

Write for special quotations on large orders.

Wholesale Florísts یوسی

111 West 30th Street, NEW YORK.

Consignments Solicited. Telephone, 260 38th St.

AMES

Cood Flowers for your Money 49 WEST 29TH ST . NEW YORK. TELEPHONE 1675 38th St.

THE NEW YORK GUT FLOWER CO.

119 and 121 West 23d Street, 112 and 114 West 24th Street,

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED. Special Atlention Given to Shipping Orders.

ROGERS PARK FLORAL CO..

Wholesale Growers of

51 WABASH AVENUE.

CHICAGO.

HEADQUARTERS FOR AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

WHOLESALE GROWERS OF

600,000 feet of Glass. We can fill all orders on short notice with all leading varieties of Roses and Carnations. We Are Headquarters for line American Beautles. Give us a trial and convince yourself. I start at the start of the convince of the start o

AM BEAUTIES #3.50 LA FRANCE. 1.50BRIDESMAID 1.50

Per 100 Per 1000

$20,00

12.50

12.50

ROSE PLANTS

|                   |    |  |                |
|-------------------|----|------|----------------|
|                   |    |      | r 100 per 1000 |
| American Bean     | ty |  | $5,00 $45,00 |
| Meteor            |    |  | 3 00 25,00     |
| Bride             |    |  | 2 50 22,50     |
| Bridesmald .      |    |  | 2.50 - 22.50   |
| La France         |    |  | 2.50 - 22.50   |
| Kulserin          |    |  | 2.50 - 22.50   |
| stelle Slehrecht. |    |      |                |
| Smllax plants .   |    |      |                |

CARNATION CUTTINGS

OUT OF BLACK SOIL.

|                 |   |  |  |    |   |    |    |    |    |      |   |   |   |      |   | ı | н. | •   | 1      | 13( | 1  | per 1000 |
|-----------------|---|--|--|----|---|----|----|----|----|------|---|---|---|------|---|---|----|-----|--------|-----|----|----------|
| Wm Fentf        |   |  |  |    |   |    |    |    |    |      |   |   |   |      |   | Ī |    | 8   | 2      | O   | () | $20.00  |
| McGowan         |   |  |  |    |   |    |    |    |    |      |   |   |   |      |   |   |    | . : | $^{2}$ | b   | 0  | 20,00    |
| Koldnoor        |   |  |  |    |   |    |    |    |    |      |   |   |   |      |   | į | ,  |     | 2      | 6   | 11 | 20,00    |
| Day brenk       |   |  |  |    |   |    |    |    |    |      |   |   | ı |      |   |   |    |     | 2      | á   | 0  | 20,100   |
| Lizzle Gilb ect |   |  |  | ĺ. | ı |    |    |    |    |  | Ī | ì | ï |      |   |   | i  |     | 2      | b   | () | 20,00    |
| Emma W cher     |   |  |  |    |   |    |    |    |    |      |   |   |   |      |   |   |    |     |        | ò   |    | 20 10    |
| Go dffreh       |   |  |  |    | i | ì  |    | ì  |    |      |   |   |   |  |   | ì | ì  | . ' | 2.     | á   | 4) | 20.00    |
| Bridesmidd      |   |  |  |    |   | Ì. | ٠. | ٠. |    |      |   |   | Ī |      |   |   |    |     | 'n     | å   | 0  | 20.10    |
| .Inblied        | Ċ |  |  |    | ï |    |    |    | ı. |      | i | i | ì |      |   |   |    |     | 6      | Ð   | (1 | 40,00    |
| Flora 1001      |   |  |  |    | Ĺ | ï  |    |    |    |      | Ċ | Ĺ | ì |      | Ċ | ì |    |     | Ď.     | 0   | () | 40.00    |
| Maxie Placen    |   |  |  |    |   |    |    |    |    |      |   |   |   |      |   |   |    |     | ŗ,     | a   | 41 | 30.00    |

REINBERG BROS., 51 WABASH AVENUE, CHICAGO.

M. A. HART. Commission Dealer Cut Flowers. 44 WEST 29TH STREET,

NEW YORK CITY.

THE BEST MARKET IN NEW YORK. 'Phone 1307 38th St.

TRAENDLY & SCHENCK. Wholesale Florists.

Control the stock of many celebrated growers and are prepared to quote prices on First Grade Cut Flowers. All varieties.

38 West 28th St., and Cut Flower Exchange, Tel. 961 18th Street. NEW YORK CITY.

FRED. EHRET.

No. 1403 Fairmount Avenue,

PHILADELPHIA. Telephone, Long Distance.

Wholesale Flower Markets

NEW YORK May 1

| Mr. W TORK, may 4.                            |
|-----------------------------------------------|
| Roses Besutles. Rybrid 4 00@12 00             |
| Jacqs 4.00@ 8.00 Bridesmaids, Testout, Carnot |
| Bridesmaids, Testout, Carnot                  |
| " MOTESTA MELECT                              |
| Carnetions                                    |
| Lity of the valley                            |
| Sweet peas, per 100 hunches. 8 00@10.00       |
| Daffodils, Tulips (outdoor)                   |
| Violets                                       |
| Harristi, Callas                              |
| Smilax                                        |
| Asparagus 40.00@50.00                         |
|                                               |
| Boston, May 4                                 |
| Roses, Beauties, Brunners 5 00@15.00          |
| " Morgan, Meteor 1 00@ 4 00                   |
| " Brides, Bridesmaids, Carnot 2 00@ 6.00      |
| Carnetions                                    |
| " fancy 2.00@ 3.00                            |
| Lilv of the valley 2.00@ 3.00                 |
| Daffodile, Tulips (outside) 50@ 1 00          |
| Violets 50@ .75                               |
| Herriell, Calles                              |
| Agnaragus 50.00                               |
| Smilax                                        |
|                                               |
| PHILADELPHIA, May 4.                          |
| Roses, Beauties, per dozen 3.00@ 4.00         |
|                                               |
|                                               |
| Carnations                                    |
| Lily of the valley, Narcissus 3 00@ 4.00      |
| Violets                                       |
| 11yacinths                                    |
| Harrish                                       |
| Sweet peas 1 00@ 1.50                         |
| 0-11-4                                        |

LUDLOW ST. 7 PHILADELPHIA. PA

John I. Raynor,

49 WEST 28th STREET.

-NEW YORK.

SPECIAL EXTRA STOCK OF

AM. BEAUTY, METEOR, BRIDESMAID, BRIDE.

Record Breaking Carnations ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

THOS. YOUNG, JR.

* * Wholesale Florist

43 West 28th Street, New York.

WALTER F. SHERIDAN. WHOLESALE

ORIST.

39 West 28th Street, NEW YORK.

Roses shipped to all points. Price list on application.

ose Growers

Will find a good market and good returns for their stock at....

JULIUS LANG'S 53 W. 30th Street. - NEW YORK.

Edward C. Horan.

34 W. 29th Street, NEW YORK. WHOLESALE • FLORIST.

Careful Shipping to all parts of the country.

Price list on application.

WM. C. SMITH, Wholesale Florist

40 So. 16th St., PHILADELPHIA.

Consignments Solicited. Special attention given to shipping orders

Long Distance Telephone 5008 A.

9 Chapman Place, 15 Province Street, CITY HALL CUT FLOWER MARKET, BOSTON, MASS.

WELCH BROS., PROPRIETORS. Consignments from regular growers assigned separate space in oor market. We goarantee payment for all Flowers soid. Sales reported weekly; payments monthly, or oftener if required.

THE NEW ENGLAND HEADQUARTERS FOR THE BEST GRADE OF FLOWERS AT ALL SEASONS OF THE YEAR.

J. K. ALLEN. Wholesale Florist.

WHITE VIOLETS, fluest quality. EXTRA ROSES and other desirable specialties.

57 West 28th Street,

Long Distance Telephone 382-38th St NEW YORK.

GALVIN&CO. Wholesale Florists

AND DEALERS IN ALL

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES,

4 Ordway Place, BOSTON, MASS. Cut Flower Consignments Solicited. Best market.

GEORGE A. SUTHERLAND, Cut Flowers & Florists' Supplies WHOLESALE.

67 Bromfield St.,

BOSTON, MASS.

JOBBERS IN

wnoiesale Florists ALWAYS ON HAND: CARNATIONS.

Horticultural Auctlopeers. HAWLEY STREET, . BOSTON.

JOHN YOUNG, ROSES, CARNATIONS, VALLEY

and all other choice cut flower stock. NEW YORK. 51 W. 28th Street. Price list on application.

FRANK MILLANG,

TIT FLOWERS.

WHOLESALE COMMISSION.

408 E. 34th Street.

Cut Flower Exchange.

NEW YORK.

Decorating.

In the Easter number of the AMERICAN FLORIST we are given illustrations of decorated plants and flower pots. Shades of Flora preserve us! To what are we coming when the decorative must be decorated? We have had the tissue paper craze with all its horrors; curtains and dressers, and lamp shades, etc., etc., have been bedecked and swathed in it, and impossible flowers of every description have offended our artistic sense, and now that its star is in the descendent, it has attacked our darlings of the greenhouse.

What have they done that such indignity should be heaped upon them; they who have occupied the highest place in decoration are to be decorated, to have a wardrobe with petticoats and sashes, trills and furbelows. Who knows but each plant will yet own a Saratoga trunk, and should the idea be carried out still further into the garden our trees will be wearing gowns and trousers with dressmakers and tailors employed especially for them.

In the name of all that is beautiful, graceful and artistic I protest.

THEODOSIA B. SHEPERD.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—John Aitkin, aged 58, died at his residence, 99 Marble street, on April 30. Mr. Aitkin has conducted a florist's establishment on Main street for the past six years.

No. 60. _____

if presented on any Tuesday or Friday during the spring season will entitle THE BEARER to a good comfortable seat at

CLEARY'S

where he can purchase at his own figures anything and everything in plants, roots, trees and shrubs.....

Sales at 60 Vesey Street, NEW YORK, 11 A. M.
EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY.

N. Y. GUT FLOWER EXCHANGE

404-412 E. 34th St. Near Ferry. Open for Cut Flower Sales at 6 o'clock Every Morning.....

DESIRABLE WALL SPACE TO RENT FOR ADVERTISING.

JOHN DONALDSON, Secretary.

HOLTON & HUNKEL CO.

HELLENSON TO

The Wisconsin Flower Exchange.
Fresh Cut Flowers, Florists' Supplies
Manufacturers of WIRL DESIGNS

Constronients Solicited

Phone Main 974

457 Milwaukee St., MILWAUKEE.

Asparagus Plumosus Nanus,

Strings 8 to 10 feet long,

50 CENTS.

W. H. ELLIOTT, Brighton, Mass.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| Cincinnati, May 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Roses, Beauties, select                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| medlum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| " Brides Bridesmalds 3 00@ 4.60                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| " Meteors 4.00@ 5.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| " Perle 3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Carnations 1 00% I 50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| " fancy 2 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Marguerites 25                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Harrish 8 00@10.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Callas 6.00@ 8.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Smllax 12.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Adiantum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Asparagus 50.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Om Yourse Man 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| ST. LOUIS, May 5.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Roses, Beautles                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Meteora 1.00@ 4.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Brides, Bridesmaids, 1.00@ 4.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 1 01103 1.000 4.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| BAINGTID I.UNG 1.UU                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Carnations 1.00@ 3 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Carnations         1,00@ 3 00           Violets, California         .35           "double         .35                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| " dvuble35                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Lilv of the valley                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Harrisii 6 00@10 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Callas 5.00@ 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Smtlax                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Cashanita in the cash of the c |
| MILWAUKEE, May 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Roses. Beauties 10.00@20.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| " Bridea, Brideamaida 2 00@ 5 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| " Perle                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| " Meteors 2 00@ 5 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Carnations                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Sweet peas                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Lily of the valley                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Lity of the valley. 3.00 Tultps, Von Slons. 2.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Hyacinths 2 00@ 3 00 Callas Harrish 6 00@ 8.00 Smllax 12 50@ 15.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Callas Harrish 8 000 8 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 2mllay 19 50/215 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Adjortum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Adlantum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Pansles                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Common ferns. 20                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| 1rls 4 00@ 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| BUFFALO, May 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Roses. Beauties                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Rosea, Beauties                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| " Perlea 3 00@ 4 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| " Niphetos 3.00@ 4.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| " Koloorin " 000 4.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| " Kaiserin 3.00@ 6.00Carnations, white and colored 1 00@ 2 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Califations, white and colored 1 000 2 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Daybrenk and fancles 2,00@ 3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Lily of the valley 3 00@ 4.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Vloiets                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Hyacinths                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Harrisit 8 00@10.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Callas 6.00c310.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Tulips 1 00@ 2.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Daffodits                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Panales                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Smilax 15.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Adjentum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |

Your Spring Plant Trade

will come easier, and be more profitable if solicited in the nice way you can do such things by means of

LONG'S

FLORAL BLOTTERS

Samples for 20 ets, in stamps

DAN'L B. LONG, Publisher

Successful Growers are Wanted

To know that they can dispose of all their surplus stock by advertising in the American Florest. TRY IT NOW!

C. A. KUEHN, Wholesale Florist,

1122 PINE STREET,

ST. LOUIS, MO.

A complete line of Wire Designs.

MOUND CITY CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED

Special attention given to shipping orders
1322 Pine St., ST. LOUIS, MO.

FLOWERS

EKS ....WHOLESALE....

.....ROSES, and a full line
Headquarters for the South West.....

When writing mention American Florist

ST. LOUIS CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists

E. H. MICHEL

1620 Olive St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

ROSES, CARNATIONS, AND ALL KINDS OF SEASONABLE FLOWERS IN STOCK.

WM. F. KASTING COMMISSION FLORIST...

495 Washington St., Buffalo, N. Y.
Also Dealer in Florists' Supplies and Wire Designs

Going, Going, Gone!

and it's your own fault if you don't get the bargains. Auction Sales of Planis every Tuesday. Thursday and Saturday at 9 A. M. at . . . . .

McCarthy & co.'s

84 Hawley Street, BOSTON, MASS.

you want to buy, send for Catalogues. A you want to sell, write for terms.

IT PAYS!

Ghent Quinquennial Show.

An international horticultural exhibition has just been held (April 16 to 24) by the Royal Agricultural and Botanical Society of Ghent, Belgium, and was a very extensive and successful affair. The society is about 90 years old, and this is its 163rd exhibition, being the fourteenth international one, the latter exhibitions being held every five years.

Helpful Reminders.

If you have sown seeds of perennials as suggested weeks ago, they should now be transplanted in rows to the open ground and carefully labeled. They will be just right for fall or spring delivery. There are several perennials which are as useful for cutting as for landscape work, and these should be grown in larger quantities. Some of them are achillea, white, comes in when carnations are scarce; boltonia, pink, long sprays for vases; convallaria; coreopsis, a desirable yellow flower; larkspur, when blue is wanted. The florists are often called on for red, white and blue, and blue is usually scarce. It is well to provide campanulas, which are blue, also, and come in well where short stems will answer. Forget-me-nots are useful, and above all, for artistic effect, include iris. Gypsophila is valuable for white and delicate covering. Monarda is a striking scarlet. Paonies are always in demand. Pyrethrum uliginosum is valuable. Rudbeckia Golden Glow and double sunflower are useful for yellow. In addition to these perennials agapanthus is a desirable blue, and the common white lilac and Hydrangea paniculata are often available. Now is the time to provide any of these plants. The Clematis paniculata in pots, trained on cane stakes, comes in good for decorations; in fact all clematis should be grown in pots, because there is sale for them all summer.

All shrubby plants which have been grown for bloom, now that the blooming season is over, should be treated with care to induce strong growth of new wood, bearing in mind that it is the wood formed now that blooms next season. This is particularly true of deutzia. We are too apt to put them to one side carlessly, considering them of no value until next season.

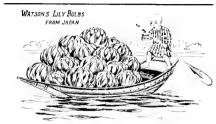

It is time now to arrange for next winter's crop of euphorbias, either the poinsettia or Jacquinæflora. For some reason the Jacquineflora variety does not appear to be well known. It is quite easily grown and very attractive, being one of the most graceful sprays for vases.

Take all your stock plants and trim them to the desired shape; shake out and replant in good soil. Keep them growing. Set outside after June 1, and take in to warm by September 10. Of the wood cut off make cuttings of two or three eyes; put them in ordinary cutting bench; keep moist and a tritle shaded. They are quite a long while in rooting, but the principal point is to keep them growing in a temperature not below 60° at at any time, day or night. If you are prepared to give them the best do not omit E. Jacquinæflora, but if vou cannot maintain the temperature don't grow them at all, as they will only be rubbish.

Don't allow yourself to feel that it is safe to go without fire because it is May. Keep up the proper temperature as carefully as if it were January, and do not measure crops by quantity until quality is assured.

It is time to start bouvardia; put in cuttings where stock is not large enough; trim up old plants and give them a top-dressing. This will keep them in trim until the latter part of June, when you will have time and space to plant a bed of this beautiful flower. It comes next to the carnation and rose in general usefulness, and until the wholesale growers become enterprising enough to supply it we must grow it ourselves. Provide yourself with pink, white and C. B. W.

LONGIFLORUM PURE STOCK . SOUND AND WELL RIPENED.

On account of the scarcity of the larger sizes of JAPAN LONGI-FLORUM and the large demand for same this season I have to request that orders be booked EARLY to avoid disappointment. I offer 3 sizes namely: 5-7, 7-9 and 9-10 inches, but can only accept orders for the larger sizes when fair proportion of the smaller is taken. Delivery Sept. 25 to Oct. 15, 1898. Prices on application. Would be pleased also to get your general order for other Forcing Bulbs and Roots at same time. Address all orders and correspondence to Juniper and Walnut Sts., Philadelphia.

G. C. WATSON.

SUPREME COUNCIL

Of the Royal Arcanum

Will hold a meeting in Cleveland, O., May 18-25 for which the Nickel Plate Road is authorized to sell tickets at one and one-third fare for the round trip, on certificate plan. Unexcelled dining car service. Vestibuled sleeping cars. Three through trains daily from the Van Buren Street l'assenger Station. For full particulars call up telephone Main 3389 or address J. Y. Calahan, Gen'l Agent, 111 Adams Street, Chicago.-(13)

BAPTIST ANNIVERSARIES

Rochester, N. Y., May 16-24, 1898.

THE NICKEL PLATE ROAD is authorized to sell tickets to Rochester, N. Y. and return, at one fare and one-third for the round trip, on certificate plan, account of above meeting. Tickets good on any of our through express trains leaving Chicago daily from Van Buren Street Passenger Station at 10:35 A. M., 2:55 P. M., and 10:15 P. M. Vestibuled sleeping cars and unsurpassed dining car service. You will save time and money by patronizing the Nickel Plate Road. For further information address J. Y. CALAHAN. Gen'l Agt., 111 Adams St., Chicago, or 'phone Main 3389. -(16)

For Insurance against damage by hail, Address

JOHN G. ESLER, Sec'y, F. H. A., Saddle River. N. J

THIS IMPRINT ON AN ENGRAVING

CHICAGO

IS A CUARANTEE OF SATISFACTORY QUALITY....

Manz makes illustrations for this paper.

GEO. E. COLE & CO. Blank Book Makers. Stationers and Printers

86 and 88 Dearborn Street.; CHICAGO.

THE Regan Printing House NURSERY CATALOGUES SEED FLORISTS

87-91 Plymouth Place, ***CHICAGO***

A LL Nurserymen, Seedsmen and Florists wishing to do business with Europe should send for the . . . .

"Horticultural Advertiser"

This is Ihe British Trade Paper, being read weekly by all Horticultural traders: it is also taken by over 1000 of the best Continental houses. Address EDITORS OF THE "H. A."

Chilwell Nurseries. - Notts, England.

. . . THE . . .

"Lyon=Horticole" is an interesting review of French horticulture. Issued semi-monthly. 20 8-vo. pages illustrated. Subscriptions to the United States. 1 year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00. Address

DIRECTEUR LYON-HORTICOLE, Lyon-Villeurbanne, France.

FLORISTS' MUTUAL

INSURANCE ASS'N

Application Blanks and Prospectus Ready.... Write now. Delays are dangerous.

W. J. VESEY, Sec'y, - Ft. Wayne, Ind.

THE NATIONAL Florists Board of Trade

C. S LODER, Sec'y, 271 Broadway. New York.

THE WABASH R. R. COMPANY

The Short and Quick Line between the East and West connecting Buffalo. Detroit and Toledo with Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

The Wabash is the Only Line running sleeping cars and chair cars (free) between Buffalo and St. Louis and Kansas City.

Through sleeping cars between New York and Boston and St. Louis and Chicago run every day.

For further information apply to the nearest Kailroad Ticket Agent, or to

H. B. McCLELLAN, G. E. A.,

387 Broadway, New York City,

J. D. McBEATH, N. E. P. A., 5 Stale Street, Boston, Mass.

C. S. CRANE, G.n. Pass. & Tkl. Act., St. Louis, Ne

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN. IRVING ROUSE, Pres.; E. Albertson Vice-Pres.; George C Seager, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y and Treas.

VANCOUVER, B. C .- There is great indignation felt in many a British Columbian household just now over the ruthless confiscation and destruction at the hands of the Canadian customs officials of choice nursery stock imported from Oregon, Washington, California, New York and other horticultural centers in the United #### Nurserymen's Convention.

We have received the preliminary programme of the twenty-third annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, to be held at Omaha, Neb., June 8 and 9. There will be discussions at the sessions of matters of vital interest and reports of committees charged with important duties in the interest of nur-serymen. Those who will address the meeting, and their subjects, so far as known at present, are as follows: Irving Rouse, of Rochester, N. Y., President's address; Prof. S. M. Emery, of the Montana Experiment Station, Bozeman, Montana Experiment Station, Bozeman, Monta, "Fruit Prospects in Montana"; Prof. F. W. Taylor, of Lincoln, Neb., "Relation of Agriculture to the Exposition"; Hon. C.L. Watrons, of Des Moines, la., "A Little Matter of Business"; Hon. N. H. Albaugh, Tadmar, Ohio, "Is the Insect Agitation of the Present Day a Good or Bad Thing for the Nurseryman?" President Gurdon W. Wattles, of the Trans, Mississippi and International Ex-Trans-Mississippi and International Exposition, will address the members and welcome them to the city of Omaha and the exposition

Japanese Maples.

En Asi, l'norist:-Please let me know something about Japanese maples and their treatment through your next issue. M. D. G.

The question is rather a broad one, as it is said that Japan and China contain some thirty species of maples. Your correspondent probably refers to the garden forms generally grown as shrubs with us. Acer palmatum and A Japonicum are the types that give us many varied forms, versed both in shape and color of leaf. Many plants are imported each year from 1 page that are well adapted for pot culture. Some are curiously inarched and grated with from twe to seven varieties, and do we'l as veranda plants, especially if grown in rustic pots. In the earlier part of the season the coloring of their part of the season the coloring of their boliage is line, but toward fall it fades k-enexit. A palmatum, often called A polymorphism, is the parent of atto-purpure im, dissection, punnatfidum, san gumenm, and others. They like a loamy k-all, red considerable moisture. Nearly all of our eastern museries carry all but the builtigrafted forms, and these may be c at oned to or dealers in Japanese plants

Good Poses Without Gralting.

Anderson, or this city, has been er, some essent with his Branners this see. sen. An assenor in bloom is in extra far slage. He has dso two good houses of European to of are about as line as any thing I have seen in this neighborhood beerge say. They half about grafting Laser is beyon see any need of grafting see as a li would look mg straig as if grafting was superfluous if such strong growth can be got on own root stock as here shown. I notice, however, that George has a thousand young Bridesmaids of grafted stock ready to put in, so that he is not altogether to be counted on Mr. May's side yet on this agitating question of the moment.

Philadelphia.

OUR SPECIALTIES

AZALEAS, ROSES, RHODODENDRONS

New and rare bardy plants for forcing. Novelties in Ferns (raised by the largest London grower). The newest and best varieties of roses; H P, and Tea scenied, from a French raiser. Write us and ask for quotations. We import direct to Boston to meet the demand from Canada and New Englai d States.

F. Brunton & Co.

IMPORTERS AND EXPORTERS OF NEW AND RARE PLANTS.

136 Boylston Street, - BOSTON, MASS.

TOKYO... NURSERIES CO.

Ileadquarters for Japan Lilies.Cycas Revoluta, Moralbg Glory, all k nds of Japanese plants, seeds etc., etc., Larke assortment algrenation of the seeds of the se

The Tokyo Nurseries Co.

Komagome, Tokyo, (JAPAN)

Cable Address
"Nurseries" Tokyo.

EVERGREENS. Etc.
20 000 American Arbor Vities, 2 to 8 feet specimens and hedging plants.
5,000 Pyramidal Arbor Vities, 2 to 1 feet 20 000 Compacto, (dobe and other dwarf Arbor Vities, all sizes.
3 000 Aordinan's Silver Fir 1 to 212 feet.
5,000 Faropean Silver Fir 2 to 4 feet.
10 000 Remock Sprace, 1 to 4 feet.
10 000 Getmosporas, Spharrosa Plumosa Plumosa aurea and other sorts 1 to 5 feet.
10 000 Pines Austrian Scotch, Eveclsa, White and dwarf varieties all sizes.
1000 Lingish Holly I to 4 feet.
3,000 Anonymous radicates variegata.
1,000 Lingish Holly I to 4 feet.
3,000 Mahomas apprehaams and Japonica.
2,001 Lingish by strong plants.
Prines low Correspondence scheeted

THE WM. H. MOON CO., Morrisville, Pa.

THE WM. H. MOON CO., Morrisville, Pa.

IMPORTERS

JAPANESE PLANTS,

BULLIS, ETC.

At lowest prices. Small orders filled from experi-mental garden Colombia Road Hotchester, Mass Wholesale entalogue, 1828 Tree to the trade.

JAPANESE NURSERY,

Office: 272 Boylston St.,

Hemlock Spruce...

18-21 and 21-38 inch

Azalea Indica for tall use the for prices on other items

HIRAM T. JONES,

Louis Lou ly Surseries. EFIZABETH, N. J.

Armstrong's

Everblooming

Tuberose & &

A NEW departure in Tuberose growth.
Flower bearing buds continue to form around the old flower stock indefinitely.
Flowers greatly superior to those of all other single Tuberoses. Awarded Certificate of Merit by the S. A. F. at Providence last August, and the Shaw Gold Medal at St. Louis in November.

For Prices and Particulars
...Address...

LUTHER ARMSTRONG,
3720 Olive St., ST. LOUIS MO.

Florists' Stock for Bedding

Alternauthera, Coleus, Geraniums, Pansies, Daisies, Verbenas, Fuchsias, Salvia, etc., etc. Write for prices. Florists when in Milwankee are in-vited to look over our stock.

ARCHIE MIDDLEMASS, 1019 Forest Home Ave., MILWAUKEE, WIS.

Peacock's 36 First Prizes ont of 39 entries in 1896 and 1897. Prize Winning Dahlias

Send for 1898 illustrated wholesale cata-ogue before placing orders elsewhere.

W. P. PEACOCK, - Atco, N. J.

CLEMATIS

Large flowering varieties—Rhododendrous, Ampelopsis, Azalea, H. P. Roses, Tree Roses, etc., etc.—Lilies, Tuberoses, Begonias and Branch of The Horticultural Co. Boskoop, Holland.

Boskoop, Holland.

Rutherford,

Rutherford, N. J.

HARDY

Herbaceous Perennials

THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK IN AMERICA. PÆONIES, PHLOX, IRIS, DELPHINIUMS, ETC., ETC.

JACOB W. MANNING, The Reading Nursery, READING, MASS. ESTABLISHED 1854.

CLEMATIS Jackmanni, Henryii doz. 100 and others.........$3.00 $20.00

H. P. ROSES Strong, 2 and 3 years own roots.....$1.50 $10.00 RED JACKET GOOSEBERRY, only large unity red. 75 $4.00

F. A. BALLER, Bloomington, III.

Assorted in 25 Varieties.

My selection 350 per 4000. Descriptive entillogue and price lists for the trade.

SAMUEL C. MOON,

MORRISVILLE.

Bucks Co., PA.

F. & F. NURSERIES

New Frolls and rare Orim mentals. Shade Trees. Shrubbery, Friver, Specialities. 100.000 Peach allowest prices. Catalogue free. Agents wanted.

A Lily Experience Symposium.

The experiences of Chicago growers of lilies are here tersely told.

Samuel Pearce: "We forced 5,000 Harrisii and 3,000 Lilium longiflorum, and had the crop in just right for Easter, but 65% of the Harrisii were diseased. The loss on L. longiflorum was very small. We potted both varieties in the compost used for our miscellaneous plants. Hereafter we shall grow no Harrisii for Easter."

August Jurgens: "We had 5,000 Harrisii and forced the last of them in for Easter. The loss by disease was 25%. Out of 5,000 L. longiflorum the loss was not worth mentioning. Both were potted in common soil. We think the latter much the better for forcing."

August Dressel: "Out of 8,000 lilies, about half and half of Harrisii and L. longiflorum, we lost 50% of the former and 4% of the latter by disease. They were all potted in ordinary potting soil. We sell many of our lilies in pots and find longiflorum the better for that purpose. Our stock was just right for Easter."
Albert Fuchs: "About 25% of my Harrisii were diseased, while the loss on longiflorum was very small."

Henry Hilmers: "Out of 3,000 Harrisii 5% were diseased. There was no loss among 3,000 L. longiflorum. They were potted in fresh soil, with a very little manure."

Poehlman Bros.: "We forced 3,000 Harrisii, with a loss of 5%. Of the same number of longiflorum there were very few diseased plants."

John F. Kidwell & Bro.: "Our loss by disease was 10% on 4,500 Harrisii, and on the same number of longiflorum we lost practically nothing. Last year we lost 50% of our Harrisii. This year we potted in maiden soil without manure.

We think manure breeds disease, especially if used when too fresh."

George Reinberg: "Most of my 5,000 lilies were Harrisi. The crop was mostly in for Easter, with a loss of about 8'..."

Peter Reinberg: "I forced 5,000 liles, with very little loss by disease, but the eron was two weeks late for Easter." crop was two weeks late for Easter.

Emil Buettner: "I lost 65% of 5,000 Harrisii by disease and shall grow no more until better bulbs can be obtained. Of my longiflorum 95% formed good flowers, and I think them equally easy to force."

Bassett & Washburn: "This has been the most successful lily season we have ever had. We had 30,000 Harrisii and commenced cutting blooms the first week in November. We had a good crop infor Christmas and forced the last of them for Easter. We also had 10,000 L. longiflorum, of which a larger percentage were diseased than were of the Harrisii, and we did not succeed in getting them all in bloom for Easter. We have never been able to manage longiflorum as successfully as we do Harrisii."

Weber Bros.: "We have as fine a house of lilies as one could wish for. They were intended for Easter, but will be about right for Memorial Day. The bulbs were potted in October and have ever since been kept in a temperature of from 55° to 60°. January 1 they were planted out on benches in an old rose border, with about six inches of soil. We have never seen such strong flower stalks grown from such small bulbs." J. T. A.

NEW BRIGHTON, PA.-Thomas W. Richards, who has conducted a greenhouse business for a number of years on Thirtieth street, will retire in August owing to ill health

FOR THE SOLDI

MEMORIAL DAY will be here in three weeks, and there will be a boom in supplies appropriate for the demands of the day.

Cycas Wreaths, Metal Designs in endless variety, Moss Wreaths, Doves, Inscriptions, Flower Holders for Cemeteries, Immortelles, Cape Flowers, Baskets and Sheaves.

Every florist will need a big stock of all these things. We can supply these and all other requisites at lowest figures. Hlustrated catalogue on application. Wholesale only.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co.,

50-52-54-56 N. Fourth St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Inves

The largest and finest stock of white doves on earth. 🚜 Write for prices. A A A 203 Summit Ave., S. J. RUSSELL, JERSEY CITY, N. J.

See that my signature is stamped on every dove.

SMALL GREEN

For use with.... VIOLETS

Stiff, wiry stems. Work up beauutiflly. Are all the rage.

Box of 5000, $5.00. Less quantity at $1.25 per 1000. ....ADDRESS....

HARLAN P. KELSEY, 1150 Tremont Bldg., - BOSTON, MASS.

Galax Leaves, Cut Palm Leaves, bouquet green, Moss (sphagnum and green), Laurel Roping, Xmas Trees; everything in the green line

H. E. HARTFORD'S, 18 Chapman Place, BOSTON.

REED & KELLER Florists' Supplies

122 W. 25th St., NEW YORK CITY.

Rice & Co.

Exclusive Importers and Manufacturers of....

Florists' Supplies

PHILADELPHIA, PA. 25 N. 4th Street, -

Surplus Stock

Can be disposed of by advertising. Try it.....

This Size "Ad." Costs Only $1.00.

AMERICAN FLORISTICO., CHICAGO.

Boston Florist Letter Co.

ACTURERS OF FLORISTS' LETTERS.

This wooden box nicely stained and var-nished, 18x30x12 made in two sections, one for each size letter, given away with first order of 500 letters.

Block Letters, 1 % or 2-inch size, per 100, $5.00. Script Letters, $4. Fastener with each letter or word. Used by leading florists everywhere and for safe by all wholesale florists and supply dealers.

N. F. McCARTHY, Treas. and Manager, 84 Hawley St., BOSTON, MASS.

Have You Seen Our Agent? A Complete Catalogue for Florists. Send for One.

ELLIS & POLLWORTH MILWAUKEE, WIS.

John Conley & Son,

Manufacturers of

TIN FU

2 AND 4 DOMINICK STREET,

New York.

BRILLIANT GREEN AND BRONZE

GALAX LEAVES,

For Decorating and all Florists' Designs. CHAS. H. RICKSECKER, Linville, Mitchell Co., N. C.

Do the American Florist a small favor. Mention the paper when writing advertisers.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

JEROME B RICE Prest E B. CLARK, let Vice Prest S F WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Secy and Treas.

S. L. Allex, of Philadelphia, the well known maker of Plant Jr. tools, will visit California in May.

WEET PEA prices have evidently taken sharp turn upwards on account of the drought in California.

SEED GROWING CONTRACTS of all kinds are placed with farmers now with more difficulty than before the war began, farmers evidently anticipating much better general prices on their standard

PHILADELPHIA. - Estimates are being taken for the erection of a seven-story seed warehouse for W. Atlee Burpee & Co., at No. 475 North Fifth street. The co., at No. 443 North Fifth street. The new structure will have a frontage of 40.4½ feet on Fifth street, and will extend back to Vork avenue 83½ and 74 feet. It will have a front of brick, with Indiana limestone trimmings.

DANIEL DE COU, long employed by S. L. Allen & Co., of Philadelphia, and recently European traveler for that firm, died at Haddonfield, N. J., on Tuesday night, April 26, and was buried at Moorestown May 1. Mr. De Cou was a brother-in-law of Mr. S. L. Allen; he was well known to the seed trade, and well liked for his genial and diplomatic personality.

Pittsburg.

Business continues in about the same quiet condition that it has been in for the past two weeks, and while nothing particularly noteworthy has occured, the volume of trade is quite large and each florist seems satisfied. In fact the April business was very considerably more than that of April a year ago.

Inless present conditions change very much for the better, there will be searcely any additions made to the existing number of greenhouses in this vicinity this season, all being content to await a marked improvement in general trade, being perfectly willing to pay the increased cost of material when that condition prevails.

Breitenstein & Flemm, Market and Liberty avenue, have remodeled the interior of their store room, substituting tables for most of the counters, thus getting a much more roomy and open effect. They report business as good and prices satisfactory

Mr S S Skidelsky was a visitor this

Youngstown, O.

The popular notion that number 13 is an unlucky one does not seem to hold good in L. Hippard's case, for among the eight hundred and odd seedlings in his place, that designated as "13" looks the most promising. There are others, how ever, which are equally in the swim, in so far as pedigree and vigorous, growth are concerned

A sport of L. A. Wood, a very pleasing deep pink carnation borne on a long stiff stem, attracts special attention. It is a tine specimen of its find and well worthy of a thorough test. Mr. Hippard is growing the standard varieties quite extensively, over 100,000 having already been planted in the field.

Mr. Hippard takes especial pride in his roses, and well he may, for a finer stock it would be hard to find. His Brides, Bridesmaids and Meteors are decidedly choice, while his Perles are "pearls," like the gem command a ready market.

A new departure and one which promises to pay, is that of growing ferns for the wholesale market. Over 200,000 will soon be transplanted into 214-inch pots. Помо.

RAFFIA BEST QUALITY, LONG MADAGASCAR Notwithstanding the higher market on this item I am still offering at the old figure so long as present stock lasts

In bale lots (about 225 lbs.) at 8e 100 lbs or over at 100 lbs.

G. C. Watson. Seedsman.

Clifton Springs, N. Y.

BURPEE'S SEEDS PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesule Price List for Florists and Market Gardeners.

TRY DREER'S GARDEN SEEDS,

Planis, Bulbs & Requisites.
They are the best at the lowest prices. Trade List issued quarterly, mailed free to the trade only.
HENRY A. DITEER,
Philadelphia, Pa

Mention American Florist.

zekekkekkekekekekeke The Only Machine

on the market for automatically filling and sealing seed packets

The Brown 8ag-Filling Machine Co. FITCHBURG, MASS., U. S. A.

THE ALBERT DICKINSON CO.

GRASS SEEDS

Parks, Tennis Courts, Lawns, &c. In fancy 1 and 2 pound packages and bulk.

SPECIAL PRICES TO THE TRADE.

CHICAGO, ILL.

BEST OF ALL<sup>33</sup> TOMATO
"ENGLISH<sup>33</sup> MELONS
(FOR FORCING)

FLOWER SEEDS FOR FLORISTS
Catalogues on application.

WEEBER & DON, Seed Merchanis and Growers, 114 Chambers St., NEW YORK, N. Y.

August Rölker & Sons, Sprina Bulbs. Florists' Supplies,

IMPORT ORDERS booked now for foreing Burbs, Azaleas, Lily of the Valley, etc., for fall delivery; send for terms to

52 Dey Street,

NEW YORK.

ennnnnnnnnnnnnnnnnnnnnnn

300 Kilo. Musa Ensete,

New crop, per 1000 seeds, $2.50; 10,000 seeds, $18.00.

100 Kilo. Sweet Pea. Eckford Mixture, per kilo, 20c; per 100 kilo, $12 00.

10 Kilo. Coix Lachryma, ( Job's Tears ) per kilo. 40c; 10 kilo. for $12 00.

10 Kilo. Stocks White Nice, Per 100 gramm, 40c; per kilo., $3 00; 10 kilo. for $25 00.

LETELLIER & FILS,

CAEN, Calvados, FRANCE.

CLUCAS & BODDINGTON CO.

importers and Exporters of

Seeds, Bulbs 🏖 Plants,

501 TO 503 W. 13TH ST.

NEW YORK CITY. Send for quotations on all Florists' Bulb Stock.

GS COTTON SEAMLESS, BURLAPS, ETC. SECOND HAND BAGS BOUGHT AND SOLO.

CINCINNATI BAG CO. Second and Walnut Sts., CINCINNATI, 0.

insman Queen .... Nuskmelon

Should be tested by every seedsman this season Irial pkls. Iree. To Market Cardnets 3, 16, 50c; 3-46, 75c; I lb. or more $1.2a to 1 lb. Cash with order. Seed postpard this is the earliest, best in quality and the most productive Maskmelon ever introduced. 18Y 11 f SPICIAL CIRCLLARS FREE.

FRANK BANNING, SITUSMAN AND ITORIST.

Do not forget to say "saw your ad, in the American Florist" when corresponding with advertisers.

Forcing

IE have closed contracts with some of the best and most reliable producers for our stock of Roman Hyacinths, Dutch Hyacinths, Tulips, Von Sion Narcissus, Paper White Narcissus, Valley, Harrisii, Longiflorum, Azaleas, and all leading import forcing stock. Give us a list of your wants so that we may be able to quote you on same.

> DON'T FORGET THAT WE ARE STRICTLY IN IT ON SUPPLIES OF ALL KINDS, SEEDS, BULBS AND CUT FLOWERS. . . . . .

VAUGHAN, McKELLAR & WINTERSON,

45=47=49 Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO.

CANNAS NEW AMERICAN Finest in the World Our Novelties for 1898 Por 100

| 101 100                                        |
|------------------------------------------------|
| DUKE OF MARLBORO, darkest crimson$30.00       |
| DUCHESS OF MARLBORO, only pure pink 30.00      |
| TOPAZ, only absolutely large pure yellow 50.00 |
| LORRAINE, pink, edged white, fine 30.00        |
| MAIDENS BLUSH, delicate flesh color 15.00      |
| GOLDEN PEARL, yellow, nearly donble 30.00      |
| CUBA, finest and largest gilt edged 40.00      |
| GLORIOSA, very dwarf, March delivery 12.50     |
| PHILADELPHIA, glowing crimson                  |
| CHAMPION, largest, glowing scarlet$5.00 each  |
| KLONDIKE, only large pure orange $2.50 "      |
| Send for complete list of 50 novelties and 200 |
| standard varieties at lowest prices.           |

OUR CANNAS IN FRANCE.

To Mesers A. Blanc & Co.
Your new cannas of last year gave me much satisfaction. Please send me a complete set of your noveltles for ISS as soon as ready. Also 12
Glant Crimson, etc. Signed CH. MOLIN,
Lyon, France, Jan. 3, 1898.

ASPARAGUS SPRENGERI

Fine plants in 6-inch pots, ready for 8-inch, $5 per 12.

AMARYLLIS.....

Veitch's Hybrids. $4 per 12; Equestra, $4 per 100; Formosissima, $3 per 100.

CALLAS

Spotted Leaf, $3; Black, $5; Yellow, $30; all per 100. Golden, $2 each.

DAHLIAS

11 prizes ont of 22 at the last Dahlia exhibition. First prize Dahlia, GILT EDGE, $15 per 100. Send for special list.

A. BLANC & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

N. Dames

of 1he firm of ****** Vanderhorst eeeeeee X

BULB GROWERS

Lisse and Heemstede, Holland,

is on his round trip through the United States. To spare time, we beg to send all letters and communications up to May 15, care of Knauth Nachod & Kuhne. 13 William St., New York.

Give us the list of your wants and we will send you our lowest quotations for real good stuff.

For FLORISTS..

VAN ZANTEN BROTHERS. HILLEGOM. HOLLAND.

Forcing

I T will pay every florist to get our prices on Romans, Harrisii, Longiflorums, Valleys, Hyacinths, Tulips, Azaleas, etc., etc., before closing contracts. Our reputation for high grade stock is well established. Our facilities for handling orders promptly are the best. (Our new quarters, 161 to 163 E. Kinzie St., six floors, 40x100 ft, give us ample room and every convenience for quick dispatch of your commands.)

Special Low Prices on Tuberoses, Gladiolus, Cannas, etc., etc., to close out Spring Bulbs.....

PURCHASING DEPARTMENT for florists saves you money on Glass, Pipes, Tools, etc. Service free to florists. Write for particulars. . . . . .

W. W. BARNARD & CO.

161 to 163 E. Kinzie St. CHICAGO, ILL.

VAN HEEMSTRA & 60. BULB GROWERS

SASSENHEIM. HOLLAND.

DEFORE ordering Dutch Bulbs ask our quotations. Our stock enables us to make good offers. Address letters until May 15th to

W. WARNAAR,

Care KNAUTH, NACHOD & KUHNE, 13 William St., NEW YORK.

Mention American Florist.

Bulb Growers and Nurserymen HILLEGOM, HOLLAND.

Our JAC, KEUR will leave this country about May 15, and if he can be of any service to intending buyers of bulbs and plants shall be glad to hear from same before above date. Address

C. KEUR & SONS, 68 BROAD STREET. New York City.

HAERENS BROS. From SOMERGEM near Ghent, Belgium

SPECIAL Growers and Exporters of Aza-SPECIAL Growers and Exporters of Azaleas, Palms, Araucarrias and other decorative plants, take pleasure to inform you that their Mr. AUC. HARRENS is now on his annual visit through the United States. The stock he offers is immense, of best quality and at most reasonable prices. Iheir New Azaleas will be the favorites of the lotter. Write for price list and special offer until May 10th.

AUGUST HAERENS CARE OF ... VANDERGRIFT CO. 66 Beaver St., New York City.

Beerhorst... & Van Leeuwen

GROWERS SASSENHEIM, HOLLAND.

Dutch Bulbs

AND PLANTS FOR AMERICAN MARKET. Ask for Wholesale Prices.

We will stay in America until May 14th. Please address letters to

L. Van Leeuwen,

CARL COLONNADE HOTEL,

NEW YORK, N. Y. 726 Broadway.

"Special Offer" ROSES

The following list of varieties have been carried over in cold frames and are in excellent condition, from 5 and 6-inch pots.

| potspAnna de Dieshach, budded stock 5-in : | er 10 |
|------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Anna de Inestiteu, budded stock, 5-10.         | 20.0  |
| A'fred Colomb, "6-in.                          | 20.0  |
| Blanche Moreau, own routs                      | 18.0  |
| Boule de Neige, budded stock5-in.              | 18 (  |
| Boule de Neige, dadded stock5-th.              | 20 0  |
|                                                | 18 0  |
| Baroness Rothschild, "5-ln.                    | 20.0  |
| Baltimore Belle, own roots                     | 18.0  |
| Caroline de Marinesse, own roots5-in.          | 18 0  |
| Caronne de Marinesse, own toots 6 in.          | 20 0  |
| Comtesse de Muranais, budded stock. 5-in.      | 18 0  |
| Cantain Christy. "5-in.                        | 18 0  |
| Captain Christy                                | 20.0  |
| Connette des Alpes, " "5-In.                   | 18.0  |
| Crested Moss. "6-In.                           | 20 0  |
| Earlof Dufferin. "5-in.                        | 18 0  |
| Gloire de Margottin, "5-in.                    | 18 0  |
| Giotre de Margottin,                           | 20 0  |
| Gen. Jacqueminot own rnots5-in.                | 15 (  |
|                                                | 12 (  |
| Hermosn,                                       | 15 (  |
| Glory of Mosses, budded stock 6-in.            | 20 0  |
| La France                                      | 18 (  |
| Louis Van Houtte " "5-ln                       | 18 (  |
| Douis van Houtte                               | 20.0  |
| Maurice Bernardin, "5-in.                      | 18 0  |
| Mabel Morrison, " 5-in.                        | 18 (  |
| Staber Adortison, " "6-In.                     | 20.0  |
| Mme Gabriel Luizet." "5-in.                    | 18.6  |
| Mme Gabriel Luizet," "5-in.                    | 20 0  |
| Magna Charta, own roots                        | 18.6  |
| Mrs John Laing, budded stock                   | 18 (  |
| Mrs John Lang, budded stock                    | 20.6  |
| Marshall P. Wilder, " "6-in.                   | 21.6  |
| Jiaisuan I. Wilder,                            | ÷ J.( |
|                                                |       |

| Mary Washington, own roots                                              | ā-ln.  | $15.00 \\ 18.00$      |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------|-----------------------|
| Mme. Caroline Testout, "                                                | 4-In.  | 15.00                 |
| Mervettle de Lyon, budded stock                                         |        | 18.0018.00        |
|                                                                         |        | 20.00                 |
| Mme Plantier, own roots                                                 | h-in.  | $\frac{20.00}{25.00}$ |
| Marechal Ntel, budded stock                                             | 0-1H.  | 25.0015.00        |
| Paul Norman                                                             | 5 ln.  | 18 00                 |
|                                                                         | 5-in.  | 15 00                 |
| Prince Camine de Ronau, ngitt.                                          |        | 20.00                 |
| Princess Adelaide, own rootsPrairie Queen, "                        | 5-La.  | 15 00                 |
| " " "                                                                   |        | 18 00                 |
| Queen of Queens, budded stock                                           | 5 In.  | 18.00                 |
| " own roots                                                             | 6-in.  | 20 00                 |
| Rodocanachi, "                                                          |        | 18 00                 |
| Rugosa, "                                                               |        | 15.00                 |
|                                                                       | 6-in.  | 18 00                 |
| Rugosa alba.                                                            |        | 15.00                 |
|                                                                         |        | 18.00                 |
| Russels Collage,                                                        | 6-in.  | 18.00                 |
| Souv. du President Carnot, own roots                                    | 4-in.  | 12.00                 |
| Seven Sisters or Grevillea, Sweet Briar, own roots                      | 5 ln.  | 15.00                 |
| Seven Sisters or Grevillea                                              | 6-in.  | 18.00                 |
| Sweet Briar, own roots                                                  | o in.  | 15.00                 |
| Ulrich Brunner, "Victor Verdier, "                                      | 5-in.  | 18.0018.00        |
| Victor Verdier. "White Baroness, budded stock                           | 5-111. | 18.00                 |
| White Baroness, budded stock                                            | e-in   | 20.00                 |
| W S. Richardson, "William Lobb, "White Provence, "Wholvefare, own roots |        | 25.00                 |
| William Lobb, " "                                                       |        | 20.00                 |
| White Provence, " "                                                     | 41.1 m | 20.00                 |
| Wighterians own roots                                                   | 5 in   | 15 00                 |
| Wichuriana, own roots                                                   | 6-In.  | 18.00                 |
| Waltham Climber, budded stock                                           | fi-In. | 25.00                 |
| White La France. own roots                                              | 4-1n   | 15.00                 |
| White microphylla.                                                      | 5-in.  | 18 00                 |
| Tennessee Belle. "                                                      | 6-in.  | 18.00                 |
| Yellow Persian, budded stock                                            | .5-ln. | 18,00                 |
| 11 11 11 11                                                             | .6-ln. | 20.00                 |
|                                                                         |        |                       |

Henry A. Dreer, 714 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

FOR FALL AZALEAS

SURPLUS BARGAINS

A limited surplus of the following bulbs. We make prices low to close out. Quality guaranteed......

Tuberoses...

| Per 100                                                | Per 1000      |
|--------------------------------------------------------|---------------|
| Dwarf Excelsior Pearl, strictly first                  | £7.50         |
| 3000 for $19.00,Second size                       | 3.50          |
| All bloomers; 3000 for $9.00. Tall Double, first size | 6,5010 00 |

Speciosum Lilies...

|           |       |      | Per 100   | Per 1000 |
|-----------|-------|------|-----------|----------|
| Album     | 7-9   | inch | 24.50 | 840 (K)  |
| 14        | 9-11  |      | 5.50  | 50,00    |
|           | 11-13 | * *  | 7 50  | 70.00    |
| Rubrum    | 6-8   | 1+   | 2.25  | 20,00    |
|           | . 7.9 | 1.4  | 3 50  | 30.00    |
| Melpomene | 7.9   | 4.4  | 3.50  | 30,00    |

AZALEAS

TO OBTAIN

PERFECT SHAPED PLANTS AND BEST VARIETIES

ORDER NOW!

CHICAGO:

84-86 RANDOLPH ST.

SPOTTED LEAF CALLA

Per 100, $2.50 Per 1000, $20,00,

C. ESCULENTUM

|                 |                 | 100   |
|-----------------|-----------------|-------|
| 5 to 7 Inches I | n etreumferenes | 3 10  |
| 7 to 9          |               | 4 50  |
| 9 to 12 "       |                 | 8,00  |
| 12 Inches and   | up              | 15,00 |

BEGONIAS, GLOXINIAS, Etc.

AT CLOSE FIGURES.

NEW YORK: 14 BARCLAY ST.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE.

HEADQUARTERS FOR "FANCY" BULB STOCK AT REASONABLE PRICES.

The American Florist Company's Directory

NEW EDITION. PRICE $2.00.

AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY, . 324 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO.

Indianapolis.

Since Easter trade has been very unsatisfactory Store men as well as those attending market are complaining; very little has been done in the line of funeral work, and as a wedding month April did not come up to its representation, at least the florists saw little evidence of Cupid's successes.

Robert McKain has 125,000 bedding plants with which to beautify our city parks. Every one familiar with, the facilities of the city greenhouses will give "Mac" credit for having accomplished everything possible, and as he has proved a tasteful designer of flower beds, we may safely expect to see some fine work in this line.

B. Rothermal and J. Stanley, two members of the Florists' Club, are at present in Camp Mount awaiting a chance to fight for Cuba's liberty.

At Tuesday night's meeting of the Florists' Club Messrs. Ch. Vollrath and Houston Tall were elected to membership. Mr. Parker read a paper on bookkeeping for florists, which was full of humor as well as useful information. It was dis-cussed by those present. The meeting as usual ended with a social session, songs, John Hartje, our disciple of Izaak Walton, reports bass fishing unusually good this spring.

Berterman Bros. keenly feel the loss of their brother Benedict, who was killed by the ears while on his way to Philadelphia. Mr. Berterman was a civil engineer of much ability and had many warm friends in this city. The Florists' Club extended its sympathy to the brothers by a floral tribute.

Cambridge, Mass.—Annie T. Hamilton, of Manchester, N. H., sued John F. O'Brien, the junior of P. O'Brien & Son, who have 20,000 feet of glass on Massachusetts ave., for breach of promise to marry and estimated the damage to her affections at $100,000 but permitted the case to be non-suited in the supreme court.

Asparagus Sprengerii

For another week (before potting up) we offer small dormant 1-year roots & $5.00 per 100. These bribs will quickly make strong 2½-inch pot plants.

pot plants.

Ficus Elastica, true, lurge leaf variety, 6-inch bots, 20 inches high @ 50c each.

Crimson Rambler Roses, extra fine, bushy plants, in 4-inch pots, will soon bloom, per dozen, $2.00; per 100, $15.00.

Cycas Revoluta, dormant stems, size from 3 to 10 lb. @ 15c per lb.

Clothilde Soupert, the great pot rose, our stock is A No. 1, 2-in. @ $3.00; 2½-in. @ $4.00; 3-in. @ $6.00; 3½-in. @ $9.00 per 100.

Dahlias, 2½-in. pot plants, in named varieties, per 100, $5.00.

100, $5.00.

Pelargoniums Mme. Thibaut, Mrs. Robt. Sandiford, Edward Perkins and Dorothy, strong 3-inch stock, per doz., $1.50; per 100, $12.00.

For Cannas, Carnations, Chrysanthemums, send us your list; we have all kinds.

H. P. Roses, dormant, 2-year, extra fine stock (@ $12.00 per 100.

Clematis, Ampelopsis Veitchi, Hollyhocks, Paonies, Hydrangens P. G., etc. we have in large quantities; write us for prices.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

Creenhouses: CHICAGO: Wester . Springs, Ill. 84-86 Randolph St.

BOUVARDIA Double piuk aud white, clean stock. 2 in. pots, $2.50 per 100. VERBENAS, first-class, in hloom......$2 50 per 100. McCREA & COLE, Battle Creek, Mich.

J. L. SCHILLER,

404 East 34th Street,

NEW YORK CITY.

DORT CDAIG & SON ROBT. CRAIG & SON Roses, Palms

and Novelties in Decorative Flants.

Market and 49th Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Market and TO...

Rose Hill Nurseries

ARGEST Growers of Palms, Orchids, Stove and Greenhouse plants, Ferns, Arancarias, Pandanus.....

SIEBRECHT & SON, New Rochelle, N. Y. New York Olfice, 409 Fifth Ave.

Just Arrived

IN FINE CONDITION

Odontoglossum Crispum, Miltonia Roezlii, Cattleya Chocoensis, Cattley Labiata, Oncidium Varicosum Rogersii.

LAGER & HURRELL, Summit, N. J.

Asparagus — Sprengerii $5.00 per '00 Seedlings American Rose Co., Washington, D. C. 3 Zanananananananananananana

Hydrangeas

Fine plants with 10 to 30 blooms per plant.—10 cents per bloom...

JOHN SCOTT, Keap St. Greenhouses, BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Cyclamen...

Persicum Giganteum, brilliant red, strong hea'thy transplanted seed-lings, from best German-grown seed, $100 per 100; $9.00 per 1000. Cash with order...

H. PLADECK MIDDLE-VILLAGE, LONG ISLAND, N. Y.

Crotons...

IN VARIETY

Rothschild, Hawkeri, Interruptum, Evansianum, Rubra Lineata, Andreanum, Aurea Maculatum and others, suitable for bedding. Fine plants in 3-meh pots, $2.00 per doz. New and rare varieties, 50 cents each.

Aurea Maculatum, extra fine plants in 4-in. pots, $2.50 per doz.; $15 per 100; 3-inch pot plants, $2 per doz.; $12 per 100; thumb pots, $1 per doz.; $6 per 100.

Edwin Lonsdale,

Money Order Office, Station H. Phila.

Florist, CHESTNUT HILL. PHILA., PA.

HERE WE ARE 4 Weeks

| FIRST COME, FIRST SERVED.                  |                     |
|--------------------------------------------|---------------------|
| FUCHSIAS la assorted varieties, double.    | er 100              |
| 2 lnSlogle, 2-ln                       | $3.002.50      |
| HIBISCUS in assortment, single and double, | 3 60                |
| 0-III                                      | 5 00                |
| JESSAMINE Granditiora, 2½-in               | $\frac{3.00}{8.00}$ |
| Mald of Orleans, 3 in                      | 5 00                |
| Arabian, 4-in                              | 8.008.00        |
| Rhynchospermum Jasminoides, 2-in.          | $\frac{3.00}{8.00}$ |
| SMILAX, good strong plants, 2-in           | 2.00                |
| 2000 MOON VINES, strong plants, 2-in       | 3 50                |

NANZ & NEUNER, LOUISVILLE, KY.

STRONG STOCK TO POT ON NOW. JOHN H. LEY,

COOD HOPE, - WASHINGTON, D. C.

D HOPE, - WASHING
Offers clean well rooted plants as below:
Per 100,
$25,00

Offers clean well rooted plants as below:

Per 100.
Areca Lutescens, 2 ft. thick. 4-incb. $25,00
Orange Trees 2 ft., full of green fruit. 5-in. pots. 25,00
Phoenix Reclinata. 4-inch pots. $60
Phoenix Reclinata. 4-inch pots. $80
Ferns, irom flats, 8 good corts, mailed. 1.25
$10.00 per 1000 by exores 9.
Oreodoxs Regla. 5-inch, 3 in a pot. (Royal Paim)
3 to 4 feet high
Phoeoleophorium Sechellarum, 4-inch, pice plants of this rare paim. 100
Oreodox Regla. 5-inch, 2 inch, extra large. 5.00
Pandanus Utills. 5-inch, extra large. 5.00
Well packed. Cash with order.

DOUBLE PETUNIA, Dreer's strain, strong...... $2.50

RUSSELIA JUNCEA, 21/2-in., strong 3.00 AMPELOPSIS VEITCHII, 21/2-in.....

PALM Latania Borbonica, 21/2-inch, 3 to 4 leaves, per 1000, $40 00, 4.50

THOS. A. McBETH, Springfield, O.

CAN YOU USE ANY

THE F. R. WILLIAMS CO.

WHOLESALE FLORISTS AND SHIPPERS OF CUT FLOWERS

60 Huron Street. CLEVELAND, O.

BORONIA

I will have a very nice stock of these in perfect condition for autumn delivery
Boronia heterophylia.... from 20 cents to $1 (0) each.
Boronia heterophylia.... from 20 cents to $1 (0) each.
Boronia heterophylia.... from 20 cents to $1 (0) each.
AZALEAS—Grown especially for American trade
at very leasonable prices.
Palmia, Dracænas, Araucarias, Acacias,
Kalmia Latif dia, Rhododendrons, Etc.
Sweet Bays, Sundards and Pyramids Description and prices 0 application.

ARTHUR DE MEYER, Nurseryman.

ARTHUR DE MEYER, Nurseryman, Mont St. Amand Chent, Belgium.

Catalogues Received.

C. Keur & Sons, Hillegom, Holland, bulbs and roots; Roustan Servan & Co., Saint-Remy-de-Provence, France, seeds; E. C. Amling, Chicago, Ill., vases.

PORTLAND, ME -Arthur H. Terry and Frank J. Goodridge, who did business as the Fairfield Floral Co., have been indicted for the fraudulent use of the mails. They did business by advertising and claimed to be merely selling artificial flowers but the authorities thought that it was a confidence game. The mail of the concern averaged 100 registered and 3,000 ordinary letters a day.

NEW FORCING ROSE MRS. ROBT. GARRETT

Hybrid tea, rich soft pink, buds very long, flower extra large, delightfully fragrant, rivaling Bridesmaid in color, but larger and much more productive. A sturdy, vigorous grower, a money maker and a triumph of American skill. The best firms in the country are investing in it. It has won numerous prizes and has elicited the most favorable comment from critical judges. Price strong plants from 242-inch pots, $25.00 per 100 in lots less than 1000; $225.00 per 1000. Orders booked now, delivery March 15, 1898. Correspondence solicited. Address

H. WEBER & SDNS. Oakland. Md.

OWN ROOTS.* DORMANT & FIELD GROWN

IN COLD STORAGE IN CHICAGO.

No. 1, 2 to 4 leet, cut back to 2 leet Yellow Rambler (Aglaia) Hybrid Perpetuals, Mosses, Hardy Climbers and Madam Plantier

These plants are very strong and well shaped. Prices on application. Address

W. F. HEIKES, Manager,

1308-1310 Unity Bldg., -

CHICAGO, ILLS.

...FOR... SUMMER BLOOMING

LA FRANCE ROSES

ta France ROSES strong, one and two-year-old plants, grown cool during Winter, fine shape for Summer blooming, ready for immediate planting. In the houses will give enormous crops of flowers all through the season; there is no better pink rose for Summer cutting than La France.

$10.00 per 100 for I year old.
$12.50 per 100 for 2 year old.
Also a fine lot of white and new vellow basies,
5 in pots, in full bloom $2.00 PER DOZEN. These aplendid bargain

Long Distance Telephone, 94-11 D.

MAIN AND JOHNSON David Cliffe, STREETS. CERMANTOWN, PHILA., PA.

ROSES..

dem per 100 3-m per 100 Am. Beauties . . $5.00

Perle . . . . . . $2.75 Bridesmaid . . . 2.75 4.50 4.50

MAPLEWOOD CUT FLOWER and PLANT CO. PLEASANT HILL, MO.

Memorial Kose

Strong field-grown plants, $50, $75 and $100 per 1000

SAM'L C. MOON,

MORRISVILLE, Bucks Co., PA.

(YELLOW HERMOSA)

Strong three-inch pots, $6.00 per 100. One of the finest roses for out-door planting. Write for our trade list, it contains a few "good things." . . ... ...

ROBT. CRAIG & SON,

Cor. 49th and Market Streets, PHILADELPHIA.

.............

From 24-Inch pots. Mary Washington at $15 00 per 1000.

FOLLOWING LIST, $2.25 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

Agrippina Marie Van Houtte Frigneuse R. Marie Henrietta Mine, Elie Lambert Tennessee Belle Golden Gate Louise Phillipe Chromatella

Couquette de Lyon Vouquette de Lyon J. B. Varrone White Hermosa Marquis de Vivens Marie Lambert Lucullus Queen's Scarlet Andre Schwartz

Mmc. Pernet Ducher Duchess Brabant Princess Sagan Yellow Hermosa Purple China Mmc. Jos. Schwartz Wicharalana C. Mermet

Bon Silene Safrano Mme, Welche Praire Queen Baltimore Belle Media The Queen Marie Guillot Triumph Pernet Pere

All other Roses, Carnations and general stock. Send for complete list

THE NATIONAL PLANT CO., Dayton, Ohio.

FINE PLANTS from 3-inch pots, * $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

JOSEPH HEACOCK WYNCOTE, PA.

BRIDESMAID

Pots 100 Pots 100 21/4 $2 50 3 $3.50

Stock grown in low Guaranteed first-class. temperature.

THE E. HIPPARD CO., Youngstown, Ohio.

300,000 YOUNG ROSES 300,000

Ramblers, Climb Malmaison, Climb. White Pel, Climb Woofton, Pres Carnot and 100 other leaders in Teas, Il. Teas and Climbers. Send for prices Moon Vines, $2 50 per 100. Rose Geraniums, $2 50 per 100.

The National Plant Company, Dayton, Ohio.

Write for Prices

of Beauties, Meteors, Belle Siebrecht, Perfes Maids and Brides in 2-inch, oane varieties and La France and V Eariserin in 3-inch Smitay in 2-inch. If samples are wanted send 50c in stamps.

GEO. A. KUHL, - PEKIN, ILL.

WANTED ROSE PLANTS

Icstout, Wootlon. Send sample and price. .

Colfax Ave. Floral Co., Denver, Colo.

TROM 2 1-2 INCH POTS.

Strong, thrifty, well established plants. General price $1.00 per RO. Extra fine lot of Crimson Ramblers.

Jackson & Perkins Co. NEWARK, NEW YORK.

Prom 5-Inch Pots at 9c. Fine clean plants. Price reduced to close out, only a few hundred each.

France, Cequette des Blanches, Packed free Clemntis-Hencyil and Miss Bateman, the leading large white sorts; Inc I and 2-year fieldgrown plants like. Clemntis Virginia, sweet scented, small white flower, 2-year, the, 5c.

W. H. SALTER, Pockeday.

W. H. SALTER, Rochester, N Y.

Do You Plant Beauties?

Am. Heauties, 3 inch at $5.00 per 100. Not collings, but clean, strong, well grown stock and gunnanteed free from all disease.....

A. DONAGHUE.

108 S. 16th Street. OMAHA, NEB.

It is good loistness policy

....AMERICAN FLORIST

when you write to an advertiser.

Worcester, Mass.

Good flowers are in excellent supply and the demand is all that can be expected. Roses and carnations are of particularly fine quality. Bulbous stock is nearly exhausted. Some outside grown hya-cinths and narcissus are coming in. Lily cinths and narcissus are coming in. of the valley and Japan Lilium longiflorum are both choice and plentiful. Violets are past but sweet peas are coming extra fine and are selling well.

The second spring exhibition of the The second spring exhibition of the Worcester County Horticultural Society was held April 22 and was the occasion of very creditable displays. H. F. A. Lange won first prize on a basket display of cut flowers, tulips in pans, and geraniums in pots. E. A. Weeks took first for hyacinths and F. A. Madaus for the set display of pageissus. best display of narcissus. A. H. L.

Diseased Pelargonium Leaves.

Ed. Am. Florist:-Enclosed find two diseased pelargonium leaves. I have inspected the leaves very closely with the aid of a small microscope, but can hardly make out the cause of the trouble; it looks to me as if there were a louse or some kind of a bug present. Can you suggest a remedy to prevent its spreading, and describe the nature of the trouble? A. S.

The trouble is not far enough advanced to admit of a certain diagnosis from a few leaves. Very few of the leaf spots show the presence of a fungus in an advanced state, though in several cases a mycelium is present in the tissues. A few of the older spots show the presence of the fungi macrosporium and cladosporium, but the species are those which attack dead or devitalized parts of plants, and are not true parasites. It is quite possi-ble that the plants are sickly from some other cause than fungus attack, and in this condition these saprophytic fungiare enabled to gain entrance and cause the more rapid disorganization of the tissues, and therefore the spots on the leaves. would suggest treatment which would tend to give the plants a more vigorous and healthy growth; good light, good air, porous and well drained soil, and be air, porous and well drained soil, and be sure that there is no trouble with the roots. Perhaps all these precautions have already been taken. If the trouble is initiated by fungi, then removing and destroying all the affected leaves, and spraying the plants with one of the ammoniacal carbonate of copper solutions, would probably prevent the farther development of the fungus.

Geo. F. Atkinson.

Strong started plants @ 2c each, or will exchange same amount for Madame Crozy.

W. W. COLES, Kokomo, Ind.

Violet Plants...

Marie Louise

GEORGE SALTFORD, Rhinebeck, N. Y. 50.000 SINGLE ROOTED VIOLETS

$2 00 per 1000; cash with order. Will exchange some for rooted rose cuttings or plants.

J. K. POSTMA, - PRINCETON, KY.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS Rose Owen, J. H. Woodford, Dorothy Devens, G. F. Atkinson, Golden Trophy, T. B. Miss Helen Wright Belle of Castlewood, Chito, C. W. Ward, Mrs. S. T. Murdock, 75 cits, per dozen; 55.00 per 100. Glory of Pacific, Maud Dean, Mrs. R. Crawford, W. P. Kaynor, Modesto, Lenawee, Pride of Castlewood, Bonuaffon, Ivory, Ruth Ellis, 50 cts, per dozen; $3.00 per 100. Frank Hardy, T. H. Spaulding, Mrs. O. P. B. Issett, The Yellow Fellow, Madeline Pratt, Mrs. C. H. Peirce, Merry Christmas, 35 cits, each; $3 00 per 402en. Snow Queen. Pennsylvania, 50 cits, each; $5.00 per dozen. Snow Queen. Pennsylvania, 50 cits, each; $5.00 per dozen, W. H. Chadwick, $1.00 each; $6.00 per dozen. CARNATIONS June, Young, Bon Ton, Mrs. Jas. Dean, White Cloud, New York, Empress and Evelina, $2.00 per dozen. $10.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. $2.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 1000. Scott and McGowan, $2.0

Chrysanthemum Mrs. A.

WE claim this to be one of the grandest early whites yet sent out. Originated with us 3 years ago and given a thorough test. It is earlier than Bergmann. Flowers 7 to 11 inches in diameter; is easy to grow; a splendid keeper and above all never shows its center. Except in color it looks like a well grown Golden Wedding. Select stock, 2½-in. pots, 20c each; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

CAL. YIOLETS. No disease. Strong runners. 50c per 100; $4 per 1000. MCDONALD & STEELE, Crawfordsville, Ind.

Shrysanthemum

Yellow Sport of JEROME JONES.

It received the highest points and a Certificate of Merit at the Cleveland Chrysanthemum Show. It is in Yellow what Jerome Jones is amongst the White. The very best for late blooming. 2½-in. pot plants, strong, $2.50 per doz.; $20.00 per 100. Stock ready April 15th.

E. J. PADDOCK, 295 Erie St., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

NATHAN SMITH & SON

Wholesale Florists

Specialties

ADRIAN, MICH.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS CARNATIONS *** AND VIOLETS

· · · CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED · ·

IN BEST VARIETIES.

ROSES, from 3-lnch pots.
CARNATIONS, for fall delivery CHRYSANTHEMUMS, SMILAX. VIOLETS.

Prices low. Send for list.

WOOD BROTHERS, FISHKILL, N.Y.

West Islip Greenhouses

Rooted Runners, 🛂 per 1000.

E. B. SUTTON, Jr. P. O. Address.... BABYLON, N. Y.

New CARNATIONS.

WHITE CLOUD—White.
GOLD NUGGET—Yellow.
NEW YORK (Ward)—Bright cerise pink.
MRS, JAMES DEAN (Ward)—Clear silvery pink.
JOHN YOUNG (Ward)—White.
BON TON (Ward)—Scarlet.
Prices for ahove varieties: $2.00 per doz., $10.00
per 100, $75.00 per 1000.
We will also have Cerise Queen (Breitmeyer),
Argyle (Stollery), Jack Frost (Swayne), Empress (Swayne), Empress (Swayne), Emling (Witterstaetter), Firefly (Hancock), Psyche (Hill), Painted Lady
(Hill), and Mrs. S. A. Northway (Simmons).

All good 1897 novelties and other standard varieties at reasonable prices.

New Chrysanthemums.

MRS. C. H. PEIRCE—Yellow.

35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

SNOW QUEEN—White.

50c each, $5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100.

MERRY CHRISTMAS—Late White.

35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

Send for Descriptive Price List. Ready January, 1898.

F. DORNER & SONS CO.

LAFAYETTE, IND.

MAJOR Var. From 4-inch pots......$7.00

Sonnenschmidt & Junge

456 E. Washington St. INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

Experiments in Carnation Culture.

An interesting series of experiments has been conducted at the Connecticut Experiment Station for the purpose of studying the fertilizer requirements of carna-tions. The plants were mostly grown in a compost of sifted soft coal ashes to which three per cent by weight of peat moss was added. Other plats of ordi-nary compost were used, also, for com-parison. The fertilizers used were intrate of soda, dissolved bone black and muriate of potash in varying amounts. The fertilizer was, in general, all applied before planting, no subsequent top-dressing or liquid applications being used.

The most successful plats were those receiving heavy applications of fertilizer, and the compost plats did not yield as many blooms as the plats with ashes and peat moss. These experiments were probably carefully designed for the purpose intended, but one can not help wishing that some of the less heavily fertilized plats had received subsequent applications of fertilizer in liquid form, sufficient to bring the total fertilizer applied up to the maximum, and in one case at least to exceed the maximum, to accord with commercial methods. It would also be very interesting to have some tests made as to the action of lime in addition to other fertilizers. It is generally supposed among good commercial growers that lime added to the soil stiffens the stems materially, a strong stiff stem being now almost of paramount importance with this flower.

Some trouble was experienced through the growing together of the petals and consequent failure of the flowers to open. This is the same trouble which has been in one case supposed to result from heavy applications of Alberts' horticultural manure, and has been considered due to excessive amounts of nitrogen in the soil. These experiments do not show this supposition to be true, as some plats having small amounts of nitrogen produced more of these defective flowers than others having sixty per cent more nitro-It is to be hoped that the Station may be able to continue and extend these valuable experiments. W. N. R.

CHATTANOOGA, TINN-Chattanooga's first annual spring festival concluded with Flower Day, May 5. The floral decora-tions were on a lavish scale, one man decorating his coach with 10,000 roses and concealing with violets the harnesses of the six horses. The troops of the regular army in rendezvous added to the brilliance of the pageant.

When corresponding with any advertiser on this page, please mention the fact that you saw the ad, in the AMERI-CAN FLORIST.

NFW LLL CARNATION ARGYI

A few left at the following price 4 4 $10.00 per 100; $75,00 per 1000 ...

STOLLERY BROS. CHICACO, ILL.

FLORA HILL CARNATION. It se has because there is nothing in sight to at all equal It. It speaks for largest blocks. It is fragrant. It is the largest blocks. It pais not other in the shade So fifts past or great to equal it. We have four doctal on them to be moved at one are getting the second of the control of the properties of the control of the parties of the p

E. G. HILL & CO., Richmond, Ind.

Flora Hill

20,000 at greatly reduced prices. Don't miss planting the best of all whites. 4

H. F. Littlefield

WORCESTER, MASS.

PRICE: $1.75 per 100 lbs .... ....$30.00 per ton,

One of many testimonials:

Washington D.C., April 4 '98.
If F. LITTLEPIELD.
Dear sir—I take piensure in testifying to the excellence of your done
Flour and t feel gure that I amindebted to its purry and responsive qualities for sp. e. did results obtaiced during the past senson.

JOS. R. FREEMAN.

arnation

The Gem of All the .... Variegated Varieties

THIS variety is one of the most prolific bloomers of the whole Carnation family, and the

JOHN N. MAY, Summit, New Jersey.

Herr's Smilax

Sample plants sent for 10 cents. 75 cts. per 100, or $5.00 per 1000.

CARNATION EXPERIENCES * *

A few hundred left, send your address und get one free......

ALBERT M. HERR

Lancaster, Pa.

*∄กกกกกกกกกกกกกกกกกกกกกกกกกก*กก

STRONG, HEALTHY ROOTED CUITINGS Ready Feb. 1st and Later

Including Morello, Flora Hill, Daybreak, Including Morello, Flora Hill, Daybreak, Wm. Scott Lizzie McGowan, Ivory, Silver Spray, Emily Pierson, Goldfluch, Eldorado, and others. Send me a list of what you want and get prices before you lany. We also have a fine lot of Curnation and Violet blooms for sale. Write for prices.

CHAS. CHADWICK.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. Lock Box II.

Carnations Chrysanthemums

NEW AND STANDARD VARIETIES

Our new Trade List will embrace the lend-ing novelties of 1898 and 1897 as well as the best standard sorts. Address

H. WEBER & SONS.

Bread and Butter

Carnations Scott and Rose Queen for Pink; Emily Preison for Fink; Emily Preison for Mile Molecular and Kohinoor for White No experiment and disappointment proving these contailons strong rooted cuttings of or per 100 $8.00 per thousand Cash with order, County Flore Contains

SOUTH SIDE FLORAL CO., Springfield, III.

NEW WHITE PERPETUAL

BLOOMING CARNATION

Anna H. Shaw

The Best "All Round" White Carnation for Cut Flowers. Recommendations: Wonder fur bloomer, Unusual Vicor, Rapid Grower, Forms Strong Blooming Plants in a Very Short Time. Perfectly Healthy, Handsome Foliage, Large Beautifully Former Flowers on Long Stems, Exquisitely Fragrant. Never Bursts, Blooms Longer and Gives More Flowers and John Vicor Strong Strong Carnation that can always be depended upon, give Anna H. Shaw a trial. Rooted cuttlings $1 mer dog; 28 per 100 Strong Plants $1.75 per dog; $10 per 100 Send for Trade List and Cutalogue of Seeds, Bulbs, Plants, Cactl. Etc.

Mrs. Theodosia B. Shepherd. Ventura (by-the-Sea), Cal.

REDUCED PRICES

-Very Fine Rooted-

Taken from our "Prize" Stock.

McCOWAN ALASKA ALBERTIND HELEN KELLER ARMAZINDY DAYBREAK £2 00 per 100, £15 00 per 1000,

SOUTH PARK FLORAL CO., New Castle, Ind.

CARNATIONS FROM SOIL

Kathleen Pantlind | $10 per 100, Beauties 2½ in. | 6 per 110, Flora Hill | 5 per 100, Catnots, 2½:in. | 4 per 100,

HOPP & LEMKE,

E. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

FIREFLY. EVELINA. EMPRESS, ARGYLE. GOLD NUGGET. BON TON, PSYCHE, PAINTED LADY AND TEN OTHER VARIETIES OF 1898.

$2400 per doz ; $10 00 per 100. Also best older varioties send for ilst. . . . .

GEO. HANCOCK & SON, Grand Haven, Mich.

CARNATIONS AND COLEUS

ROOTED CUTTINGS

THE 1898 INTRODUCTIONS THE 1897 INTRODUCTIONS

REAK of special quality.

ROOTED COLEUS in variety.

Cood stock only. Price list free. DAYBRE

DAN'L B. LONG. Growers' Agent. BUFFALO.

KLONDIKE

Cold Fields at Your Door.

COLEUS—All kinds, all grades and ell prices.

COLEUS—All kinds, all grades and ell prices.

Verschaffeitil and Queen, 75c per 100; 86.00 per 1000;
2½-inch pots, $15.00 per 1000; $1.75 per 100. Coleus in variety, 55c per 100; $4.50 per 1000; $2½-inch pot. $12.00 per 1000; $1.50 per 1000. Accratum dwarf biue. 66c per 100; $1.50 per 1000. Fuchsias, standard sorts, $12.00 per 1000; $1.50 per 100. Anthemis Coronaris, Golden Marguerite, $1.50 per 100. Anthemis Coronaris, Golden Marguerite, $1.50 per 100. Tuchsias, standard sorts, $12.00 per 100; $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 100. Alternanthera Paronychiodes, Major and Aurea Nans, 60c per 100. Hellanthus Multiflorus, Dauble Golden, 2½-inch pot, $2.00 per 100; $12.00 per 100;

J. E. FELTHOUSEN, Schenectady, N. Y.

Io Make Room

The Morris Floral Co.. MORRIS, ILL.

MAY OFFER.

Alteruanthera, 2-in. pots, A. Nana, $1.75, Per 100 Alternantners, 2-in. poos, 3.

P. Major.

Begonias, 2½-in. pot, and Vernon.

Coleus, 2½-in. pot, and Centaurea Gym.

Geraniums, 20 var., 2½-in. pots, $2.00; 3-in, pot. Geraniums. 4-3 25 3-10. pot...
Geraniums, 4-in. pots, and Double Petunias...
Smilax, 2-in. pots, 1000, $9.00....
PrImroses, ready in June, single.... CASH PLEASE.

JOS. H. CUNNINGHAM, - Delaware, Ohio.

BARGAINS IN PLANTS CEST

NICHOLAS AMOS, Crestline, Ohio.

HARDY PINKS

2½-in. pots; Suuv. de Sale, $3.50 per 100; Her Majesty, Gleu Valley, Laura Wilmer, Ger-trude, $3.00 per 100.

VIOLETS...

2½-in. pots; Admiral Avellon, Princess of Wales, $3.50 per 100; Luxuune, California, Campbell, Swanley White, $3.00 per 100.

THE CONARD & JONES CO., -West Grove, Pa.

100,000 VERBENAS. THE CHOICEST VARIETIES IN CULTIVATION. IN CULTIVATION.

Fine pot plants, $2.50 per 100; $20 per 1000. Rooted Cuttings, 75c per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $50 per 10000 NO RUST OR MILDEW.

PACKED LIGHT, AND SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. SEND FOR CIRCULAR. We are the Largest Growers of Verbenas in the country. Our plants cannot be surpassed.

J. L. DILLON, Bloomsburg, Pa.

Princess of Wales Violet...

The Best Money-Maker Among Violets. Strong 2½-inch pot-grown plants......$5.00 per 100.

J. A. PETERSON. 105 E. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.

Extraordinary Offer!!

GERANIUM

In bud and bloom. 2½-inch pots, $5.00 per 100 Express prepaid to any part of U. S. A.

HENRY EICHHOLZ, Florist, WAYNESBORO, PA.

4-inch Paper Pots, in Bloom

PINK, RED and WHITE Best Bedders. . . . Thousands Ready. ... WRITE ....

GEO. A. KUHL, - PEKIN, ILL.

4 inch pots in bloom.

PINK. RED AND WHITE, $8.00 per 100. TWO THOUSAND READY.

BERNARD PRASIL, ALTENHEIM, Oak Park, III.

Geraniums

Best mixed varieties for hedding, all in buds, strong, healthy plants; 3½ inch pots, $3 00 per 100; 2½-inch pots, $2.00 per 100.

Cannas 4-Inch pots, tine plants; Madam Crozy, Charles Henderson and B. Brown, $5 00 per 100. Cash with orders.

CARL E. TAUBE, Proprietor, Paxton Greenhouses, - Harrisburg, Pe.

PRICES GREATLY REDUCED Cape Cod Pink Pond Lily

For price lists, Plants and Cut Flowers, address the original cultivators.....

CHIPMAN BROS.

SANDWICH, & (CAPE COD), & MASS.

MUST HAVE ROOM
Ceraniuma—10,000 S. A. Nutt. 2-Inch, $15,00 per 1000; $1.00 per 1000. Dracæne Perkins, best Pink, 2-In., $1.00 per 100. Dracæne Indivisa—Strong 3-In., $8.00 per 100. Coleua, Tooted cuttings, 6 kinds, 500. per 100; Klondike, strong 2-In., $5.00 per 100. Begonia Vernon, 2-Inch, $2.00 per 100. Carnation Idzzle McGowan, soil or pots, $10.00 per 1000. Caah pleese.

CARL HAGENBURGER, West Mentor, Ohio.

BENJ. CONNELL, Florist, WEST GROVE, PA.

10,000 Ampelopsis Veitchil, dne dormant pot plants, 1 and 2-year uld; price 3 and 6c.
1 and 2-year uld; price 3 and 6c.
20 000 Viniets; 20 000 Carnations; Spirea Anthony Waterer and Blue Spirea; Strawberry-Raspberry and other new small fruits. All must be sold. Ask for pricea. Address

BENJ. CONNELL, West Crove, Pa.

ROEMER'S Superb Prize Pansies

The finest strain of Pansies in the World.

INTRODUCER AND GROWER OF ALL THE LEADING NOVELTIES.

Highest Award Inter. Exhibition at Hamburg, 1897 Catalogue free on application.

Fred. Roemer,

Seed Grower, - QUEDLINBURG, GERMANY.

keerererererererererere

FAXON'S "WHITE PANSIES.

The best mixture in cultivation, flowers very rge, thick and velvety; of superb colors and arkings. The perfection of form and texture. large, thick

In Trade Packets at $1.00 each. M. B. FAXON,

Lock Box 1528. BOSTON, MASS. Correspondence solicited.

PANSIES

THE JENNINGS STRAIN.

THEY ARE GRAND.

Fine stocky plants in bud and bloom, $10 and $15 per 100 by express; small plauts.

75c by mail. Pansy seed, $1.00 per pkt. Aster seed, Semple's pink, $1.00 per oz. Casb with order.

E. B. JENNINGS.

Lock Box 254. SOUTHPORT, CONN. Crower of the Finest Pansies.

PANSIES IN BLOOM

$2.50 per 100. $20.00 per 1000.

S. MUIR.

3530 MICHIGAN AVE., - CHICAGO.

Strong Outside-Grown Stock

VEGETABLE PLANTS

Tomato, Cabbage, Lettuce, Celery and Sweet Potalo. 15 cts. per 100; $1.00 per 1000.

Pepper aud Egg Plants, 25c per 100; $2.00 per 1000.
Cauliflower Snowball, 35c per 100; $2.50 per 1000.
All plants by mail, 10c per 100 extra Price list for large quantities. Cash with order.

R. VINCENT, Jr. & SON, White Marsh, Md.

5,000 SMILAX...

From flats, by mail, 500 per 100, 84.00 per 1000 From 2-inch pots, $2.25 per 100, $13.00 per 1000 Gerantums from 2-inch pots, $2.25 per 100, $20.00 per 1000. Cash with the order. Send for samples. Frod Boerner, CAPE MAY CITY, N. J.

Harrisburg, Pa.

Business since Easter has been fair, but would have been better had it not been for the gloomy weather which began after the holidays and continued until the end of April. Considering the frost and one or two heavy snowstorms which threatened destruction to the outside growth, we have had a very good spring season. After the Easter sale, most of the greenhouses and stores presented a very empty appearance. The demand for cut flowers in particular seems to be increasing.

The great call for carnations last winter has caused florists to plant a Jarger number than heretofore. The Paxton greenhouses are planting a very large stock, 25,000 being already in the earth. The varieties are Flora Hill, Victor, Daybreak and Scott, which seem to be the best money-makers.

Mr. Oster, of Fairview, is preparing to go into business and intends to build one or two large greenhouses. Mr. Fenichele of Harrisburg, is about to build an addition to his establishment. He has been very fortunate this year in producing a rather superior assortment of plants, C. E. T.

When to Fumigate.

ED. AM. PLORIST:-When is it best to fumigate greenhouses, previous to syringing or when the plants are all wet

In reply to query as to the best time to fumigate greenhouses, we prefer the evening, and if possible when there is little or no wind blowing. Care must at all times be exercised to avoid the tobacco flaming. This is done by making the stems slightly damp before the fire is applied, and a watering can filled should be handy with which to sprinkle should the smoke develop a tendency to become too hot, as this is where the danger lies-in the possibility of injuring the tender foliage. Some plants are more susceptible to this trouble than others, for instance, heliotrope and most of the tender leaves of annuals, as mignonette; and as this class of plants is rarely or never affected with the greenfly, a sheet of paper placed over the plants will give them the necessary protection. Disastrous results attended the fumigation of a house of roses with as on one occasion in the early fall, which was operated upon on one foggy morning when the foliage was more or less damp. Whether it was because the fumigation was done in the morning or because the foliage was damp we do not know, but we have always refrained from applying tobacco smoke under similar conditions in the morning ever since, and our plants have escaped a scorching in consequence, we assume. I way assume because most practical men who think they know and feel they know also realize that they cannot prove to the entire satisfaction of the uninitiated in many of the apparent mysteries of horticulture. Many of our operations with plants under glass are done on an hypothesis, as it were, or in other words, much of what we do is influenced by a something which is a little more than a theory and a little less than a fact

Polishkill Psil, N. V. At the meeting of the Duchess County Horticultural Society, on May 4, Mr. W. W. Gommer sall read an essay upon "Trees and Shrubs Adapted for Duchess County," with sug gestions for their arrangement

Kraft's Plant Toni

For Plants, Palms and Flowers

A Wonderful Preparation for the Promotion of Plant Life, Des-truction of Insects and Scale.......

a beautiful bright green. For sale at

84 & 86 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO,

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE.

14 BARCLAY STREET, NEW YORK.

THE MODEL CARNATION SUPPORT

OTEENS, N. Y., Feb. 16, 97.

MR. THERON PARKER, Brooklyn, N. Y., Dear Sir;—
I have tested your latest model Carnation Support and am free to say that I consider it the best wire carnation support that I have ever seen. It is quickly and easily applied, and I think will prove very durable, and you certainly deserve great credit for the invention.

Very truly yours.

(C. W. WARD.

FLATHUSH, BROOKLYN,
N. Y., Feb. 18, 37
MR THERON PARKER,
Hear SIF; - Your wire stake is certainly a gem. Withnout hesitating we indorse it us an up to-date carnation support. Yours truly,
DAILLEBOUZE BROS.

W. HOROKEN, N. J.,
Feb. 18, 37.
MR. THERON PAIRKER,
Brooklyn, N. Y., Dear ShrIt gives me much pleasure to congratulate you upon your success in getting up carnation supports. I think that those I have had from you
are about as perfect as anybody will be able to make them. They certainly fill my full for an ideal carnation support, a thing I have been looking for for a long tine, Wishink you every success
in the sale of them, I am
Yoers truly, E, ASMES, at discount on early orders.

Write for price list and discount on early orders. THERON PARKER, 22 Morton St. BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Scollay

Sprinkler.... INDESPESSABLE

J. A. Scollay, Maker, ( Myrtle Ave

Brooklyn, N. Y. VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Gog't Western Agents, 84 Randolph St., CHICACO.

Stem*s...*

Strong and Clean

...Dust BEST QUALITY Bale (400 lbs.) $2.00 100 lbs.

Ton. 9.00 500 lbs.

T. W. Wood & Sons.

Seeds, Bulbs and Supplies for Florists and Gardeners,

Send for Catalogue.

... RICHMOND, VA.

STEMS

BOTTOM PRICES.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

Chicago. New York,

Nashville, Tenn.

Balmy spring has opened so gloriously in the last few days that sun and air are very summer like. All kinds of spring blossoms are abundant. Snowballs, preonies, and lily of the valley are in profusion. This seems to have been a particularly good year for lily of the valley, it having been on the market in great quantities. Some seasons the delicate blossoms are nipped by the frost, and we see very few of them. The quality, of course, is not equal to the cultivated varieties, but their fragrance is far greater. The florists have not profited by this profusion of out-of-door flowers, rather the reverse, but there is comfort in the thought that their season is brief. Just now, too, decorations of dogwood blossoms are all the rage, and the great white blooms make a garniture which is not to be disparaged because it is cheap.

At a recent wedding white snowballs and dogwood blossoms were used in the house decorations, and the prospective groom carried to the florist who was to furnish the bridal bouquet one hundred lilies of the valley, which he purchased for 40 cents. They mingled effectively with the Bride roses, and even the most conservative buyer could find no fault with the price. Paronies are very fine. The crimson and white are just coming in but are a drug on the market.

The rose erop now is in fine condition. Brides and Bridesmaids are particularly choice; but the demand is fickle, for most buyers are "so tired of roses, we have had them all winter," and are decorating their tables and homes with the sweet spring blossoms. Awhile back even the wild violet of the variety known as "Johnny-jump-up," was meeting with a The violet season is entirely ready sale. over now.

There has been very little in the way of large or even small social entertainments, and this makes the flower trade very quiet. There is little prospect of a stronger market until the time of school commencements. Memorial Day is not busy with the florists, nor is the same day observed here that is observed in the north. Here we garland the graves of the gray, there they deck those of the blue. Here it is a great offering of nature's flowers, although the florists usually freely contribute large hampers of their prettiest blooms.

M. C. Dorris.

FIRST-CLASS GOODS and CORRECT PRICES

have forced us to the front and today we are the largest manufacturers of.....

IRON RESERVOIR VASES

and Lawn Settees in America. . . . A 40-page catalogue for the asking.

McDonald Bros. 108-114 Liberty St., COLUMBUS, O.

FLOWER POTS

A SPECIALTY STANDARD POTS

List and SAMPLES FREE.

J. G. SWAHN'S SDNS. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN. Mention American Florist.

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO. Flower Pots,

Bulb Pans, Hanging Baskets and Saucers

OUR FLOWER POTS are standard measure and all first-class and we assure you they will give good satisfaction. We call your attention to our new pots, 6, 7, 8 and 9-inch, called the "Poro Pot." They are more Porous than any pots, smoother inside and outside, perfect drainage, and are easily washed and cleaned. Give them a trial and you will not want any other. Remember these Pots are as cheap as any other Pot on the market. Write lor price list.

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

Standard Flower Pots...

OUR POTS ARE OF THE BEST QUALITY.

We ship all goods from Cincinnati, guaranteeing lowest freight rates and prompt delivery.

Write us before placing your orders elsewhere.

CAMBRIDGE TILE MFG. CO., Covington, Ky.

TAILLDAY POTTERY COMPANY 713-719 WHARTONST PHILADELPHLA PA TANDARD

BRANCH WAREHOUSES: Kearney and Westside Aves., Jersey City, N. J. Jackson Av. & Pearson St., Long Island City, N. Y.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST'S COLOR CHART

is now accepted as the standard in preparing color descriptions, by many foreign houses as well as in America.

PRICE IS CENTS POSTPAID. AMERICAN FLORIST CO., 322 Dearborn St., Chicago

FULL SIZE AND WIDE BOTTOMS. BULB PANS AND AZALEA POTS.

DETROIT FLOWER POT M'F'Y, HARRY BALSLEY, DETROIT, MICH., 490 HOWARD ST.

Standard & & FLOWER

If your greenhouses are within 500 miles of the Capitol, writens; we can save you money.

W. H. ERNEST.

Station M. N. E.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Good Railroad Facilities KELLER BROS.

For shipping.
Special Attention Given to
Mail Orders, and Special
Sizes Made to Order.

NORRISTOWN, PA.

Price Lists Furnished on Application.

STANDARD FLOWER POTS

Send for price list of Standard Flower Pots, Hanging Vases, Seed Pans and Cylinders for Cut Flowers

Lawn Vases, 17x17-in., $1.00; 19x20-in., $1.50; Bases 12-in. high 50c. Address

HILFINGER BROS. POTTERY,
FORT EDWARD, N. Y. AUGUST ROLKER & SONS, AGTS., 52 DEY STREET, - NEW YORK CITY.

Pots Pots Pots Pots

Standard Pots at the following low prices for cash with order . . . . .

Harrison Pottery, - Harrison, Ohio.

Cleveland.

Business during the last week has been rather slow with nearly everybody, although it showed a slight improvement over the week previous. The last days of the week were enlivened by cheap sales of roses, carnations and spring flowers in which a great deal of stock was used up without leaving very much to show for it. Excepting some late varieties of tulips, bulbons stock is now about over for this season, leaving the field clear for greenhouse flowers.

The weather has been rather warm of late, and the growers have been hustling to get out their carnation stock.

The libel suit of Leopold vs. Graham, which has been hanging fire for some time, came to trial lately and resulted in a verdict for the defendant, the jury being out but a very short time.

A.

VANCE BOILERS

ARE THE BEST

For Heating Greenhouses, Conservatories and Dwellings.

Our boilers consume all gases from the fuel, therefore making it the most desirable boiler for greenhouse heating on the market.....

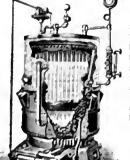

Send to-day for Catalogue and Price List,

Vance Boiler Works,

399 LAKE AVE., GENEVA, N. Y.

GORTON SIDE FEED Boiler

boiler that will keep a steady heat in a greenhouse all night without attention. No sittling up all night to keep a good fire

Further information on application

.4

GORTON & LIDGERWOOD CO.

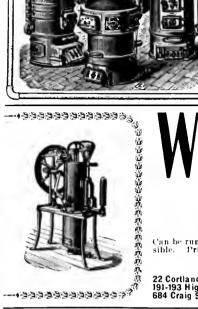

TRADE MARK

HOT WATER HEATERS AND STEAM BOILERS

THE STANDARD OF EXCELLENCE
FOR THEIR RESPECTIVE REQUIREMENTS

GURNEY NEATER MFG. CO.

74- FRANKLIN ST BOSTON. MASS. NEW 108K CITY BRANKL COR. ARCH. 48 CENTRE STREET.

Water

For Greenhouses, Gardens and Lawns in liberal quantities, every hour of the ** year, whether the wind ** blows or not ** ** ** **

Improved Rider Hot Air Pump Improved Ericsson Hot Air Pump

Can be run by any ignorant boy without danger. Explosion impossible. Prices greatly reduced. In use in every part of the world.

RIDER-ERICSSON ENGINE CO.

22 Cortland St., NEW YORK. 191-193 High St., BOSTON. 684 Craig St., MONTREAL, P. Q. 86 Lake St., CHICAGO. 29-31 N. 7th St., PHILADELPHIA. Send for catalogue "A 3."

Wheeler-Stenzel Co.

IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF

***********

Make your contracts for next season now. We can deliver to any part of the country and Save You Money......

**************

Greenhouse Glass

72 Sudbury St., BOSTON, MASS.

STANDARD VE

EQUAL IT
Strength

Durability
Rend for Catalogue.

VENTILATING

Flimsy on Complicated about it.

MACHINE.

E. HIPPARD, YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO,

Cypress
Green House
Material.

RED CEDAR

Write for Estimates.

Always mention the

American Florist

when writing advertisers.

KROESCHELL BROS. CO. Preenhouse * Roiler

FEGUNOUSE * ROLLER

Bollers made of the best of material, shell, firebox sheets and heads of steel, water space all around (front, sides and back). Write for information.

You can not get a GOOD THING tor nothing. But the price of this apparatus is next to nothing. Send for price and description to

J. D. CARMODY, Evansville, Ind.

CYPRESS GREENHOUSE

DESCRIPTION.

SEND FOR CATALOCUE.

& SECOND-HAND MATERIAL.

purchased from Sherlff. Receiver, and Assignee, sales at less than one-half prices. Pipe and Fittings tlose, Florists' Wire, Hot Water Heaters, Greenhouse Bollers and Engines. Rope, Light Wrought Iron Pipe. Glass Sash, and thousands of other articles, for sale by CHICAGO HOUSE WRECKING CO. Largest Mail Order Depol for New and Second-Hand Material in the World.

W. 35TH & IRON STS., CHICACO. Write for our free lilustrated catalogues

GREEN-HOUSE HEATING. MYERS & CO.

1518 & 1520 S. 9th St. PHILADELPHIA. Send for catalogue and price list.

FOR SALE CHEAP.

GLASS for Greenhouses, Conservatories, Hother Sashes and Mats. Paints, Oils, etc. THE REED GLASS & PAINT CO., 456 W. Broadway, NEW YORK.

Cypress Greenhouse Material.

We are the pioneers in Clear Cypress Greenhouse Material. discovered that Cypress is better than any other wood for greenhouses from top of posts up and we introduced it, and fought for it against many prejudices, and finally succeeded in bringing it into general use.

Others have attempted to follow where we lead, others are trying to reap what we sowed, but we have the experience and are recognized as experts in greenhouse construction.

Write for Circulars or Estimates.

Lockland Lumber Co.

LOCKLAND, OHIO.

SALESROOMS:

133 Centre Street, - NEW YORK CITY. 510 Arch Street. - PHILADELPHIA.

COTTAGE BOILER

WESTERN BRASS MFG. CO. ST. LOUIS, MO.

PACIFIC COAST AGENTS: HOLBROOK, MERRILL & STETSON SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

> EUROPEAN AGENT: AUG. EGGERS, BREMEN.

THE H. B. SMITH CO., Westfield, Mass.

GREENHOUSE MATERIAL

Cal. Red Cedar and Louisiana Cypress. BEST GRADES. PERFECT WORKMANSHIP.

A. DIETSCH & CO. SHEFFIELD AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

COLD WATER. SYRINGE WITH

134 LIBERTY STREET, NEW YORK, HENRY W. GIBBONS,

GREENHOUSE CONTRACTOR, STEAM and HOT WATER ENGINEER

The Largest Builder of Cucumber

Plans and estimates furnished for all kinds of Houses. or an kinds of riodses.

N. B." Will accept in payment- Part Cash, Balance on Mortgage. A large stock of treenhouse Equipment constantly on hand.... .....Houses in the World

GENERAL OFFICE and WORKS LEOMINSTER, MASS. 4.4

| Index to a Allen J K                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Advertisers.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Allen J K                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Long D B1206 1217Lonsdale Edwin1243Lord & Burnham Co. 1222                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Amling E C1204                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Lord & Burnnam Co. 1222Lonisville Tobacco Co. 1218                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Armstrong Luther1208                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Lord & Burnham Co. 1222 Lonisville Tobacco Co 1218 Lacas J & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Banning Frank 1210                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Lyon Horticole135                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Bartlett Geo S 1215                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Manz J & Co1207                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Bessett & Washburn 1204Beyersdorfer H & Co. 1209                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | May Jno N 1216                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Beerhorst & Van Leeu-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | McBeth Thos                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Bienville Nurseries1217                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | McCrea & Cole                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Bohhink L C                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | McDonald sros1219McDonald&McManus 1205                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Boston Letter Co1200                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | McDonald & Steele. 1215Middlemass Archie. 1208                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Machine Co 1210                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Millang Frank1205                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Burpee W Atlee & Co 1210                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Moon Samuel C 1208 1214                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Cambridge Tile Mig 1219Carmody J D1221                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Morris Floral Co1217                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Chadwick Chas 1216Chicago Wrecking Co 1221                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Mound City Flo Co1206Mulr 8                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Chipman Bros1217                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Myers & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Cleary & Co1206                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Nat'l Flo Board Trade1307National Plant Co1214                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Cincas & Boddington 1210                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | N Y Cut Flower Ex. 1206N Y Cut Flower Co. 1204                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Coles W W 1215                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Nickel Plate R R207                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Conard & Jones Co., 1217                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Parker Theron 1218                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Connell. Benj 1217Conley John & Son 1209                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Pennock Sam'l 81205                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Cottage Gardens. 12:5Craig Robt & Son. 12:13-12:14                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | McDonald & Steele. 1215 Middlemass Archie. 1248 Millank Frank. 1248 Millank Frank. 1249 Monn Samnet C. 1238 1211 Moon Samnet C. 1247 Mound City Flo Co. 1247 Mulr S. 1247 Mulr S. 1247 Mulr S. 1247 Nationa Plaat Co. 1214 N Y Cut Flower Ex. 1248 Nationa Plaat Co. 1214 N Y Cut Flower Ex. 1248 Nationa Plaat Co. 1214 N Y Cut Flower Ex. 1248 Nationa Plaat Co. 1214 Parker Theron 1248 Peanock W P. 1248 Peanock W P. 1248 Pennock Sam'l S. 1245 Prassil Bernard. 1247 Prince A G & Co. 1244 Randall A L. 1244 Randall A L. 1244 Randall A L. 1248 Regan Printing Housel256 Regan Printing Housel256 Regan Printing Housel256 Relin Bros. 1248 Relin M & Co. 1244 Rice M & Co. 12 |
| Conningham J H1217Dames N                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Postman J K                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Detroit Flo w Pot Migi2la                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Prince A G & Co1204Onaker City Mo'h Wk: 1221                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Dickinson Albert Co.1210                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Randall A L                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Dillon J L                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Reed Glass & Paint Col221                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Dorner Fred & Sons Col215                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Regan Printing Housel207                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Ehret F                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Rice M & Co1209                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Elliott W H                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Rigan Frinding Hobertson, 1204 Rice M & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Ernest W H1213                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Rogers P's Flora: Co 1204                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Detroit Flow Pot Migi219 Detroit Flow Pot Migi219 Detainson Albert Co. 2210 Dictainson Co. 2210 Dictainson Co. 2210 Dictainson Albert Co. 2210 Elchaboltz Henry 1210 Elliot W H. 1200 Elliot & Pollworth 1200-1206 Ernest W H. 1211 Faxon M B. 1211 Forthonson J E. 1211 For Box 1210 Flow Mut Fire Ins Co. 127 Flow Mut Fire Ins Co. 127 Flord Bros. 1208 Flord | Rice M & Co.   130                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Flo Mut Fire Ins Co 12 3                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Saltford Geo1215                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Galvin & Co 1245                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Scollay Jnn A1218                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Flo Mat Fire Ins Co. 123 Galvin & Co. 124 Galvin & Co. 124 Glibins H W. 123 Glibins & Co. 122 Gorton & Lidgerwood123 Gurney Heater Co. 123 Gutta Perpha Rub Co. 121                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Sefton Mfg Co 1218                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Gurney Heater Co .1220                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Sheridan W F                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Havenburger Carl1217                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Skabenra Din Co1218                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Haerens Aug 1211                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 8mith The H B Co12215 mmith Nath # 80m1215                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Harrison Pottery1219Hartford H.E1205                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Smith W C Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Harrison Pottery. 121: Harrison Pottery. 121: Harrison H E. 123: Harrison H E. 123: Heart M A 123: Heacock Job 121: Helkes W F. 121: Herr Albert M. 121: Hildinger Bros. 222:                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | South Park Floral Col216South Side Floral Co 1216                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Helkes W.F 1214Herr Athert M 1216                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Stearns Lumber Co 1221St Lonis Cut FlowerCol206                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Hildinger Bros1213                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Stollery Bros                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Hippard E., 1214 1225                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Sunderbruch H L Co.1206Sutherland Geo A 1205                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Holton & Hunkel Co. 120                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Sutton E B Jr                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Hopp & Lemke 121                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Tanba Carl E 1215                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Hort adv 120                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Traendly & Schenck 1205                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Herr Atbert M. 12h Hiffinger Bros. 12l Hiffinger Bros. 12l Hiffinger Bros. 12l Hippard E. 12l 122 Hitchings & Co. 122 Hotton & Hunkel Co. 120 Hooker H M Co. 12l Hopp & Lemke. 12h Horn Edw C. 120 Hott adv 12l Hutt Edw L. 12h Hillinots Cut Flower Col2) Jackson & Freklin Col2l                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Van Heemstra & Co 1211                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Jackson & Perkins Colli-Japanese Nursery 120                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Van Zanten Bros1211                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Vaughan, McKellar &                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Kasting W F                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Vincent R & Son1215                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Keller Geo & Bons121                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Walker Fert Co 1210                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| hendall Geo M 122                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Weathered 8 8on TW1222                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Jones Hiram T. 193 Kasting W F. 191 Keiter Bros B. 194 Keiter Geo & Bons 124 Keiter Harian P. 193 Kendall Geo M. 199 Kendall Geo M. 199 Kennicott Hrva Co. 193 Kinn J M. 193 Krafts Plant Tonic 124 Kroschell Brow Co. 125 Kuchn C A. 193 Kuhl Geo A. 124 Lager & Horrel 121 Lager & Ho | Vaughan, McKellar & Winterson                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Kraft's Plant Tonic 121                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Webber & Don.   1205                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Kuchn C A 123                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Williams, The FR Co Fig.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Lager & Hurrell121                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Witthold Geo 1213                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Lang Julius 120Leteiller A. Sons 121                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 4 100 mm 2 5 100 mm 2 100 mm                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Ley John H                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 3 Wors CW                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| LOCKIANO Lidm Co 122                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 1 YOUNG TROOK AF 130                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |

Boilers

OF HIGH

For GREENHOUSES.

Hot Water. Giblin & Co., Utica, N. Y.

Hitchings

HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTS AND

GREENHOUSE HEATING AND VENTILATING APPARATUS.

THE HIGHEST AWARDS RECEIVED AT THE WORLD'S FAIR FOR HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTURE. GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION AND HEATING APPARATUS.

Conservatories, Greenhouses, Palm Houses, etc., erected complets, with our patent Iron Frame Construction. Send four cents postage for illustrated catalogue.

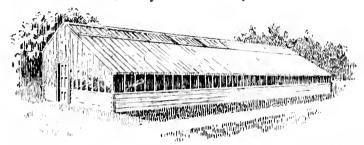

233 Mercer Street, NEW YORK.

LORD & BURNHAM CO.

HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS LARGEST BUILDERS OF GREENHOUSE STRUCTURES.

Red Gulf Cypress Greenhouse Material

Strictly Free From Sap.

Write to New York Office for circular and estimates. Send 5 cts. postage for latest catalogue of Greenhouse Healing and Ventilaling Apparatus. Send 4 cts. postage for Catalogue of "Patent Iron Construction." Write for circular of Hot Bed Sash and Frames.

New York Office:

General Office and Works:

St. James Bldg., Broadway and 26th St.

Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y.

Thos. W. Weathered's Son

Horticultural Architect ····and Builder

Manufacturer of Greenhouse Heating and Ventilating Apparatus, Cypress Greenhouse Material of every description. Send four cents postage for illustrated catalogue. * .*

141 Centre St., NEW YORK.

FOR GLASS . * . * AND PAINT ... LOW PRICES. HIGH QUALITY

& Co., JOHN

141 N. 4th St. PHILADELPHIA.

New York and Chicago.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

America is "the Prow of the Wessel; there may be more comfort Amidships, but we are the first to touch Unknown Seas."

Vol. XIII.

CHICAGO AND NEW YORK, MAY 14, 1898.

No. 519.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

Copyright 1898, by American Florist Company. Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY. 324 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Eastern Office: 67 Bromfield St., Boston.

subscription, $1.00 a year. To Europe, $2.00. Subscriptions accepted only from the trade.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

OFFICERS-WM. F. GUDE. Washington, D. C., president; A. DONAGHUE. Omaha, Neb., vice-president; W. J. STEWART, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass., secretary; H. B. BEATTY, Oll City. Pa., treasurer, The fourteenth annual meeting will be held at Omaha, Neb., August 16-19, 1888.

THE AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.
Annual Convention at Philadelphia, February, 1899.
ALBERT M. HERR, Lancaster Pa., Secretary.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.
Annual meeting at Omaha, Neb., August, 1898.
ELMER D. SMITH, Adrian, Mich., secretary.

CONTENTS.

| Experiments with chemical fertilizers                                                                                                                                                                  | 1.2.2. |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------|
| Dendrobium phalaenopsis (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                       | 122    |
| Dendrobiums for florists                                                                                                                                                                               | 1223   |
| Dendrobium phalaenopsis (illus.) Dendrobiums for florists Contier roses at Klehm's nurseries (illus.)                                                                                                  | 1225   |
| Sweet pea notes                                                                                                                                                                                        | 122    |
| New York.                                                                                                                                                                                              | 1220   |
| Sweet pea notes                                                                                                                                                                                        | 1220   |
| Carnations                                                                                                                                                                                             | 1227   |
| Curious blemish upon dracaena leaf (illus.) .                                                                                                                                                          | 100    |
| Philadelphia                                                                                                                                                                                           | 122    |
| Boston                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 122    |
| Chicago                                                                                                                                                                                                | 122    |
| S. A. F. officers at Omaha                                                                                                                                                                             | 1000   |
| A Missouri success (illus.) Carnations Curious blemish upon dracama leaf (illus.). Philadelphia Boston Chicago S. A. F. officers at Omaha The Newport picture. Catalogues received Greenhouse building | 1-3-10 |
| Catalogues received                                                                                                                                                                                    | 1990   |
| Greenhouse building                                                                                                                                                                                    | 1990   |
| Buffalo                                                                                                                                                                                                | 1220   |
| Buffalo                                                                                                                                                                                                | 1223   |
| American Carnation Society Steam and hot water heating (illus.)                                                                                                                                        | 122    |
| Steam and hot water heating (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                   | 1230   |
| Obituary                                                                                                                                                                                               | 123    |
| Rochester                                                                                                                                                                                              | 123    |
| The nursery trade                                                                                                                                                                                      | 1236   |
| The nursery trade Park and Outdoor Art Association                                                                                                                                                     | 1236   |
| Franklin Pa                                                                                                                                                                                            | 1236   |
| St. Paul.                                                                                                                                                                                              | 1237   |
| St. Paul.New Haven, ConnThe seed tradeSt. Louis                                                                                                                                            | 1237   |
| The seed trade                                                                                                                                                                                         | 1238   |
| St. Louis                                                                                                                                                                                              | 1239   |
| Cincinnati                                                                                                                                                                                             | 1238   |
| CincinnatiBedding plantsOrange, N. JSecond year treatment of grafted roses                                                                                                                 | 1239   |
| Orange, N. J                                                                                                                                                                                           | 1240   |
| Second year treatment of grafted roses                                                                                                                                                                 | 1:24:  |
| Cleveland                                                                                                                                                                                              | 1243   |
| Cleveland                                                                                                                                                                                              | 124    |
| Omaha                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 1240   |
| Worcester, Mass                                                                                                                                                                                        | 1240   |
| OmahaWorcester, Mass.Nashville, Tenn.Smilax, asparagus and tuberoses.                                                                                                                      | 1247   |
| Smilax, asparagus and tuberoses                                                                                                                                                                        | 1249   |

THE NEW DIRECTORY of florists, seedsmen and nurserymen of the United States and Canada will be ready for mailing soon. Twenty-five hundred new names. Postpaid for only $2.

Experiments with Chemical Fertilizers on Greenhouse Plants.

[Paper read by Protessor W. E. Britton before the New York Florists' Club, May 9, 1898.]

It needs no argument to show that we live in a progressive age. There is proof of it on every hand. New methods are being advocated, new processes discovered, new contrivances devised, and new articles of commerce placed on the market. Gardeners, however, are said to be conservative men. It is asserted that they grow plants in the same way that they were grown a score of years ago; the compost heap must be prepared after a certain formula, and in potting plants certain rules must be observed or the plants will not grow. However this may be, I do not blame the gardener for his conservatism. He is merely following the highway that experience has constructed for him. He is fairly sure that if he exercises care in preparing his soil, his seeds are good and the sun shines, that his plants will be a success much more surely than if he adopted every new plan, tried every scheme for fertilizing plants, or threw away his good old soil and attempted to grow his plants in dust, shavings or coal ashes.

I do not know to what extent the commercial or concentrated fertilizers are used to-day by florists and gardeners in greenhouse work. I am led to believe that most growers depend upon the compost heap and the stable for a large portion of their plant food. Many, perhaps all, have used fertilizer chemicals, with various results. If you expect that I am going to tell you how you can use them with absolute success in your greenhouse work, you will be disappointed. As yet we know far too little about the effect of these chemical manures upon the plants, and also too little about the contents of the soil that we use, to ensure a successful culture.

I shall merely give you an account of what we have been doing, and are still trying to do at the Connecticut Experiment Station, to throw more light upon the subject.

At the outset allow me to state that probably plants can be grown with success entirely by chemical fertilizers when we know how to use them. The trouble lies not with the chemicals, but in our ignorance of the use of these concentrated forms of plant food.

In planning the experiments of which I shall speak, it was obvious that a very poor soil should be used or the effect and influence of the varying amounts of fertilizers that we should apply would be masked and wholly lost sight of by and under the influence of the plant food already in the soil. Coal ashes and peat moss were used by our Director, Prof. S. W. Johnson, in some vegetation experiments previous to the beginning of this work. He found this a good medium for roots to ramble in; it is cheap, easily procured and contains very little plant food.

Peat moss is imported in bales and is used for stable bedding. This has to be torn apart and sifted in order to be mixed with the ashes. About three per cent. (by weight) is mixed with the ashes in order that the soil may hold moisture better, and to improve its mechanical condition. Plants stand in it more firmly than in plain coal ashes. The peat contains no readily available plant food.

Both ashes and peat moss are sifted to pass a screen with four meshes to the inch. For ashes either anthracite or bituminous coal may be used. In preparing this soil the ashes, peat, and fertilizers are carefully weighed out and mixed together thoroughly by repeated shoveling over. A little carbonate of lime (say one ounce for each 100 pounds of soil) is added to neutralize the slight acidity of the peat moss.

The potting soil or compost was prepared by composing good turf with onethird its bulk of stable manure.

These two soils (compost and coal ashes and peat) will be mentioned several times in this paper, and except where otherwise stated have been prepared as just described.

We have found the ashes and peat an excellent medium for use in studying the effects of varying quantities of the fertilizer.

Nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash are the three fertilizing elements necessary to all plant growth. Of the three, perhaps the most important is nitrogen; the plant uses considerable of it and it is rather hard to obtain. But it is a mistake to suppose that a plant can grow on one or even two of these elements. All three are necessary. Leguminous plants are able to take a portion of their nitrogen from the air, but the vast majority of plants are obliged to obtain nitrogen only from the soil. The potash and phosphoric acid must always be taken from the soil.

There are on the market a great many fertilizers prepared for special purposes. There is a potato fertilizer, a fertilizer for corn, another for use in greenhouses and so on. The more I work with fertilizers the more I am convinced that these special manures are not needed by the average agriculturist. Any fertilizer that contains a good percentage of each of the three essential fertilizing elements will suffice to grow any crop—It is true that different plants require these three elements in slightly different proportions, but the grower does not know the proportion of these fertilizing elements as they exist in available form in his soil. The proportions vary in different soils and may be nearer right for a certain crop in some cases as they exist in the soil than they are after the special manure has been applied. On some soils a special mixture may be best, while on another it is not. So for the average another it is not. So for the average grower it is probably about as well to use some high grade general fertilizer.

In our experiments, we have used the fertilizer chemicals instead of any pre-pared commercial brand of fertilizers. Nitrate of soda has been used as a source of nitrogen of which it contains about 16 per cent. As a source of phosphoric acid we have used the dissolved bone black which has about 1612 per cent, of phosphoric acid. Potash has been obtained by using the muriate, which is nearly 50 per cent. potash. We have also employed some cotton seed meal which furnishes a certain amount of each of the other ingredients necessary to plant growth.

TOMATOES.

A study of the fertilizer requirements of the tomato erop as grown under glass was commenced during the winter of 1894 and 1895.

For this first culture two soils were used. The coal ashes and peat moss which I have already described was employed, and compost was also tested beside it. Our first endeavor was to find out how much nitrogen is removed from the soil by a crop grown under glass in the usual manner, and later to ascer-tain the amount of nitrogen that needs to be in the soil to meetfully the demands of the crop. We studied these questions by growing plants in a soil known to be practically free from available nitrogen. Plots filled with the coal ash soil were given fertilizers varying from nothing to over 30 grains of nitrogen, 30 of potash, and 8 of phosphoric acid. Each plot had an area of 13.87 square feet, and contained six plants.

These plants were seedlings which had been grown in good potting soil and were nearly ready to show their first blossoms when set in the benches. The soil from 4-inch pots was placed in the experimental plots so as not to disturb the roots of the plants. The plants were trained to a single stem and all trim-mings saved for analysis. Each ripe tomato was weighed and its weight re-

Where no fertilizer was added the plants grew a little taller, but scarcely thicker than when set. The fruit was very small, but perfect in shape and hard and firm. To the taste it was dry and sweet, but somewhat lacking in flavor. It was very light colored

The plot receiving the greatest quantities of fertilizer produced the largest yield and the fruit was generally excellent, but occasionally a tomato would fail to ripen evenly or perhaps would be hollow-celled. Sometimes a fruit would become soft and assume the normal color of a ripe tomato, except around the stem, where it would be green.

At the times these cultures, were made, duplicate plants were set in pots-filled with rich compost for the sake of afford ing a rough comparison between the crops as grown in the two different soils. We were greatly surprised to find that a larger crop was produced by the plants growing in the artificially prepared and fertilized soil of coal ashes and peat moss than was obtained from the seemingly more natural combination of decayed turf and stable manure.

From these primary tests we learned that our soil of coal ashes and peat moss could furnish some potash and a little phosphoric acid to the plants, but no nitrogen. The analysis of fruits showed that tomatoes grown in such a manner were perfectly normal in chemical composition. Also that in the plot giving the largest yield, the quantities of plant food actually used by the crop was equivalent to 2 lbs. 5 oz. nitrate of soda, 13 oz. dissolved bone black, and 1 lb. 9 oz. muriate of potash for each 100 square feet of bench space. Each 100 pounds of ripe tomatoes removed from the soil the equivalent of 14 oz. nitrate of soda, 5 oz. dissolved bone black and 10 oz. muriate of potash. Four plots with regularly increased applications of nitrogen gave corresponding increases in yield of fruit, in average number of fruits per plant, and of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash in the crop.

In this first tomato experiment it was quite evident from a perusal of the figures obtained that the limit had not been reached as regards nitrogen, and that the plants might require more potash and phosphoric acid in order that they might use more nitrogen. So the next season and on to the present time, the experiment has been continued and extended and elaborated.

We have used compost both with and without additional fertilizers, and in every case a better crop was obtained from the compost alone. The addition of chemicals depressed the yield. Until the present season we have always obtained a larger yield from ashes and peat with chemicals, but it is different with the present crop. We have found the maximum limit, and some of the plants are now suffering from an overdose. We reasonably expect to get the best yield from the compost this time.

The best yield last season was made from ashes and peat to which had been added for each 100 feet of bench space 6.4 lbs. nitrate of soda, 1 lb. of dissoved bone black, and 2.4 lbs. muriate of notash. This may be a larger quantity than can be profitably used in most instances.

The amount of light, the watering and ventilating of the houses doubtless exercise considerable influence upon the vigor of the plants, and on these conditions probably depends to some extent the ability of the plant food to obtain and use the plant food of the soil.

RADISHES.

The fertilizer requirements of the radish erop as grown under glass has also been the subject of investigation. A some-what critical study was made during two seasons, in three kinds of soil-compost, coal ashes and peat, and coal ashes without peat. Compost was used both with and without the addition of fertilizer chemicals. The results are rather curious. Coal ashes alone can not be recommended as a soil for radishes, but when 3% of peat is added it makes a good medium. In every instance, the first season, radishes were ready to harvest from one to four days, and the second season from one to two weeks earlier than the plants grown in compost. They were smoother and the quality was inferior. We pulled the radishes when three-fourths of an inch in diameter, and bunched them ten in a bunch. One thousand such bunches can be grown on about 50 'square feet of bench space, and take from the soil the equivalent of 2 lb. 1 oz. of nitrate of soda, 10 oz. dissolved bone black and 1614 oz. muriate of potash. The radish is less particular as to the amount of chemicals applied in the fertilizer than some other plants.

No very great difference occurred between plots having different amounts of nitrogen, phosphorie acid and potash. The tops were slightly larger where large amounts were given, but the bottoms were ready to harvest at about the same time. To the soil of coal ashes and peat add for each 100 square feet of bench space two and one-half pounds nitrate of soda, the same quantity of dissolved bone black and one and one-half pounds muriate of potash, thoroughly mixing the fertilizer with the soil. This will grow three successive crops of radishes. If seed be planted between the rows when the first crop is nearly half-grown, and the practice followed, four crops can be taken from the soil during the same period required to produce three successive crops.

DENDRORIUM PHALAENOPSIS

Compost alone produced as good crops as where additional fertilizers were employed.

Similar experiments have been conducted with lettuce and cuenmbers. Cueumbers were a success in coal ashes and peat moss with chemicals. From a bench space of 100 square feet ninety-nine pounds of cueumbers, averaging 7.4 ounces each were obtained, as against eighty-five and a half pounds with an average of 7.2 ounces each from the compost soil.

But we have never been able to grow as good lettuce in ashes and peat with chemicals as in compost with stable manure.

A possible reason for this may lie in the fact that lettuce is more particular regarding the physical condition of the soil than some, and perhaps most, vegetable erops.

A year ago we grew Boston Market lettuee in three plots on the same bench. The plots were filled with coal ashes and varying quantities of peat moss. The first contained 6% by weight, the second 9% and the third 12%. Fertilizers and all other conditions were the same in all the plots as far as it was possible to make them. The best lettuee was produced where the largest percentage of peat moss was added.

]TO BE CONTINUED.]

Dendrobiums for Florists.

There is no dendrobe in the whole long list that can equal the old D. nobile for commercial purposes; it is easily propagated, grown and flowered, and can be kept in good health indefinitely. It a number of plants are purchased, they may be had in succession from Christmas to May, or even later; but this late flowering interferes with the growth for the following season, and plants that are to flower next year early ought to be already started to grow so that they may have a good rest after growth.

D. Phalænopsis is another fine species, bearing its flowers in elegant sprays during the late autumn and winter months. The colors are rich and varied, but the truth must be told, namely, that it does not improve with the cultivator. It is quitecommon for it to deteriorate after the first two or three years under cultivation. The plants will probably have paid for themselves by that time, but it is very unfortunate that we cannot keep it easily. However, all of the dendrobes that come from Australasia are similar in this respect.

D. formosum is a well known kind commonly seen in collections, but there is a near relative, D. Jamesianum, that requires but a cool greenhouse temperature to grow it. The flowers are almost as large as in D. formosum, and quite as freely produced year after year from the same stems; they are pure white with a bright red spot on the lip. It is a very desirable plant, and has been aptly described as an alpine form of D. formosum, which it resembles in all its parts except that they are smaller and more slender.

D. Wardianum is to my mind the best dendrobium ever discovered; the richness of its coloring, the long slender bulbs covered more than half their length with bloom is a sight that makes glad the eyes of all, be they cultivators or buyers. D. Wardianum requires similar treatment to D. nobile when in growth, but when at rest loses all its leaves before flowering. It is a mistake to keep orchids in a steaming, stifling temperature and expect them to grow vigorously. Givethem plenty of air at all times when practicable, and in the summer months let it remain on day and night; shade from the hot sun and never let them want for water until growth is completed; then gradually lessen the quantity as the sun decreases in power, and there will be no trouble in growing the above dendrobes profitably.

encouragement for a chrysanthenium show than for one of our popular annual, and so our county society has planned for the latter only. Our Springfield Amateur Horticultural Society, which is the real working society of this city, usually gives a June and a fall show. This latter society had phenomenal success last June in the matter of drawing a crowd, and, indeed, being an amateur society, we devise every way to keep our work near the hearts of the people.

The schedule for the sweet pea show grows more interesting every year. The

KLEHM'S GONTIER ROSES.

Gontier Roses at Klehm's Nursery.

Remarkable sneeess has been achieved with Papa Gontier roses at Klehm's Nursery, Arlington Heights, Ill. The plants are grown in a solid border, and although now six or seven years old they have never failed to produce a good erop of extra fine flowers for the Christmas holidays. A fair amount of blooms are obtained during the winter, and a full crop again at Easter. The plants are at all times grown cool, and ventilated as freely as earnations.

Sweet Pea Notes.

Blessings on your valuable columns for every encouragement given to the sweet pea. We hope that this royal flower will long hold her court at Springfield, Mass., and surely she is preparing to do so again this year. We never need to thresh over old straw to get something worth writing about this flower.

Our Hampden County Horticultural

Our Hampden County Horticultural Annual is out, and it is little else than a sweet pea report and schedule of our 1898 sweet pea show. With us there is less Eckford challenge eup, which was offered for the first time last year, is open to competition again. It must be won twice to be permanently owned. Mr. C. M. Hartzell, of Holyoke, Mass., took it last year. I have just been looking over his rows as planted March 17, and they bid fair to crowd the other fellows hard. I see that he uses level culture, planting two inches deep. Even the Eckford sealed packets he puts right into the ground, and they have germinated finely. I can not do that in my soil. It was peculiar that while Mr. Hartzell's vines last year were spoiled for the time by the fifteen inches of rain that we had in July, they rallied so that he made a fine showing in Angust; most people suffered total disaster

The experience of W. J. Eldred, another close competitor, goes to show how all our self flattered efforts at scientific work are sometimes as unreliable as the whims of a coquette. He planted one-half his stock at home where it would have every attention, and whereit did splendidly the year before, and the other half up in the country where it had to take its chances. When blooming time came a man was never rewarded with a meaner mongrel mass than those home rows showed. while a magnificent showing came to the exhibition from the up-country rows. For some occult reason, in spite of intelligent work, the peculiar season destroyed the identity of almost every variety, while the same seed up in the country. where it came later into bloom, gave blossoms true to a dot.

We find it very difficult to fix a satisfactory date for our sweet pea show. Usually our best growers are ready by the second week in July, but two weeks are generally allowed for the tardy ones. a generous concession made by the former at the expense of their exhibit. This year we have put the date July 20 and 21.

At the last show a committee of three excellent judges consisting of O. H. Dickinson, L. D. Robinson and W. J. Eldred was appointed to select a list of sweet peas most desirable for general culture. They named the list in three sections of a dozen each. On the whole it is an admirable choice, but cannot be expected to tally with everybody's judgment. The first dozen are: Aurora, Blanche Burpee, Blanche Ferry, Burpee's New Countess, Firefly, Golden Gleam, Her Majesty, Lovely, Maid of Honor, Royal Rose, Stanley and Venus. The second dozen Stanley and Venus. The second dozen are: America, Captivation, Countess of Aberdeen, Dorothy Tennant, Katherine Tracy, Lady Penzance, Mikado, Mrs. Eckford, Prima Donna, Ramona, Waverly and Gray Friar. The third dozen are; Apple Blossom, Brilliant, Coquette, Captain of the Blues, Duke of Clarence, Emily Lynch, Lottie Eckford, Meteor, Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, Mars, Ovid and Senator.

It is unfortunate that Mr. Eckford's recent introductions do not keep pace with the growing interest. Last year's advance list will probably show better form this year, but almost no novelty in color. This year's set will put us a little further along in three popular colors, the bright rose, the orange and the deep maroon. I am sorry to find that Chan cellor, the new bright orange, is a poor germinator.

The California novelties give us more originality. The creamy buff shades of the Burpec set and the dark prune blue of one of the Sunset Co.'s novelties are excellent. Mr. Walker is on the road to novelty production, but not there yet. I object to cluttering up the list with striped sorts unless they are of decided merit. We shall bring discredit on the novelty business unless the stripes are given a decidedly inferior value to the self The shifting nature of all the stripes admost debars them from a title to rank with named varieties. I wish they might go under the name of the selfs to which they belong with the prefix striped. Otherwise we double the list of names. Of course anything that can win a certificate should have its own name,

It is too early yet to tell whether the American Sweet Pea Society will take shape this year. Probably an attempt will be made at Springfield in July to launch it on its history. My already busy life forbids that I should be enthusiastic about this organization, but I sincerely hope that we now have a sufficient working force on this flower to push it into the dignity of a national society. When such a section of the country as that lying between Rochester, Ithaca and Elmira, N. Y., shows an enthusiasm in any flower we may be sure it is a flower that has a future. Both Cohocton and Elmira are stirred in preparation for sweet pea shows this year.

Our Springfield schedule shows one encouraging feature, that the prize money on which such a show must depend comes in good measure from the seedsmen. This is more likely to become a permanent feature than other methods of raising money. The large growers in California also offer generous assistance which does not appear on our schedule.

Until within a few days my plans were made to again visit C. C. Morse & Co., Santa Clara, Cal., this year, but their latest word reports such a disastrous drought that it will probably be better to postpone the visit till another year. Their novelty work was what I had been invited to come and look over, and 1 was expecting a rich treat. Unless they had two inches more rain before May 1 the outlook was very disheartening. It would now seem inevitable that there will be a great shortage in all seed crops. In the one item of sweet peas the contracts made led to the planting of a large acreage, but the last advices from there report the shriveling vines as past redemption unless a two-inch rainfall comes to their relief. It was Mr. Burpee's planalso to be there. In my last trip to that state nothing impressed me as more beautiful and grand than the immense blanket of seed stock in different stages of growth, blocked into all shades of green, and lit up with great sheets of color. It is a sight that well pays for the long journey.

But while drought is afflicting them, there is no drought in the east. longing for the daily drizzle to ecase and the sun to again shine forth. A kind providence favored us with a phenomenal March. I planted my sweet peas the 15th of March, a date earlier than I could ever plant before. But we have had our March in April. W. T. Herchiss.

Massachusetts.

A Missouri Success.

George M. Kellogg, president of the Maplewood Cut Flower and Plant Company, of Pleasant Hill, Mo., has achieved no inconsiderable success as the accomno meonsideranie success as the accompanying engraving will show. The entire 10,000 square feet of glass is devoted to the production of cut flowers, and the quality of the crop invariably finds for it a ready market.

New York.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING. -INTERESTING LECTURE AND DISCUSSION ON FERTILI-ZERS,—ABOUT JADOO.—A TREAT IN STORE FOR THE LADIES.—BUSINESS QUIET.—A FLORIST ARRESTED.

At the meeting of the Florists' Club. Monday evening, there was a very light attendance. Prof. Britton's address on the subject of chemical fertilizers, which we publish in another column, proved to be very interesting, not only because of its thoughts but on account of because of its thoughts but on account of the easy manner and pleasant delivery of its author. Λ number of photographs, illustrating various experiments were passed round during the lecture. At its close, President Plumb, in thanking the lecturer, expressed a desire to know something of Prof. Britton's experience with the fertilizer known as jadoo, which brought Secretary Young to his feet with an inquiry as to whether the difference in value between German peat moss and jadoo warranted the great disparity in price of these two articles. Prof. Britton replied that he did not wish to say anything to hart the business of the Jadoo Company but that he thought the price of jadoo rather excessive. This material, he said, was German peat moss lightly fertilized, and, being very wet when delivered, was found to contain 68 per cent. of water. After being dried out and analyzed it showed less than 1 per cent. of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. No doubt flowers would grow in it, but if he were a florist he would make his own material, simply taking peat moss and impregnating it. The patent does not give any formula, the only specification of importance being the process of boiling the material, which, in his opinion, did not add to its value for plant growing purposes.

President Plumb said that he had tried jadoo and found that roses did not make a root in it; Farleyense ferns did well but not any better than in ordinary compost, and he thinks he can get along nicely without it. II. A. Siebrecht added his testimony to the effect that he had tried several tons of jadoo. It soured and became stagnant after a little while. He found it useful as a sub-drainage over the broken crocks in repotting plants, the new roots seeming to take to it, but chopped up sphagum moss and fertilizer gives the same beneficial effect, and the latter can be bought for $7 a ton.

A. Herrington remarked that mother earth never went back on us yet, and that, without doubt, we have been paying too much attention to the medium used as a potting material. He had tried jadoo and other special preparations and came to the conclusion that while it might be very useful for amateurs with a few plants, it will not appeal to the practical gardener so long as he has the unlimited resources of the earth. Replying to an inquiry by Mr. Wallace, Prof. Britton said that the adhesion of the petals in carnation buds, which had been attributed by some to excessive nitrogenous food, still remains a mystery for which he is unable to offer any explanation.

ESTABLISHMENT OF THE MAPLEWOOD OUT FLOWER AND PLANT COMPANY, PLEASANT HILL, MO.

W. J. Stewart announced on behalf of the essay committee that Prof. Louis C. Elson, of the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston, will deliver a lecture before the club on "Flowers and Music" at the June meeting. This being the closing meeting of the season the committee has decided to make it a ladies' night and provide strawberries and ice cream in recognition of the presence of the fair sex for the first time in the club's history. On account of the wide popularity of the lecturer and the limited size of the hall it will be necessary to limit the attendance by the issue of tickets of admission, probably three to each member of the club.

The president announced the death of J. D. Burnett, of Madison, and a vote was taken instructing the secretary to forward resolutions of condolence to the family. An invitation from the Educational Alliance to co-operate with it in giving a spring exhibition was declined, and a like proposition from the Gardeners' Society for a fall show was referred to the exhibition committee. On the exhibition table were some Rex begonias and a new oncidium of the Cavendishii type from W. A. Manda, to each of which the committee awarded 75 points. Signor C. Gnarro entertained the club with patriotic and other airs on the organ.

Business has settled down to a steady gait, not equal to the average for May, but better than the conditions of two weeks ago would lead one to expect. The war has become less of a sensational matter, and people have arrived at the conclusion that it is possible to go on with business as before regardless of whether there is war or not. Decorations and events of special magnitude are rare, the greater part of the demand for flowers coming from small orders for everyday happenings.

P. Kontulis has been arrested, and held in default of bail, on complaint of Julius Roehrs, who alleges that Kontulis contemplated disposing of his business and defrauding him and other creditors.

Carnations.

With a great many growers May might well be termed the month of disappointment. At least it seems to sellers of rooted cuttings as if this would be the true term to apply, for orders are coming in daily for stock of which they are sold out, and the orders have to be filled in part only or returned entirely. The sender of the order by the time it is returned and he gets it off to another grower of cuttings is more than likely to have it returned unfilled the second time, and very often he will take stock which he did not want in order to make up the number required for his place. Next winter the space that should be devoted to the best variety of its color will be taken up with a second rate sort and quite a difference will be returned in profits, all because an order was not placed in time.

Right now it is well to make a mental note of this and resolve to not be caught napping next season. There are of course a number of growers to whom this does not apply, and their number will be nereasing every year; but there are many to whom it does apply, and to these it is usually either a disappointment or a direct loss. Occasionally you will see a nice lot of stock and be told by the grower that the cuttings were propagated late in May and planted out in June, but in spite of this fact if you will call at the same grower's place about March of the following year you will find that he is propagating his stock then and not waiting until May, as his success with May struck cuttings might lead you to think he would.

A rooted cutting taken from the sand as late as May 15 or June 1 will probably make a good plant by fall il given the best of care and attention. Where a variety is very scarce it is of course better to have such cuttings than none at all; but whether you buy them or grow them yourself, do not expect a good plant unless you are willing to put extra labor and expense on them. With the exhibitions given by the various florists' clubs, and the meeting of the Carnation Society in February, and the full reports of all these happenings in the trade papers, the grower of cut carnations can easily make up the list of varieties he wants to grow for the next season, and how many he wants of each, by the first of March. Then is the time to start propagating or to arrange to buy them. Attending to the matter at this date leaves a little margin for delay and you are reasonably sure of getting what you want.

Many growers do not have the room to grow their young stock on if propagated or bought so early in the season, but that is no excuse for leaving the ordering of it until May, as there are plenty of cutting growers who will be willing for a consideration to grow them for such parties and hold them until ready to plant out. As a buyer I would much prefer to take care of my own stock, and anyone who wants to grow carnations and make money out of them would do better by arranging to have the room necessary for planting or potting up their young stock and growing it under their own care and supervision.

There is another thing that is forcibly brought to our attention this month, and that is the lack of promptness so common among florists in answering their letters. At this late date it is very important both to the buyer and seller of cuttings or plants that their letters be answered at once. The man wanting the cuttings is entitled to a reply at once if the order can not be filled, and the man who has them to sell is entitled to the same treatment, as it is getting late and he may miss an order by waiting for your reply. It will not hurt any of us to look a little farther ahead than we do in our business and be a bit more prompt in our dealings with each other. ALBERT M. HERR.

A Curious Blemish Upon Dracaena Leaf.

A few days ago a leaf of a dracæna came into my possession for study. Upon the upper side and midway between the tip and base was a peculiar blotch an inch and a half across, not easily described. In color it was almost black and showed lines, darker than the other portions, that seemed to radiate from a central point. One person said that it must be the April fool work of some mischievous lad who was handy with a brush and had access to a paint pot and the greenhouse where the strange mark was found.

A microscopic examination of the blotch, however, revealed the fact that the "paint" was composed of spores along with enough of colorless substance to glue them quite securely to the leaf. These spores are oval and make up the dark lines, while a less number are scattered between these small ridges.

From this it is concluded that the very striking disfigurement of the dracæna leaf is due to a fungus, and as it has no more than a surface attachment and the leaf is not injured by it, the suggestion comes that the growth, whatever it may be, fell upon the leaf and had become dried out when and where it was found. The color of the blotch and the size and shape of the spores confirms the opinion that the fungus is the remains of a toadstool that may have grown somewhere above the plant and fallen from its place of attachment in such a way that the cap became spread out upon the leaf where it adhered, as shown in the accompanying engraving.

If we wished to be more particular it might be said that the toadstool was one of the small ones that flourish for a day and then wilt away leaving only the spores. Some of the genus coprinus are of this type with the spores nearly black and when in the moist condition and about ready to collapse will drip black drops that have been used for ink.

Byron D. Halsted.

Philadelphia.

BUSINESS IMPROVES BUT PRICES SHOW LITTLE CHANGE.—LATE STOCK IS VERY GOOD.—THE THEATRICAL BENEFIT.—PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

Business, which has been anything but good, even for the season, is showing a considerable improvement since fine weather arrived. As a matter of course flowers are plentiful; outside lilacs are offered in quantities and sell well. Dogwood is in full blossom and helps out many a decoration.

Prices are about the same as last week; $4 to $6 for tea roses; Beautics from $4 to $25 per 100; $2 per dozen buys all but the extra long-stemmed stock, a lew of the fanciest of which are held for $4 per dozen. Carnations range from $1 to $2 per 100, a few fancies bringing $3. Whites have been the best sellers of late.

There are quite a few longiflorum liles on the market, Westcott Brothers and Robert Craig each having a house of late ones. Neither lot shows any disease to speak of.

Mr. Craig, on a visit to Lancaster, Pa., last week, saw some very fine houses of Mme. Albertini. They were grown on the benches continuously and were not planted outside. Quite a few growers are advocating this plan and say that they get the best results from this mode of treatment. Mr. Murray, of Atco, is sending in some Lizzie McGowans which would be hard to beat with even the best of the new whites. The stems are particularly strong; the flowers are large and are of the purest white. Hugh Graham's Victors are also as good as at any time this season.

George Faulkner and Wm. Falk, the janitor of the club room, both of whom went with their regiments to the recruiting rendezvous, have returned.

The theatrical benefit of the Florists' Club at the Walnut street theater last Wednesday was a great success. A sum was realized nearly sufficient to pay for two large trophy cases which will be creeted in the club room in a few days. A number of bouquets contributed by the members of the club were presented to the actresses during the play and the stage was decorated with palms and vases of American Beauty roses.

W. K. Harris has been on the sick list again the past week, but we are glad to be able to say that he is improving and will soon be able to leave the house.

Thos. Cartledge, who has been unable to attend to business all winter on account of ill health, does not seem to improve, the spring weather not having the effect that was hoped for. The past week has been a very trying one, he having suffered severe sinking spells which have greatly taxed his vitality.

Pennock Bros. are about to put a new

Pennock Bros, are about to put a new wagon on the street. It is quite up to date and will help in keeping up the standard of the delivery service, which is now considered of so much importance by all the retail dealers.

Boston.

MAY EXHIBITION.—FINE CALCEOLARIAS AND RARE ORCHIDS.—PLANT TRADE LIVELY.—CUT FLOWERS QUIET.—PARK WORK PROGRESSING.—DEATH OF MISS FITZPATRICK.—GEORCI. MULLEN IS MISSING.

The May exhibition of the Massa-chusetts Horticultural Society was a good one. The calceolarias were remarkable for size, uniformity and variety of color. There were forty specimens averaging about three feet in diameter. Mrs. B. P. Cheney (John Barr gardener) took first and third prize on six, Dr. C. G. Weld (K. Finlayson, gardener) second and J. S. Bailey (Wm. Donald, gardener) fourth. On specimen plants Mr. Bailey was first, Mrs. Chency second and E. T Converse (b. F. Roy, gardener) third. Show pelargoniums from X. T. Kidder (Wm. Martin, gardener) and ivy-leafed geraniums from John Jeffries were ex cellent. | L. Rothwell (John Mutch, gardener) showed a handsome group of orchids and Dr. Weld displayed Indian azaleas. J. L. Rothwell also exhibited a blooming plant of Phala nopsis Harriette. a cross between grandiflora and violacea. said to have been a part of the Corning collection, and which the judges decided to honor with a certmence of meet, which was, however, declined by its to honor with a certificate of merit, on flower displays were large and bril Tulips from W. N. Craig and H. A. Wheeler, hardy narcissi from Dr. Weld and 3. S. Craig, a superb show of pansies from M. H. Walsh, of the J. S. has estate, and promisenous collections st carnations, princulas and pelargoniums from W. S. Crang James Cowley, Rea Bros. Mrs. I. M. (all and others helped to fill the tables I rom C. G. Roebling. of Trenton, N. J. came a bloom of Cypri pedium Lawrenceanum var, Hyennum, a beauty in white and green, which received a certificate of a crit. There were several large, and interesting collections of wild Howers

The most active people just at present are the plant dealers. The long spell of cold, rainy weather had a very discouraging effect on the plant trade, and now that the days are seasonably warm and bright and people are encouraged to improve their gardens and dooryards, the demand comes all in a rush, and bedding plants will have the right of way until the end of the month. The cut flower business is quiet, the only activity worthy of the name being in the demand for white flowers. So for the present Brides are in better demand than Bridesmaids and bring a better price; white carnations hold the lead over all the colored ones, and thus it is all through the line. Outdoor tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, pansies and shrub blooms are now available for all uses to which promiscuous colored material may be put, and conditions are likely to remain as they are until Memorial Day comes.

A great amount of work has been done. and well done, this season in the Boston parks. Something like 100,000 trees and shrubs have been planted, a portion as new plantations and a considerable part as replantings where the work was improperly done originally. The borders and groups of the Back Bay Fens have been given a needed overhauling and sunlight and air have been admitted for the first time in years to the tangle of overgrown and dead branches. In the mean-time the critics wax frantic and are organizing on all sides for war upon park commissioners and superintendents who are doing conscientionsly and thoroughly the work entrusted to them, basing their work upon practical experience and common sense rather than sentiment, and knowing that a few years will demonstrate the wisdom of their methods.

Miss Minnie Fitzpatrick, who has been for many years bookkeeper for W. E. Doyle, died on May 8 after a brief illness.

She was a niece of Mrs. Doyle.

George Mullen, formerly in the wholesale and later in the retail flower business, is missing. He has been in financial difficulties for some time.

Jackson Dawson is recovering from his illness and hopes to be all right again soon.

1). Hartford is about to open a floral store at 143 Portland street.

Geo. A. Sutherland is receiving fine Cape violets.

II. A. Siebrecht, of New York, is a visitor this week.

Chicago.

BUSINESS DULL. — THE FLORISTS' CLUB WEETING AND DISCUSSION.—PROSPEROUS SEASON ANTICIPATED.—BUDLONG'S NEW STORE.

Business continues dull. Fewer roses are coming in than a week or two ago, and the Brides and Bridesmaids from some of the growers are badly mildewed. The cut of roses will gradually become smaller from now on till the crop begins to come in from the young plants which are now being planted. Many growers have already replanted a large number of their houses. Preparations are being made for a large increase in trade which the growers around Chicago generally expect next season. Carnations, especially of the new and better varieties, will be more largely grown than ever.

Paromes are in the market, and red officinalis is to be had in quantities. The later varieties look very promising, and several large lots will be about right to Memorial Day.

The meeting of the Florists' Club Luday evening, May 6, was an event that will be long remembered because it was the first meeting in the new rooms, and on account of the large number of applications for membership which were received. Edward Winterson presented ten applications and C. W. McKellar offered a list of six, all of whom were elected. The subject for discussion was "Palms, Ferns and Decorative Plants." Ernst Wienhoeber opened the discussion with remarks from the standpoint of a retailer and decorator. He finds the renting of plants by the load for decorative purposes very unsatisfactory to the dealer who sends out only good plants, as the value of a load such as are rented at from $10 to $15 is from $60 to $200. The cost of taking them from the greenhouse, arranging them in a decoration and returning and re-arranging in the greenhouse is fully one-half the amount received, while damage to plants is always considerable, and often double what is received as rental. Mr. Wienhoeher finds that of palms, Kentias give the best satisfaction for house culture except perhaps Cocos Weddeliana, which, until recently, he has been unable to get in quantity of suitable size. The latania is more generally liked than any of the palms, but in house culture it has not the keeping qualities of Kentias, the points of the leaves soon turning brown and becoming unsightly when trimmed. Livistona rotundifolia gives even less satisfaction than Latania Borbonica. Nephrolepis Bostoniensis has given ex-cellent satisfaction as a house plant, as has Polypodium aureum. A. McAdams called attention to the fact that Cyrtomium falcatum is one of the best of all ferns for house culture, it being good in all stages of growth. After the club meeting, the bowlers en-

After the club meeting, the bowlers enjoyed an inning at the alleys. Two games were played, the team captained by Ed. Winterson winning both, but the high score, 188, was made by Robert Schenk, captain of the opposing team. The bowlers will, hereafter, play every Friday night.

There will be paonies from now on till July or later, and the crop promises to be larger and better than usual. Memorial Day will be more generally observed this seasor, than usual as there will be more flowers and flowering plants than ever before in the history of the trade. Every grower who has a crop of flowers or plants suitable for the occasion will be sure of a good market. There has been very little bedding done, and orders for bedding plants are coming very slowly. The stock of geraniums and other bedding plants this season is very large, and good 3-inch plants are sold on the street at from 75 cents to $1 per dozen.

J. A. Budlong, of Bowmanville, has rented a store in the basement of the Atlas Building, on Randolph street, near Wabash avenue, where, after May 15, he will sell the cut flowers produced in his greenhouses. John Zeck, formerly with Reinberg Bros., will have charge of the store.

The Chicago Flower Mission opened at 26 Van Buren street on Tuesday. The ladies in charge collect flowers to send to the hospitals and, while expecting most of the flowers to come from amateur growers, will be pleased to receive blooms from other sources.

Visitors: A. Dimmock, representing F. Sanders & Co., of England and Belgium; Wm. J. Stewart, Boston, Mass.; Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; J. J. Van Waveren, of L. Van Waveren & Co., Hillegom, Holland, J. Austin Shaw.

J. T. A.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

Subscription $1.00 a Year. To Europe, $2.00, Subscriptions accepted only from those in the trade.

Advertisements, 10 Cents a Line, Ag $1.00 per inch. Cash with Order

No Special Position Guaranteed.

Discounts, 6 times, 5 per cent; 13 times, 10 per cent; 26 times, 20 per cent; 52 times, 30 per cent.

The Advertising Department of the AMERICAN FLORIST is for Florists, Seedsmen, and dealers in wares pertaining to those lines ONLY.

Orders for less than one-half inch snace not accented. Advertisements must reach us by Wednesday to secure insertion in the issue for the following Saturday.

Address THE AMERICAN FLORIST CO., Chicago.

JOSEPH HEINL, of Jacksonville, 111., has sent us a package of fine young Irish junipers, from cuttings placed in sand last December.

E. C. AMLING, of Chicago, sends us copies of a useful telegraph code, and a card stating his methods of business, the latter beautifully decorated with "Old Glory" in gold and colors.

The present season is notable for the number of new greenhouses which are being erected in all sections of the coun-The long list of such changes and additions published in our last issue is supplemented by a number of others today, and we shall be pleased to note all new structures, with their dimensions.

WE have seen some promising new carnation blooms which were sent to Chicago by Henry A. Niemeyer, of Eric, Pa. Snow Queen and Uncle Sam were particularly attractive. The former is a pure white seedling, cross of Silver Spray and Lois J. Haettel, and has never shown a trace of rust. Uncle Sam is a pink and white striped. Other varieties included Pluto, magenta, and Rob Roy, a scarlet sport of Portia.

S. A. F. Officers at Omaha.

President Gude and Secretary Stewart, of the S. A. F., arrived in Omaha May 12, to complete arrangements for the forthcoming convention. After the meeting they were given a banquet by the local Florists' Club.

The Newport Photograph.

Members of the Society of American Florists and others desiring copies of the group photograph taken at Newport last August are informed that the undersigned has obtained possession of the original negative, and copies of same can now be supplied at one dollar each.

WM. J. STEWART, Sec'y. 67 Bromfield street, Boston, Mass.

Cut Flower Price Lists Received.

Bassett & Washburn, Chicago; H. L. Sunderbruch Co., Cincinnati; Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukec; Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Catalogues Received.

George C. Watson, Philadelphia, Pa., seeds; W. J. Hesser, Plattsmouth, Neb., plants; W. J. Godfrey, Exmouth, Devon, Eng., carnations; Van Til-Hartman, Hillegom, Holland, bulbs; Paul de Schryver, Loochrysty-Ghent, Belgium, plants; Henry Merryweather, Southwell, Notts, Eng., plants; Lawler Water Feed and Damper Regulator Co., New York, N. Y., boilers and steam fittings; Frank Banning, Kinsman, O., seeds.

Greenhouse Building.

Fairfield, Me.-A. F. Gerald, one conservatory

North Beverly, Mass.—George Glines, one greenhouse.

Kansas City, Mo.-Albert Barbe, one greenhouse.

Bristol, N. H.—S. D. Fellows, range of greenhouses.

Derry, N. II.—Mrs. Cullen, one greenhouse 18x100. Frank Corson, one green-

Brooklyn, N. Y.-P. Wagner, two greenhouses each 17x100.

Baltimore, Md.-M. Richmond, three commercial houses each 12x190.

Stoneham, Mass.-A. Christensen, two carnation houses, each 20x100.
Helena, Mont.—State Nursery Co., one greenhouse 12x53 and two greenhouses 16x129.

Morristown, N. J.-Elwyn Waller, 200 feet of rose houses, from plaus of F. Waller; H. W. Gibbons, contractor.

NORTH ORRINGTON, ME.-George Nichols is rebuilding the range of greenhouses which was recently destroyed by fire.

ISHPEMING, MICH. — The Ishpeming Floral Co. is making a number of additions and improvements at its greenhouses on Third street. Carnations, particularly, are to be grown on a more extensive scale.

BANGOR, MAINE.-Adam Sekenger is huilding two new greenhouses, 40x100 for roses, the other 20x100 for carnations. He finds bedding plant trade brisk, and is selling pansies as fast as he can fill the orders.

LEOMINSTER, MASS.-For a number of years, Geo. M. Kendall has been erecting substantial forcing houses for market gardeners in various sections of the country. He has now extended his facilities for the construction of florists' greenhouses, and will, in future, make a specialty of this kind of work. New England offers a good field for this enterprize, and Mr. Kendall's establishment is the first in this line east of New York.

Buffalo.

MOVING TIME IN THE BISON CITY.—TRADE RATHER LIGHT .- KASTING'S HEADER .-NOTES.

Trade in Buffalo this week has been confined to the up-town and down-town stores. Scott, Anderson and Adams were busy moving into new and more suitable quarters and the two columns in the papers which are usually sought for by the florists were not over-worked.

Wm. Scott removed to 546 Main street, in a larger and more commodious store from which all kinds of artistic floral work will be sent out.

S. A. Anderson spent a few days and dollars the past week in New York and Philadelphia to make his new store more attractive.

W. A. Adems removed from 452 Main street to 479 Main street, the store formerly occupied by Scott, and will make numerous alterations.

Our hustler, Kasting, of wholesale fame, as usual wants to be head first in everything, even in bicycling. He took a header in that the other day by reason of his fork breaking. Damage, one brown hat, 98 cents; skin off hand, amount not given.

D. B. Long is out with another new and very neat design in floral blotters.

A. R. Webb, of Corfu, called on the craft this week but did not say how many carnations he was cutting.

W. J. Palmer's Daybreaks still keep up record of all winter, with large blooms and very good color.

The First Fire of the Florists' Mutual.

On April 13, the Florists' Mutual Fire Insurance Association sustained its first loss on the greenhouses of the Clinton Floral Company, of Wilmington, O. The policy was mailed from this office on the 9th of April. Under the by-laws the policy was in force from the time it was deposited in the mails here. The policy was not received by the Clinton Floral Company until April 14. On the night of the 13th it sustained a loss by fire aggregating on the furniture, plants, buildings, etc., about $1,200. The insurance ings, etc., about $1,200. policy covered only the buildings, including the heating apparatus. Notice of the amount of the loss was received by the secretary on the 18th of April. I immediately went to the scene of the loss and adjusted the same on the 20th satisfactorily to the insured for $465. The proofs of the loss were sent to the president of the association. On the 28th I received word of his approval of the adjustment, and I wired the Clinton Floral Company that their draft for the amount of the loss would be honored by the association's treasurer, which was promptly done. I believe all losses can be adjusted as promptly as this one was and with equal satisfaction to the association and the insured. All we need is the full co-operation of all the florists of America.

I will gladly give full details to anybody who will write in relation to the same.
W. J. VESEV, Secretary.

Ft. Wayne, Ind.

The American Carnation Society.

It is none to soon to begin to shape the course to be pursued when this society meets in Philadelphia for the second time in its history, which will be in February, 1899. It is absolutely necessary that this society should hold an exhibition both of the "future greats" and also of the standard varieties for the purpose of comparison, if for no other, to aid us in determining wherein the advances are made, if any, in the new candidates for public favor.

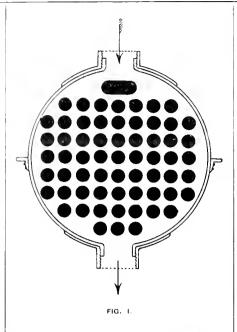

A much larger number of enthusiasts are now dabbling in the raising of seedlings than there were at the society's initial meeting held in this city in October, 1891, and the number is likely to increase rather than diminish, and the A. C. S. and its friends must do all that is possible to aid and encourage the improvement of the flower, which is the cause of its existence. I can only wish that some fertile brain would conceive a plan that would be sufficiently practical to put money into its coffer, yet not crip-ple or in any way interfere with its effectiveness.

When the society had agreed to meet in New York to complete its organization, the executive committee decided to secure the services of an expert stenographer so that as complete a report as possible of the meeting would be given to the members who were unavoidably absent, to be published in the proceedings. A mistake, however, was made in the selection of the performer, for the merest tyro present could have made as complete a report from memory a month after the meeting had adjourned as was done in this case. This, of course, was naturally disheartening, and the idea of making a similar attempt again was abandoned for the time, especially as the trade papers published everything good, bad and indifferent that was done at the meetings in the two or three succeeding weeks following. This supped the life-blood out of the This sapped the life-blood out of the society, and the membership gradually fell off, until now, although everybody will admit that it is doing a grand, good work, it is dependent largely upon charity for its existence. The best work is not generally accomplished by an individual or by an organization that is an object of charity. The man who is self-sustain-ing, and is so by honest labor and per-sistent effort, no matter in what calling. and does not owe a dollar in the world, is generally a better citizen than is he who is a tramp or an inmate of an almshouse. My own opinion is that the province of a trade paper is to review the proceedings of the meetings devoted to any or all of the branches of horticulture to which it may be devoted; not from a literary standpoint, but unmistakably from a practical point of view, and not to confiscate the whole proceedings.

Personally I am gradually dropping out of carnations, as a grower of this favorite flower, not because I love the carnation less, but because I am more successful with roses and some other plants. I still, however, retain my interest in the organization of the Å. C. S. The published proceedings of the last meeting were received last week, and the improvement in the report is quite noticeable, at least over that meeting which was held in New York in November, 1891. Of course, most of that which is contained therein has appeared in print before, but one great point which, so far as I have been able to observe, has escaped the alert minds of those who seem to have no other object in view than to claim everything readable in sight. refer to a point brought out during the discussion upon "Sub-watering." Most old-time gardeners and florists look upon this sub-watering idea with more or less antipathy. In the first place, it seems contrary to preconceived ideas as to drainage, though Professor Arthur explained the whys and wherefores of drainage evaporation and see first. drainage, evaporation, and so forthquite satisfactorily; and again the next thought is, how about doing away with syringing to "keep down" redspider. That thought is as sure to occur to a practical gardener and florist upon first hearing or reading about sub-watering as to protect by shade a batch of cuttings from sunshine when first put into the propagating bed.

In nearly all cultural notes, both ancient and modern, the point is always more or less dwelt upon to keep the plants well syringed or to "damp down" being always and invariably to keep down red spider. There is a tacit underdown red spider standing among the fraternity that this msidious little pest is always present. Some writers go so far as to recommend a moisture laden atmosphere for the same purpose, namely, to keep it down. It may be true that the red spider does not increase so fast in air charged with limidity, but that it will keep it down, I have my doubts. Some years ago when visiting a small private place, in what is called the "stove" or nothouse, was a eistern which caught the rainwater from the roof, and this was used with which to water the plants. It projected a little into the walk from beneath the bench so as to make it more convenient from which to dip the water. Among other plants trained under the roof of this hothouse, was a plant of the beautiful climber, Cissus discolor, vines of which were liang-ing directly over and nearly touching the water in the cistern, upon the leaves of which was as prolific a crop of red spider as I have ever seen. From that time I have doubted the efficacy of a moisture laden atmosphere to keep down red spider.

laden atmosphere to keep down red spider. The only hope is, and has been for some time, to keep down or destroy red spider is to direct a stream of water with pressure to where this troublesome inseet finds a lodgment, and that is generally on the under side of the leaves. Professor Arthur stated during the discussion above referred to that he did not believe that the question of red spider depended upon syringing at all. He knew that all florists dreaded red spider, but it ought not to be there to start with. Every practical operator among plants grown under glass will agree with the professor, and there are none among us but who fully realize the truth of that statement. But how many of us have gone systematically to work with the object in view of planting our rose houses with plants that are absolutely free from red spider? And yet I believe it would pay us to do it. If the plants were quite clean, and the house in which they were planted contained no red spider, how different would the future operations in that house be conducted to what they generally are, especially if we fully realized all the benefits attached thereto. The dreaded dark, dull days of winter and the equally dreaded "black spot" would be shorn of nearly all their terrors. We would cut no more roses, possibly, on that account, but much of the anxiety we now experience would be removed, for the reasons above indicated.

Had this point been selected by the trade papers, and had they discoursed upon it intelligently and given instructions how to proceed to destroy and totally annihilate the red spider, it would have been a greater benefit to the trade at large than publishing the proceedings of the A. C. S. in full, and it would have had the effect of more members becoming enrolled in the American Carnation Society. Although I do not consider myself a carnation man at the present time, yet I do consider myself reimbursed for my membership fee by Professor Arthur's remark to the effect that the red spider ought not to be there to start with.

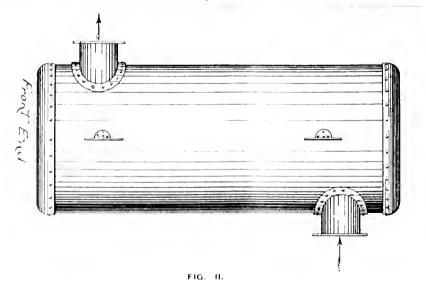

E. L.

Steam and Hot Water Heating.

PART V.-HOT WATER UNDER PRESSURE.

This is the most up-to-date system of greenhouse heating. Enterprising florists who have large plants are learning that the old style, low pressure hot water apparatus, although it held its own well for many years, is far behind the times in many respects, and is being replaced by hot water systems under pressure. One of the special advantages in the pressure system is that a much greater range of temperature of water in the system can be had, and on this account, in cases of emergency, when a sudden fall in temperature must be guarded against, there will be no trouble to get the necessary heat. Another advantage possessed by the hot water system under pressure is, that any size of pipe can be used for mains and heating coils. For this system of heating wrought iron pipes are used with screw thread joints, and these are much less liable to leakage than cast iron calked joints. Then again, space is worth money in greenhouses, and heating coils of one-half the usual size that will do the the same amount of heating, or more, are surely a great advantage.

With the open tank hot water system, it is not practical to carry the water higher than to a temperature of 200°, that is without pressure; but with the outlet from the expansion tank provided with a safety valve, the system may be run under any desired pressure, and in this way any desired temperature, even above 200°, can be had as readily as a temperature below 200°. To carry a hot water pressure of about fifty pounds per square inch in the heating apparatus we would have a temperature of the water in the system of 300°. It will, therefore, be seen that this is about double the temperature carried by the old style, cast iron, open tank system, which runs about 150° on the average. However, it must be remembered that any style of boiler will not answer for a closed tank system, and consequently, in selecting a boiler for such work, this point should not be lost sight of.

For high pressure hot water heating, ror nigh pressure not water heating, it will be necessary to have high pressure boilers, such as are tested to stand a hydraulic pressure of at least 200 pounds to the square inch, in order to be absolutely safe under any ordinary conditions. There are many types of hot water boilers in the market suitable for this class of work, which are not only built to resist any pressure that they may be called upon to withstand but which are constructed to heat water rapidly and economically. One type of high pressure hot water boiler used largely in this country is the wrought iron tubular style, an end view of which is shown in the accompanying illustration, Fig. 1, and the special point of difference between this and the ordinary wrought iron, tubular steam boiler lies in the additional number of tubes in the former. This is done for the purpose of getting as much heating surface in the boiler as possible, and at the same time leaving ample space between the tubes for the proper and easy circulation of the water.

Another special point to which I desire to call attention in this type of boiler is the tube connections. As will be no-ticed by referring to Fig. 2, the return connection is near the rear end at the bottom, while the flow or outlet connection from the boiler is on the top, near the front end of the boiler. This is a very good and important point in a hot water boiler, but not so much so in steam boilers. With the pipe connections arranged as shown in Fig. 2, the water must move through the greatest distance of the boiler, rising from bottom to top and passing from one end to the other, also entering at the coldest point and leaving the boiler from the hottest, directly over the fire in front. This disposition of the connections produces the most rapid circulation of the water through the system, which always means economy in fuel. To produce the best circulation we must have the greatest possible difference in temperature between the return water entering the bottom of the boiler and the flow water leaving it at the top. These are some of the important things to know for those interested in hot water heating; it makes a vast difference how each part of a boiler is constructed.

JAS. J. LAWLER.

Obituary.

James D. Burnett, a well known rose grower of Madison, N. J., died on Saturday, May 7, of consumption. Mr. Burnett's age was 50 years. He was a native of Madison, and graduated from the business of carpenter into that of flower grower nine years ago, commencing with one small house and enlarging year after year until he became the owner of quite a large establishment. During the whole time, with the exception of a few months at first, he consigned his flowers without interruption to Burns & Raynor and their successor, John I. Raynor, a record that is unique among growers for the New York market. He was a royal good fellow and a good all around business man highly respected in his native town. He was married twice, but both wives are dead, and he leaves two sons and two daughters. Royal Arcanum, of which he was a member, took charge of the funeral services, which were held on Monday, and many prominent people of Madison attended.

EDEN, ME .- The Mount Desert Nurseries have been incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000. George B. Dorr, of Bar Harbor, is president.

Winfield, Kas.—E. H. Gilbert reports an excellent spring business for his section of the country despite the fact that the season is very backward.

WICHITA, KAS.—There is an increased demand for cut flowers, and bedding plants are going fast, yet C. P. Mueller reports last week to have been the rainiest in eight years.

DELL RAPIDS., S.D.—The Osage Nurseries have started an experiment station on the farm of J. A. Kelley, and have started a number of young plants under very favorable conditions.

MUNCIE, IND.—For the recent banquet of the Travelers' Protective Association the Muncie Floral Co. supplied the decorations. There were more than forty vases of cut flowers on the tables.

SITUATIONS, WANTS, FOR SALE.

Advertisements under this head will be inserted at the rate of 10 cents a lice (seven words) each insertion. Cash must accompacy order. Plact advs. not admitted under this head.

Every paid subscriber to the AMERICAN FLORIST for the year 18% is entitled to a five-line want adv. free to be used at any time during the year.

SITUATION WANTED—Teo years experience in roses and general greenhouse work. Address J J., Box 163, Newtowo, Pa.

SITUATION WANTED—By Al grower of roses, carnations and other pot plants; 26 years' experience.

Best references. F.S., care American Florist.

OITUATION WANTED—By competent gardener and brisk, for public or private place, large or small; partles wantleg to secure the services or a valuable man, address W. G., care Americao Florist.

NITUATION WANTED-By a practical gardener and flurist for private place: 20 years' experience. Best references: married, one child. Not afraid to work. Address Box 231, Lake Forest, Ill.

OlTUATION WANTED—By a young mac of 23 in a flurist's place dolog a retail business. Thoroughly posted or roses, carnations, mums and decorative stock. Fair wages expected. Central states preferred. P A X. care American Florist.

SITUATION WANTED—By a married man, oo fambuliy, Engdah, age 28 years; 13 years experience, thorough in all bran hea Would like to run small commercial place. Wages 8.0 per month.

GARDENER. Floral Park, L. I., N. Y.

SITUATION WANTED -By experienced the st. mar-ried (oo children), middle sge; either private or commercial place; understand raising general stock, greenhouse building and steam fitting. Address FLORIST, 5739 Easton Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

SITUATION WANTED—As foreman in large cut flower establishment by a first-class grower of roses, carnations, etc.; has been foreman in large places for past 10 years; 23 years experience. Best references. BEAUTIES, care American Florist.

CITUATION WANTED—By July 25th as grower of cut flowers and general line of plants, lo a progressive commercial place; 15 years experience. Only those decoing good services and able to pay good wages need apply. C.C. care American Floriet.

OlTUATION WANTED—On or after June 15 by competent married man; 12 years' experience as grower of on flowers and plants; first-class designer and decorator; fully able to take charse. Best references. F. QUICKERT, 835 Third St., Marquette, Mico.

SITUATION WANTED—As beed gardener and flo-list in private place or public institution; thorough in fruits thowers and vegetables, landscape and orna-mental work; English, middle age. Could come alooe or with daughter (25). State wages etc. G.S. care American Florist.

WANTED-First-class grower to take charge of a section of rosehouses. Address Wietor Bros. 51 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

WANTED-First-class florists' wire design worker. Stendy work the year round. Apply with refs. HOLTON & HUNKEL CO., BOX 105, Milwaukee, Wis.

WANTED TO RENT-Or lease with privileze of purchase, established florist business. Housea must be in good repair and running order. Give flut particulars RAW, care American Florist.

WANTED-A man who has had experience in growing oursery stock and summer propagation of roses and shrubs making cuttings and attending to them, watering plants and taking charge of greenhouse under a superintendent, lo fact, a thorough nurseryman Noborist need answer

THE BLIZABETH NURSERY Co.,

96 Broad St., Edzabeth, N. J.

FOR RENT—For greenhouse purposes, 32,700 square feet on Michigan Ave. Long lease and low rental. Room 192, 184 La Salle St., Chicago

FOR SALE—Florist's single covered wagoo; height about 5 feet, width about 4 feet, length about 7½ feet; built to order, costing $250. Used but 2 years. Will be sold cheap for cash.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, BOX 688, Chicago.

FOR SALE.

Greenbouses in one of the hest cities in Wisconsin. A good investment and a money maker for a hustler. Owner must retire on account of poor health. For particulars write.

A. LEURNER, Wausau, Wis.

FOR SALE—The greenbouse e-tablishment of Schiller & Kuske formerly Schiller & Mallander, la offered for s-le at a great sacrifice; $1000 will buy 2 19-20 acres of valuable ground, 25 greenbouses, comprising 56 000 equare feet of glass; wells, 2 dice dwelling bouses, sheds, etc. located in the village of Niles Center, about 12 miles from the heart of Chicago; 14c miles to depot. Terms, $5500 cash, balance on time; investigate. Address correspondence to Pochimann Br. s. Morton Grove Cook (Co., Ill., or Herman Schiller, S20 W. Madison St., Chicago.

SITUATION WANTED

by dorlat and gardener; private or commercial place: near Hoston preferred. Ten years 'thorough experience in growing rosses, carnations violets and general dorlats' stock. Four years steady at present place as foremen; g od maker-up and seller. German, slogle, 25 years old; 7 years in america. Honest, sober and steady. Best of references. Good wages expected. Ready May 2d. Address. Il S. care Am. Florist.

$40.00 will buy a hot water boiler; will used 3 months; good as new; also 50,000 single rooted VIOLETS, $2.00 per 1000. Cash with order.

J. K. POSTMA, Princeton, Ky.

WANTED

Photographs of gardens and plans; also of specimen plants, hardy and otherwise. Send price and particulars to

F. BRUNTON & CO., 136 Boylston Street, - BOSTON, MASS.

THE JORDAN FLORAL CO.

OF ST. LOUIS

Offer for sale their greenhouses, 20 io number, with complete beating plact, covering about 3 acres of ground, with all stock and good will of the business; will lease ground on fair rental value long as wacted. Established trade for over 35 years; this is an opportunity of a life time to buy a good established business. Also have a large retail store opposite the poet office. Apply to

Leon L. Hull Real Estate Co. 804 Chestnut St., - ST. LOUIS. MO.

FOR SALE OR RENT

VERY CHEAP.

I offer for sale or reat my undivided halt interest of the real estate of the greenhouse property formerly known as Schiller & Mallander situated in the village of Niles Cecter, about 12 miles from busices center of Chicago and 1½ miles from Morton Grove R. R. Depot. The property consists of 23 kreenhouses, 2 dwelling bouses, barns, wells and necessary sheds on 219-20 acres of lacd. Investigate. Price for undivided half, $4.500; terms $1.000 cash, balance payable in seven yearly installments, secured by mortgage notes hearlog i per cent, interest. Or will rent or lease to some reaponsible party for a term of years at an annual rental of $4.50 00, kiving option to lessee to buy my interest for above state price, provided that said lessee will make repairs the dirst year to the extent of $1000. Will acquire deed to property May 18. Address

MRS. B. KUSKE,

Care Poehlmann Bros., Morton Grove, Cook Co., III.

Hunt

WHOLESALE

Hunt's Flowers Go Everywhere

76 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

E. C. AMLING. WHOLESALE

51 WABASH AVENUE.

Consignments Solicited. CHICAGO. Prompt attention to shipping orders.

A. G. PRINCE & CO. Wholesale Gut Flowers

AND FLORISTS' SUPPLIES.

Agents for the Hinsdale Rose Co. Special attention paid to shipping orders.

88 & 90 Wabash Avenue,

Telephone Main 3208. CHICAGO.

Mention the American Florist when corresponding with an advertiser.

S. B. WINTER,

(Successor to WINTER & GLOVER,)

21 Randolph St., Chicago.

PACKED RIGHT,

•o they will reach you in just as good condition as they reach us.

WIRE DESIGNS: A Full Line. Write us for our litustrated Catalogue.

Wholesale Flower Markets

|          | CHICAGO, May 13.                |              |
|----------|---------------------------------|--------------|
| Roses    | , Beautlesper doz, .75@2.00     |              |
| 11       | Brides                          | 1.00@ 4.00   |
| 11       | Meteors, Bridesmalds, Kalserin. | 1.00@ 4.00   |
|        | Gontlers, Perles                | 1.00@ 3.0    |
| 'a rn o  | tions, common                   | 50@ 1.50     |
| Jan 1110 | fancy                           | 2 000 3 0    |
| Ptolo    | is                              | 40@ 7        |
| Town     | saus Poeticus                   | 51           |
| Narci    | sil, Callas                     | 2.00/2-5.0   |
| Harri    | alla - lla                      | 1.00@ 3 0    |
| PITA O   | f the valley                    | 1,000 0.00   |
| i amp    | 8                               | 1.000 4.0    |
| weer     | peas                            | .00@ 1.0     |
| iladi    | oit                             | 6.000 8.0    |
| Adlar    | tum                             | .50@ 1.0     |
| Smila    | X                               | 10.00 @ 15.0 |
| Aspai    | agus                            | 40.00@75.0   |
| Pansl    | es                              | .5           |
| Paron    | les ner dozen, 50c.             |              |

Bassett & Washburn's ROSE PLANTS

We have an extra selected stock of the following Rose Plants. Will guarantee them to be as fine as any grown.

|                         |             | Per 1000 |
|-------------------------|-------------|----------|
| American Beauty21/6-in. | pot, $5.00 | $50.00  |
| Brides "                | 3.40        | 25.00    |
| Bridesmaids"            | 3.00        | 25 00    |
| Kaiserin "              | 3,50        | 30.00    |
| President Carnot "      | 3 50        | 30.00    |

BASSETT & WASHBURN.

88 Wabash Avenue, CHICACO, ILL. Long Distance 'Phone Main 223.

Creenhouse and Residence, Hinsdale, III. Long Distance 'Phone No. 10.

Wholesale Florist

Don't Forget that we are at 4 Washington St., Chicago.

Write for special quotations on large orders.

Www.Wholesale Florists

III West 30th Street, NEW YORK.

Consignments Solicited. Telephone, 260 381h St.

Cood Money for your Flowers. Cood Flowers for your Money.

THE NEW YORK CUT FLOWER CO.

119 and 121 West 23d Street, II2 and II4 West 24th Street.

Telephone 733-18th.

NEW YORK.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED. Special Atlentian Given to Shipping Orders.

ROGERS PARK FLORAL CO..

Wholesale Growers of

FLOWERS.

51 WABASH AVENUE,

-CHICAGO. HEADQUARTERS FOR AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

FLOWERS...

600,000 feet of Glass. We can lill all orders on short notice with all leading varieties of Roses and Carnations. We are Headquarters for tine American Beautles. Give us a trial and convince yourself. It is to be

ROOTED ROSE CUTTINGS

| Per          | 100   | Per 1000 |
|--------------|-------|----------|
| AM. BEAUTIES | 12,50 | $20,00  |
| BRIDESMAID   | 1.50  | 12.50    |
| LA FRANCE    | 1.50  | 12.50    |

ROSE PLANTS

|                 | out of 214-Inch p | pots. per 100 per 1000 |
|-----------------|-------------------|------------------------|
| American Bons   | uty               |                        |
| deteor          |                   | 3.00 25.00             |
| 3rtde           |                   | 2.50 20.00             |
| 3rtdesmald      |                   | 2.50 20.00             |
|                 |                   |                        |
| Belle Slebrecht | t                 | 2.50 22.50             |

ROOTED CARNATION CUTTINGS

|                |  |      |    |   |  |    |  |  |  |    |  |  |      | ,,,, | וט  |    | м   | ,,  |   | Dei Kan |
|----------------|--|------|----|---|--|----|--|--|--|----|--|--|------|------|-----|----|-----|-----|---|---------|
| Jublice        |  |  |    | ٠ |  |    |  |  |  | ٠. |  |  |  |      | . 8 | 12 | . 1 | LK) | ) | *15,00  |
|                |  |      |    |   |  |    |  |  |  |    |  |  |      |      |     |    |     |     |   | 7.50    |
| Tidal Wave     |  |      |    |   |  |    |  |  |  |    |  |  |      |      |     |    |     |     |   | 7,50    |
| Portia         |  |      |    |   |  |    |  |  |  |    |  |  |      |      |     |    |     |     |   | 7.50    |
| Lizzie McGowan |  |      |    |   |  |    |  |  |  |    |  |  |      |      |     |    |     |     |   | 7.50    |
| Goidfinch      |  |      |    |   |  |    |  |  |  |    |  |  |      |      |     |    |     |     |   | 7.50    |
| Mrs. Thompson  |  |      |    |   |  |    |  |  |  |    |  |  |      |      |     |    |     |     |   | 7,60    |
| Emma Woelier.  |  |      |    |   |  |    |  |  |  |    |  |  |      |      |     |    |     |     |   | 12.50   |
| Lizzie Gilbert |  |      |    |   |  |    |  |  |  |    |  |  |      |      |     |    |     |     |   | 12.50   |
| Harrison's Wid |  |      |    |   |  |    |  |  |  |    |  |  |      |      |     |    |     |     |   | 12.50   |
| Bridesmaid     |  |      |    |   |  |    |  |  |  |    |  |  |      |      |     |    |     |     |   | 12.50   |
| Flora Hill .   |  |      |    |   |  |    |  |  |  |    |  |  |      |      |     |    |     |     |   | 25,00   |
| Mayor Plogree  |  | ٠.   | ٠. |   |  | ٠. |  |  |  |    |  |  |  | ٠    |     | н  | ١.  | I)K | 1 | 25,00   |

We would call your special attention to our choice Smilax plants at $2.00 per 100 and $15.00 per 1000.

REINBERG BROS.. 51 WABASH AVENUE, CHICAGO.

M. A. HART, Commission Dealer Cut Flowers, 44 West 29th Street,

44 WEST 29TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

THE BEST MARKET IN NEW YORK.
'Phone 1307 38th St.

TRAENDLY & SCHENCK, Wholesale Florists.

Control the stock of many celebrated growers and are prepared to quote prices on First Grade Cut Flowers. All varieties.

38 West 28th St., and Cut Flower Exchange, Tel, 96t 18th Street. NEW YORK CITY.

N. Y. CUT FLOWER EXCHANGE

404-412 E. 34th St. Near Ferry. Open for Cut Flower Sales at 6 o'clock Every Morning.....

DESIRABLE WALL SPACE TO RENT FOR ADVERTISING.

JOHN DONALDSON, Secretary.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| New York, May 11.                                                 |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Smllax                                                            |
| Aaparagus 40.00@ 50.00                                            |
| BOSTON. May 11                                                    |
| BOSTON, May II                                                    |
| Roses, Reautles, Brunners 5 00@15.00Morgan, Meteor 1 00@ 4 00 |
| " Rrides, Bridesmaids, Carnot 2 00@ 6.00                          |
| Carnations 1 50:30 2 00                                           |
| " fancy 2.00@ 3.00                                                |
| Lilv of the valley 2.00@ 3.00                                     |
| Daffodils, Tulips (outside) 50@ 1.00                              |
| Violets 50@ .75                                                   |
| Harrish, Callas                                                   |
|                                                                   |
| Smllax                                                            |
| PHILADELPHIA, May 11.                                             |
| Roses Beautles per dozen 1.00@ 4.00                               |
| " Brnners                                                         |
| Jacqs                                                             |
| " Теня 3 00 а 10.00                                               |
| Carnations 1 00@ 2.00                                             |
| Lily of the vallsy 3 00@ 4.00                                     |
| Longiflorums                                                      |
| 11arristl 8.00@10 00                                              |
| Sweet peas                                                        |
| Smtlax 12.00@15.00                                                |

SAMUELS ENNOCK WHOLESALE FLUDLOW ST. FLORIST.

John I. Raynor,

49 WEST 28th STREET,

-NEW YORK.

SPECIAL EXTRA STOCK OF

AM. BEAUTY, METEOR, BRIDESMAID, BRIDE.

Record Breaking Carnations
ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

THOS. YOUNG, JR.

* * Wholesale Florist

43 West 28th Street, New York.

WALTER F. SHERIDAN, WHOLESALE

FLORIST,

39 West 28th Street, NEW YORK.

Roses shipped to all points. Price list on application.

Rose Growers

Will find a good market and good returns for their stock at....

JULIUS LANG'S 53 W. 30th Street, - NEW YORK.

Edward C. Horan,

WHOLESALE • FLORIST.

Careful Shipping to all parts of the country.

Price list on application.

WM. C. SMITH, Wholesale Florist,

40 So. 16th St., PHILADELPHIA.

Consignments Solicited. Special attention given to shipping orders. Long Distance Telephone 5008 A.

CITY HALL CUT FLOWER MARKET, 9 Chapman Place, 15 Province Street, BOSTON, MASS.

WELCH BROS., PROPRIETORS.

Consignments from regular growers assigned separate space in our market. We guarantee payment for all Flowers sold. Sales reported weekly; payments monthly, or oftener if required.

THE NEW ENGLAND HEADQUARTERS FOR THE BEST GRADE OF FLOWERS AT ALL SEASONS OF THE YEAR.

J. K. ALLEN, Wholesale Florist.

EXTRA ROSES

AND OTHER DESIRABLE SPECIALTIES.

57 West 2Bth Street,

Long Distance Telephone 382-38th St NEW YORK.

GALVIN & CO.

Wholesale Florists

AND DEALERS IN ALL

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES,

4 Ordwey Place, BOSTON, MASS.
Cut Flower Consignments Solicited. Best market.

GEORGE A. SUTHERLAND, Cut Flowers & Florists' Supplies WHOLESALE.

67 Bromfield St.,

BOSTON, MASS.

Wholesale Florists

ALWAYS ON HAND:
CARNATIONS,
BRIDES MAIDS, BRIDES

JOBBERS IN FLORIST'S
CHIPPI IEC

FLORISTS' VASES.

Horticultural Auctioneers. 84 HAWLEY STREET, - BOSTON.

JOHN YOUNG, ROSES, CARNATIONS, VALLEY

and all other choice cut flower stock.

51 W. 28th Street, NEW YORK.

Price list on application.

FRANK MILLANG, CUT FLOWERS,

WHOLESALE COMMISSION,

408 E. 34th Street,

Cul Flower Exchange.

NEW YORK.

Rochester, N. Y.

The past week had no feature except a decided scarcity of white flowers; in the dull and cloudy weather they were slow to open and the demand for funeral pieces was above the ordinary, so that everyone was short of white blooms. No extraordinary events called for the extensive use of flowers, therefore the shortage in other lines was not so greatly noticed. As bright and warm weather is again with us, the supply is increasing materially, and probabilities are that the end of the week may even see a surplus in several lines, for in addition to our regular winter flowers quite a number of hardy outdoor plants, such as arabis, candy-tuft, pæonia tennifolia, Doronicum excelsum, etc., are coming on, and will probably sell well for a time because they are a change from the everyday line. How. ever, nobody is prepared to furnish these things in very large quantities, and there is no danger of overloading the market.

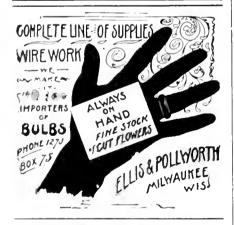

Say "saw your ad. in the Florist" when you write advertisers.

OF SEASONABLE FLOWERS IN STOCK.

F. KASTING WHOLESALE COMMISSION FLORIST....

495 Washington St., Buffalo, N. Y. Also Dealer in Florists' Supplies and Wire Designs

HOLTON & HUNKEL CO.

The Wisconsin Flower Exchange. Fresh Cut Flowers, Florists' Supplies

Manufacturers of WIRF DESIGNS

457 Milwaukee St., MILWAUKEE.

Strings 8 to 10 feet long,

50 CENTS.

W. H. ELLIOTT, Brighton, Mass.

aughan, McKellar & Winterson,

45-47-49 Wabash Avenue,

WE OFFER ALL VARIETIES

ECT ROSES and CARNATI

stock of all miscellaneous stock such as Narcissus, Lilies, Valley, Tulips, Lilac, Paronies, Sweet Peas, Pansies, Smilay, Asparagus, Ferns, etc., etc. Write for special prices on large orders.

GET ORDERS IN EARLY FOR DECORATION DAY.

Wholesale Cut Flower Store,

J. A. BUDLONG, WHOLESALE GROWER OF CUT FLOWERS....

OPEN FOR BUSINESS.

37-39 Randolph Street, CHICAGO.

We have decided to dispose of our own production and will be in a position to fill orders with A No. I stock. . . . . Give us a trial. Also have a large quantity of nice rose plants which we offer as

|                   | - Per 1000 |                | FOT ROOM |
|-------------------|------------|----------------|----------|
| American Beauties | $40.00    | Meteor ↓$3.00 |          |
| Brides            | 25,00      | Kaiserin 3,00  | 25.10    |
| Bridesmaids       | 25.00      | Perle 3.00     | 25,00    |

This stock is guaranteed to be first-class in every respect. Nothing but first-class sent out. . . . . . Terms, eash with order. ing but first-class sent out. . . . . .

J. A. BUDLONG, 37=39 Randolph St., Chicago. When writing mention American Florist.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| CINCINNATI, May 12.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Roses, Beauties, reject                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| medium                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| " Brides Bridesmalds 3 00@ 4.60                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| " Meteors 4,00@ 5.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| " Perle 3 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Carnations 100                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| fancy                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Sml(ax                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Adlantum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Asparagus                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| St. Louis, May 12.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Roses, Reautles 2 00@33 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| " Meteors 1.00 a 4 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| " Brides, Bridesmalds 1.00@ 4.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| " Perlen                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| " Kalserin 1.00@ 4.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| " Kalserin                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Violeta, California                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| " double                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Lily of the valley                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Harriell 11 0000 10 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Callas 5.00% 6.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Smllax                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| 1.11.11.11.11.11.11.11.11.11.11.11.11.1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| MILWAUKEE, May 12                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Roses, Beauties                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| " Brides, Bridesmulds 2 000 5 00" Perle 2 000 4 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| " Brides, Bridesmalds                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| " Brides, Bridesmalds 2 UNG 5 UI" Perle. 2 UNG 4 UI" Meteors 2 DNG 5 UI                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| " Briden, Bridenmalds 2 0866 5 00 " Perlo. 2 0866 4 00 " Meteorn 2 0866 5 00 Carnations 1,0066 2 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| " Brities, Brideannids 2 0.006 6 00 Perfe. 2 0.006 4 00 0 00 000 0 00 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Brides, Bridesmulds   2 0Km 5 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| " Brides, Bridesmilds 2 0Km 5 00 " Perle. 2 0Km 4 00 " Meteorrs 2 0Km 5 5 00 Carnations 1,90% 2 00 Sweet pens ,50% 1 00 Yalley, Indoor 3,00% Tollips 1,00% 2 00 Gindfold 5 0km 8 00 Smillax 15,00% Adminism 7 70% 1 00 Left, Hispanica 4 10% 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 5 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 5 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 00     Perle.   2 0Km 6 00     Perle.   2 0Km 6 5 00     Meteora   2 0Km 5 5 00     Sweet pens   1,80% 2 00     Sulfaction   1,00% 2 00     Sulfaction   1,00% 2 00     Sulfaction   1,00% 2 00     Brides   1,00% 2 00     Brides   Bridesmalds   10,00% 40 00     Brides   Bridesmalds   10,00% 40 00     Brides   Bridesmalds   10,00% 40 00     Sulfaction   1,00% 40 00     Brides   Bridesmalds   10,00% 40 00     Sulfaction   1,00% 40 00     Sulfaction   1,00% 40 00     Kalserin   1,00% 40 00     Carnations   1, |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 0 0                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 0 0                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 0 0                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 0 UP erle.   2 0Km 6 0 UP erle.   2 0Km 6 5 UV erle.   2 0Km 6 1 UV erle.   2 0Km 6 UV erle.   2 |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 0 0                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 0 UP ePele.   2 0Km 6 UP ePele.  |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 0 01                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 0 0                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Brides, Bridesmilds   2 0Km 6 0 01                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |

C. A. KUEHN. Wholesale Florist.

1122 PINE STREET. ST. LOUIS. MO.

A complete line of Wire Designs.

MOUND CITY CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED

Special attention given to shipping orders 1322 Pine St., ST. LOUIS, MO.

NSIGNMEN.

al attention given to sm.,

322 Pine St., ST. LOUIS,

W. WORSE CEREBERS ST. LOUIS, MO.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

at

"ESALE....

....ROSES, and a full line

Headquarters for the South West...

ST. LOUIS GUT FLOWER CO. Wholesale Florists

E. H. MICHEL

1620 Olive St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

KENNICOTT

WHOLESALE

www.CUT

FLOWERS

And Florists' Supplies

88 Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO. ILL.

Long Distance Telephone, EXPRESS 466.

Longiflorum Lilies ***

For Decoration Day.

Klehm's Nursery has grown a special lot of these for Decoration Day, and we can supply them at $1.00 a dozen, $7.00 per 100.

See Our Adv. Next Week.

Going, Going, Gone!

and it's your own fault if you don't get the bargains. Auction Sales of Plants every Tuesday. Thursday and Saturday at 9 A. M. at . . . . .

you want to buy, send for Catalogues. & you want to sell, write for terms. & & &

IT PAYS!

No. 60.

THIS COUPON

if presented on any Tuesday or Friday during the soring season will entitle THE BEARER to a good comfortable seat at where he can purchase at his own figures anything and everything in plants, roots, trees and shrubs......

CLEARY'S

Sales at 60 Vesey Street, NEW YORK, II A. M.

EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY.

EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY. iocececececececececeii

Always mention the American Florist when writing to advertisers.

LONGIFLORUM PURE STOCK, SOUND AND WELL RIPENED.

On account of the scarcity of the larger sizes of JAPAN LONGI-FLORUM and the large demand for same this season I have to request that orders be booked EARLY to avoid disappointment. I offer 3 sizes namely: 5-7, 7-9 and 9-10 inches, but can only accept orders for the larger sizes when fair proportion of the smaller is taken. Delivery Sept. 25 to Oct. 15, 1898. Prices on application. Would be pleased also to get your general order for other Forcing Bulbs and Roots at same time. Address all orders and correspondence to Juniper and Walnut Sts., Philadelphia.

G. C. WATSON.

Your Spring Plant Trade

will come easier, and be more profitable if solicited in the nice way you can do such things by means of

LONG'S

DAN'L B. LONG, Publisher

Of the Royal Arcanum

Will hold a meeting in Cleveland, O., May 18-25 for which the Nickel Plate Road is authorized to sell tickets at one and one-third fare for the round trip, on certificate plan. Unexcelled dining car ser-Vestibuled sleeping cars. Three through trains daily from the Van Buren Street Passenger Station. For full particulars call up telephone Main 3389 or address J. Y. Calahan, Gen'l Agent, 111 Adams Street, Chicago.—(13)

TELEGRAPH CODE

TRADE ASSOCIATION

in either stiff or flexible cover. ADDRESS ORDERS TO

> AMERICAN FLORIST CO., CHICAGO.

For Insurance against damage by hail, Address

10HN G. ESLER. Sec'y, F H. A., Saddie River. N. J

THIS IMPRINT ON AN ENCRAVING

IS A CUARANTEE OF SATISFACTORY QUALITY....

Manz makes illustrations for this paper.

GEO. E. COLE & CO. Blank Book Makers. Stationers and Printers

86 and 88 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO.

THE Regan Printing House NURSERY SEED FLORISTS

> 87-91 Plymouth Place, *** CHICAGO***

A LL Nurserymen, Seedsmen and Florists wishing to do business with Europe should send for the . . . .

"Horticultural Advertiser"

This is the British Trade Paper, being read weekly by all Horticultural traders; it is also taken by over 1000 of the best Continental houses. Address EDITORS OF THE "H. A."

Notts, England. Chilwell Nurseries.

...THE...

"Lyon=Horticole" is an interesting review of French horticulture. Issued semi-monthly. 20 8-vo. pages illustrated. Subscriptious to the United States, 1 year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00. Address

DIRECTEUR LYON-HORTICOLE, Lyon-Villeurbanne, France.

FLORISTS' MUTUAL

INSURANCE ASS'N

Application Blanks and Prospectus Ready.... Write now. Delays are dangerous.

W. J. VESEY, Sec'y. - Ft. Wayne, Ind.

THE NATIONAL

C. S LODER, Sec'y, 271 Broadway, New York

THE WABASH R. R. COMPANY

The Short and Quick Line between the East and West connecting Buffalo, Detroit and Toledo with Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

The Wabash is the Only Line running sleeping cars and chair cars (free) between Buffalo and St. Louis and Kansas City.

Through sleeping cars between New York and Boston and St. Louis and Chicago run every day.

cago run every day.

For further information apply to the nearest Railroad Ticket Agent, or to

H. B. McCLELLAN, G. E. A.,

387 Broadway, New York Cily,

J. D. McBEATH, N. E. P. A., 6 State Street, Boston, Mass.

C. S. CRANE, G n. Pass. & Tkl. Aol., St. Louis, Mo.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN. TRVING ROUSE, Pres.: E. Albertson, Vice-Pres.: GEORGE C SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y and Treas.

DENISON, TEXAS.—T. V. Munson, this city's most noted floriculturist and viticulturist, has been elected corresponding member of the National Society of Agriculture of France. In 1889 Mr. Munson was accorded the decoration of the Legion of Honor for his success in supplying grafting stock with which to restore worn out vinevards in France.

Park and Outdoor Art Association.

We have received the preliminary announcement of the Minneapolis meeting, to be held June 22, 23 and 24. Head-quarters of the association will be at the West Hotel, at which the rates are $3 per day and upward. Minneapolis is readily accessible from all points by rail. Eastern visitors can take advantage of the fine boat ride through the great lakes from Buffalo to Duluth via the Great Northern Steamship Line. Such special hotel and railroad rates as are secured will be aunounced later. Mornings of the 22d (Wednesday), the 23d, and the entire day of the 24th will be given up to business, papers and discussion.

The retiring president will address the meeting and the following papers have been promised: W. W. Folwell, "Play-grounds and Plazas"; Juo. H. Patterson, "Landscape Gardening," illustrated by the stereopticon: Fred Kanst, "Plant Pro-"Tree Planting on Public Streets"; O. C. Simonds, "Appreciation of Natural Beauty"; Orlando B. Douglas, "The Relation of Public Parks to Public Utalia." lation of Public Parks to Public Health"; Chas. N. Lowrie, "Small City Parks and Open Air Breathing Spaces"; J. A. Petti-grew, "Park Woodlands and Planta-tions"; A. C. Clas, "The Architect and the Landscape Architect"; C. Wahl, "The Duties of Park Commissioners."

It is expected that Mrs. Robert Pratt will present the work of children in improving the surroundings of their home and school grounds, and that she will have the assistance of ladies and gentlemen of other sections of the country who have taken an active interest in this work. A more complete list of authors, papers and titles will be sent to members before the date of the meeting.

At some time during the afternoons or evenings of the 22d and 23d a banquet is to be given by the citizens; an opportunity is to be given for an examination of the park system, and the invitation of Mr. F. H. Peavey to visit his estate upon the shores of Lake Minnetonka and to take a boat ride upon the lake will be accepted. At the close of the meeting arrai gements are to be made for an excursion to the Interstate Park at the Dalles of the St. Crory - Warren H. Man-ning, of Boston Masse, is secretary and Breasurer

Franklin, Pa.

A joke is going the rounds in newspaper done to the effect that the market garden ers along the Atlantic coast are not planting peas this spring for fear that the Spanish warships will come along and shel them. I may add, in parenthesis, that so such fears are being entertained by the florists, for glass is going up, and not me a price than in the air, at a rate that bespeaks an utter disregard for the Spanish or any other troubles. That spirit of commercialism with which Europe sometimes charges us expresses itself in the hustle noticeable on all sides among the florists, which surely means the advent of a brighter era.

It is most gratifying to note that so staunch a conservative as W. T. Bell takes a rosy view of the future. His activity this spring would convince the most pessimistic that the time of making hav has come. Besides extensive alterations about his plant, Mr. Bell has two new houses, each 16x120, in course of erection. They are intended for roses and run east and west with the short span to the south. Brick walls and woodwork covered with slate are some of the exconsive features about the place, it being Mr. Bell's rule that "whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well."

Another feature worthy of mention is the change from the hot water heating system to that of steam. Where lour boilers formerly did duty one will soon be placed in position with sufficient capacity to distribute heat throughout the entire plant. Taken all in all Mr. Bell's establishment promises to be of the model type.

A seedling having some of the Day-break "blood," a beautiful salmon pink on a long, stiffstem, fringed and fragrant, attracted my attention while strolling through the houses. It is a fine carnation and, in my opinion, is destined to make its mark.

Business is all that can be expected at this season of the year.

MARINETTE, Wis .- George Vatter is building a range of modern greenhouses on State street to which he will shortly remove.

OUR SPECIALTIES

AZALEAS, ROSES, RHODODENDRONS

New and rero hardy plants for forcing. Noveltles in Ferns (rulsed by the largest London grower). The newest and best varieties of roses; Il P. and Tea scented, from a French relser. Write us and ask for quotations. We import direct to Boston to meet the demand from Canada and New Englard States.

F. Brunton & Co.

IMPORTERS AND EXPORTERS OF NEW AND RAKE PLANTS,

136 Boylston Street, - BOSTON, MASS.

TOKYO... NURSERIES CO.

Hendquarters for Japan Lilles Cycas Revoluta, Morning Glory, all k ods of Japanese plants, seeds etc., etc. Large assortment aldways in stock Orders broundly evecuted.
Write for catalogue

The Tokye Nurseries Co. Komagome, Tekyo, GIAPANI

Cable Address
"Nurseries Tokyo.

Florists' Stock for Bedding

Alternauthera, Coleus, Geraniums, Pausles, Dalsies, Verbenas, Puchsias, Salvia, etc., etc. Write for prices, Plorists when in Milwaukee ore in-vited to look over our stock.

ARCHIE MIDDLEMASS, 1019 Forest Home Ave., MILWAUKEE, WIS.

EVERGREENS, Etc.

20,000 American Arbor Vitas, 2 to 8 feet specimens and hedging plants.

5,000 Pyramidal Arbor Vitas, 2 to 4 feet.

20,000 Compacts, Globe and other dwarf Arbor Vitas, all sizes.

3,000 Nordman's Silver Fir, 1 to 2½ feet.

2,000 European Silver Fir, 2 to 4 feet,

5,000 Hembock Spruce, 1 to 4 feet,

10,000 Norway Spruce, 3 to 8 feet,

10,000 Prims, and silver Fir, 2 to 4 feet,

5,000 Inish Junipers, Squarrosa, Plumosa, Plumosa, aurea and other sorts, 1 to 5 feet,

5,000 Fines, Austrian, Scotch, Excelsa, White and dwarf varieties, all sizes,

1,000 English Holly, 1 to 4 feet,

1,000 English Holly, 1 to 4 feet,

3,000 Mahomas aquifolia and Japonica,

3,000 English by, strong plants,

Prices low, Correspondence solicited.

THE WM. H. MOON CO., Morrisville, Pa,

THE WM. H. MOON CO., Morrisville, Pa.

IMPORTERS

JAPANESE PLANTS. BULBS, ETC.

At lowest prices. Small orders tilled from experimental garden Columbia Road. Dorchester, Mass. Wholesale catalogue, 1838, free to the trade.

JAPANESE NURSERY,

Office: 272 Boylston St.,

BOSTON, MASS.

Hemlock Spruce...

18-24 and 24-36 inch.

Azalea Indica for fall use. 15e to $10 each. Write for prices on other items

HIRAM T. JONES,

Union County Nurseries,

EEIZABETH, N. J.

Peacock's 36 First Prizes out of 39 entries in 1896 and 1897.

Prize Winning Dahlias

Send for 1898 illustrated wholesale cata-ogue before placing orders elsewhere.

W. P. PEACOCK, - Atco, N. J.

HARDY

Herbaceous Perennials

THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK IN AMERICA. PÆONIES, PHLOX, IRIS, DELPHINIUMS, ETC., ETC.

JACOB W. MANNING

The Reading Nursery, READING, MASS. ESTABLISHED 1854,

CLEMATIS Jackmanni, Henryil doz. 100 and others .......$3.00 $20.00

F. A. BALLER, Bloomington, III,

Assorted in 25 Varieties.

My selection $50 per 1000. Descriptive catalogue and price lists for the trade.

SAMUEL C. MOON,

Bucks Co., PA.

It will be better for everybody if you mention the American Florist when writing advertisers on this page.

St. Paul.

TRADE PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT IN THE TWIN CITIES .- SUPPLY DOES NOT EQUAL THE DEMAND.—VISITORS.

Sales since Easter have been good. Weddings, funerals and social functions have all contributed to the florists' trade, and with the season at hand for planting out stock, with Memorial Davin the near future and commencement season immediately after, their hands will be kept busy.

In the cut flower line stock is fairly abundant, though there is not enough grown here to supply the demand. White roses and carnations are the scarce articles, while smilax, which has been in short supply, is becoming more plentiful.

Retail prices are maintained, the best Tea roses selling at $1.50, carnations at 50 cents and lilies of the valley, narcissus and other bulbous stock at the same figure per dozen.

